Algonquian December Beaver Moon: Time to set beaver traps before the swamps freeze, to make sure of a supply of warm winter furs.

9 November 2006

YOUR EDITOR 80 YEARS OLD TODAY AS HE LOOKED A "FEW" YEARS AGO"

YOUR EDITOR IS NOW 80 YEARS OLD. WOULD YOU BELIEVE IT? WHO WOULD HAVE THOUGHT THAT THIS LITTLE KID WOULD HAVE MADE IT SO FAR.

THIS IS ABOUT WHAT HE LOOKS LIKE TODAY, MINUS ABOUT 40 POUNDS LIGHTER.

PERHAPS IT IS TIME TO SLOW DOWN AND BE AN OLD MAN LIKE A LOT OF OTHER GUYS. WHAT DO YOU THINK? I WOULD LIKE YOUR OPINION. DROP DEAD IS NOT AN OPTION TODAY, HOWEVER, IF THAT IS WHAT YOU HAVE IN MIND.

Kansas Delaware Indian Thomas "Tom" Frederick "Strong Swiftwater" Hahn is the son of Walter "Walt" "Straight Arrow" Hahn and Florence Vivian Torgeson. He was born on 6 November 1926 in Topeka, Topeka Township, Shawnee County, Kansas. [but shows on records as 5 November, which is his legal birth date] at the St. Francis Hospital on West Sixth [Avenue], Topeka, Kansas "on a snowy Saturday," [so said his mother].) Topeka was a nice place to live when I was growing up there. There was almost everything to be had or needed in the way of services and yet it was easy to get around in buy foot or bus or by bicycle.

I was one of the fortunate children of the world having been brought up by nurturing parents who encouraged me in all that I did, loving grandparents and aunts and uncles and cousins and neighbors and teachers who provided me with security and the opportunity to developed as I wished. And, a beautiful country, generally respected by the word at that time, in which to live.

I believe that the satisfaction that I have had in life has come from being exposed to and surrounded by all kinds of people all at levels in many parts of the earth from the time of my birth to the present. For all of you--present and departed I thank you and appreciate you.

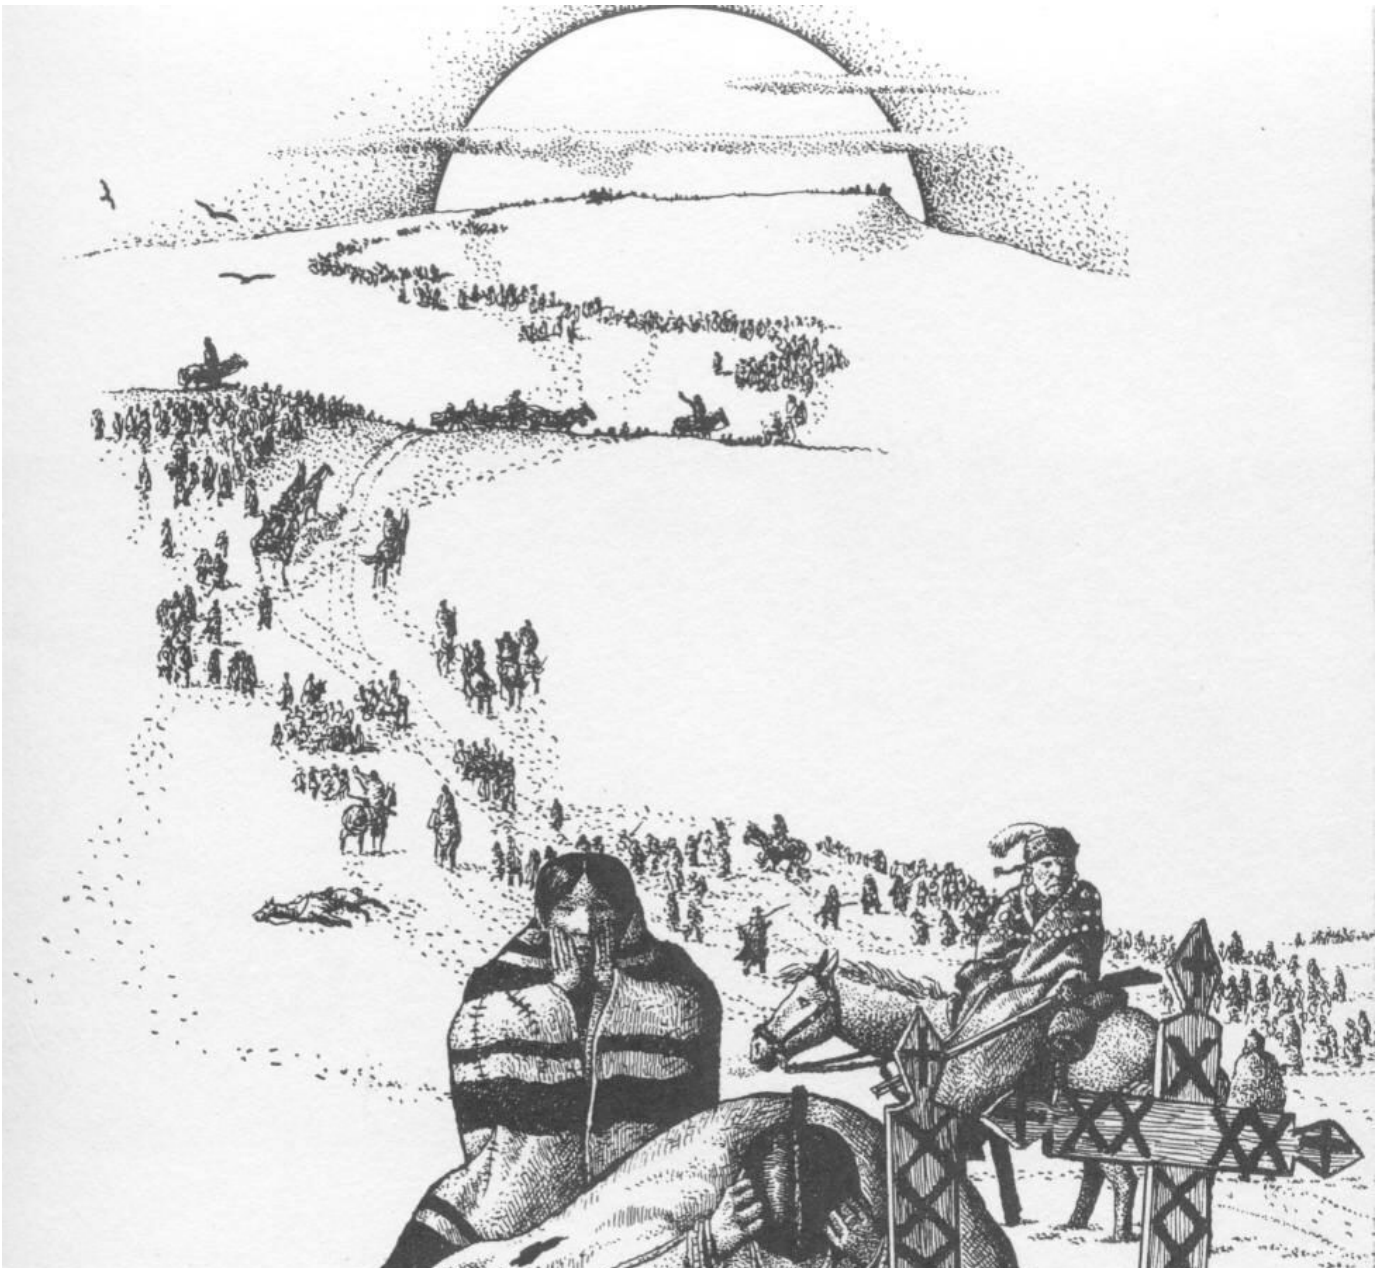
Beginning 22 October 2006, I began a typescript prepared by Rodney Staab, Curator of the Grinter Place Historic Site 1986-1997, in preparation for an Interpretive Manual of the site 15 June 1997). I do not know whether or not the Manual was ever finished and published and put into use.



Much of the data are duplicated elsewhere, but it, but it puts most of it in one location in this web site. If you know whether or not the Manual was ever completed and published, I would appreciate knowing. As I have to type this in by my slow typing, it may take a while. O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,

For purple mountain majesties
America! America!

Web Site of Lenape-Delaware History. Our Internet Address is: http://www.lenapedelawarehistory.net/mirror*. This is a volunteer, non-profit, non-affiliated , historical research site. Our concentration is on the Lenape (Delaware) -- an Algonquian language-based people -- of North America. The site as of 1 September contained the equivalent of 2,266 printed pages, including hundreds of images. Our Archive Site is a good place to go for easy access and printing. http://lenapedelawarehistory.net/archive/lenapedelawarehistory.pdf It is created about once a month, or so, so the latest pages will not be in it. The archive site will not work for you unless you have a high speed cable connection.

This site is not sponsored by nor is it affiliated with any Lenape-Delaware Tribe or Nation or by any other Native American organization. The data contained herein are based both on documents and other data that are available in both open sources in the public domain and from various individuals. The format in which we present the information, comments, or notes, etc. is copyrighted and is intended for the reader's personal family research only. It may not be reproduced for profit or without the permission of the individual researcher/s and the web site owners. Any query regarding this subject should be sent to Editor Thomas Swiftwater Hahn. This restriction is necessary to prevent unscrupulous persons from selling or misusing family information. Our major purpose is to make information available as starting points for those working on their family histories and/or on Lenape-Delaware history. A secondary purpose is to provide a place where research regarding the Lenape-Delaware can take place. For privacy reasons, data will not be given for living persons without their permission. No current tribal roll information will be used without the permission of the proper officials of any tribe or nation. We will make no judgments regarding the legitimacy of any Lenape-Delaware Tribe or Nation or any other Native American or indigenous entity. We merely reflect what they say about themselves in their web sites and/or elsewhere.

Wherein possible, we have included the e-mail link to the researcher/s who has/have worked on a particular item. That person is responsible for the accuracy of his/her research. S/he should be contacted regarding the details of the source or the particulars of the data, because s/he is in the best position to handle relevant questions. The editor is responsible for the overall content and well being of Lenape-Delaware History. All of us working on this site dedicated to our subject. We are all volunteers. As in all historical research, we do not vouch for the validity of the data of the sources we are using, but we are responsible for providing them when they are available. We would like to emphasize that though we publish recorded history, we are equally equally concerned with the process of historical research itself. We are always open to the correction of data and welcome new data.

Please note that we acknowledging the name or e-mail address of the provider of photographs and other images with the term "Provided by _____." That does not necessarily mean that the sender holds the original or has done the research to obtain it. It only provides a contact point for the person wanting to know more about the photograph or to make an attempt to obtain a copy. Similarly, the contact point for each entry in the site is the Lenape-Delaware History researcher who is the primary contact point. That person acts as the "clearing station" for that bit of historical research, but s/he may not necessarily be the one who is the expert on the subject. We are striving to attain a web site that is simple to maintain, one that provides the reader with somewhere to go beyond what is contained in the site, to give and to provide credit where it is due, and to protect privacy where it is requested.

Proper names will be in a bold, black color. For anyone having difficulty in printing, I suggest going to Printer Properties and click on Landscape Mode (horizontal) rather than Portrait Mode (vertical). Perhaps someday it will all appear in a nice Portrait Mode; that is not a high priority because this is an ongoing-research web site primarily designed for viewing. To reach any of the links provided, place the cursor on the underlined blue portion of that item until it becomes a hand, then use one left click of the mouse to go directly to that site. If you are able to bring up only a limited number of images on a page, it indicates that you may need additional memory for your computer. Editor.

GRINTER PLACE

There is considerable coverage on the Grinter Place in the various Grinter Family Pages, but it seems appropriate to have a page just devoted to one of the key features on the Old Kansas Delaware Preserve. I will, begin to sort out what appears appropriate on the family pages and that which seems to fit better here.

Beginning 22 October 2006, I began entering much of a typescript prepared by Rodney Staab, Curator of the Grinter Place Historic Site 1986-1997, in preparation for an Interpretive Manual of the site 15 June 1997). I do not know whether or not the Manual was ever finished and published and put into use.

Much of the data are duplicated elsewhere, but it, but it puts most of it in one location in this web site. If you know whether or not the Manual was ever completed and published, I would appreciate knowing. As I have to type this in by my slow typing, it may take a while. Editor swiftwater@lenapedelawarehistory.net

Chapter I - Residences of the GRINTER-MARSHALL-KIRBY FAMILIES 1830s to 1950

Contemporary testimony on the construction and use of the original buildings at Grinter Place is rare. The mid- to late-twentieth century tradition has long been that that the Grinter family began with the marriage of Moses Grinter and Annie Marshall in January 1831, that they lived at or very near this site since the genesis of the Grinters as a family, that the house was built in 1857,and that the construction took two years. Further memoirs maintain that the Kirby family did not move into the house until after the death of Annie Grinter in 1905. In some instances these assumptions can be checked against contemporary sources.

Presenting the details of the Grinter family history here and in all these chapters, and evidence for the Fort Leavenworth - Fort Scott military road and the connecting ferry in yet another chapter, in general it seems evident that Moses and Annie Grinter began living together or acting as married people by about 1838, with their first child, Frances Catherine Grinter, born December 26, 1839. hat they were a family is confirmed by the 1842 Delaware census, which at No. 101 lists Mrs. Grinter with one male and one female child under age of ten. The ale child would have been their second child, William Henry Harrison Grinter, born 1 November 1841. Moses Grinter himself, not being a Delaware, would have been excluded from the census. No marriage certificate has yet been discovered for the couple. [end page 1-1]

Locations of the Grinter family home , 1830s-1855

It is uncertain where the Grinter family lived prior to 1855. In 1929 a Grinter daughter, Mrs. Henry Kirby, born July 16, 1857. recalled that "for more than a quarter of a century the Grinters lived in a pioneer cottage near the Grinter trading post, just above the ferry" prior to constructing the extant brick home (Kansas City Kansan 27 December 1929). Mrs. Kirby's obituary also stated that "her parents . . . occupied the home in which she died when she was two years old." This version of the family story appears in almost all the subsequent histories of the site, and carries the clear implication that this vicinity was from the beginning the only location for the Grinter home. Nonetheless some early evidence locating the family home near or within the drainage area of Marshall Creek in the northern part of the present-day county boundaries should be noted. Much of the dating hinges on the times of birth and death of the Grinter children. Appendix 1, the family group chart for the Moses Grinter family, should thus here be consulted.

(1) A post-1951 family recollection, of which there is a poor photocopy in the Kirby-Willey collection at the Grinter House, states that the family "lived near present Washington High School [on the north side of Leavenworth road, between 72nd and 75th Streets] for a few years where 3 of their children were born, 3 dying young before the start of the Grinter Cemetery [and] were [thus] buried in the Delaware cemetery, at White Church." Examining the family group chart for the Moses Grinter family, the first three births concluded with their third child, Victoria B. (b. 26 June 1848, d. 4 September 1853, the fifth child, Florence (b. 11 July 1851, d. 24 October 1857) and the sixth child, Prudence (b. 11 July 1851, d. 24 October 1857) and the sixth child, Prudence (b. 26 June 1854, d. infancy). There was another child, James [end page 1-2] Grinter, whose birth and death (in infancy) dates are unknown, but traditionally he is placed as the eight child, born between Martha A. Vashti (the seventh, b. 16 July 1857) and Francis (the ninth, b. 1 July 1862, d. 12 July 1864).

(2) Somewhat corroborating the above account is another from a news article (in the Merlye Hotujac collection, Grinter Place Museum) telling of the annual Grinter family reunion . This reunion occurred 25 September 1932. The news article, from an unknown newspaper, states that Moses Grinter "married Miss Annie Marshall, a Delaware Indian, in January, 1838. Top that union ten children were born. All now are dead. Five died while in childhood and are buried in the old Indian cemetery at White Church. The other five are buried in Grinter's chapel cemetery, one-half mile north of the Grinter home." The 26 September Kansas City Kansan reprinted below has nearly identical genealogical information. [end page 1-3]

The five children who died as adults were, in chronological order: William Henry Harrison Grinter (d, 10 December 1887), Frances Catherine Grinter (d. 9 April 1908); she married John Grinter)), Mary Jane Grinter Defries (d.16 July 198), Cunningham R. Grinter (d. 11 March 1924), and the last. Martha Vashti Grinter Allen Kirby (d. 20 June 1930). Hence this tradition again argues for a pre-1868 affiliation of the family with White Church, today located at 85th Street and Lafayette.

(3) An account in the Kansas City Sun for 14 July 1905 memorializing Moses R. Grinter states that "when first married, for a few years they lived near Bethel, where heir first child, (Francis C.) [i.e. Frances Catherine Grinter] was born [26 December 1839] but later located near the [Kansas] river living in a log house until about 1860, when the fine brick residence was erected, which is still standing." The Bethel cemetery, itself more or less at the center of the old Bethel community and located on the south side of the Leavenworth road at 78th Street, it is about 1.1 miles northeast of White Church. Hence this earliest account locates the family near Bethel as early as 1839. Note that the earlier these sources are dated, the earlier they locate the family in the Bethel area. Note, also, that the question of this earliest location is only treated in 20-th century sources. No 19th-century cou5ces yet located treat the qu4stion. It should also be observed here that from the heavy reliance upon the births and deaths of children in dating events, it is highly probable that the base-line memories are those of a woman. Moses Grinter died 12 June 1878 and our source material for earliest Grinter homes seems to rely exclusively on remembrances of Annie's recollections. Annie died 28 June 1905.

(4) Somewhat corroborating an earlier White Church location is an obituary, from an unidentified newspaper, of Mrs. Anna Grinter. The clipping [end of page 1-4] now in te Ora Davis Grinter collection at Grinter Place Museum. The clipping garbles many of the otherwise well-documented facts about the family but reports: "in 1836 she married Moses R. Grinter. Ten children were born to them . . . Mr. and Mrs. Grinter lived o a farm near White Church until the death of Mr. Grinter in 1878."

Summarizing these four early sources, it seems likely that the first Grinter home was in Bethel or White Church area. and was inhabited from the late 1830s to about the mid-1840s. The second home, also of wood construction, was likely very near the present Grinter Place and was occupied from about the mid-1840s to about 1860. The third Grinter home is the one which now stands at the northwest corner of K-32 Highway and 78thStreet.

Those first homes were, most likely, log homes; see R. Staab, "Dining with the Delawares: Kansas Delaware Homes and Hospitality, 1830s - 1860s," pp. 354-356 in Papers of the Twenty-third Algonquian Conference (Ottawa, 1992), reprinted with this interpretive manual, for an overview of the literature. Francis Parkman, a recent Harvard graduate in 1846, also noted the Delaware cabins, and left a description of what might in fact be the second Grinter home, although unfortunately he does not identify anyone by name: "A few hours' ride [on 10 May 1846] brought us to the banks of the river Kansas. traversing the woods that line it and ploughing through the deep sand, we encamped not far from the bank at the Lower Delaware Crossing. Our tent was erected for the first time on a meadow close to the woods, and the camp preparations being complete, we began to think of super. An old Delaware woman of some three hundred pounds [Betsy Willaquenaho Marshall?] sat in the porch of a little log house close to the water, and a very pretty half-breed girl was engaged under her superintendence in feeding a large flock of turkeys that were fluttering and cobbling about the door. But no offers of money or even of tobacco could induce [end of page 1-5] her to part with one of her favorites, so I took my rifle to see if the woods or the river could furnish us anything." (The Oregon Trail, ed. Mason Wade, 1943 [the unexpurgated edition], chapter two; see also Barry pp, 581-582.

Commenting on Parkman's description, it should be added that in the traditional Indian homes, and in fact in many homes of woodland tribes, the grandmother stayed home and babysat, while the mother and father were at their respective chores. Parkman's description would probably suit the majority of Delaware cabin homes at one time or another, so there is no pressing reason to believe that this was in fact the Grinter home. Nonetheless in 1846 this description, vague as it is, would also fit the known demographics of the Grinter Family, for the oldest girl, Francis Catherine Grinter, would then have been six, and the old Delaware woman might have been Anne Marshall Grinter's mother. This would have been Elizabeth Ketchum Marshall, then about 49 years of age, the mother of eight children, and widowed in 1834 (only three of her children survived infancy).

Parkman's description would have fit with the chronology of the Grinter homes established here, though the chronology stands on its own. Note, further, that if this home is indeed the Grinter home, there is no particuar connection to the operation of a river-crossing outfit here except through mere geographical propinquity --- and this, too, fits in with what we know of the Grinter livelihood hood. More discussion of the Grinter family and the ferry crossing is postponed for the chapter on that subject.

Note, finally, that there is a well-known incident which would occasion the relocation of a home site in this region between 1843 and 1846, and this would have been the great flood of 1844. The post-1951 memoir, cited above, states that Annie Marshall Grinter "witnessed both the 1844 flood & 1803 flood [end page 1-6] saying the 1844 flood was the highest water." If, then, the relocation occurred circa 1845. then the Grinter's second home, which lasted until until about 1862, would have stood in the vicinity of the current (third) home" More than a quarter of a century" as Mrs. Kirby said in 1929.

Documentation of the site, 1860 to 1900

The extant map of the subdivisions of Township 11 South, Range 24 East, surveyed from 15 April 1861, locates "Moses Grinter" at the present location on the north bank of the Kansas river. We should nonetheless be cautipus in accepting the view that the existing brick building was complete by that time. In the existing northeast corner of the structure, within the exterior wall facing the back porch, and at about head height, there are two bricks which bear pre-firing inscriptions of (a) "Mr. A. Zane May 7 1865" and (b) "A Zane May 7th 1865" in a Spencerian script. These bricks have the appearance of being repairs, but ea5ly repairs, to the original wall. The Zanes were Wyandot Indians; there are several A. Zanes (Wyandots) residing in this area mentioned in Louise Barry's index to the KSHS publications.

There is a tradition that a man named Bernard Tourtelling actually built the house. The tradition comes fr0m John McClain, who in 1985-1987 was sales engineer for the Missouri Valley Electric Company, 1640 Baltimore, P.O. Box 1640, Kansas City, MO 64141. Jefferson Brown, former curator of the Grinter Place Museum, had written on 17 September 1985, I wrote a letter to John McClain on 11 December 1987 asking about this tradition. McClain had told Jeff that Bernard Torteling [sic] had arrived in Wyandot County before it was a territory, started the first brewery here, and was a mason who could build his own kiln, if need be, to fire the bricks. McClain also told Jeff that he had two letters written in the 1920s by Bernard's son which detailed recollections [end of page 1-7] of having built the Grinter House. I received no reply from Mr. McCain. Partially propping up this tradition, the Wyandotte Commercial Gazette for July 20, 1867, states that "B. H. Tertling is putting up a number of one story-brick houses on Myrtle Street (Or Myrtle Avenue, we are not sure which,) one of which is about completed and nearly ready for occupancy, with a second well under way. We (i.e., he) has purchased quite a tract of Mrs. Walker, has started a brick yard, and burned one fine kiln of brick already, and is, withal, doing quite a land office business in the way of real estate."

The following item, from the Wyandot Herald of 11 July 1872, offers a snippet of contemporary information on the house and property: "On Monday evening last (Jul8 8) the inhabitants of Secondine were startled by an earthquake. The shock occurred about 10 o'clock P.M. and traveled from Southeast to Northwest. But one shock was felt which lasted from four to five seconds. But one shock was felt which lasted from four to five seconds. W. H. Grinter, from who we glean the particulars, says that the shock was as severe as the one felt here in 1867. He informed us that the stock on his father's farm was greatly excited, the dogs set up a pitiful howl, the horses neighbed and snorted and the cattle ran bellowing in every direction. He says he sat looking out the window leaning his arms on the same and felt the house vibrating under him. A young man sleeping in the same room was awakened by the trembling of the house and thought that some one was trying to pull the bed from under him. We have had heard whether the shock was felt at any other place."

The Wyandot Herald for 31 May 1882 reports on the apprehension of a man named Webster in Washington County, Kansas. Webster was brought back to Wyandot County by Sheriff Bowling for having stolen "the Widow Grinter's hogs last winter." [end of page 1-8]

The 1890 Wyandotte County and Kansas City, Kansas Historical and Biographical volume published by Goodspeed, contains in a biography of Mrs. Annie Grinter (pp. 622-624) the following passage: "Since death has deprived her of the loved companion, Mrs. Grinter resides in here elegant brick residence, and being in good financial circumstances lives happily and quietly, surrounded by a host of admiring friends and her children." There is, of course, a great deal else of biogaphical interest in this account.

The Bonner Springs, Kansas, Wyandotte Chieftain for July 16, 1897, relates that "The old Grinter homestead near Muncie, is being overhauled by the present tenant, Mr.. Kirby. The furniture is also being remodeled by Mr. Weigelmesser, of this place,." This item calls for commentary. In 1897 Martha Vashti grinter married W. D Alen; he died 27 September 1877. Their child, born 6 September 1877, also died on 27 September 1877, according to one family tree (in the Kirby-Willey collection). Martha Grinter Allen then married Henry Clay Kirby on 30 October 18889. The post-1951 recollection cited above states that several years of Martha V, Grinter's life were spent "from pillar to post going to places where he husband had to preach. At his retirement {he] came to Muncie in 1900 ton her own home n the farm. In 1905 inherited her mother's old home, moved they in 1907." There were a number of Grinter homes in the V=vicinity of Muncie by 1897 so it should not be assumed that "the old Grinter homestead" is in fact the building now t 1420 South 78th Street. Nevertheless the chronology of Kirby family events from 1890 to 1907 with respect to the 78th Street sit is unclear to me.

The circa 1900 photograph of the house

A very useful photograph of the site, taken from the south and featuring Annie Grinter, her so Cunningham (ordinarily known as Cam), Cam's wife Shirley [end of page 1-9] and two children. Cam and Shirley had five children (born in 1886, 1889, 1892,1895 and 1898) and the children in the photo appear to be about two and four years of age, respectively. Without further knowledge of the precise identities of the children we can nonetheless say with some degree of confidence that the photograph was taken sometime between 1892 and 1900.

The photo depicts the white picket fence atop the stone wall surrounding the house, the bulging-out of the top of the chimney above the kitchen, and the west exterior wall off te breezeway, with a door but no windows. Although it is a black and white photo, seemingly the columns on the south porch are painted. The columns in the photo are probably not the columns extant today. Otherwise the architecture of the house seemingly conforms to that seen in the structure today.

The 1929 interview with the Kirby Family

Lincoln Phifer, a reporter for the Kansas City Kansan, interviewed Mattie and Annie Kirby, granddaughters of Mosses and Annie Grinter, in lat 1929 and learned the following with respect to te construction of the house: "After the birth of most of the children. the original Grinter house burned to the ground. The[n] Moses Grinter, wealthy by this time, built the large 2-story brick dwelling that remains to this day on the summit of the hill known as Grinter Heights, and comparable to the famous Shawnee Indian Mission further south. Construction of the building started July 1, 1862. and the structure was completed and occupied te following January. The brick for the building were molded and burned on the Grinter farm, the lime used was taken from ledges near the house and burned where it was mined. The frame work was from native timber, sawed in the neighborhood. Finished lumber, the windows and doors, were hauled from Leavenworth, having firth been brought up the Missouri river by boat. [end of page 1-10]

"The wall of the lower floor," Phifer continued, "is twenty-one inches thick; of the second floor, seventeen inches. The windows only have two lights to the sash, something that was unusual at the time the structure was erected sixty-eight years ago. At that time it was one of the largest and finest residences in Kansas, and even today it stands outlined against the sky, commodious and very striking.

"The sixth child of Moses and Anna Grinter, Mrs. Henry C. Kirby, with her husband and daughter and her family," Phifer continued, "still occupies the old homestead. She has lived there ever since, when, a child of 5 in 1863, she moved in with her father's family. The Kirby children grew up in this historic old home, they married and some of them have died. One daughter and her husband reside in the building where her parents still live, but in another section of the house; for the house is abundantly roomy to house two families. A grandson, about 7 years old, whose mother has died, makes his home with his grandparents in the old homestead . . . [[Through the windows facing north] -- beyond the chicken houses, the barns, the bee hives, the orchard -- upon another ridge a mile further on, one can see Grinter Chapel where two generations of the Grinters attended church and school . . . .[Inside the house] one seems in another world. The big clock ticks leisurely. The old-fashioned stove fills the room with the aroma of burning wood. You are seated in a handmade, but comfortable rocking chair; on the bed there is a quilt placed doubtless by some of the older generation and quilted by hand. There is room. much room; for the walls are apparently about twenty feet from each other." (Kansas City Kansan) 29 December 1929).

A couple of notes should be appended here. First, from the family group sheet it would appear that Martha Vashtie Grinter Kirby was actually the seventh [end of page 1-11] Grinter child and not the sixth. Second, it cannot be determined which of the earlier two homes burned to the ground, as was claimed in 1929. Third, the 1 July 1862 date of the beginning of construction on the home given here exactly coincides with the dates of Francis Grinter's birth, the ninth child. Again there is a reliance on the birth of the children in dating events. [We might also note here that "Vashti" was the queen, and wife to King Ahasuerus, in the first chapters of the Biblical book of Ester. The name is not believed to be Delaware.][Nor are any of the other family names. Editor]

Despite the clear statement of the 29 July 1862-January 1863 construction of the brick home in the December `829account, Mrs. Kirby's obituary upon the occasion of her death on 20 June 1930 -- less than six months after the Phifer interview -- stated "Mrs. Kirby had lived all her life at Muncie, her parents having died the home in which she died when she was 2 years old," i.e. in 1859. This 1859 date for the home has been perpetuated in literature since that time.

Three accounts from 1932

A 1932 news-clipping (from an unidentified newspaper) gives further details. The clipping, now in the Merle Hotujac collection at the Grinter Place Museum. celebrates the upcoming centennial of White Church on the following Sunday. This centennial occasion as Sunday, May 29.1932 (White Church Sesquicentennial booklet) and so the clipping probably dates from a few days earlier. Giving a history of the Delawares and the people associated with the church, the clipping states that the bricks of Moses Grinter home "were made" and burned just south of the house. The lumber was cut on the place and hauled to Mill Creek. The finishing limber was hauled from Leavenworth over the old territorial road. A man named Burns, a brick mason, laid the brick for the home. Grinter's pet hobby was raising bees. He could take a swarm of them [end of page 1-12] anywhere. He was also noted for his fine fruit and orchards. He was the first permanent white settler of Wyandotte county. Mr. and Mrs. Grinter had ten children, five of these children are buried in the Indian cemetery near White Church."

Another 1932 article, dating probably from 26 September and currently in the Meryrle Hotujac collection at Grinter Place, celebrates the third "Grinter Clan Reunion." The article states: "The brick [for the house] were burned in what is now the front yard. With the exception of two rooms, the original flooring still is in the structure . . . A basket dinner was served at noon in cafeteria style. Every family took a basket of food ands it was spread out on tables. It was said every basket contained fried chicken." Many of the participants at these reunions have told me that at these events a large family tree [genealogy] in the shape of a tree, would be placed in what we would now term the entrance hall, the first room one enters the house. The "tree" was placed either on the wall beneath the staircase, or the opposite wall./ [I wonder where it is now? Editor] Meryle told me "people came from as far away as Independence, Missouri, and as far far as Topeka, Kansas. just to come to these reunions. [As your editor and the greater Hahn Family did.] Many people in those photographs still live today.

A third article from that year is in some respects almost identical with the clipping found in the 26 September Kansas City Kansan. This Kansan item, partly based on the Lincoln Phifer article three earlier, states that "the old family home at Grinter Heights . . . is a sturdy brick house built not for a day or a year, but to withstand the elements and ears. It is of two stories, built of brick moulded and burned where it was mined. The framework was from native timber, sawed in [end of page 1-13] the neighborhood. Finishing lumber, the windows and doors, were hauled from Fort Leavenworth, having first been brought up the Missouri river by boat. The wall of the lower floor is 21 inches thick; that of the second floor, seventeen inches . . . [Moses] and his brother, James C. Grinter, married sisters, who were part French and part Delaware Indian. [There is no proof that they were French. They were one-half Delaware, their mother, Elizabeth Willaquenaho being full-blood Delaware]. Moses married Annie Marshall and James married Rose [Roseanne] Marshall. Moses Grinter and wife had ten children, all of whom are dead. Five died while in childhood and are buried in the old Indian cemetery at White church. The other five are buried in the Grinter chapel cemetery, which adjoins the little old Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which was established through the efforts of Moses Grinter. Moses Grinter died in January, 1978, and his wife in June, 1905."

A post-1951 family account of the construction of the Grinter farmstead

Te post-1951 remembrance cited above (from the Kirby-Willey collection) also furnishes a valuable account of the construction of the house and farmstead buildings. The relevant portion is reprinted above, edited for clarity but preserving some of the syntax of the original:

"The home if M and [for] the elevated wall around the house some distance away, making an elevated yard about oses R. Grinter on the hill overlooking the Kaw, northwest of the ferry location, was begun in 1856 under the construction skill of John Swagger. Native stone was used for all foundation work about 100 feet on each side, averaging abut 2 1/2 feet high. A white wicket fence set atop the wall with entrance gates on the south to the west and to the north connected to the house by brick walks and molded bricks of native clay made on the site. Lime for the mortar was burned in a [kin] 200 yards to [the] northwest on [the[bank of the creek. The 24 x 60 2-story main structure was built first with a 22 inch walls on the first floor and 17 inch walls on the second floor. All partitions [end of page 1-14] were brick supported on stone foundation. Cyprus [i.e., cypress] singles covered the roof which needed no replacement until 1902. The main structure was put into use in the fall of 1859. The kitchen was built and connecting & enclosures followed. The walnut stair rail was hand made on the job. All finish material, door, windows, etc., were boated from Leavenworth & oxteamed to the site, taking 3 days for the trip. Window & door sills & lintels were walnut. The 5 large fire-places, [large enough to accomodate a 3 1/2 foot log, were the heating and cooking sources. The upper deck porch was a haven for the sleepy in extremely hot weather. It also served to dry peaches, apples, corn, hops & such. The 50 gal. cast iron kettle positioned to the west of the house served for cooking hams, hominy, lard rendering and and soap making. 150 feet west was the original lg barn, another was later built 250 feet northeast. A large stone cave was built in the bank 150 feet east of the house. The Grinter spring was the water source, 200 yards northeast in the creek. The large istren at the east end of the house came later. fruit orchard occupied the land south & southwest of the house. Two large maple trees, one on either side of the front entrance n the lower yard level, gave extensive shade. Other trees near filled in empty spaces. A large lilac bush was in the S.W. corner of the yard. Another was in the S.E./ corner. A spreading yellow rose was my first memory of this part of the yard. The well, dug in 1870, was 63 ft. deep, riley [riled] water would come from it when the river was above normal. Bill Maupin moved his sawmill from Independence Mo in 1866 to Edwardsville, [and] furnished lumber to the Grinter buildings and others in the locale. This native lumber was used for all buildings until about 1890, when better lumber was badly depleted.

Another account from the same source. while not specifically pertinent to the history of the structures at the site, nevertheless offers some insight into local agro-environmental adaptations: [end of page 1-15]

Little development of he locale was made until the close of the Civil War. Most settlers were poor & satisfied themselves with a log house & small farm and garden area. Most settled on land near a natural spring for water supply, clearing small areas, [and] later as demands grew, connected these to make large fields. Wheat became a main crop, confined to manual hand harvest with the hand cradle and binding. Wm. H. H. Grinter [died 1887] was among the best experts in this line. By 190 the wheat binder was being used, but [because of] the stumps in the fields, much cradleling still had to be done to save the entire crop. Progress to de-stump the was attempted by any means, mostly by hand work. Mechanical pullers & explosive came to use about 1900, clearing many of the fields. Much of the fertile was swamps & wet & little farms until [the] 1890's. Water was plentiful at 30 ft. depth in the bottoms. By drainage many areas soon were under cultivation, and homesteads became frequent. Few of the water supply springs survived in the upland due to man's encroachment [by] these methods. Some of these springs) were major as: 76th [street] & U.P.R.R. [Union Pacific Railroad], Secondine spring, Grinter spring east of Grinter house, Searcy spring 77[th street] [north of Swartz Avenue], Newman spring north of 79 & Swartz, W. A. Defries spring south of 79 & Kansas Avenue, A. Defries spring south of Kansas Ave & 75, James Grinter spring north of the old home. Two springs west of 80 & Kaw Drive were the traveler's haven, plenty of shade, and on the highway.

Household Furnishings

Except for the 1929 article, household furnishings for the Grinters and others of that vicinity are almost completely undocumented. I have never seen any interior photographs. On the positive side, for purposes of reconstructing an "average" household's furnishings for pre-1900 sites, if a head of household in Kansas died intestate (without a will), the Probate Court (end of page 1-16); [page 1-17 appears to be missing, but Staab was probably going to mention that an inventory of property owned was required.)

Chapter 2. Dining with the Delawares: Kansas Delaware Homes and Hospitality, 1830s-1860s

This chapter is based on a paper by Rodney Staab entitled "Dining with the Delawares: Kansas Delaware Homes and Hospitality 1830s-1860s," that was published in Papers of the Twenty-Third Algonquian Conference by the Carleton University, Ottawa, 1992, William Cowan, Editor

The treaties of 1829 and 1867 give us usable, if imprecise, dates for the arrival from Missouri and Indiana, and the departure to Indian Territory (now Oklahoma), of the Kansas Delawares, Weslager 1972:370-427), The years between, then, count for about a tenth of the time the Unami-speaking people have been known to Europeans. Although the dispersal and loss of Kansas Delaware lands and te gradual Christianizing of the tribe have been the subject of several historians" inquiries, less has been written about the ephemeral details of Delaware home lie during this period. For example, the two most useful surveys of housing have hitherto been Lewis Henry Morgan's 1859 description and anther list complied about 1862. Morgan wrote:

> When Mr. Pratt [a Baptist missionary] came among them 12 years ago, they were living in bark houses. Now many of them are living in frame houses two stories high, some with a veranda in front the whole length, and the have good barns and outbuildings. Some of them have herds of cattle from 25 to 100 and have 5 to 20 swine, sheep, wagons, and all kinds of implements (Cited in Thurman 1973:200) particular types of homes: log cabin 11; two cabins 5; three cabins 2; double cabin 3; small frame house 3; three houses 1; large frame house 1; two story house 1 (cited by Thurman 1973:200)

But dozens of brief notices and accounts in contemporary periodical literature allow us to sharpen our focus on Delaware domesticity from the 1830s through the 1860s. Of the extant accounts of travelers who dined with their Delaware hosts in early Kansas, one of the most representative was left by Byron, and otherwise unnamed soldier of the Ninth Kansas Cavalry. While en route from Fort Riley to Quindaro during late January, 1862[end of p. 354], Byron and another visitor stopped at a Delaware home to inquire after food and lodging, and left this account:

> [We inquired] of the inmates (eight persons of various ages) whether they kept travellers or not. After considerable palavering, without understanding a single word, we were motioned to the barn, where we left our tired horses. As we were returning to the house, we discovered an old Indian woman "packing" a large log upon her shoulders, which she carried into the house and placed on the fire with [a] quantity of small sticks, and we were soon made comfortable. While supper was preparing, we amused ourselves by interrogating a little half breed of a half dozen summers, who had received some education, and could digest very good English. . . While we were there, he brought in a half dozen rabbits which he had killed with the bow and arrow. We expected poor fare, but were very agreeably disappointed to find good coffee, with plum preserves, good biscuit, roast turkey and a fine roll of butter upon the table. (Byron 1862)

The references to wild or foraged foods such as rabbits and plums, cultivated or purchased grain for the biscuits, domesticated cattle, domesticated or wild turkeys, purchased coffee, the domestic arrangements for the house and barn, the number of inhabitants per dwelling, and the varying degrees of ability or willingness to discourse in English are all echoed in contemporary accounts, affording the synoptic reader an unintended ethnographic sketch of Delaware domesticity.

Albert D. Richardson, a political reporter from the Cincinnati Gazette and the Quindaro, Kansas Territory, Chindowan, from June 1857 to early 1858 left five separate accounts of stopovers at Delaware homes. On his first such visit to a "half-way station kept by Indians" on te Delaware Reserve, dated to June, 1857. he and his companion were dismayed by a "view of our copper-colored cook picking up the corned beef with her stout, bony fingers." (Richardson 1857a). Late that summer, however, the Delaware log or frame houses, barns, and the surrounding few acres of "cornfields and wheatfields, and fields of other grains, growing where there was once a heavy forest" reminded him of scenes common in the States (Richardson 1857b).

Just prior to Richardson's second stopover, dated to August 25, 1857, his traveling companion "For a big price got some very small, very tart, half-ripened apples, which tasted unlike green persimmons" but could find no melons for sale. At the "well known Indian tavern on the edge of the prairie, on the Fort Leavenworth road thirteen miles from Quindaro" where Richardson and his two companions dined that day, they feasted on tough beef, cold potatoes, boiled corn, wild honey, bad bread and good butter" (Richardson 1857b)

Richardson's third stopover that year is dated to early December. While traveling along in a rainstorm and 15 miles from Lawrence, en route to [end of p. 355] Quindaro he detected light shining through the chinks of Four Mile's log cabin Detected [?] by the clamor of "half a dozen noisy dogs", Richardson asked at the cabin door for lodgings for the night. The three men dress in coats and pantaloons sitting upon stools around the table finishing a meal Richardson learned, were Four Miles, Fall Leaf and another unnamed man. The others in the cabin Richardson described as follows:

> A stout squaw, cheery and open-faced, who wore zinc ear-rings as large as silver dollars, sat humbly waiting for the nobler sex [HA!] to finish their repast. Crouching beside her was a girl of about eight years also wearing the metallic ear-rings . [In a hammock swimming in a distant corner was] an Indian papoose of American descent screech[ing] so lustily that his dusky mother seized him, dandled him on her knee, and soothed him with the sweetest talk of the Delaware tongue. He looked like an infant mummy. He was on his back, bandaged so tightly to a board that he could only scream, roll his head and wink;. . . . His lips were at last silenced by application to 'the maternal fount;' and then he was set up against the wall like a fire-shovel, to inspect the company.

Supper over. the little girl filled and lighted an earthen pipe with reed stem a foot ong. Smoking a few whiffs she handed it to her mother. That stolid matron finished it; and we all sat staring silently into the fire. The girl. true to her sex found courage to scrutinize my gold-sleeve buttons, watch and chain, and every other glittering article she could find about me, greeting each with some fresh ejaculation of delight. Then she kissed the papoose, and crept to her straw nest in another corner. Richardson described the cabin as being ten or twelve feet square, with "open cooking utensils" on the log fire in the great stone hearth. His bed. adjacent to a wall from which a log was missing, was "of plank, well covered with blankets." (Richardson 1867:89-92)

Two further visits are mentioned in Richardson's popular 1867 compilation of his adventures of the previous decade, Beyond the Mississippi. His fourth visit to a Delaware home (and his second to Four Mile's cabin) occurred in late December 1957 or early January 1858, but he left no details. His fifth visit was to a cabin six miles from Sarcoxie's house, itself four or five miles north of Lawrence. This undated visit was described as follows:

The found the good accommodations of the cabin to consist of a single room with earth floor, which could only be entered trough a filthy hen-house. Upon one of the beds sat a stolid squaw in a bright red calico frock, nursing a little papoose, who greeted me with an infantile whoop. Three more tawny children were playing in the mud; four scurvy dogs lying in corners, and a dozen chickens pervading the apartment. It contained three bunks, a table, four or five chairs, a rifle, a broken looking-glass, various kitchen utensils, and an enormous fire-place in which I could stand upright. . . My supper was of fat pork, corn bread and strong coffee. My couch of straw was deluged with rain and pre-occupied with bedbugs. Early in the morning I indulged in a repetition of the evening bill of fare, discharged the required 'six bits,' (seventy-five cents.) and bade a glad adieu. (Richardson 1867:95)

The home of Capt. Anderson Sarcoxie, chief of the Turtle clan of the Delawares, n doubt because of its nearness to Lawrence received much notice. Sarah Robinson over the winter of 1855-1856 could see "the smoke from the Indian houses over in Delaware Reserve , five miles away. . . gracefully curling and rising above the trees", recalling also that "Sicoxie's dwelling, across the river, has been open to visitors from Lawrence, and an occasional party, of a winter's evening. has shared the hospitalities of his house" (Robinson 1899:197, 212; cf. also Ropes 1856:168; Cordley 1903:53; Connelley 1910: 104; He-No 1855). According to a correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette (possible Henry Villard or A. D. Richardson),

> I slept in an out-house, which after turning out a lot of Indian dogs, and barricading the door wit an old musket, I thought I had to myself. but after I got fairly into bed, the dogs got in by getting in under the cabin, and pushing up the floor boards. . .
>
> While eating breakfast [the next morning] I observed the girl in whom I had been interested the previous evening, sitting by the fire with a papoose in her arms.
> It was a bright little one and though only two months old, had its ears pierced, and pewter rings in them. (Finley 1857:115-117)

Clara Gowing. who arrived in Kansas Territory during October 1859, left this description of a Delaware home, which she visited April 2, 1860:

> The house [of "chief Ketchum". of one story, with the roof coming down over the piazza. was situated in a clearing. and around the door were ponies and cattle, pigs, and fowls. The door opened into a small room. in which was a bed, a cooking stove, table and chairs. On the bed was a hen, laying her egg. The next room was small also, with a large fireplace, a bed and lounge and two bureaus. On the lounge lay the chief. (Gowing 1912:183, 188)

> Since, however, Chief Ketchum died July 121857 (Weslager 1972:388), it is unclear whose home Gowing here described. Another account of "head chief of the Delawares, Ketchum", dating from about December 1854, found the chief speaking English only when referring to "a particular kind of sauce, which he pointed to, and called 'good funkin' " [I don't think he had a modern :"F" word in mind. Editor] (He-No 1855). But Phillips (1856:56) found a similar Delaware home to be a "double, hewed log house, with a covered hall or opening between, and a porch running the whole length."

Rev. Richard Cordley's visit to a Delaware home during late November, 1857, came by way of a black teamster driving him from Quindaro to [end of page 357] to Lawrence. The teamster, who had lived among the Delawares and was well acquainted with them, brought Cordley that evening to > an Indian hut where he was evidently well known. He soon made our situation understood and we were taken in, thought [sic] the hut seemed more than full already. The old squaw busied herself setting supper for us. She cooked a chicken in an iron kettle on the open hearty. The fireplace consisted of a few stones piled around by a wall, and an opening at the roof through which most of the smoke found its way. At last we sat down to supper and I tried to eat. The chicken was just warmed through as was as raw as when put over the fireplace. I tried to swallow the first mouthful I had taken in but but it was out of the question. I watch my opportunity to throw it under the table. It was a mud floor and dirty at that, so the morsel I threw down would never be noticed. I made my supper on a few crackers.

For about an hour that evening the cabin hosted "a company of young fellows ornamented with feathers and paint" who wrestled and scuffled with each other, but who then mounted their ponies and galloped away as wildly as they had arrived. The host and his family, Cordley noted, neither joined in nor checked them, but looked stolidly on as though it were an everyday affair. After Cordley paid his bill, he bedded down on > a shelf on the side of the cabin supported by pins driven into the logs. There were several such selves around the walls on which the rest were to sleep' My shelf looked neater and cleaner that the other as was evidently the spare bed of house. it was about a foot and s half wide and four feet and a half from the floor, and had some sort of blanket on it.

The cabin was about fifteen feet square and if a simple construction, There was no chinking between the logs and I could almost roll through through the openings into the yard. I could look out and see see the ponies and the pigs and the cattle, and could hear the chickens. (Cordley 1903:31, 48-53)

Another Delaware who often hosted whites at his home was Tonganoxie, whose "village: in 1860 was a few log huts by the wayside dear a creek: (Williams 1912:134-135). "Viator, who stopped Tonganoxie's half way house on September 24 or 25, 1854, and noticed the large fenced-in cornfield surrounding the house left this account:

Madame Tonganxey in the absence of her spouse, readily made arrangements to accommodate us, though we could not speak her language or she ours. Our horses regaled themselves on unthreshed oats, One of the little Tonganoxie's and a dog made chase after two tolerable-sized chickens which were soon overcome and slaughtered for our benefit, These, a little pork some plain flour bread, with tea and coffee made our repast. It was very well cooked and though we had no mil nor butter (for they had no cows), notwithstanding the facilities for keeping stock) the dinner was agreeable. .. We paid "four bits" each. (Viator 1854)"

Another Delaware who. like Tonganoxie, kept a halfway house or in was George Washington. who apparently charged a dollar a day for room and board, primarily for soldiers from nearby Fort Leavenworth (Gowing 1912; Mallery 1988; Washington 1937)

During the night of May 12-13, 1858, while lost in the forest between Fort Leavenworth and Lawrence, William Tomlinson accidentally stumbled into a Delaware "war dance" held for the guides soon to leave for the Rocky Mountains on a gold-seeking expedition outfitted by William Pearsons. Although badly scared, Tomlinson was reassured by one of the older Delawares present that he was in no danger, and that in fact he was only six miles from Lawrence. After watching the dance for hours, Tomlinson threw himself "upon the pouch of skins prepared for me in the ht of my Indian friend", and that morning breakfasted on "coarse corn cake and smoked venison" (Tomlinson 1859:34-37; Parsons 1871)

Another account of Delawares dining on venison comes from September 23, 1834, journal entry of Rev. John Dunbar. who on that date found an encampment of Delawares about a day's journey north of Cantonment [i.e. Fort] Leavenworth. They had come there to kill deer and other game, the Delawares told him, and "kindly furnished [Dunbar's party of four people] with a savory piece" of venison (Dunbar 1918:593)

Briefer accounts referring to Delaware foodstuffs tell of a large flock of turkeys tended just beyond "the porch of a little house" on the bank of the Kansas river in May 1846 (Parkman 1943:15), and of the corn, bread and beacon served to Robert H. Williams by "Johnny Cake" (either Isaac or Charles) during February 1855 (Williams 1982:74). Rev. N. S. Harris found that "after dark, torches were lighted, spears seized, and fishing parties organized" by Delawares at the rapids of the Marais des Cygnes River, in southeast Kansas, During April 22-25, 1844 (Harris 1844:36-37), but such fishing may have been seasonal.

All these accounts supplement two agricultural and horticultural census taken in mid to late 1840s, published in 1853 (Schoolcraft 1853:(1):488-497; (3):621-628). The number of bushels per crop, taken from Schoolcraft's volumes, may perhaps reveal a typical Delaware harvest or annual yield. Totals are given in the tables below (Note: n. g. = not given)

	corn	wheat	potatoes	oats	beans	peas	buckwheat	turnips
Vol. 1	26,169	822	4,116	1,990	580	67	15	895
Vol. 2	27,620	1,043	2,776	2,215	620	n. g.	n. g.	n. g.

Other harvest totals from the two censuses are given here, from Vol. 1 and Vol. 3, respectively: pounds of cotton picked, 25 and n. g.; number of fruit of all kinds, 2,679 and n. g. ; number of melons of all kinds raised, 42,130[on word garbled] 89,860; pounds of butter made, 7,817 and 10470; pounds of maple syrup made, 4815 and n.g.; and pounds of honey (wild or domestic), 11,833 and n.g. Livestock totals in the two censuses are are follows:

This Image is of the Grinter House at the Time of the Annual Reunion in 1935. I haven't identified any of the people in it and am curious about the man sitting in the chair and why he is there? (The photo was probably taken by Grinter Descendant, Walter Hahn.)

A contemporary image of the Grinter Place, the home of Moses and Anna Marshall Grinter, overlooking the Kansas River. They built about 1857. It is now a property and museum of the State of Kansas. The house is located at 1420 South 78th Street in Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. Photograph taken 1996 by Thomas Swiftwater Hahn~~~.

This is thought to be the house after which Moses Grinter patterned his house. It was the house of Samuel Grinter (1797-1876), son of John Grinter, the brother of Francis Grinter, hence, Samuel Grinter was the uncle of Moses Grinter. Moses would have been in this house many times as a boy. The house was located a few miles west of Russellville, Logan County, Kentucky, but it was demolished in a fire many years ago. Samuel Grinter is probably the figure to the left. The female to the right may be his wife, Nancy Carter Hill (1797-1871) and his children or a daughter and his grandchildren. (The image is from a poor photo copy at the library at Russellville.)

William Conner's House in Indiana in 1823. Anna Grinter's father, William Marshall, was a partner of John and William Conners. This house of William Conners is quite similar to the house house that Anna and her husband, Moses Grinter, built in Kansas overlooking the Kansas River. Is it possible that Anna remembered this house of Conner's when she and Moses built their house? The house is a rather common type of the day, so perhaps it is just a coincidence. This drawing of the Conner Homestead was made by Frederick Pollux and was taken from the book, Sons of the Wilderness: John and William Conner, by Charles N. Thompson, available from The Conner Prairie Press at Noblesville, Indiana.

The house of Moses and Annie (Marshall) Grinter has been a familiar Kansas Territory - Kansas Delaware Reserve - Wyandotte County landmark since about 1857. Some have wondered why Moses Grinter designed the type of house that he did. This summer when your editor visited the library in Russellville, Logan County, County to find this photograph, it became quite clear where the design originated. This house in the image shown is that of Samuel Grinter, Uncle of Moses Grinter and the brother of Moses' father, John Grinter. Take off the porches of the Grinter Place and this is what you see is almost the same as the image above.

Other views of the Grinter House will be added shortly, for comparison, and for general interest.

MOSES GRINTER RESIDENCE (GRINTER PLACE), 1856-57

1420 South 78th Street, John Swagger, Builder, Kansas City, Kansas Historic Landmark: August 26, 1982
Register of Historic Kansas Places: July 1, 1977 . National Register of Historic Places: January 25, 1971

(Source: Kansas City, Kansas Planning and Zoning)

Moses Grinter built a log house for himself on the north bank of the river near the ferry, on the lands of the Delaware Reserve. In January 1836, he married a sixteen-year-old Delaware girl of mixed parentage named Anna (or Annie) Marshall . . . In the summer of 1844 there was a great flood on the Kansas River following six weeks of rain in May and June. The Grinters' cabin was washed away, as was the Delaware mill on Mill Creek a short distance to the east and the village called Anderson's Town to the west where Edwardsville is today. Both Anderson's Town and the mill site were abandoned, but the Grinter ferry was soon back in operation. The Grinters then built a second, more substantial cabin higher up on the north bank, well above the flood level. As a reflection of their increased prosperity, the Grinter family erected a new home (their third) on the hill one quarter mile to the north of the ferry and just east of the previous log house. In the fall of 1856, with summer work out of the way and winter preparedness completed, the job of construction was commenced. John Swagger, another immigrant from Kentucky, was head of all supervision in the construction. Some time elapsed before total completion, and since most of the building was done during 1857, that is the date usually given for erection.The house that Swagger built was in the Greek Revival style, a two-story, gable-roofed, rectangular brick structure with a central pedimented entrance porch and a one-story service wing forming an "L" to the rear. An open "dog run" separated the service wing kitchen from the main block of the house, reducing the risk of fire. In both layout and appearance the Grinter house was quite similar to other Greek Revival farmhouses built in the Kansas City area by transplanted Kentuckians, most notably the John Harris residence of circa 1855 and the John B. Wornall house of 1858.The Grinter house was built of brick that was molded and burned on the premises. The lime kilns and depressions in the soil where the clay for bricks was taken were still visible in the early 1900s, located about 250 yards northeast of the house. The main structural members, such as floor joists and roof rafters, were made of walnut, presumably cut and sawn in the area. The finished lumber in the interior, that made up the window and door trim, was of white pine made in St. Louis and hauled by ox teams from Leavenworth. The floors were of linden wood, which was found in this area in early days. The first Grinter barn was of logs and was located west of the house. It was while working on its construction that Moses Grinter received a broken leg and other injuries that were to handicap him somewhat in later life.

Moses R. Grinter died on June 12, 1878, at the age of 69. He was buried in the Grinter Chapel cemetery a quarter mile to the north of his house on ground that he and Anna had donated to the Methodist Episcopal Church South ten years before. Anna Marshall Grinter died June 28, 1905, at the age of 85. The house was purchased from her granddaughters in March, 1950, by Harry E. and Bernice A. Hanson. The Hanson's established and operated a chicken dinner restaurant in the house from 1950 to 1970, highly aware of the treasure they possessed and concerned about its preservation. Through the efforts of the Kansas City, Kansas Junior League, and The Friends of Grinter Place, Inc. that they organized, the house was acquired from the Hanson's by the State of Kansas in 1970. It is now an historic house museum, administered by the Kansas State Historical Society and open to the public. The property is now divided, with the northern half owned by the Friends organization. The Friends have erected a two-story “barn” on their half of the property, used for meetings and a variety of activities. Of particular note, each October the property is the site of the Grinter Apple Fest, a fund-raising event which draws large numbers of people to view the house and participate in the festivities.

The Grinter House, now known as the Grinter Place State Historic Site, is open to the public without charge, but a donation of $2 for adults and $1 for children is suggested. Open hours are 10:00 am - 5:00 pm, Wednesday through Saturday, 1:00 - 5:00 pm Sunday, closed Mondays, Tuesdays and State Holidays. It is located at 1420 South 78th Street, Kansas City, Kansas 66111. telephone: 913-299-0373. Special programs and guided tours are available. Call the site for specific information and to make reservations. Directions to Grinter Place: From I-70, take the 78th Street Exit (Exit 414) south two miles. From I-435 take K-32 east two miles. Access more information about the Grinter Place at www.kshs.org . That site also provides a recent view of the Grinter House. The days the site are open and the admission price needs to be checked. Anna (Marshal) Grinter and Charles Blue Jacket

Because of the interest between Anna (Marshall) Grinter and that of the Shawnee Charles Blue Jacket, the Shawnee Prophet, and other members of that illustrious family, I have set aside a separate page for this subject. For the time being, this page will be largely unorganized and unedited while it is under construction. Editor

(Photograph courtesy of the Wyandotte County [Kansas] Museum)

Blue Jacket went to Wyandotte County on 24 September 1897 to find the resting place of the Shawnee Prophet, the brother of Tecumseh. Martin Weeks has tentatively identified the following people in the photograph:

1. Charles Blue Jacket (Shawnee)
2. Anna Marshall Grinter (Kansas Delaware)
3. Francis Catherine Grinter, daughter of Anna Marshall Grinter (Kansas Delaware)

4. Mary Elizabeth Grinter Mooney, daughter of Francis Catherine Grinter (Kansas Delaware)
5. Infant Grinter No. 1 (Kansas Delaware)
6. Infant Grinter No. 2. Both of the babies would be grandchildren of Anna Marshall Grinter

A later news items revealed that the grave site of the prophet was not found due to the disturbance of the area by urban construction. It seems likely that Annie Grinter accompanied Rev. Charles Blue Jacket on the search for the Shawnee Prophet's grave in 1897 because she likely was present, along with her mother Betsy Wilaquenaho at the prophet's funeral in 1836. Of course, she may have just wanted to see Charles Blue Jacket again, because it was highly likely that they knew one another having been neighbors across the Kansas River for about 40 years. The Shawnee Prophet died in Argentine, Kansas in late 1836, about the time frame for Arch Fish, Betsy Wilaquenaho's second husband, and Betsy to have been married. Because Arch Fish was probably related to Tecumseh and the Prophet, that would have been even more of a reason for Betsy and Anna to have been at his funeral.

The newspaper coverage of the event is as follows:

Kansas City Sun – October 1, 1897

CHIEF BLUEJACKET. HISTORICAL POINTS OF INTEREST.

(From the Argentine Republic)

Last Tuesday at 10 a.m. Chief Charles Bluejacket, the famous Shawnee interpreter arrived in Argentine accompanied by E. F. Heisler of the Kansas City Sun and was escorted to the Fifth Avenue Hotel where a large crowd of old settlers who had known him in “days lang syne” were in waiting for him. He is truly a wonderful man, six feet two inches in height, straight as an arrow, coal black hair and eyes, 80 years of age, and speaks as [?] English as a country school ma'am. It was through the efforts of Editor Heisler that Bluejacket was induced to come to Argentine in the interest of the Historical Society to locate the grave of the famous Shawnee Prophet, brother of the noted Chief Tecumseh. The moment he stepped on the platform at the hotel, he commenced shaking hands with the old settlers, calling each one by name, and he had [?] been seen for some twenty-five years. A large number of old settlers were present, among them who were noticed the following: Mrs. Moses Grinter, Mrs. John Grinter and Mrs. R. T. Mooney, [?] R. Matney, Samuel Batie, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Chick, Mr. and Mrs. W. [Anderson?], Mrs. Frank Holsinger, Judge [?], Secretary of the Kansas Historical Society, Mr. Feary, Secretary of the Western Historical Society, Hon. [?] Barber, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Love[?], Dr. G. W. Pearsall, Editor Mitchel of the Olathe Mirror, A. N. Moyer, Miss [?] Moyer, who was taking notes in short hand for the Wyandotte Co. Historical Society, F. W. Betton, J. F. Timmons, E.[?] Haren, E. F. Heisler, editor of the Sun, and Mrs. Heisler, V. J. Lame, president of the Wyandotte County Historical Society, [?] Parsons, five generations of the Grinter family, and all the old timers of Argentine [and?] vicinity, were present and accompanied Bluejacket on his pilgrimage to the graves of his kindred. It was a funeral procession minus a hearse, silver-handled [coffin?], and trappings of sorrow. Old John [Matney?] and Bluejacket led the procession in a single seated top buggy, followed by carriages, buggies, and moving vans.

Arriving at the spot one and a half miles south of Argentine the procession [roosted?] upon a knoll and Bluejacket said he didn't really know where he was: the trees had growed big and the whole face of the country had changed. Some of the settlers maintained that we were near the hallowed spot, others said it was near Shawnee; but Bluejacket contended that it was near a spring one mile northwest. At the suggestion of Editor Heisler, Bluejacket read several notes of news relative to delinquent subscribers from the "Shawnee Sun" printed in 1841 at the Shawnee Baptist Mission.

Bluejacket will remain the guest of John R. Matney, Esq., for several days and claims he will surely locate the spot when he gets his bearings straight and sight of land. We neglect to mention that Dr. A. B. Earle of Kansas City, for many years physician among the Delawares and Shawnees, J. S. Chick and wife, and a number of others from Kansas City, Mo, who were present. Rev. J. G. Pratt of this country and Mrs. J. H. Bartles of Bartlesville, I. T., who was born in Wyandotte County in 1843. It was conceded by all present that the meeting in Argentine last Tuesday was the most interesting and profitable of any meeting ever held by the Historical society. . .

(From the Kansas Tribune)

Tuesday the Wyandotte County Historical Society entertained a distinguished personage, Chas. Bluejacket, the last chief of the Shawnee Indians, for years a resident of this county, now living near the town of Bluejacket in Indian Territory. The mission of this Shawnee chief's visit to this city is to locate the place of burial of one of the greatest Aboriginee statesman – whose influence extended beyond the narrow tribal lines to the council circles of the six great western Indian nations – Laulewasika, the Prophet.

It has long been known that the great Shawnee Prophet was buried in Wyandotte county, but efforts to locate the exact place have proven futile. The oldest white inhabitant has forgotten the early topography of the county, and the nearest authentic information was that near the old site of Prophet Town, a mile or so south of the present limits of Argentine, this Patriarch of the tribes was laid to rest. Individual effort was of no avail, so the Historical Society took the matter up. About two weeks ago, Mr. E. F. Heisler, a prominent member of that organization, made a trip to the home of Mr. Bluejacket and pursuaded (sic) him to give his assistance in this work. Mr. Bluejacket was at the funeral services of the Prophet and being familiar with the county, claims he will have no difficulty in locating the exact place.

There are few men now living who were acquainted with the noted Indian chief, and Mr. Bluejacket is one of the few. At the time of the death of the Prophet the prominent men of the Shawnee tribe were Graham Rogers, Chas. Bluejacket and Silverheels, of whom Mr. Bluejacket alone survives. In 1871 he removed to the Indian territory, where he has since resided. It is the intention of the Historical Society that a suitable monument marks the resting place of this old-time Indian statesman.

At 10 o'clock this morning a large delegation of citizens assembled at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, to receive the last of the great men of the Shawnee Indian nation. Among the assemblage were the pioneers of Wyandotte county, who grasped the hand of the aged statesman, and familiarly called him "Charley." On those occasions the grim visage of the Indian would relax its set stolidity and be wreathed in smiles of recognition; at all other times he was statuesque and distant.

The head of the Shawnee nation is a man of commanding appearance, he towered high above all who went out to bid him welcome, and his eighty years rests lightly upon him. He is commanding in appearance, straight as an arrow, with quick, penetrating eyes, and hair long, black and straight pushed back from a swarthy brow. He is the typical Indian representative, and amid the excitement of the ovation given him, he betrayed no symptoms of timidity. He says he is ill but he conceals all symptoms of sickness well.

Charles Bluejacket came to Wyandotte county from Ohio in 1832, and was about twenty years old when the great prophet died. Bluejacket was acquainted with all the great sachems of the great nation, and his information concerning events of early American history is worthy high regard in American historical literature. He is a legislator rather than a warrior and since the date of his residence in this county he has been prominent in all the treaties with the government. Today he lives quietly in a peaceful home in the Indian Territory and is a champion of arbitration in all tribal matters.

The search for the grave of the Shawnee Prophet at noon was barren of results. The Chief, Chas. Bluejacket, who was present at the burial was driven to the site of Prophet Town by the Historical society, but the topography of the scene had so changed that he was not certain of his surroundings, [?] is located the site of the town of the Prophet on an eminence that towered high above the hills about Argentine, the spring by which the Prophet built his house was located , but that is all that the Shawnee chieftain recognized. For a time he hesitated, then said, “Things have changed.”

Among those who bid Bluejacket welcome were the Mooney and Grinter families, who came to Wyandotte county in the '30's five generations of the Grinter family being in attendance. Before the start was made to the resting place of the Prophet, a group of about two score of the pioneers had their pictures taken in a group in front of the Fifth avenue.

Laulewasikaw the Prophet

There is a difference in the pronunciation of the name of the Prophet. Chief Bluejacket pronounces the name Ten-squa-ta-wa; the name in biographical mention is Laulewasikaw. Both the chief and historians say it has the same significance.

The most distinguished and respected among all of the Indians who came west after the disastrous defeat of the British and Indian allies in the second war with England, was Laulewasikaw, better known as the Prophet. He came to Wyandotte county from Cape Gerardeau (sic), Mo., in 1828, being then about 60 years of age, and in possession of physical and mental vigor. He lived here about seventeen years, dying about the year 1845. His had been an active career. His was the master mind that evolved all the great coups by which the six nations distressed the newly established American government. His voice was ever raised in eloquent appeal to the Aboriginees to drive white invaders from their hereditary hunting grounds. He and his associates staked all on the field of battle and they accepted inevitable defeat with characteristic immobility. The life of the Prophet in Wyandotte county was quiet and tranquil, a striking contrast to the stirring scenes that marked his early life.

Laulewasikaw was one of an illustrious family, closely akin to the royal or ruling family of the great tribe. He was a son of Pokeshinwa of the Kineopokes [?], his mother was [Methoajaska?] of theTurtle clan of the Shawnees. It is an established custom of all Indian nations for the children to be members of the tribe to which the mother belonged, so Laulewasikaw became a member of the Turtle clan of the Shawnees. They removed from Florida to Ohio about the middle of the last century. His father rose to the rank of chief and fell at the Battle of Pleasant Point. Laulewasikaw was born near the present sight of Piqua, Oho, about 1768. History says he was a brother of Tecumseh and that he, Tecumseh and another brother were triplets, the children of a single birth. The Name Laulewasikaw signifies "the open door." His brother Tecumseh showed a passion for war early in life, he was the mainspring for all the movements of the great Indian wars, but the Prophet was apparently the most prominent actor. His first mention in history was in 1805 when he assumed the office of Prophet which enabled him to sway the Indians to a wonderful degree. In 1806, Laulewasikaw and Tecumseh resided together and their reservation to which the discontented red men made frequent pilgrimages. Here the Prophet dreamed many wonderful dreams and claimed to have many supernatural revelations made to him. He predicted the great eclipse of that year which enabled him to carry conviction to the minds of his followers that he was the earthly agent of the Great Spirit.

He boldly announced to the unbelievers on a certain day he would give them proof of his supernatural powers by bringing darkness over the sun. When the day and hour arrived and the earth at noonday was shrouded in the gloom of twilight, the Prophet, standing in the mist (sic) of his party, significantly pointed to the heavens and cried, “Did I not prophecy truly? Behold darkness has shrouded the sun.” This striking phenomenon produced a strong impression on the Indians and increased their belief in the sacred character of the Prophet.

In 1806 the brothers removed to a tract of land on the Tippecanoe where they strengthened their influence over the various tribes. The influence of the Prophet continued unchallenged until the Battle of Tippecanoe, when his power began to wane, he having previous to the battle, promised them certain victory. Among his own tribe he exerted a remarkable influence to the day of his death.

Last Days of Laulewasikaw

(Found among the papers of Rev. Isaac McCoy, in the papers of the Kansas State Historical Society).

In November last there died in this country of the Shawnees, a few miles from this point, the Shawnee Prophet, Tensquatawa, usually reputed to be a twin brother of Tecumseh. He had been sick several weeks, when he sent for a gentleman connected to the Baptist Mission, to visit the prescribe for him. At the request of this gentleman, I called to see him. I went accompanied by an interpreter, who conducted me by a winding path through the woods till we descended a hill at the bottom of which, secluded apparently from all the world, was the “prophet’s town.” A few huts built in the ordinary Indian style constituted the entire settlement. The house of the Prophet was not distinguished at all from the others. A low portico, covered with bark, under which we were obliged to stoop to pass under, was erected before it, and a half starved dog greeted us with a growl as we entered. The interior of the house which was lighted only by a half open door showed at the first view the taste of one who hated civilization. Two or three platforms built against the wall served the purpose of bedsteads, which were covered with blankets and skins. A few ears of corn and a quantity of dried pumpkins, the favorite dish of the Indians, were hanging on poles overhead, a few instruments of savage domestic use, as wooden spoons and trays, pipes, etc., lay scattered about the floor, everything indicating poverty. One corner of the room closing an apology for a fireplace, contained a platform of split logs, elevated about a foot from the floor and covered with a blanket. This was the bed of the Prophet. I involuntarily stopped for a minute to view in silence the spectacle of a man whose word was law to numerous tribes, now lying on a miserable pallet, dying in poverty, neglected by all but his own family. He that exalteth himself shall be abased. I approached him. He drew aside his blanket and discovered a form emaciated in the extreme, but the broad proportions of which indicated that it had once been the seat of great strength His countenance was sunken and haggard, but appeared – it might have been fancy – to exhibit something of the soul within. I thought I could discover, spite of the guards of hypocrisy, something of the marks which pride, ambition, and the workings of a dark designing mind had stamped there. I inquired of him his symptoms, which he related particularly. I then proposed to do something for his relief. He replied that he was willing to submit to medical treatment, but was just then engaged in contemplation, or “study,” as the interpreter called it, and he feared the operation of medicine might interrupt his train of reflection. He said his “study” would continue three days longer, after which he would be glad to see me again. Accordingly, in three days, I repaired again to his cabin but it was too late. He was speechless and evidently beyond the reach of human assistance. The same day he died. The history of the Prophet until the late war has been often told. When in conjunction with his brother Tecumseh, he was plotting the union of all the Indian nations of the continent against the growing power of the United States. He preached, as he alleged with a direct command from heaven. His influence was almost unbounded. Many tribes besides the Shawnees believed in him, but the charm was in a great measure broken by the disastrous result of the battle of Tippecanoe. The Indians engaged in this battle with all the enthusiasm that superstition could inspire, assured by the Prophet that he had power to change the power of whites into ashes. Tensquahtawa, who possessed in an eminent degree that part of valor called prudence, placed himself on an eminence out of harm's way, and encouraged his men, singing and dancing to conciliate the favor of the Great Spirit. But all was vain. The Indians were killed in great numbers, and the reputation of the Prophet sunk never again to rise. Since the war the Prophet has not figured at all. He seems to have lived in obscurity, always keeping a small but decreasing band about him. He maintained his character to the last, professing to hold continual intercourse with heaven, and opposing every encroachment of civilization upon the venerated customs of his forefathers; he hated the whites, he hated their language; he hated their religion and their modes of life. He understood English, it is said, but would never speak it. Nothing vexed him more than the operations of the missions and their success in introducing the Christian religion and civilized arts. He was frequently known when an assembly had met for worship, to stand before the door and interrupt the meeting by noise, sometimes sinking the dignity of the Prophet in very unbecoming acts to effect this purpose. Among his pretensions was that in skill in medicine, or rather in healing, for I believe his means of cure were mostly conjuration and ceremonies, deriving their efficacy from divine interposition. A Shawnee of intelligence and piety, yielding to the importunities of friends, who had faith in the Prophet, once called on him to administer relief to two of his children. Tensquahtawa told him he would visit them, but he must first take time to dream. Accordingly, he retired to his pallet and after a nap, in which he communicated with the Great Spirit, he hastened to communicate the results of his revelation, assuring the parents that the prescriptions of the Deity himself must infallibly succeed. The children, however, died, and the parents' faith in the Prophet was probably buried with them. He always maintained that he should never die. Several times in his last sickness he swooned, and was thought to be dead. He took advantage of these occasions, and assured his followers that he actually died temporarily, but was restored again by divine power. Why he would seek the aid of a white physician in his sickness seems rather mysterious. Perhaps, and I have thought it probable, the near approach of death caused his own spirit to quail, and pride for once gave way to fear, but further reflection on his weakness induced him to discard aid offered by one of the race he so heartily detested. The Prophet held the rank of chief and was regarded by his countrymen as a man of talents, aside from his religious pretensions. All agreed, however, in ranking him below Tecumseh, whose memory is still venerated by the Shawnees, as the pride of the nation. Tensquatawa was considered a good counsellor but I have frequently heard the Indians complain that he made too long speeches. They sometimes threw out remarks rather derogatory, and even once openly called him a _____. Some historians have said that Tecumseh and the Prophet were twin brothers; others that they and a third called Venn were of one birth. But the true account as I have derived it from the old Shawnees, who certainly must have known, was that Tecumseh was the oldest of the family, and that between him and Tensquatawa, who was one of two at a birth, a sister intervened.

THE LATE CHARLES BLUEJACKET.

The many friends of the late Charles Bluejacket in this state will be pained to learn of his death so soon after his recent visit to this city. The following letter from his son-in-law, Jonathan Gore, explains itself and next week, we hope to give a more extended account of the life of this truly great man.

Bluejacket, I. T., , Nov. 1, 1867 (sic) [should be 1897]

E. F. Heisler, Editor, Kansas City Sun, Kansas City, Kansas

Dear Sir:

Charles Bluejacket died Oct. 29th at seven o'clock and twenty minutes, P.M. His remains were buried in Masonic honors in his family burying at his home. His funeral was the largest ever witnessed in this country. He was known in the Indian Territory and the states of Missouri and Kansas and loved and highly respected by all. We deeply regret his loss. Very respectfully, Jonathan Gore.

Hahn Family Memories

(From Florence Hahn Letters to Tom Hahn unless otherwise noted)

The day we were married Louise [Hahn] and Margaret [Hahn]. Both Walter's sister's] went with us to the preachers house in Topeka for the ceremony and when we came home to Grandma [Mattie] Hahn's house I don't remember how we went but do remember coming thru Central Park and I was so thrilled that was going to live in a city with Parks and plumbing. Was a beautiful Sept day but I can't see how I could wear a heavy suit this early. Grandma Hahn had a wedding dinner for us and then the next day we all went to Baldwin [Douglas County, Kansas] and Eds [Walter's brother] and Marie's [Jenkins] wedding. Whenever we mention their wedding all Dad can think of is the salty ham they had for dinner, while I think of the romantic side.

This morn at church they sang "Take Tie to be Holy" and I probably have told you before about the time or the first time I ever heard that song and whenever I hear it I still smell peaches. This particular time, was in the fall the first year we were in Topeka [1920] and often Grandma and Grandpa Hahn, Margaret and Louise [Walter Hahn's unmarried sisters] and us would go for a ride. Louise wasn't married until later in the year and was their first year in Topeka, so Sunday afternoons we would get into that Ford of Grandpas and go out on the country roads. Wasn't any traffic on any roads in those days. At one farm house we saw a sign "Peaches for Sale" on the gate down by the road, so we drove up a long lane and there was a peach orchard on one side. The smell was really something and as we got to the house we heard singing -- someone playing the piano and several singing this hymn. So we knocked and said we wanted to buy peaches and they said they didn't sell on Sundays. So I can still smell peaches whenever I hear that song. So this morning my nose got to twitching. We have bowl of peaches and pears on the table now but they don't have that orchard smell. You have never written about the tropical fruits there [the Republic of the Philippines]. Do you get hold of any like the ones in Hawaii? (20 September 1965)

I have been thinking about 56 years ago today. What a good life we had together. We were married on the 5th [of Sep 1920]. Louise [Hahn] and Margaret [Hahn] [--Walter Hahn's sisters] went with Dad and I to the First Methodist Parsonage here [in Topeka, Kansas] at 11am and we went to Grandma Hahn's for our wedding dinner. The next day we went to Baldwin [KS] to Marie [Jenkins] and Ed's [Ed Hahn was Walter's younger brother's] wedding at Mrs. Jenkin's home. [Mrs. Jenkins had previously lived in White City, but she moved to Baldwin to give her daughter, Marie, a home while Marie attended Baker University. Mrs. Jenkins also took in students as boarders.] Avis [Marie's sister] and her new husband [Frank? Sharp] of four months were there. I think about six o'clock we two couples went to Kansas City and we stayed at the same hotel. We went to a furniture store. We had a letter for a discount from the furniture man in White City, so we bought a dining table, buffet, and chairs and we didn't have money for anything else. We were there two nights. I had a new wedding suit which was a fall model and was a warm day and then a rain the first day in KC that ruined my wedding hat.

It was so nice for us to have our relatives living here [in Topeka] and raising our families together. Les [Beckman] and Louise [Hahn] were married in December, then Myrtle [Walter's older sister] moved here the next year and Ed soon after that so that we were quite a family. The Hahns were wonderful people, good folks and loved their children and we were all very happy. Then my folks came two or three years after we did. Dad was still in the Post Office 2 or 3 yrs after I was married.

We had such fun on picnics and going to the Fair with our kids and we were all poor together. Dad [Hahn had a Model T car the year they came to Topeka and they came here only a few months after we were married. That first fall we were the only ones and them here in Topeka and we had such good times. We would go for a ride Sunday afternoons with Louise, Margaret and Grandma and Grandpa Hahn and we would get lost in the country and finally get back on the road to town. We would stop at their house for a little Sunday evening snack. It seemed that it was a wonderful fall, everything new to us--the big Fair and we even had a guest or two that fall that came to the Fair.

And Dad had a good time stocking up on apples, pears, etc and grapes. I didn't know much about what to do with them but did know some from home, but mostly my job at home was peeling the peaches and apples and grapes and mother did the rest. And so today all I've done is think about the good times and how beautiful that fall was. And to be in my own home with a furnace and running water and a toilet, I felt like a queen, but most of all I had a good man to look after me and we built our future together with work and dreams. And after 5 yrs we were on our feet getting a head start so planned for a little boy and that made our life complete, you have been so good to us and there are so many things I wish that I had done differently, more patience with you, etc. (September 1976) and this year seems so fresh in my mind, some years the day goes by without thinking about it. The [wedding] day was a bright quite warm one as I had a new winter suit and a satin blouse so it couldnt be as warm as now, for no one could stand a suit this kind of weather. Louise and Margaret went with us to the ministers study First Meth at eleven oclock and then back to grandma & grandpa Hahns for a nice wedding dinner. Dont remember whether there were any relatives there that day. I came to Topeka a few days before and stayed at the Hahns and I shopped for my clothes.

The day after our wedding was Marie and Eds at Baldwin. The ones at the Hahn house went in the Ford [to Ed Hahn's wedding in Baldwin] and Dad and I went on an early train to Baldwin. We slept in our own home the first night as had my bedroom furniture from home [White City] shipped here, and there was a kitchen table and a stove. The wedding at Baldwin there were a few guests and Mrs Jenkins, Marie's mother, had dinner for us all, and then we left around 6 o'clock pm for KC for a brief honeymoon. Ed & Marie went too. We had a card fro our White City furniture man at a furniture store there and we were supposed to get a percent off. Whether we did or not, I doubt we did, we were so green, and only furniture we got was a buffet, table and chairs, we couldnt afford any more, so we got a few things at a yard sale in Topeka, a few days later--a wicker settee and chair. We did get a table with the dining room stuff, they called them library tables then, a long narrow table and it stuck out like a sore thumb in that almost bare room, but we were very happy and proud of what we had. I had bought things for my hope chest for two or three years so was well supplied with towels, sheets, etc and got a notice from the bank in W.C. a week after we were married I was overdrawn 67 cents. I never lived that down. Dad thought it was quite a joke and loved telling it, but I also came back that I had a cedar chest and many dollars worth of things for the house, also my suit and hat, and only wore the hat to my wedding and to Baldwin and KC and the next day in KC was raining and it was ruined. It cost $18.50 and suit $75.00. Clothes were high then.

The night before we were married the Hahns were playing the Victrola and the record was, "When you come to the end of a perfect day." Maybe you have never heard it but it was so popular then and I got homesick and left the room and went to a bedroom and cried. Dad came in and I told him I was lonesome and wanted to go home to W. C. but in no time he had me in a different frame of mind, so fall has always been a beautiful time for me as that one was such a lovely one.

And now this Labor Day am also thinking about later years on that day. We always got Colo peaches, the last ones to be on the market and I made what you called Halloween jam, as had the color of Halloween things, used orange peel, and marashino cherries, and peaches, was a beautiful jam and company jam. (Ibid, 5 September 1977)

Yesterday Sept 5th Dad & I were married 60 yrs ago, and I thought about that day a lot, seems more this year, and it was a nice fall day and not too hot as I wore a navy satin blouse. Louise [Walter's sister] made it for me, as I couldn't find one to go with suit. I came to Topeka [from White City, Kansas] a few days before we were married and stayed at Hahns. They had only been in Topeka a few months. And now since Ed and Marie [Ed Hahn and his wife, Marie (Jenkins) Hahn] are gone I feel very lonely when I think of that day.. We (Dad & I went on train) and Louise [Hahn, Margaret [Hahn, Walter's sister], grandma and grandpa Hahn drove to Baldwin [Kansas] to Ed's wedding. Mrs. Jenkins [Marie's mother] lived there and she had a dinner at noon for relatives and then Marie & Ed, Dad I went to KC for two days. So grandma & pa gave away two sons in two days. (Ibid, 5 September 1980)

This is sort of a sentimental weekend for me, as tomorrow would have been Dads and mine 63 Wedding am remembering it so vividly I came to Topeka several days before the wedding and stayed at the Hahn's. Louise and Margaret were living at home. I did not want to be married at home in White City. as Mother had undergone an operation a short while before and wasnt up to having anything special and I didnt want a wedding like most girls do. I was beat up getting my job at the Post Office lined up. [She has written sever times about the wedding days, but this is the first time she has mentioned why she didnt get married in her home city, White City. Since graduating from high school, she had been working as Assistant Postmaster to her father, Postmaster Tom Torgeson.]

The evening before I was married was with Louise and your Dad, others out some place. They had a record and I rushed to the bedroom and cried "When you come to the end of a Perfect day" and dad came in to see what was wrong. I was just plain homesick and missing I had grown up [with] etc, that is called I have head Prenuptial blue, and after a quiet talk, I was back to normal. [My dad was a nice man who had a way of being kind to people.] Leaving the nest after 23 years was a big change. I loved my parents, sisters, and home. My brother had been gone 10 yr or more. (4 September 1983)

Mon. Would have been Dad & my Wedding Day 64 years [6 September 1920], thats a long time ago, but this year I remember it more than some years. I came to Topeka 2 or 3 days before and stayed at Hahn (Grandpa Hahns). Louise & Margaret still at home and I went shopping for my wedding suit and Hat, and Louise made my blouse, Navy satin and suit was Navy hot brown. I remember the prices of them also and at the end of that month got my banks statement from White City I was overdue .67. I never lived that down, but would always have a "Come Back" that I came with a cedar chest full of blankets, quilts, sheets, pillow slips and towels.

Twas a beautiful Sept day cool and bright and were at Grandma Hahn & grandpa had all the family for a Wedding Dinner. Louise & Margaret went with us to the ministers at First Methodist Church here and married in the chapel at 11 o'clock. The next morn went on an early train to Baldwin as Ed [Hahn] & Marie [Jenkins] married [there]. Grandma & grandpa Hahn and Louise and Margaret went in their "Ford." We two couples now married went at 6.00 on train in Baldwin to K.C. and there stayed 2 days and one night then back to Topeka. We had a reference letter from a man that ran a small furniture deal and was a mortician and he gave us a sort of a credit card at a large ware house (furniture) and we bot a dining table & chairs and a table for living room and then later on looked up 4 yard sales for other furniture. House was pretty bare for several yrs. I made an orange crate dressing table for the bedroom. Bare floors everywhere. Got an oil stove for the cooking and it did alright. We had one at home for summer use so I new how they worked. (6 September 1984)

And now after talking to you last night I got to thinking about 2 days before you came into the world, 2 days before I had my new house all shiny as we moved in the last of May [1926]I had my new house all shiny as we moved in May . And I got busy making fruit cakes for the fall holiday eating. And so the day I did that in the evening Dad & Mother Hahn came over with Uncle Paul who had come that day, and when he got inside he said, "house smells so good, like someone has been baking. [Uncle Paul was Paul Hahn, the youngest of Chris Hahn's brothers and Walt Hahn's uncle. He lived on a farm in Kansas City, Kansas. Then by morn I was feeling like was almost time to have a baby and waited around until evening, Myrtle [Hahn] McCollister [Walt's sister] came over in afternoon, and so Pop [Walt Hahn] and I went to [Christ] hospital[on West 6th Avenue] around 7.00 and at midnight you came. He [Walt] was very nervous and walked the halls. And then after the event, he was like Paul Revere, went from house to house to tell the news. [However, I don't seem to remember that midnight ride chronicled in the history books.]

I had told mother I was going to hospital a day or two early to rest up, so she wouldnt worry, so he went over next morning to tell them the news and brot them to see the new grandson. They were first in the family to see you. My dad [Thomas Torgeson] was always fond of babies [He should have been; he had nine of his own.] and when they brot you in in he held you and kissed you. and I told him your name was Thomas Frederick after the 2 grandpas. In those days they were not strict about visitors being around babies. And the first light snow of the season came while in the hospital and I was the happiest person looking out and watching it snow and holding a little bundle all wrapped in a blanket. (9 November 1983)

I dont agree with this article, the Nov is a grim month. To me it is a lovely fall month, Indian Summer, Thanksgiving to look forward to, and air so fresh and crisp, geese flying over, hunting season, and fall harvest, things such as apples, squash, sweet potatoes and cranberries, and the Hahn family Special Day Thanksgivings and Grandma Hahn's specialty was cranberry sauce & the jellied kind, and baked apples. Sometimes a light snow in Nov, had a baby boy [me, Tommy] arrive and that Thanksgiving I remember well as baby too little to take out so grandma T[orgeson] said they would come to our house. We hadnt started the Hahn Thanksgiving [tradition] yet so Gladys, Bernice, Tom T [aggart] and grandma T and grandpa [Torgeson] came to our house. Grandma made pie and other things and I baked a large hen, dressing with help as I wasnt too strong yet, and the when all the kids were around 8 & 10 yrs we started going to Hahn families. (November 1981)

You mentioned the heat wave we had in 1936, it was bad but dry air and we used the basement a lot and kept the inside basement door open and cool air would come up. And we slept out on cots on porch some nights and some evenings would drive up to Security Benefit hill to cool off and spend the evening blankets on ground. I don't think we had an electric fan then. Taggarts [second house tot he south] had a tin tub in living room, folks did all sorts of make shifts to cool off. You kids played with the hose a lot.

Grandpa Hahns funeral was day after 4th of July or may[be] a day later and temp was 111 and men in those days didn't have summer suits and had to wear their winter suits and was no central air cond. in bldgs then either, it was awful hot going to cemetary [in Topeka, Kansas]. But we were young and could take it and didn't know the difference like now. So Ive been thru 2 terrible summers, and bad flood and bad tornado and a hard winter so know what is all about. (July 1980)

And then my mind wondered to another Fourth of July, a sad one. Grandpa Hahn died the day or two before the Fourth, I do not or have not kept the dates of the Hahns, but you Tom were around 9 or 10 yrs old, that was the terrible hot summer where for days the temperature was 116, every day, and folks slept out in yards etc. and the day of the funeral the men suffered wearing their good winter suits as they didn't have summer suits in those days. (July 1983)

In a letter yesterday you asked about Grandpa Hahn as I had written he died the day before 4th of July. You were 9 yrs old and did not want to go to the funeral so stayed with Grandma T. It was such a hot day of the funeral. Maybe I have written that was the year that we had 111 degree weather for days. and the men folk suffered with their heavy winter suits. In those days only one good suit. They wore light color cotton pants for their dress up, but did not think the looked well for funerals. Grandpa Hahn had diabetes and cant recall how long, but he would not diet as he should and the doctor told him what to eat, and he got a large splinter in his hand and was hard to get it to heal, so was in a bandage when he died. He could have lived longer had he taken care and stuck to diet. You little folks would ask about grandpa and then when you were eleven yrs old Grandpa T died and we could explain more then about death and you went to White City with us to his funeral, and then when both of your grandmothers died you were overseas. Was a sad time for Dad and I to not have you home and I know how hard it must have been to get word that they were gone and you so far from home. But we have happy memories of the days the Sundays when we were all together over to grandma Hahns and we would go in afternoon and in summer some of the men folks would go to Baughmans and get a freezer of ice cream, and grandpa Hahn always had a box of fresh crackers and we loved them with ice cream and still now I like crackers with ice cream instead of cake. And I am the only one left in both families, and trying to carry on. (Date?)

Grandpa Hahn died the day before the 4th of July, and that was the year had temp of 112 for days. (12 July 1984)

I watched the mothers today with their little little folks and thot about the Hahn clan. An another little episode came up came to my mind when I saw a little boy and girl, were about 10, sort of chasing each other. One Sunday you were hitting the preachers daughter (I think her name was Margo) with a folded up SS paper, and Grandma Hahn [Walt's mother, Mattie (Defries) Hahn]said "Tommy you mustn't do that." and Margo said" That's alright I like to have him chase me." [Well, how about that!] So you see every generation goes through a growing up phase and through teen age and on to maturity and you love them thru all of them, and I am in my old age enjoying the mature man (1983)

Guess your article on dishes made me think, and I didnt want a plate from any of the 3 sets of dishes I have so I got out one from Aunt Bertha gave me a very old one called "The Indian Tree," has a sprongly[?] tree of blossoms, and little bunches of fruits and blossoms around the rim of plate, it isnt a thin China. Do you remember Aunt Bertha. She was a widow and lived in K.C. and kept house for an old couple, and the year we lived in K.C. [1928?] when you were 2 yrs she would come see me on her day off and would bring little tidbits of fancy nuts, like cashews etc which were unusual for ordinary folks in those days. and other bits of other food wrap[ped] in little bundles and just enough for me. And then after she quit working and we were back in Topeka she came to visit all we Hahns. She was grandpa Hahns, I think oldest sister. we girls called her Aunt Bert, her husband had been dead a good many years before we got [married] into the family and her request was she wanted to be buried here by Grandpa H. and I cant remember if she went after he did. Of course when she lived in KC. she had Uncle Gus and Aunt Nellie etc to visit with. She had young ideas and didnt dress like an old lady. the way old ladies dressed then. So she gave me the India Tree plate and I treasured it and much of the time it is on the Hutch and she gave me the metal tray I set the toaster on all the time and I sat a long time looking at it and thinking about the Past, that is an old ladies privilege. (September 1982)

When you cousins were young Tom, we used to go to Grandpa Hahns on Sunday afternoon, he always got a large sq box of crackers (soda) the day before and then Sun afternoon, couple f men would go to Baughmans for a freezer of ice cream and we ate crackers with the ice cream and that salty with ice cream went so well and I still like crackers with it, sometimes crush them and stir around with the ice cream. (July 1984)

It was such a shock about Marie and last night was awake all night reviewing in my mind the past 52 years or more of our lives, how we started out our married life the same year. They (Marie & Ed) were married the day after we were and we two couple went to KC together and were there 2 days and bought some of our furniture. And from then on when you kids were little, our picnics, holidays etc. together. (October 1978)

Christian "Chris" Frederick Hahn was born on 31 March 1863 at Swan Creek (present Anchorville), St. Clair County, Michigan, near Detroit. He was the son of Reverend John George Hahn and Mary Ann (Ellenberger) Hahn. According to the statement of his brother, Paul Nicholas Hahn, Christian, generally known as "Chris", was the fifth of eleven children to live to adulthood. Little is known of Christian Hahn's early life. He lived with his family in Swan Creek for about six years--from his birth in 1863 until not later than 1 August 1869--when his brother, Edward Oscar Hahn, was born in the Detroit area near Roseville Post Office, Warren Township, Macomb County, Michigan. The communities of Swan Creek and Roseville were some thirty miles apart. It is not known when the family moved to Peachville (present Buena Vista), Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where his brother Paul Nicholas Hahn was born on 16 September 1876. Christian was thirteen at the time. It is not known how long the Hahn's were at Peachville, but they appear at "Barnhart's Mill" Post Office, Fairview [Donegal] Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania in the 1880 census. Chris Hahn was listed in that census as a farmer at age seventeen. He also attended school that year; it is possible that he graduated from high school there.

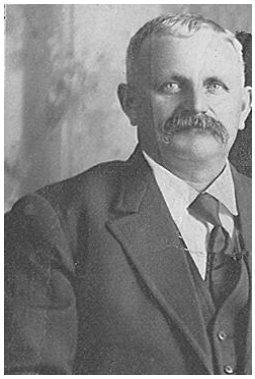
Christian Hahn may have moved directly from the family's farm at Barnhart's Post Office, Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, to Stony Point, Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas. It is not known why he did not stay in Butler County where his father, John George Hahn had been farming--and was possibly a Lutheran minister--or when he moved, or by what route, or if he stopped for any length of time along the way. According to their son, Paul Nicholas Hahn, the mother, Mary Ann (Ellenberger) died about 1883. and, we know according to family history that the father, John G. Hahn, was buried at Bay City, Michigan in 1887.The death of his mother about 1883 may have precipitated the move of some of the children who were then living at home. It is not known what the state of John Hahn's health was at that time, but perhaps he was not able to take care of them. Why Chris Hahn chose Kansas as a place to emigrate remains a mystery. There does not seem to have been bounty land available to him nor does it appear that any relatives were there. So far, we have found no entries for any of the Hahn's in the 1885 Census for Wyandotte County, so it appears that they arrived sometime after that enumeration. It is not known where Christian lived when he arrived in Wyandotte County.

The first record to be found of Chris Hahn's presence in Wyandotte County was on 3 December 1886, when he and (Kansas Delaware) Martha "Mattie" Francis (Defries) Hahn , applied for a license to marry Mattie--as she was always called--being a resident of the county at that time. One would think that Christian would have been in Wyandotte County for a while before they married. No other record has been found of that marriage. That is, there is no record of it having been recorded, but there was an article in the Wyandotte Gazette, it which it stated that they were married on 3 November 1886 at the home of her mother, Mary Jane Grinter Defries. It also appears the Paul N. Hahn, the youngest of the living children, went to Wyandotte County to live with Christian and Mattie after the death of the remaining Hahn parent. However, in the Wyandotte County, Kansas Farmer Directory, 1921, Paul N. Hahn is listed as being a "settler" there as of 1885 and his older brother, August "Gus" Christophorous Hahn, as of 1890. The area in which Christian Hahn lived in Wyandotte County, was known as "Stony Point" in present-day Kansas City, Kansas. It appears that the "official" address may have been Muncie. This is the place shown in the birth certificate of his son, Walter "Walt" Frederick Hahn. Christian Hahn was a storekeepe. He was also the Clerk of the Stony Point School where his children attended school.



The area in which Christian Hahn lived in Wyandotte County, was known as "Stony Point," in present-day Kansas City, Kansas. It appears that the "official" address may have been Muncie. This is the place shown in the birth certificate of his son, Walter "Walt" Frederick Hahn. Christian Hahn was a storekeeper and Clerk of the Stony Point School. The Hahn's had about eighty acres of land within the former Delaware Reserve, so it is likely that he was also a part-time farmer and he is listed in the 1915 census as such. Christian and Mattie had many real estate transactions, but they mostly dealt with the same tract of land, Section 21, Township 11, Range 24 in the NW and NE quarters. According to his son, Walter Hahn--as told to his son Thomas F. Hahn--they lived on the west side of present-day 78th Street. This may have been the five acres in Section 17, Township 24, Range 24 that Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries gave to Mattie on 12 September 1888.

According to Marguerite Hahn (daughter-in-law of Paul N. Hahn) in 1995, they lived on the east side of 78th Street, at the intersection of 78th and____, next to the general store that Christian Hahn operated. Deed data shows that they did have land on the latter site. That property bordered the former Wyandotte Reserve. Marguerite also said that later owners were Mumford and Tiner, and hat her husband, Vernon Hahn, was born [November 1907] in that house, that is, his father, Paul N. Hahn, son of John G. Hahn and Mary Ann (Ellenberger) lived there at that time. The Christian Hahns may have lived at both locations. Mattie's mother, Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries, owned a quarter-section of land (80 acres) in the vicinity Delaware Reservation that had been allotted to her in 1867 under the 1866 Treaty between the Delaware and the United States).

Although Christian was the son of a Lutheran minister, there is no documentation that he followed that religion after his move to Kansas. Mattie's parents, Audley Paul Defries and Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries, were Methodists. They were buried in the Grinter Chapel Methodist Church Cemetery at the intersection of Schwartz Road and 78th Avenue (also known as Grinter Road), in Stony Point. Land for the church had been donated by her grandparents, Mose Read Grinter and Anna "Annie" (Marshall) Grinter. This church was only a short distance down the road from the Christian Hahn's and was undoubtedly where they attended church services. Later in life they went to attended the Methodist Church but did not seem to be active in church affairs. Thomas F. Hahn cursorily searched the difficult-to-use old tax records for Wyandotte County, Kansas at the Wyandotte County Historical Museum at Bonner Springs, but he found no tax records for Christian or Mattie Hahn.

There are real estate transactions involving a C. or Charles Hahn as early as 15 September 1892 that can be confused with those of another C. F. Hahn. They are not included in this record, but are in the Hahn file of Thomas F. Hahn. There may be transactions of C. F. Hahn in the Wyandotte County Deed Records that have been overlooked. The first record of real estate for Chris and Mattie Hahn seems to be that of 13 February 1901. The Hahn's had about eighty acres of land within the former Delaware Reserve, so it is likely that he was also a part-time farmer and is listed in the 1915 census as such. Christian and Mattie had many real estate transactions, but they mostly dealt with the same tract of land, Section 21, Township 11, Range 24 in the NW and NE quarters, which land appears to be that allotted to No. 892 Jane Shawnee in 1862 . According to his son, Walter F. Hahn--as told to his son Thomas F. Hahn-- they lived on the west side of present-day 78th Avenue. This may have been the five acres in Section 17, Township 24, Range 24 that Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries gave to Mattie on 12 September 1888. [A more precise description of the land will be entered later. Editor] . Mary Jane's land was in Section 17 of Township 11 , Range 24 in the east half of the southeast quarter. According to Marguerite Hahn (daughter-in-law of Paul Nicholas Hahn) in 1995, they lived on the east side of 78th Avenue, at the intersection of 78th and Kansas?, next to the general store that Christian Hahn operated. Deed data shows that they did have land on the latter site. That property bordered the former Wyandotte Reserve. Marguerite also said that later owners were Mumford and Tiner, and that her husband, Vernon Hahn, was born [November 1907] in that house, that is, his father, Paul N. Hahn, son of John G. Mattie's parents, Audley Paul Defries and Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries, were Methodists. They were buried in the Grinter Chapel Methodist Church Cemetery at the intersection of Schwartz Road and 78th Avenue. When your editor used to travel on that road with his parents going to the Grinter Reunions in the 1930s, it was known as the "Grinter Road"). Land for the church and cemetery were been donated by Mattie's grandparents, Moses Read Grinter and Anna "Annie" (Marshall) Grinter. This church was only a short distance down the road from the Christian Hahn's and was undoubtedly where they attended church services. The 1895 Kansas Census for the Hahn's has not yet been done and the data from the 1900 Federal Census for Kansas needs to be redone. In the 1905 Kansas Census for Wyandotte County, Christian Hahn is listed as being a farmer. Additionally, he is known to have had a small general store not far from their house.

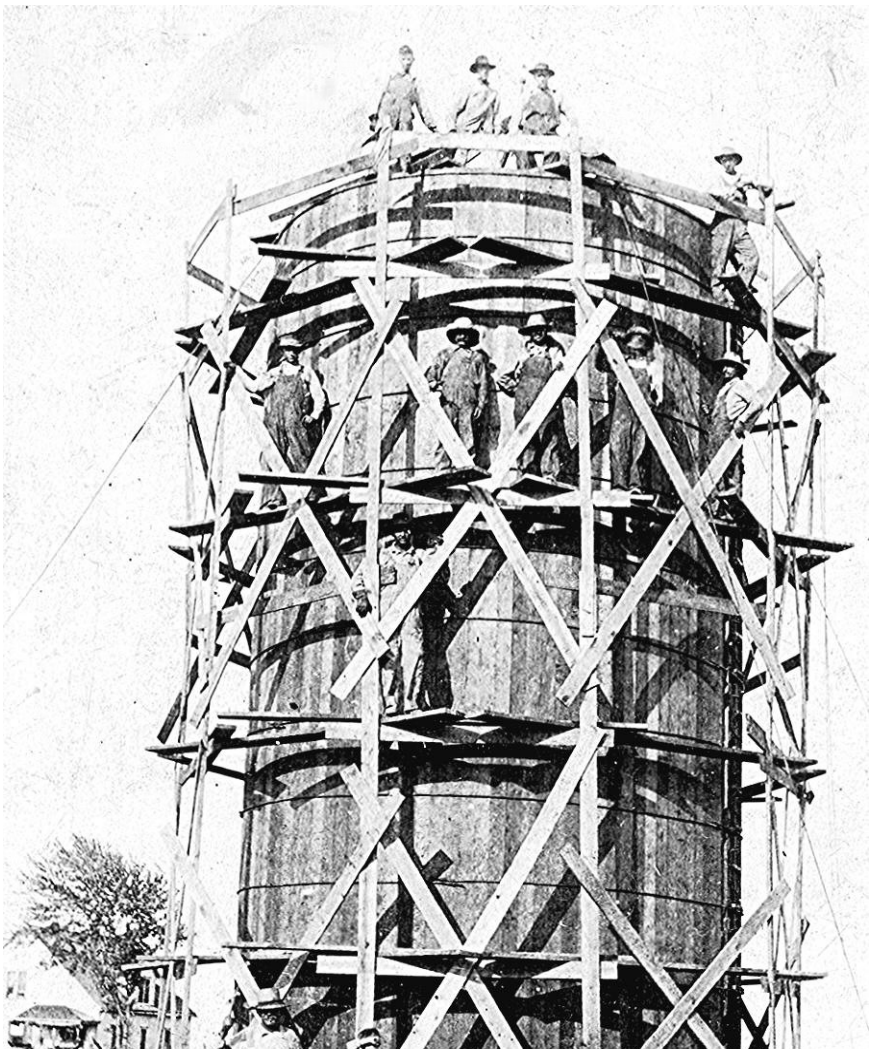
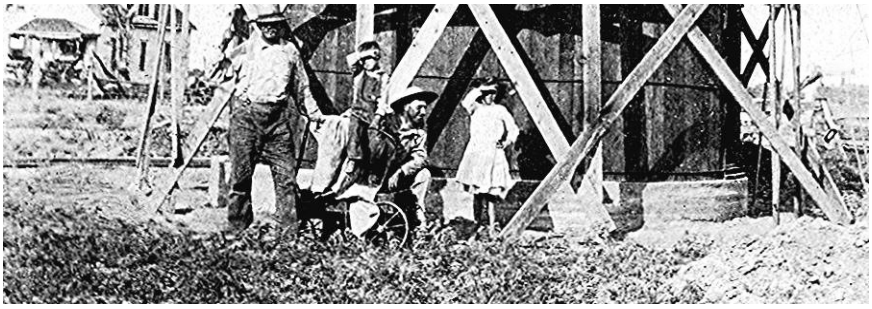
Christian Hahn, Kansas City, Kansas, 1909 Hahn Collection)

The Chris Hahn Family moved from Wyandotte County, Kansas City to a farm near Thayer, in Shiloh Township, Neosho County, Kansas, in probably 1912, although a note on the back of a photograph of the Christian Hahn family, apparently taken in Kansas City, says that the photo was taken in 1910 "before the Hahn's moved to Thayer [Shiloh Township, Neosho County]" On 15 November 1911, "C. F. Hahn" purchased 360 acres there in the South 1/2 of Section 16, Township 30 South, Range 18 East. The deed shows that he still lived in Wyandotte County, or at maintained an address there at the time. It is possible that they timed the move from Wyandotte County to Neosho County to coincide with the school year.





This road sign is at the southeastern corner of the Christian Hahn farm in Neosho County, Kansas. The house, barn, and outbuildings were in the clump of trees to the northwest in the background Tom and Chris Hahn found this house by doing deed research in the Neosho County Court House and by obtaining location information from the County Tax Assessor. (Photo by Tom Hahn in 2002).

This shed may be the only original building on the extant on the former farm of the Hahn Family. Tom Hahn liberated the horseshoe that was over the door of the shed to its rightful owner. (Photo by Tom Hahn in 2002)

This storm cellar on the former Christian Hahn farm could have been used by the family. Tornados were something to be reckoned with in this part of the country. They were also used as storage areas for food. Tom Hahn's mother, Florence Torgeson, raised in White City, Morris County, Kansas, a town to which the Christian Hahn's moved c1915, had a storm cellar. She told Tom that when a sever storm threatened, her mother -- Maggie Owen Torgeson -- took the girls to the storm cellar, To divert their fear from the storm, her mother took a loaf a bread and then opened a jar of preserved fruit from the cellar. To the annoyance of her mother, and to the great consternation of the girls, her father, Tom Torgeson, and her brothers stayed in the house or

Although no research has been done, this windmill may have been on the farm when it was owned by the Christian Hahn Family. The house in the background is probably a tenant house. The present owner of the property said it was not used by the Hahn's and he may have said that it wasn't there when they occupied the property. (Photo by Tom Hahn in June 2002)

Their daughter, Margaretta "Margaret" Francis (Hahn) Walter, told her daughter, Donna Jean "D.

J." (Walter) Reineke, "My dad thought living on a farm would be a wonderful place to raise a family and they left the store and moved to the farm in Thayer, Kansas." Eunice Marcelle "Becky" (Beckman) Corby, the daughter of Christian and Mattie Hahn's daughter, Marie Louise "Lou" (Hahn) Beckman, related that she (Louise) said that she kept house in Parsons, Labette County, Kansas, so that her brothers Walter "Walt" Frederick Hahn and Edward "Ed" Oscar Hahn could go to high school there. Louise was a seamstress, so it seems likely that she did that while living in Parsons. She would have been about twenty to twenty-three years of age during the Hahn's stay in Neosho County. Their farm was about fifteen miles from Parsons, too far to commute each day, so the story seems likely to be true. Their nearest town was Thayer, five or six miles away. It is likely that they went to church at Thayer and probably had friends in the the area from their church affiliation. Donna Jean (Walter) Reineke told her cousin, Thomas "Tom Swiftwater" Frederick Hahn, that her mother, Margaret [Margaret Francis] Hahn], said that Myrtle [her sister Myrtle May (Hahn) McCollister] was married [and probably living in Kansas City] and that Louise was busy working other places [that is, in Parsons], that they really had very hard times, and that Margaret was missing the goodies from the store in Kansas City.

The farm may have been devoted to the growing of corn or other crops, as it is now. In June 2002, the farm was leased to a man who grew corn and soy beans, but who didn't there, nor has there been anyone living there for some time. That is now a common practice in the area. Thomas F. Hahn and "Christopher "Chris" Frederick Hahn confirmed the location of the Hahn farm by deed research and an on-site visit where they visited with the present absentee tenant farmer. They discovered that the farm house was gone as was the barn, the latter replaced by a more recent barn. Thomas F. Hahn has a photo of several men building a silo. His father, Walter, may have told him that the photo was taken on this farm and it appears that their farm house is in the background of the photograph. . One outbuilding, sort of a workshop, seems to have survived. Tom Hahn "liberated" an old horseshoe that could have been used on the Hahn Farm. The lessee of the farm told them that the house and barn had been demolished forty or more years previously. The house sits back about 1,000 feet of Ford Road, which road borders the farm on the east side. Big Creek--much smaller than the name suggests--runs through the property in the western and southwestern portion of the property. The place where the old house and old barn sat, and the road to the property can be seen in a 1986 aerial photo for the Parsons, Kansas area. There are more recent buildings on the property, now abandoned and dilapidated. The road on the South side of the Farm is 40th Road or Street, the former designation used on a 1987 Neosho County property valuation map and the latter on a map on a modern road map. The farm of the family Leslie "Les" F. Beckman, spouse of Christian Hahn's daughter, Louise, is one section to the south and one section to the east, at the southwest corner of the intersection of probably Gray Road and 30th Road/Street. They undoubtedly became friends as "neighbors," and possibly through a church connection. Your editor, visited that farm from Topeka with the Leslie and Louise (Hahn) Beckman several times in the 1930s and early 1940s and had no idea that that farm at which his father lived was only two miles away! It does not appear that any other members of the Hahn family were in that area of the state 1912 - 1915.

The Beckman Farm House, June 2002 (Tom Hahn Photo). The house has been "modernized" and the outbuildings are gone, but the basic part of the house remains as Thomas Hahn recalls seeing the place in the late 1930s/early 1940.

From the farm near Thayer, the Hahn Family seems to have moved about 1915 to White City, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas. Christian and Mattie sold the Neosho County property in December 1915, two months before their mortgage became due. The Christian Hahn Hahn Family is in the 1915 census for White City, Rolling Prairie Township, so it seems likely that they moved to White City some months before they sold the farm in Neosho County. The enumeration date of the 1915 census would be helpful to have in that it would provide the "latest" date by which they were in White City. The Hahn Family lived across the railroad tracks on the west side of town. Thomas F. Hahn has a photo of the house as it appeared in the 1970s.

Chris Hahn House at White City, Kansas 1915-1920 (Hahn Collection)

The back of the photograph says, "To Walter from the folks at home." This photograph was probably sent by his mother or one of his sisters to him while he was serving in the Army in France at this time. (Thomas Hahn Collection)

Chris Hahn House, White City, Kansas . (Tom Hahn took this photograph in the 1970s.)

In the 1915 census of White City, Chris was enumerated as a "merchant." His store was on the north side of the main street, just east from the Torgeson Brothers General Store. Christian's son, "Walter Hahn," and his daughter, "Louise Hahn," are listed as clerks in the store in the 1915 census. His grandson, Thomas F. Hahn, has a candy jar from the store at his home at Fort Myers, Florida. When the Hahn's sold the store to the Torgesons--family members of Walter Hahn's wife, Florence Vivian (Torgeson) Hahn, Louise Hahn stayed on as a clerk. She is listed in the 1920 census as a department store clerk. In the 1920 census, "Christian F. Hahn" is listed as a house carpenter, so it is likely that that is what he did after selling the store in White City.

Chris and Mattie Hahn in Their Door Yard (Hahn Collection)

Is Mattie contemplating the hard work involved in the image just below? It is thought that both of these photographs were taken at the Hahn Family Home in White City, Morris County, Kansas. It is likely that either Mattie or Chris, or their daughter, Myrtle, sent these photographs to their son, Walter, in World War I in France . On the back of the bottom image, someone has written, "Shows a little less gate; more kingling [sic] pile which will be of good use next winter."

Chris and Mattie Hahn Working on the Wood Pile (Hahn Collection)

There was no sign of a barn in the photograph taken in the 1970s of their White City House. The barn appears to be quite large in comparison with the size of the house. However, in the early 1900s, people living on the edge of a town did have large barns. One wonders about the source of the wood. Trees for lumber were not plentiful in the White City in the Prairie Land that in which it sat. It is known that Chris Hahn was a carpenter as well as a farmer and a storekeeper, so perhaps the kindling was left over from something that he built?

In the 1920 census at White City, "Walter Hahn" was listed as a garage mechanic and "Edward Hahn" as a bank clerk, occupations they pursued after they moved to Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas by 1921. They probably moved from White City to Topeka, by 1921, probably to be near some of their children who had moved there.

> Census: 1920 White City, Morris County, Kansas. Roll T625_538, p.6A, enumerated 10 January, Ancestry.com Online Image 11 of 14, p.260. Line 45, Dwelling 151 Family Line 156. Christian F. Hahn, was age 56, he owned his own home free of mortgage, was born in Michigan, his father was born in Berlin, Germany [wrong; Stuttgart, Württemberg], his mother was born in New York [wrong; Pennsylvania], and he was self employed as a house carpenter.
> Line 157. Mattie Hahn, was age 51, was born in Kansas, her father was born in Kentucky, and he mother was born in Kansas.
> Line 158. Louise Hahn, was age 27, was a saleswoman in a department store, was a wage earner, and was born in Kansas.
> Line 159. Walter Hahn, was a garage mechanic, was wage earner, and was born in Kansas.
> Line 160. Edward Hahn, was age 24 and was born in Kansas.
> Line 161. Margaret Hahn, was age 18, had attended school, and was born in Kansas.

It appears that Christian and Mattie Hahn moved from White City directly to 629 West Euclid (later West 17th Avenue), on the south side of the street, in Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. At one time the Euclid Avenue street car line went by the elder Hahn and Torgeson houses and later a bus route did the same Their lot backed up to the property of the "Kansas Free Fair." At the time of the annual fair in the first part of September, the Hahn house was a center of activity for local and out-of-town family members, fair visitors' cars were parked in the back for a little extra income. The house has a spacious back yard which was used as a place to rent space to visitors of the fair. The front porch facing West 17th was a popular place to sit and watch the visitors pass to and from the fair grounds. There was a garden at the lower end of the yard, and a chicken house, and in between that area and the house was where we played croquet and horseshoes. The property is now a part of the parking lot of the Kansas Exposition.

Their daughter Margaret (Hahn) Walter said that she was so glad when her dad decided to move to Topeka and he do carpenter work as life was better for them there. The Chris Hahn's lived in the same house until there until his death in 1933 and her death in 1952. In Topeka, Christian worked as a contractor building houses. The 1930 census lists the occupation of "Christian F. Hahn" as being a house carpenter. He built a house for each of his sons, Walter Hahn and Edward Hahn, and for his daughter Louise Hahn and her spouse Leslie F. Beckman, probably with their help. In his death certificate, Mattie reported that he had been a carpenter for twenty-five years, that is, since about 1909. So, it appears that while he was a farmer and a store owner, he also supplemented his income by carpentry.

Chris and Mattie's home was as a meeting place for the family members living in Topeka. Three of their children lived within a few blocks of the parents, and the other two lived about a mile and two miles away. Walter Hahn's parents in-law, Thomas "Tom" Torgeson and Margaret "Maggie" (Owen) Torgeson lived just three blocks away at 912 West Euclid Avenue (later West 17th Avenue). That house in 2004 was empty and the windows boarded up. Both families were friends in White City and continued that friendship while in Topeka. Like the Hahns, the Torgesons had moved to Topeka to be near their children. Walter Hahn's wife, Florence Vivian (Torgeson) Hahn in 1977 wrote to her son, Thomas F. Hahn, saying:

> It was so nice for us to have our relatives living here [in Topeka] and raising our families together. Les [Leslie Beckman] and Louise [Hahn] were married in December, then Myrtle [Myrtle May "Hahn" McCollister] moved here the next year and Ed [Edward Hahn and his wife Ida Marie (Jenkins) Hahn soon after that so that we were quite a family. The Hahns were wonderful people, good folks and loved their children and we were all very happy. Then my folks came two or three years after we did. Dad was still in the Post Office two or three years after I was married. We had such fun on picnics and going to the Fair with our kids and we were all poor together. Dad [Chris Hahn] had a Model T car the year they came to Topeka and they came here only a few months after we were married. That first fall we were the only ones and them here in Topeka and we had such good times. We would go for a ride Sunday afternoons with Louise, Margaret [Margarhetta "Margaret" Frances Hahn] and Grandma and Grandpa Hahn and we would get lost in the country and finally get back on the road to town. We would stop at their house for a little Sunday evening snack. At Both Chris and Mattie had numerous relatives from the Kansas City area and some of them were frequent visitors. From the 1930 census we see that Elen Speerschneider lived with the Hahns while she was a clerk in a Topeka bank. That would have been a typical gesture of the Hahns, that is, to extend a helping hand to a friend or relative. The children of Christian and Mattie often were at their house on Sunday evenings. Often someone went out for ice cream at Baughman's

Ice Cream Plant. When that happened Christian Hahn, ever the retail merchant, opened a fresh box of saltine crackers to go with the ice cream. The grandchildren loved to go there, as Mattie was a particularly indulging grandmother, who allowed the children to jump on the bed in the spare bedroom and to play the old Victrola records incessantly. Mattie appeared to her grandson, Thomas F. Hahn, to be a quiet-natured, soft person, who reflected her Native American background. When he stayed with her she she let him choose what he wanted to eat, which was usually pork chops and canned Royal Ann cherries. The Hahns had a pantry adjacent to the kitchen which was always looked into for possibilities. She also appeared to her grandson to be a rather casual cook and housekeeper, which may have accounted for part of her indulgence in letting the grandchildren do things that many other grand children couldn't. Unfortunately, the same grandson does not remember either of his grandparents talking much about their parents or their childhoods or earlier life, but that may have been because he was more interested in doing other "more interesting" things. Wrong! Their daughter Margaret, and her daughter, Donna Jean Walter, lived with the Hahns from the early 1940s until about 1963. During the war years of the 1940s, the upstairs rooms were sometimes let out to a renter. After Mattie's death on 27 August1950, Margaret owned the house and she and Donna Jean, continued to live in the house. Donna Jean lived there until her marriage to Robert "Bob" Reineke on 23 January 1954. Margaret lived there until sometime after her marriage to Fred Hottle on 22 November 1963. The house is no longer there, the houses on the south side of the street in that block having been demolished for the present-day Kansas Exposition, or whatever it is called, as was the house where the Edward Hahn family lived a few houses west at 709 West Euclid Avenue.

Christian Hahn's grand daughter, Donna Jean (Walter) Reineke, in an email of 18 January 2003 to Thomas F. Hahn, said of her grandmother, Mattie:

> My mother told me she and Grandma Hahn quilted a Flower Pot quilt together and Grandpa Hahn cut out the pattern pieces for them. It is the quilt with the pink potted three-flower pattern... I agree grandma was not very interested in housekeeping, but she was into quilting and spent many hours with this hobby. It is so nice that she quilted with her daughters and especially interesting that Grandpa Hahn helped them by cutting out their quilt patterns. This tells us he did a lot to be close to his family.

Christian Hahn as an Older man (Hahn Collection)

Chris and Mattie Hahn lived together in this house at on the east side of 329 West 17th (originally Euclid Avenue) from the early 1920s until his death in 1934. Mattie continued to live here until her death in 1952. Immediately to the rear of the deep lot, was the Kansas Free Fair Grounds, separated only by a wire fence. Their daughter, Margaret (Hahn) Walter and Margaret's daughter, Donna Jean lived

Census: 1930 Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas.

The death certificate for Chris Hahn states he died of a heart condition with a contributory illness of diabetes. It seems that a splinter in one of his hands led to the final episode ending with his death. He was attended in his illness by Dr. W. A. Wehe. Christian Hahn was buried in the Mount Hope Cemetery in Topeka, with his sister, Bertha D. (Hahn) Turner buried on the left side, and Mattie on the other. They are surrounded by the graves of Chris and Mattie's sons and daughters and their husbands and wives.

The children of Christian "Chris Frederick Hahn and Martha "Mattie" (Defries) Hahn are:
1. (Kansas Delaware) Myrtle May Hahn was born on 21 December 1889 at Muncie, Wyandotte County, Kansas.

Myrtle Hahn in Kansas City, Kansas in 1909 (Hahn Collection)

Myrtle married Gerald "Mac" T. McCollister. He was born on 12 March 1884 in Nebraska and died on 31 July 1952 at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas.

Mac was a teacher at the Stony Point School in Kansas City, Kansas. When Myrtle's (Hahn) Family all went to the farm at Thayer, Kansas about 1912, Mac and Myrtle seem to have stayed in Kansas City. The Hahn Family moved from the farm to White City, Morris County, Kansas about 1915 and they appear in the 1915 census there. It is thought that Myrtle and Mac went to White City about the same time, but we have not yet researched them in the 1915 census for that place. We know that Mac was the coach of the White City basketball team as shown in the photograph just above [and perhaps a teacher as well?] They also appear in the 1920 census at White City. I suppose that they could have preceded the Hahn Family to White City, but there does not seem to be any indication of that.

Walter "Walt F. Hahn (Thomas Hahn Collection)

Walter married Florence Vivian Torgeson of White City, Rolling Prairie, Morris County, Kansas on 5 September 1920 at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. Florence was born on 23 March 1898 at White City, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas, the daughter of Margaret Louise Owen, born on 13 September 1870 at Waverly, Bremer County, Iowa, died on 29 October 1952 at Newton, Harvey County, Kansas, and was buried in the White City Cemetery. Her parents were Orson Anderson Owen, born on 1 September 1842, at possibly Chardon, Geauga County, Ohio, died on 26 April at Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas, and was buried in the Parkerville Cemetery as a Civil War Veteran. She was the daughter of Thomas "Tom" Torgieson (Torgeson), born on 29 September 1857 near Bygland, East-Agder, Norway, died at White City, Morris County, Kansas on 30 March 1939, and was buried there. Walt and Florence lived in Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas most of their married lives and were buried in the Mount Hope Cemetery. He died on 4 April 1967 at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Topeka. She died on 6 October 1998 at the Canterbury Nursing Facility at Shepherdstown, Jefferson County, West Virginia, was cremated at Hagerstown, Washington County, Maryland, and was interred in the Mount Hope Cemetery in the Hahn Family plot at Topeka, Kansas , next to her spouse, Walter Frederick Hahn, in the Spring of 1999.

4. (Kansas Delaware) Edward "Ed" Oscar Hahn was born probably at home on 29 July 1898 at Muncie, Wyandotte County, Kansas, that is, present Kansas City, Kansas. The Christian "Chris" Frederick Hahn house was on Grinter Road, now 78th Street. The house in which Edward was born was probably on the land that his mother, Martha "Mattie" Francis (Defries) Hahn, had been given from her mother's allotment on the old Kansas Delaware Reserve. His brother, Walter "Walt" Frederick Hahn, once told Walter's son, Tom

Hahn, as they were driving by the old house and barn in the 1930s, that he and his brother, Edward, got splinters in their rear ends when they tried to slide down the roof of the barn. Edward attended the Stony Point School at Muncie.

He moved with the Christian Hahn family to a 360-acre farm in Shiloh Township, Neosho County, Kansas, probably in 1912. Edward attended high school at Parsons, Labette County, about fifteen miles away. His sister, Mary Louise "Lou" (Hahn) Beckman, kept house in Parsons while he and his brother, Walter Hahn, went to school. His nephew, Tom Hahn, has a photo of several men, one of whom appears to be Edward, constructing a silo thought to be on he Hahn farm, or a nearby farm. Tom also has a photo of their house, as does his daughter, Patricia "Pat" (C. (Hahn) Blair.

In 1915, Edward went with the Hahn family to live at White City, Morris County, Kansas, on the West side of the little town, across the railroad tracks. Edward attended the University of Kansas for a short time. His daughter, Pat (Hahn) Blair, has his student handbook for the University of Kansas. It appears that he enrolled for classes on 19 September 1918. During World War I, Edward was in the Army for several months. In that same student notebook, he said, "Reported at 2:00, measured, signed up and inducted into service." It is not clear whether this was before or after he attended the University of Kansas. He must have been in the service for at least six months to be eligible for the veteran rights that he later used. In 1920, he was a bank clerk in White City. Edward and his future wife, Ida Marie "Marie" Jenkins, met in White City. She attended Baker University at Baldwin, Douglas County, Kansas. They married on 6 September at Baldwin City, Douglas County, Kansas, Ida Marie Jenkins, born on 4 July 1897, White City, Rolling Prairie Township. Morris County, Kansas. After they married on 6 September 1920, in Baldwin City, Douglas County, Kansas, they went to Kansas City, Missouri on their honeymoon with his brother, Walter, and his wife, Florence Vivian (Torgeson) Hahn. Walter and Florence had married in Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas two days before. Edward and Marie were living in White City when their eldest daughter, Genevieve "Jean" Marie Hahn, was born on 19 January 1922.

Ed and Marie moved to Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas sometime after the birth of their daughter, Jean. It appears that he worked for the Santa Fe Railroad at Topeka for a short time. In 1930, he was a bank accountant at the Central National Bank. He and Marie lived in Topeka most of their lives. In 1930, they owned a house on 707 West Euclid Avenue (later West 17th Avenue) in Topeka. To the rear of the house was the Kansas Free Fair Grounds. The house was just a few houses west of his parents, Christian and Mattie Hahn, at 629 West Euclid Avenue on the same (south) side of the street. The Edward Hahn house on West Euclid Avenue--as well as the Christian Hahn house -- was later demolished for the construction of the Kansas Exposition building. Sometime in the 1920s, Christian Hahn built--probably with Edward's help--the Edward Hahn house at 1413 Byron Avenue, on the South side of the street, next to the Leslie Beckman house at 1415 Byron. This house was only five or six blocks from the Christian Hahn house. The Edward Hahn House on Byron Avenue is still standing. In 1936, they lived in a house several houses west, also on the South side of Byron Avenue. Edward's nephew, Tom Hahn, remembers that house filled with campaign items for Alfred "Alf" Landon, the Republican Presidential Candidate in 1936. Edward was an active supporter of Landon in that campaign. The house is now gone, possibly as a result of the tornado in the 1960s. Edward had a varied career as a banker in Topeka, a diamond miner in Arkansas, a participant in the construction of the ALCAN (Alaska-Canadian) Highway, the owner of a cosmetics company, and a federal government employee at Wichita, Sedgwick County, Kansas. In 1941, the Edward Hahn family moved to a large house at 1534 College Avenue. Edward extensively remodeled the house so that his daughter, Jean, and her husband, Charles "Charlie" Johnson, could have a place to live while he started in business after they married in 1943. Daughter Barbara "Barb" and her husband, Samuel "Sam" Lamantia, lived there while he attended Washburn College after they married in 1946. Edward, Marie, and daughter Pat lived also lived there during this period. Each family group in its own apartment. In this way, Edward and Marie kept up the family tradition of helping their children while they were starting out in life. In 1952, Edward and Marie and daughter Pat moved to 1433 Lincoln Ave. He spent his last year in this life at the Presbyterian Manor at Topeka. Edward died on 24 July 1979 at the St. Francis Hospital as the result of a heart attack. He lost his eyesight several years earlier. Edward was buried in the Fairlawn Section of the Fairlawn-Mount Hope Cemetery, in the Hahn Family Plot, next to his spouse, Marie.

Edward is on Roll of the Kansas Delaware Tribe of Indians. To his nephew, Tom Hahn, he was an interesting man who worked away from home much of the time. He had a good sense of humor, was a good story teller, and was interested in the history of his family.

They lived in Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas most of their lives. She died 10 October 1978 at Topeka. He died on 24 July 1979 at the Veterans Hospital in Topeka. They were buried in the "Hahn Family Plot" at the Mount Hope Cemetery in Topeka. Ed and Marie had three daughters:

1. (Kansas Delaware) Genevieve "Jean" Marie Hahn born 19 January 1922, White City, Morris County, Kansas, died 29 November 1988, Evanston, Cook County, Illinois. She married Charles "Charlie" Johnson (Living). Their daughters are (Kansas Delaware) Candace "Candy" Ann Johnson (Living) and Diane Marie Johnson (Living). They were born at Topeka.
2. (Kansas Delaware) Barbara "Barb" Ann Hahn based on the personal personal knowledge of Barbara Ann (Hahn) Lamantia, her sister Patricia "Pat" (Hahn) Blair and her cousin, Thomas "Tom" Frederick Hahn. Her nickname was "Barb." Barbara was born on 15 November 1926 at Topeka, Shawnee County, Topeka, Kansas. She was baptized at the Trinity Episcopal Methodist Church in Topeka on 27 March 1927 along with her cousins Thomas Frederick Hahn, Martha Mae Beckman, and Dorothy Nadine McCollister. Barbara attended Crane and Boswell Junior High School. She graduated from Topeka (Kansas) High School in 1944 and attended Washburn College (Topeka, Kansas). Barbara married Samuel "Sam" James Lamantia. He was born on 29 September 1923, at Jamestown, Chautauqua County, New York, the son of Pietro and Catherine (Medonia) Lamantia. They came from Bulcodefalco (north of Palermo) Sicily 1910/1911). They both died and were buried at Jamestown, New York. Barbara and Sam divorced, but Sam attended many of his former family's functions in order to keep up with his children, and family. Sam later married and was later divorced. He died on 3 May 1997 in the St. Francis Hospital at Topeka, and was buried in the West Lawn Memorial Garden Cemetery at Topeka, Kansas.

Barbara worked as an administrative assistant at Washburn College, owned and managed Barbara Edward's [the Edward part named for her father, Edward], was a drapery fabricator, and a paste-up artist. She bravely fought cancer and always put on a cheerful face. Barbara was a joy to all her family and friends who were always welcome at her home and had a good time there. Barbara died at Topeka on 10 March 2001. She was buried 14 March in the East Lawn Section of the Mount Hope cemetery in that city.

Her children were:

Child 1. Alan Edward Lamantia was born on 28 December 1946, Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. He married first Nancy Grimm. Their child, Sandra Lee "Sandy" Lamantia, was born on 25 November 1965. She married James "Jim" Turk. They live in Spanaway, Washington. Their children are Zachary

James Turk, born on 27 June 1993 and Ashlyn Nicole Turk, born on 13 October 1997. Nancy Grimm married second James "Jim" Foster. In 2003 they were to be living in Alaska. Alan married second on 6 January 1973, at New Paltz, Ulster County, New York, Marie Sinagra. She was born on 22 March 1947. Their child, Joseph Alan, born 7 December 1975. He married Dawn _____. In 2003 they lived in San Jose, California.

Child 2. Christine "Chris" Lamantia was born on 20 October 1953, at Topeka, Kansas. She married Mark Alan Patek. They divorced. Their son, Mark William Patek, was born on 15 October 1980. In 2003 they live at Topeka, Kansas.

Child 3. Mark James Lamantia, was born 28 December 1954, at Topeka, Kansas. He married on 29 May 1982, at Topeka, Kansas, Sarah Baker. They divorced. They had one son, Jason James Lamantia. He was born on 15 April 1983, in Topeka. In 2001 Mark James lived in Topeka.

Barbara's children are all on the Kansas Delaware Tribe of Indians Rolls. Barbara worked as an administrative assistant, a drapery fabricator, a paste-up artist, and was manager of a clothing store.

Patricia "Pat" Christine (Hahn) Blair (Blair Photo)

3. (Kansas Delaware) Patricia "Pat" Christine Hahn was born on 10 February 1935 at Phoenix, Arizona. She married on 25 September 1954 at the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas, Kenneth "Ken" Wayne Blair born on 24 January 1935 at Parsons, Labette County, Kansas. They live in Lawrence, Douglas County, Kansas. Pat wrote to Tom Hahn in October 2006, "The folks carried on Grandpa Hahn's example of providing housing for the girls as they married and started out but by the time Ken and I were married, [in Topeka] the folks had sold the 1534 College house and were in the apartment at 1433 Lincoln. Ken and I rented an upstairs apt. at 800 Garfield and shared a bathroom with the other couple. (I doubt I did my share on keeping that clean.) Hopefully, I would do better now days on that chore. Ken worked for a printer and I worked for an insurance co. then for the State of Ks. in the personnel division. About a year into our marriage, Ken was offered a job in Lawrence with better pay and hours and I was pregnant with Cindy. We purchased a small home and lived there until David arrived, then built a house that we lived in for a couple of years, then onto 19th Terrace for 46 years where it was less expensive and lower taxes (and better built.)"

5. (Kansas Delaware) Margaretta "Margaret" Frances Hahn was born on 16 June 1901 at (Stony Point) Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas.

Store given $100. Margaret bought ivory tray, 2 mirrors, brush, comb 1 container was for powder, one for stray hair.

She married first Donald "Don" Walter. He was born in October 1903, at Rockport, Missouri. They divorced. Margaret lived most her early adult life in Topeka, although she lived for a short period of time in Valley Falls, Kansas. For several years she and her daughter, Donna Jean, lived in the same house as her mother, "Mattie" (Defries) Hahn. In later years, Margaret moved to Mt. Vernon, Posey County, Indiana after she married second Fred Hottle, born 25 June 1901. Margaret died on 25 June 1992 at Mt. Vernon. Fred died on 25 June 1992 at Mt. Vernon. They were both buried in the Mt. Vernon Cemetery. The following is a letter her daughter, Donna Jean "D. J." received from her:

> The letter from my mom was written to me in Indiana on July l7, l9__ [from Topeka, Kansas]. I was pregnant with Jim and she did not know I gave birth as she wrote the letter. Hope you [Tom] enjoy the letter and are having a nice Valentine's Day.
> Dear Donna, I wonder how my girl is this morning; one good thing the weather has been very nice for July. We have not had a hot night this summer. That is something, of course it can change quickly.
>
> We have been having lots of fruits and vegetables, sure enjoy them. I am getting the garden produce while McHenrys are gone. [The McHenry's were long-time neighbors of Chris and Mattie Defries Hahn and Margaret, after they died.] We had green beans, onions and enough tomatoes to slice. Her sister, Ethel gave me peaches and transp. [arent] apples which I made into sauce. I took Aunt Myrtle [her older sister who lived two blocks away] a pt. of sauce the other night. Dot [Myrtle's daughter, Dorothy Nadine (McCollister) Miller and girl [Dorothy's daughters] were there and a neighbor woman. MM was in her glory like grandma used to be when she could get a bunch of us in when she was sickly, she was really gabbing. She had a fit because Walt [their brother Walter Hahn] is sending Chris [Chris Hahn, son of Tom Hahn and grandson of Walt Hahn] back home on a plane, I thought it was awful too but they have gone on planes enough Chris does not mind it. [Chris was about ten-years old. The flight was a direct one from Kansas City, Missouri to Washington. DC.]
>
> We watched TV in the basement at the hall. [This must have been a senior center.] The beauty contestants were on and the men seemed to enjoy it. They could hardly play cards for watching TV. I told the girls we might as well quit playing; the men's minds were on the screen. The men looked so silly when I said that. We had more fun. Ethel [a friend] and I went to the store Friday and got a few specials; sugar was l0 # for .79.
>
> The Schriene (sp) house is for rent, only $125 a mo. Wonder if anyone will ever rent it at that price, would not think so. [She did so the following summer.]
>
> Emma is trying to talk me into marrying Fred. I am doing a lot of thinking as she is also. It is a big adjustment for older people especially.
>
> Guess Ross is excited about a baby soon. Just hope all is going good with you and won't be too long. Time for postman, so bye for now. Love, mom

Margaret and her first spouse, Don Walter, had one child:

1. (Kansas Delaware) Donna Jean "DJ" Walter was born at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. Donna

Jean "DJ" is married to Robert "Bob" E. Reineke born in Posey County, Indiana. They live in Mt. Vernon, Posey County, Indiana. Their sons:

1. (Kansas Delaware) Ross Alan "Down River Fox" Reineke, was born __ November 1954, at McCord Air Force Base, Tacoma, Pierce County, Washington. He married Mabel Gail Davis. She was born on 18 January 1951 at Springfield, Colorado. In 2004 they live at The Woodlands, Texas . Their son:
    1. (Kansas Delaware) Keith Alan was born 9 October____
2. (Kansas Delaware) James "Jim" Robert was born 17 July 1961 at Deaconess Hospital, Evansville, Vanderburg , Indiana. He married 22 September 1990 at Mandeville, Louisiana, Debra Bird Walley, born 22 August 1955 at New Orleans, Louisiana. His step-child (Debra's daughter) Cristen Wally was born 2 November 1978. Their children:
    1. (Kansas Delaware) Jennifer Walley was born on 4 August 1991
    2. (Kansas Delaware) Caroline Nicole was born on 28 January 1994 at Greenville, North Carolina.

Cousins Donna Walter and Pat Hahn, probably at their Grandmother Mattie Hahn's House about 1938. They were in the youngest "tier" of Hahn cousins. The age level of Tom Hahn, Marty Beckman, Dorothy McCollister, and Barb Hahn was about years years older, and the oldest group consisting of Irma McCollister, Marcelle Beckman, and Jean Hahn were about five years older than that. In general, each age level played and did things together as those few years made a lot of difference at those ages.

Green Mountain Falls, Colorado 1939-1940. This is the third and last time my folks, Walter and Florence Hahn, spent their one-week vacation in Colorado. They drove back and forth from their home at Topeka, Kansas, but World War II put a stop to most vacations of this kind. This photo was taken up the mountain where there was a chute or flume to take water from the upper part of the mountains down into little town. In the photo, left-to-right: Gladys (Torgeson) Murphy, Martha Mae "Marty" Beckman. Florence Hahn, Tommy Hahn. Marcelle "Becky" Beckman. The local newspaper had this item:

> Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hahn and son, Tommy, and Miss Bernice Forgeson [Torgeson] [of Goodland, Kansas], with Mrs. R. H. Christensen of Junction City [Kansas]. are occupying the Pankhurst cabin. Their guests are Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Beckman and daughters Marcelle and Martha May, and Mrs. Gladys Murphy, all of Topeka.

The Beckman's and Gladys came on the Santa Fe Railroad as they had passes on that line as employees. The cabin was very small, but we all managed to fit in somehow.

His son Thomas "Tom" Frederick Hahn
His Grandson, Christopher "Chris" Frederick Hahn

Walter "Walt" Hahn (Hahn Collection)

Walter Hahn's Handwriting from his son, Tommy Hahn's, Kindergarten Report Cart in 1932

Walter, known as "Walt" Hahn, was born on 28 October 1895 in the Stony Point area of present Kansas City, Kansas in Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County. His delayed birth record says that he was born at Muncie, which was the legal and probably the mail address as well. It appears that he was born on a portion of the old Kansas Delaware Reserve allotted to his maternal grandmother, (Kansas Delaware)Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries, on Grinter Road, now known as 78th Street. This five acres of land had been deeded to his mother, (Kansas Delaware) Martha "Mattie" (Defries) Hahn, by her mother, Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries, in 1888.

The property is about a mile north of the Grinter Place, the home of his maternal great-grandparents, Moses Read Grinter and (Kansas Delaware) Anna "Annie" (Marshall) Grinter.

Walter and his brother and sisters, attended the Stony Point School on Grinter Road. His father, Christian "Chris" Frederick Hahn, was the Clerk of the school, according to a 1907 school program. Walter told his son, (Kansas Delaware) Thomas "Tom" Frederick Swiftwater Hahn, that he went one day to high school in Kansas City, but that he was so intimidated by the experience that he did not return. For further information on the Christian Hahn Family's periods of residence in Wyandotte County and Morris County in Kansas, see the entry for Christian F. Hahn.

The Christian Hahn Family moved from Wyandotte County, Kansas City to a farm near Thayer, in Shiloh Township, Neosho County, Kansas, in probably 1912, when Walter would have been about fifteen years old. Eunice Marcelle "Becky" Beckman, the daughter of Walter's older sister, Marie Louise "Lou" (Hahn) Beckman, related that she (Louise) "kept house" in Parsons, Labette County, Kansas, in order that her brothers Walter Hahn and Edward "Ed" Oscar Hahn could go to high school in Parsons. Louise was a seamstress, so it seems likely that she probably did that while living in Parsons. She would have been about twenty to twenty-three years of age during the Hahn's stay in Neosho County. Edward --invariably known as "Ed"-- would have been about fourteen years old when high school commenced in the Fall of 1912. Although Walter told his son, Thomas F. Hahn, that he went to high school one day in Kansas City, Kansas--from Muncie--and did not go back, that does not mean that he didn't go to high school in Thayer, but it is odd that he never mentioned that he went to high school in Parsons. The Hahn Farm farm was about fifteen miles from Parsons, too far to commute each day, so the story seems likely to be true. Their nearest town was Thayer, five or six miles away. It is thought that they went to church in Thayer, so Walter had friends there. There is still a pond on the property which may be the same one where Walter Hahn told his son, Thomas F. Hahn, that he shot two geese with one shot. Aside from that story and one about his dog being strangled in the crotch of a tree while hunting, Thomas Hahn and his cousins do not remember their folks talking about their life on the farm. A photo of the farm house near Thayer is in the entry for Christian F. Hahn. For more information on the farm, see the entry for Christian F. Hahn.

From the farm near Thayer, the Hahn Family probably moved to White City, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas, about 1915. The 1915 Census for White City, Rolling Prairie Township, Kansas [Film K162, p. 2, Kansas Historical Society] shows them as Family 8, Dwelling 10, living in White City. with Walter, at about age 20, working as a clerk [in the Hahn General Store]. In White City, they lived across the railroad tracks on the west side of town. It is not known whether they owned the house or whether they rented. Thomas F. Hahn has a photo of the house as it appeared in the 1970s. It is not known whether Walter graduated from high school in Thayer, or whether he attended high school in White City. In White City, where his family lived until about 1920, Walter worked as a silent movie operator and an auto mechanic in and as a carpenter in the building of Camp Funston near Junction City, Geary County, Kansas.

While living at White City, Walter entered the U.S. Army in World War One on 15 December 1917. He served in France as a corporal chauffer, Signal Corps. Walter was discharged on 22 May 1919. Honorable Discharge from the United States Army and Enlistment Record filed on 13 October 1959 for Veteran's Compensation Claim No. 49595, filed 14 October 1959 Register of Deeds Shawnee County, Kansas No. 9737:

> Enlisted 15 December 1917 Topeka, Kansas. Corporal [Aero?] Squadron 62 on 18 November 1918. He probably reported to Jefferson Barracks, Missouri. Walter served in the American Expeditionary Force in France until 30 March 1918. He was a casual in the 467th Aero Squadron from 15 December 1919 to 12 May 1919 when he was discharged with an "Excellent character, Services honorable and faithful. No absences. Entitled to wear one gold chevron." On 22 March 1919 paid in full at Camp Funston, Kansas. Service No. 1337698 born Muncie, KS enlisted when 22 1/2 years, occupation Chauffeur. Blue eyes, dark brown hair, ruddy complexion, 5'5" height.

Walter Hahn. A Soldier in World War One. (Hahn Collection)

Walter returned to White City after the war. In the 1920 Federal Census for White City, Walter was listed as a garage mechanic there.

Walter Hahn as a Young Adult

It is not known when Walter and/or the Hahn Family moved from White City to Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. They are shown in the 1920 Census for White City enumerated on 5 January, so they moved to Topeka in 1920 after that date. When he moved to Topeka, probably later that year, Walter worked at the Chevrolet Garage as a mechanic. A note in the Student Note Book of his brother, Edward, shows that Walter was probably living or rooming at an address on Kansas Avenue. Walter and Florence Vivian Torgeson, of White City, were married on 5 September 1920, at the First Methodist Church of Topeka by Pastor Edmund James Culp. The witnesses were his sisters, Louise Hahn and Margaret Hahn. It is assumed that Louise and Margaret were living with their parents in Topeka, because Florence (Torgeson) Hahn said that she and Walter went to Walter's parents for a wedding supper. Christian and Mattie Hahn, Louise Hahn and Margaret Hahn, and Walter and Florence Hahn and Florence Hahn were all present at the wedding of Walter's brother, Edward Oscar Hahn and wife Ida Marie Jenkins at Baldwin City, Douglas County, Kansas, at probably the home of Marie's mother, Anna L. (Thayer) Jenkins the next day, on 6 September 1920.

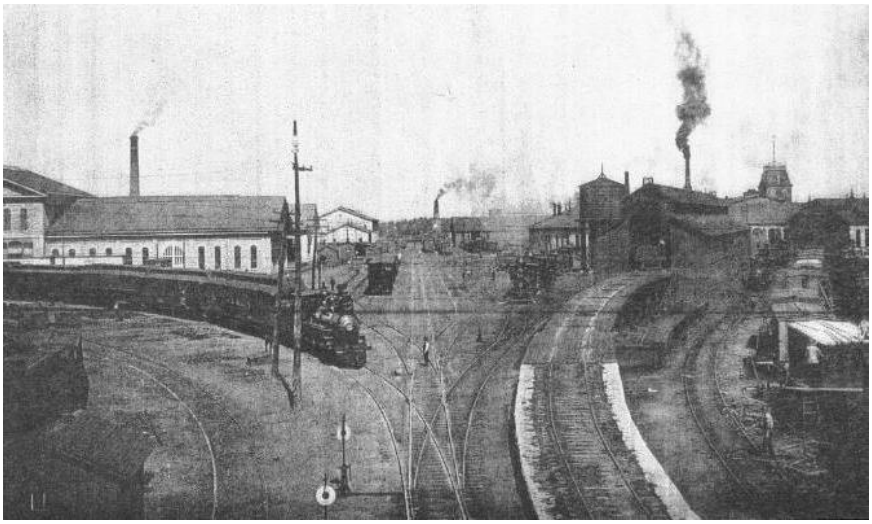
In a 1976 letter to her son, Thomas Hahn, Florence Hahn said:



> I have been thinking about 56 years ago today. What a good life we had together. We were married on the 5th [of September 1920]. Louise [Hahn] and Margaret [Hahn--Walter Hahn's sisters] went with Dad [Walter] and I to the First Methodist Parsonage here [in Topeka, Kansas] at 11am and we went to Grandma Hahn's for our wedding dinner. The next day we went to Baldwin [Douglas County, Kansas] to Marie [Jenkins] and Ed's [Ed Hahn was Walter's younger brother's] wedding at Mrs. Jenkins's home. [Mrs. Jenkins had previously lived in White City, but she moved to Baldwin to give her daughter, Marie, a home while Marie attended Baker University. Mrs. Jenkins also took in students as boarders.] Avis [Marie's sister] and her new husband [Homer Sharpe] of four months were there. I think about six o'clock we two couples went to Kansas City [Missouri] and we stayed at the same hotel. We went to a furniture store. We had a letter for a discount from the furniture man in White City, so we bought a dining table, buffet, and chairs and we didn't have money for anything else. We were there two nights. I had a new wedding suit which was a fall model and was a warm day and then a rain the first day in K[ansas] C[ity] that ruined my wedding hat. It was so nice for us to have our relatives living here [in Topeka] and raising our families together. Les [Leslie F. Beckman] and Louise [Mary Louise "Lou" Hahn] were married in December, then Myrtle [Walter's older sister, Myrtle May Hahn] moved here the next year and Ed soon after that so that we were quite a family. The Hahn's were wonderful people, good folks and loved their children and we were all very happy. Then my folks came two or three years after we did. Dad was still in the Post Office 2 or 3 years after I was married. We had such fun on picnics and going to the Fair with our kids and we were all poor together. Dad [Hahn] had a Model T car the year they came to Topeka and they came here only a few months after we were married. That first fall we were the only ones and them here in Topeka and we had such good times. We would go for a ride Sunday afternoons with Louise, Margaret and Grandma and Grandpa Hahn and we would get lost in the country and finally get back on the road to town. We would stop at their house for a little Sunday evening snack. It seemed that it was a wonderful fall, everything new to us -- the big Kansas [Free] Fair and we even had a guest or two that fall that came to the Fair. And Dad had a good time stocking up on apples, pears, etc and grapes. I didn't know much about what to do with them but did know some from home, but mostly my job at home was peeling the peaches and apples and grapes and mother did the rest. And so today all I've done is think about the good times and how beautiful that fall was. And to be in my own home with a furnace and running water and a toilet, I felt like a queen, but most of all I had a good man to look after me.

From a 1977 letter to her son Thomas Hahn:

> The [wedding] day was a bright quite warm one as I had a new winter suit and a satin blouse. I don't remember whether there were any relatives there that day [at the wedding dinner]. I came to Topeka a few days before and stayed at the Hahn's and I shopped for my clothes. The ones at the Hahn house went in the Ford [to Ed Hahn's wedding in Baldwin] and Dad and I went on an early train. At the wedding at Baldwin there were a few guests and Mrs. Jenkins had dinner for us. We got a few things at a yard sale in Topeka, a few days later--a wicker settee and chair. We did get a table with the dining room stuff, they called them library tables then, a long narrow table and it stuck out like a sore thumb in that almost bare room, but we were very happy and proud of what we had. I had bought things for my hope chest for two or three years so was well supplied with towels, sheets, etc and got a notice from the bank in W.[hite] C.[ity] a week after we were married I was overdrawn 67 cents. I never lived that down. Dad thought it was quite a joke and loved telling it. My wedding hat cost $18.50 and suit $75.00. Clothes were high then. The night before we were married the Hahn's were playing the Victrola and the record was, "When you come to the end of a perfect day." It was so popular then and I got homesick and left the room and went to a bedroom and cried. Dad came in and I told him I was lonesome and wanted to go home to W. C. but in no time he had me in a different frame of mind, so fall has always been a beautiful time for me as that one was such a lovely one.

Walter worked at the Santa Fe RR Maintenance Yard in Topeka as a carpenter, and, for the Post Office in Kansas City, Missouri for a year or so, about 1928.

It is not known where they first lived in Topeka after they married, but from a letter to Florence, from her father, Thomas Torgeson, it is known that Walter and Florence were living in 1923 at 1623 Buchanan Street Avenue, but after about 1928 they spent the rest of their married life at 1120 SW High Avenue in Topeka.

The Hahn's lived in a modest bungalow on a nice street, at 1120 High Avenue. The house was about two miles west of downtown Topeka and a few blocks south. A bus line ran conveniently on 10th Avenue a block and a half to the north. The wage earners--nearly all men--worked as a letter carrier (Walter), a drug company salesman, an insurance sales agent, awning salesman, Santa Fe RR Hospital switchboard operator, a Santa Fe RR Office worker, a real estate agent, a Santa Fe RR rail switchman, a wholesale fruit company clerk, a retired assistant postmaster, a doctor, a shoe salesmen and a couple of widows come to mind at the moment. Most, if not all, were protestant Christians. many having spent the earlier parts of their lives on farms and small towns. Many of these years were during the Depression when jobs were clung to dearly and ,money was spent frugally. It is interesting that Walt kept a little memo book of some of the things they bought for their house. The little book is the one shown above. Some of the items included are as follows:

When my dad carried mail in Highland Park as a letter carrier he often stopped by there to of from work. He carried a can opener with him, and if there was fruit for sale by the case, for example, he would buy a can and try it and take the can on with his lunch. Since he took his lunch, he sometimes heated up part of his lunch on the top of the car engine. In the early days of his "mounted city route, he used the family car to carry mail. He took them off Friday night and they went back on Sunday night.]

During most of his adult life, Walter worked as a letter carrier, first on foot in Topeka, and then later on a mounted car route in Highland Park, Topeka. He told his son, Thomas F. Hahn, that he past the exam for letter carrier first out of a thousand candidates. Post Office Department Notification of Personnel Action and Civil Service Commission Agency Certification of Insurance Status: Walter retired as a City Carrier Level PFS-4 Step 7 on 31 October 1959 @$5175 per annum, entered the Postal Service 24 July 1928 with 31 years, 3 months, 7 days of service.

Walter was truly a gentle, kind person, a good son, brother, husband, and father. He enjoyed fishing and get-togethers with his family and friends. He was a good mechanic in most fields and did much of the maintenance, repair, and renovations of his home in Topeka. All of his brothers and sisters lived in Topeka from about 1920. Walter was a member of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church and the University Methodist Church, Topeka Lodge No. 17 AF&AM, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

My father, like my mother, was a good letter writer. He wrote to me from the time I went into the Navy in 1944 until his death in 1964. I now regret that I didn't keep his letters. Fortunately, I have come across a few written in 1950 when I was in the Navy on duty in the Mediterranean Sea.

[About 18 May 1950] From a note on the back of a letter from Florence Hahn

Tom - You are having a wonderful experience and I am going back 3o years to thee time when I too was in Nice - Cannes , Monte Carl, Lyons, Marseilles, etc. Try mailing air mail some time from the cities you visit using their stamps to see what kind of service etc. [Remember, he was a mail carrier.] Your 1c Post-cards come as fast as you "air mails" about up to 2 weeks latest to [my Aunt] Gladys [(Torgeson) White] mailed My 8 - here the 18th. O.K. Here. Pops

[About 21 May 1950 From a note on the face of a letter from Florence Hahn.]

(We got 10 Bull Heads on fishing Trip Tom)

[Probably about 21 May 1950]

[First page missing] and where now, little man? We will be waiting to hear all about it. All those little details that by now are becoming commonplace to you are big news to us, your life aboard ship, your hours, etc. By the way, when do you do any work? Is that coming up? [Well, that's a good question, isn't it. As an intelligence officer I was always evasive about my work, what, where, when, how.] Will the new ship [Heavy Cruiser USS SALEM] cruise around or will you be in port more? Will you still be in Ballentines crew or staff. [Vice Admiral Ballentine was the Commander of the Sixth Fleet. I worked for him rather for the captain of the ship in which we rode.]

About here now. We are having rains again, things are green and pretty, even our old yard is getting good looking. We have chick-weed, dandelions, crab-grass and some blue grass. We need to start all over with the yard. but what the heck?

I have been fishing only once. Less [Beckman, brother-in-law], Gladys, mom and I are going out to [Lake] Shawnee pretty soon, not too good a day, all the creeks are up and muddy. We want to go to Wabaunsee soon as we can find a good time.

I have kitchen done, white wood work and yellow walls. Looks swell but not as practical as the old job. Time marches on . . . [The remainder of the letter is missing.]

[About 23 May 1950] From a note on the face of a letter from Florence Hahn

Howdy Kid, Strawberry Time here! Fried chicken, not a bad place to live. Topeka is growing, now 7 Story Tel, building soon. bye, Pops [Everything is up to date in Kansas City. eh?]

[28 May 1950]

Dear Tom: Haven't heard much from you this week past, we got all kinds of stuff from you the week before. Enjoyed the ship's paper, hope you have them on the Salem. [I was in the USS NEWPORT NEWS when I wrote this letter, apparently.] Also various people told us you sent them cards, they are all pleased to hear from you away off there, no kidding they really like it. Especially glad you dropped a card to 629 W17 [home of Tom's grandmother, Walt's mother, Mattie (Defries) Hahn. We were over there this a.m. things not too good with Grandma Hahn.

Our bird-life is wonderful, the rains have made lots of worms, Bugs and they are so happy. Yards need mowing, this p.m. I told mom; old Tom is getting out of a lot of yard mowing namely on board ship. Don't get in too much fishing, will try to get going soon, have a lovely kitchen now, mom is happy about that, me too. [Walt was good at many of the building trades and did much of his own work on their house.] I had Fri-Sat-Sun. off this weekend, good deal on the 1 Trip mail service. [Walt was a mail carrier.] Bye, Pops

Sunday Morn About 9 July 1950]

Dear Tom. It is really raining here last night and today. Crops are good, no lack of moisture, We have just returned from Church at Trinity. Campbell has been returned as our preacher, we like hi O.K. Have been getting in some fishing for instance about ten days past, Les Gladys Mom and I went out to Lake Wabaunsee all day. We got a million small perch (it seemed) and every so often we snagged a nice fat Blue-gill, got 26. We never did get a run on 'em like you and I did that time. Wasn't that fun, we pulled 'em out as fast and furious and Les Beckman] and Mc [Gerald McCollister] couldn't register at all. Les recalled that incident the other day when we were out there. Also we went down to Long Creek Sat. the 8th, Les, Gladys & I (mom was busy and didn't go, she doesn't care 2 whoops about a fishing trip) We were plenty disgusted, the creek had been up, terrible, away back to that picnic table and it was still muddy & no god Sat, I hit it down to those loggy spots where you like couldn't get a raise on shrimp or worms, just too muddy I think. Gladys fished down further north and got two small Bull-heads. So - we got 14 Doz. eggs (27c) and give it up about noon. Came back up, east of Berryton on this little lake I have mentioned and got 6 small Bull heads., just wasn't right Sat. However one fellow that farms near-by was fishing there with an old beat-up came pole (you can't beat 'em). He caught a turtle and got his liver out and put in water, pronto, he had a channel [catfish] (2 lbs anyway) just like that. Les Gladys and I had about 50.00 worth of equipment and 6 small Bull heads. I have seen it happen before. But we get a kick out of rods & reels, etc. Remember that Turtle liver bait, could be a land terrapin would be as good.

Mom and I took a little run up to Hiawatha last Friday 97th)I thought it might be possible to make a deal with Tom Comfort [old friend] (he runs a small furniture store there) to get a discount on a good radio. He doesn't sell em tho so we just enjoyed the trip anyway. Havent heard from you. Pops

Walter Hahn was a good father, a good brother, and a good son He visited his mother often. She lived with her daughter Margaret in Topeka, about two miles from Walter. He was always concerned about their welfare and did what he could to be helpful.

8-29-50 Tuesday 8 PM

Dear Tom - We have had a busy Monday & Tuesday getting grandma Hahn taken care of. We have had a long period of worry and concern about her and now that it is all over I feel quite relieved and quite a bit lonesome at the same time. She just wore out and was unconscious the last few days. 83 years of age. Grandpa Hahn passed 16 yrs ago. Margaret [(Hahn) Walter] & [daughter] Donna [Walter] will be in the home at 629 w 17, it will be theirs under the arrangements we have made, there was only a small amount of cash left in the estate and we have put some into the house to make it a little more livable, things are pretty well run down. There isn't any moneys left for anybody to squabble over and I think that may be the best answer. They have received 2 or 3 cards from you at 629 w 17, thanks, kid.

Raining again here, never been anything like it, creeks were good a few days. I had to work so still no fishing. We are going to Waubaunsee over Labor Day, Less, Glad, Mom & I. I do hope it clears up. We at least hope to get Blue gills.

We have a letter from you postmarked, 22nd august which puts me pretty well up to day, you had been to Damascus, that was indeed interesting. Will be tickled to see your pictures you mention and I hope around xmas. I also hope that smaller town you day-dream of is within a reasonable distance of Topeka. [Had I mentioned such a place?] We have to stay here, I couldn't get any work like I have in another P.O. we do hope to see more of you some time. Pops is nearly 55 Kid - Mom 53. [So, I am 79. The Kid]

We are getting along OK. Just lonesome. Bye, Pops

Mid-September 1950.[S.]

Tom, a Bit of Sadness here - [He was never one to burden others with his problems or concerns,] Grandma Hahn passed on 2 weeks ago this evening, it hardly seems so long ago. [She died on 27 August 1950.]

She has been terribly bad mentally part of the time and just had to wear clear out. We had her in Vail (Christs) Hosp. a couple of days after she had the fall and it now seems she must have had a stroke at the time. Poor old Soul, so feeble and pitiful she was, at the last. She was mostly unconscious for several days before going on.

Remember all the good times you kids had over there? [He always had something positive to say.] We are so glad it is over!

Well kid, am I a fisherman or not, or am I? Fraid not Les, Glad [brother-in-law, husband of Walt's sister, Louise, and his second wife] were out to [Lake] Waubunsee 2 nights in a cabin. $3 per night (2 couples), hellish beds and old oil stove, used my gas. lantern for lights. Lovely weather, swell food, but couldnt even catch Blue-gills at that swell place over by Ed's [Ed Wilcox, his neighbor in back]. I did save a dozen or so small ones. then dumped 'em back in regusted like. Marty & Jim [Kilkenny, Les's daughter and her husband] came out there 2nd day. dinner & supper and we played Canasta that evening. Lord how I wish you kids lived in our part of the country [rather than the Washington, D.C. area], ever consider it? [He seldom mentioned this and was not one to make me or anyone else feel guilty.]

We came back from Eskridge in time for Less and I to run down to Elk Creek and Rock Creek (East of Richland) to try again or Bull-heads but dont you forget it, when Fall gets here Bull-heads just wont hit the bait, their season is over by Heck! I watched a tank of Bull-heads over at the fair display, as a rule they just stayed motionless, in a relaxed position of bottom of glass tank.

I'd like to have you around this country in Bull head season again, you used to pull em in kid. Can't get a bull head in Wakarusa [Creek] they all say. Channels and other cats [catfish] on limb lines, trot lines. I've just put my fishing stuff up for the season, yard mowing about over, next thing is leaf raking, storm sash and fall & winter. Hay-fever is on strong. I don't have much trouble if I eat right, along with my weekly shots . . .

From 1959 until 1967, Walter and Florence enjoyed their retirement years at 1120 High Ave in Topeka. They enjoyed trips by auto and . train, and plane to visit their son,. Tom, and other places. They continued to enjoy their friends and family. Walt's particular love was fishing and he went when ever he had the opportunity. That all ended with the diagnosis of cancer of Walt in the early Fall of 196r. For several months he was in the Veteran's Hospital in Topeka. At this time, Florence broke a hip and fell and it was a difficult period for them. Their only child, Tom, was occupied in the Vietnam War and was living at San Miguel, Zambales, Republic of the Philippines and was not able to physically to help them. Luckily, they had good family, fiends, and neighbors and the living care of the personnel at the hospital to help them through this period until Walt's death in February 1968. Tom was only able to see his dad once, while enroute to a Communications Conference in Washington, D. C., and then to make the trip back from Southeast Asia three months later to bury his father and to help his mother with the necessary affairs.

During the period Walt was in the hospital, probably in November 1965 he received this letter from his grandson and answered it. There was other correspondence with Toim, but unfortunately that correspondence is gone.

Dear Grandpa,
I heard that you were in the hospital, so I decided to write and wish you well, seeing as how Dad is visiting while he's in the States.
Just a few days ago our Boy Scout troop went up on the mountain sitting out by our base. We dragged tents, food, and all this other gear up there, and we were really tired at the end of the hike. The site has a beautiful view of San Miguel, though, and just about 50 yards below our site is a nice ice-cold stream of spring water. I know you would have liked the place, even though there aren't any fish in the stream.
Well, I've got to end now. Homework is calling. Love, Chris [And drawing of a fish]
P.S. Say hello and give my best wishes to Grandma for me.

Dear Chris,
I was surely glad to hear from you old boy.
You can have great times in your Scout work and you will never forget these wonderful experiences you are having all over the world and when you get older and older they will keep giving you something interesting to tell your children and even your grand-children.
Yes, Chris, you too will get old, we all do for sure, So you are having a wonderful busy Boy-hood. Live it up! I do hope you are doing well in your School work, try to be the very best. Your Dad (Tom) was a real smart cookie and still is.
Now as to your marksmanship Record. There is something to really be excited about and old gramps is really proud to have such a Sharp-Shooter in the family. You really made a record that is going to be hard to beat. Good Job, fella. I'll be expecting to hear from you again and thanks for writing. Your one and only GRANDPOPS. W.F. HAHN Grandma has seen your letter. Chris,. and she also send you a big Howdy, Boy!

(Topeka Daily Capital, 4 February 1966). Walter F. Hahn, 70, 1120 High, died Friday in a Topeka hospital after a long illness. He was born Oct. 28, 1895 at Muncie in Wyandotte County and had lived in Topeka 45 years. Earlier he lived at White City in Morris County. He was a mail carrier before he retired in 1959. He was a veteran of World War I. He was a member of University Methodist Church, Topeka Lodge No. 17, AF&M, and Veteran of Foreign Wars, all in Topeka. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Florence Hahn, of the home; a son, Cmdr. Thomas S. Hahn, the Philippine Islands; a sister, Mrs. Fred Hotttle, 619 W. 17th; a brother, E. O. Hahn, 1433 Lincoln; and two grandchildren. Penwell-Gable Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements. Burial will be in Mount Hope Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to University Methodist Church.

They had one son, (Kansas Delaware) Thomas Frederick "Swiftwater" Hahn, born at 12:03 a.m. on 5 November 1926 at the St. Francis Hospital in Topeka, Shawnee, Kansas. [But his official birth date is 5 November 1926.] In 2005, he was living in Fort Myers, Lee County, Florida. He married first Lena "Beth" Elizabeth Curtis; they divorced. She died on 2 January 2203 at Denison, Collins County, Texas. They had two children:

1. (Kansas Delaware) Christopher "Chris" Frederick Hahn was born at the National Naval Medical Center,

Bethesda, Montgomery County, Maryland on 29 August 1951. Chris is married to Martha Jane Von Bauman (Living). They have one daughter, (Kansas Delaware) Beverly "Bev" Anne Hahn (Living).

2. (Kansas Delaware) Elizabeth "Betsy" Lee Hahn was born on 13 April 1959 at the Military Advisory Military Assistance Group (MAAG) Dispensary, Taipei, Republic of China. In 2005, she lives in Amherst, New Hampshire.

Tom married second, on 27 October 1968, at the Navy Chapel, Washington, District of Columbia, Nathalie Irene White of New York.

Walt Hahn Family Memories

Will soon be your birthday [5 November] and I shall always remember it as the happiest day of my life as I had a baby boy to complete my life.

Grandma and Grandma [Margaret (Owen) and Thomas Torgeson] came the next afternoon allowed in the room at hospitals and the nurse brought you in and Grandpa T held you and kissed you. He loved babies [He and Margaret had had nine of their own.] was so proud you were named after him.

It was a beautiful fall and then the first light snow came softly down. A yellow chrysanthemum was sent me. In those days greenhouse flowers were rare. It was such a happy time and your dad was there every evening and we were somewhat reluctant in sharing our evening with any visitors. (Florence Hahn letter to Tom Hahn November 1978)

Am thinking about Nov 6-1926 when you came to us and how proud we were to have the first and only boy. a grandson, in the Hahn family. And while in the hospital, had the first snow, and with a beautiful fallish chrysanthemum plant in the window, and a little baby in a blanket. I thought it the most beautiful and happiest time of my life, and I thought about how I would rock you as we had gotten large leather rocker.

The night before you came Grandpa [Chris] Hahn came with Uncle Paul [Chris Hahn's brother, Walt Hahn's uncle] and Aunt Eve to see us and they said the house smelled so good. That day I had made several fruit cakes for the coming holidays (Ibid, November 1979)

I thought about how hard it was to get go when first [married] learning how to buy groceries and cook them and nothing [money] left for fun, but we had lots of free entertainment in these days, the park wasnt far and of course we walked and that was Chesnay [Chesney] Park [also known as Central Park, I believe, and there were good band concerts Sat or Sun Eve which we enjoyed and then not long after that the families got settled here and that filled the need for outside entertainments. And then the Big [Kansas] Fair was the high light of the year and it was free then also, lots to sell inside, and after you came Tom, we left you with Grandma & Grandpa T, in the evenings, as I thought it no place for little ones. the dust, noise, etc and after a days work Pop didnt need to carry a youngster around. So we were fortunate to have folks to care for the little ones. (Ibid, August 1984)

Going back to refrigerators . [?] Our first one we got in 1933, replacing the wooden ice box. You sure liked to climb up on the ice wagon and get a piece of ice. [In my memory, the driver would not have permitted us on the wagon. We would pester him for a piece; sometimes he obliges us, sometimes not. I am sure that if every kid on the route got a piece of ice he would have had to return to the plant to reload. Son Tom] You could have had a piece of ice anytime at home but that was the same. [I don't think so! The ice was needed for refrigeration and that didn't like to let warm air into the compartment in which the ice was kept.] The ice man got mad sometimes when several kids were there at the same time and he told you that if you kept off his wagon he would give you a piece. He was afraid someone might get hurt. (Ibid, July 1979) I have a little book that kept so may dates in my head and I sometimes wonder why I keep it but is such a little book and interesting to compare prices. But there are some things haven't put in the price. [I have this little book.] [Ibid, July 1979]

Am thinking about the Valentine Days when you were a little boy. As I sit and think about it I wish I could have one day to live over again and it would be Valentine Day and making heart cookies with red sugar, red Jell-O and Dad bringing home the biggest red apples he could find and there would be one at each plate. Good Jonathan, winesap and others, but these apples were the ones from Was. State, and a crippled fellow on 8th and Kans sold them by the apple, and they were polished and shiny. I don' remember the price of them. (Ibid, 14 February 1980)

I remembered the heavy poles and substantial swings Dad [Walter] put up for you and sand box, a large one, all was work to do, the kind now takes work to put up but thats all, and I can see the swings that we had at my home [in White City, Kansas] two, in a big tree, by the cellar and what fun for two on a swing board pumping it together and climbing up in that tree also, I didn't climb trees like Kate [sister] did and the other neighbor kids. (March 1982)

Your letter came today and has opened a whole new trend of thinking. about China painting of your friend [Jerry Smith, of Shepherdstown, West Virginia]. In later years it has almost become a lost art. In my younger days it was quite the thing. I have only one hand painted dish, a small plate and has the date 1919 given to me as a shower (wedding gift by a friend and initials are on it but I cant remember who it was). I have two other hand painted dishes that are pretty also. A whole, set done by a person for their Anniversary would be really something special. [September 1982]

Decoration Day was a Special Day for us. as we always went to W. C. [White City] after Grandpa T died, and would take Mother and [sister] Mae and Bob came also but that didn't last long as then Bob died. so we would get up early and get Mae and go to W. C. and to their services in morn and meet old friends and then go to Aunt Celia's [and husband John, her father Tom Torgeson's brother] for noon meal. We took things for the dinner. She sure loved us. her house had lots of shade around it and always cool. Uncle John was still living a year or two when Bob was. We would go back to Maes late afternoon in later years and stay all night and talk about friends we had seen that day. Am sure Tom you were with us in early years. And we went every year until Dad [Walt] left in 66. (Ibid, September 1981)

I used to like the warm summer Sunday dinners as did not have the oven meals so much on the day when weather hot and would have a can of salmon in fridge and cooked peas after got home from church and had a salad and fruit, coffee. Dad would make me iced coffee as had hot . but he would drink it also but later would have a cup of hot.. He did it because of me, fixing the iced coffee. I would sip on it so nice and cool in the breakfast room with shoes off and we would sit and talk longer than on other days. (Ibid, ____)

I wonder if you remember on our trip to Wisconsin [perhaps 1940?] and back of the cabins were those large dark cherries, an orchard of them. and the cabin manager told us to eat and use all we wanted as the crop was insured, a hail hit them and damaged some, so they (owners) werent allowed allowed to sell any and collect insurance to, so we ate them and was on the end of trip before coming home so we filled up the car refrigerator box with ice and cherries and had them along the trip and some when we got home, They were like bing cherries, maybe they were them. [My Grandma Mattie Hahn also went with us, the only time I remember her going .] (August 1982)

Was interested about Peter [Rabbit] being caught in a net and remember last summer how mad he was. . . to be pushed in the cage [where he spent the winter with the Pete Estes Family In Winter Harbor]. . . but he wasn't hurt, just his feeling, and as you say an animal like that has more of a personality free from a cage and can show off more than being shut up. Well he was fun, and I was thinking about my ducks. They are a fun pet. One is more fun than two as they depend on each other and don't pay as much attention to you. I had Joey first and he was so much fun. He would follow me around when I hung up clothes and would pick and pull on my shoe laces and nibble my arm and that made marks so had to make him stop that. He stayed in the yard, but one day I sneaked off and went to Mrs. Elliot's [two doors to the north] and we were sitting in the porch swing and she said look who s coming and there was Joey quacking and I called and he came running to me.

Then came fall and Dad said we can't keep him all winter penned up, so he said he would take him to the park and put him in the lake or something and so when it was about time to take him I was out on the steps with Joey and Pop came out and sat with us and he said, "You didn't..." and I said, "I did." He was pointing to Joey's head and there was lip stick where I kissed him. Well I missed him ore than Dad as he was with me all day. An then the next spring he got two and when they got older we noticed one couldn't quack, but would open his mouth and nothing came out. They were good at catching bugs and insects and suirt98ing on the sidewalk which I had to hose off often, and I didn't name them separately but called them The Boys. When I wanted them I would call, Here boys" and both came but they didn't play with me like Joey, and then fall came and the same parting and I rather think that Dad gave them to one of the carriers and they ate them. I wouldn't let him kill them to eat. It was off they seldom went off the place, maybe roam around in Goldie's yard [next door to the north], but I cried when they left and that was a bright spot in my life with an easy time with a pet that didn't need much care of bother. (Ibid, August 1979)

Dad sometimes went overboard in buying bargains at the Santa Fe unclaimed freight, and he got some 40 bags for 15 cents each. They had to be raveled out, washed and bleached some and ironed, so was a job. and I said I will do what I can with that many. They were too large and heavy for dish towels that I could use and give as gifts, etc. Well, I advertised in a weekly paper which did cheap advertising and brought some good results as had sold things before by advertising. The bags were about 36x45 [inches]. The first day the paper was out had sold most of them and the second day had to turn people away. They thought they were flour sacks. and when some saw how heavy and large they were they wondered what they could use them for and I suggested they make ironing board covers, butcher's aprons, lunch cloths fringed, etc. I sold them for 35 cents each and kept a few. But was an experience and some work.

One time on our way to KC, Dad and I stopped at Jon Stephens, Annie's brother and he had a feed store and I bought a few sacks there and they were small like flour sacks and were flowered and figured and made interesting dish cloths and little table covers, the 36 in size. He only had a few or Dad would probably have bought more, but that was my buy, not his. (Ibid, March 1980)

Sixty three years ago was my Wedding Day, and Louise and Margaret went with us to the minister at First Meth Church. He was a stranger to us, and we met in a small room for the Service. And then back to Grandma & Grandpa [Hahn's] for a Wedding dinner and the family all there, that is the Hahn family and Dad & I Stayed in our home that night as had bedroom furniture there and went to Hahns for breakfast. and too the train to Baldwin. Louise & Margaret and Grandma & Grandpa went in the Ford, and this was Ed & Marie [Jenkin's] Wedding day. Marie's mothers [Mrs. Jenkins] had a noon dinner for us and Ed and Marie married in the afternoon. Then went two couple went to K.C. [Kansas City, Missouri] on train and stayed at same hotel that night. The next day went to a furniture store with a discount. We were so green about buying. I imagine it was full price, but did buy a buffet, table & chairs, and didnt have any money left for anything else. So we lived with furniture we got at a yard sale for the Living room, which was a wicker settee and a chair and a little table of some sort, the Living room was so bare for a long time. Someone gave us a new porch swing, the one we had many years after and such a nice gift. They sold for 5 or $6 new and think how many years it lasted. I could have sold 8 of them when I had my sale to move here to apt. I got $8.00 for it. At each side of garage on High St were white clematis vines on a lattice, and every year they bloomed on Sept 5 and did years after Dad was gone, but took them down later as wood broken and vines about gone.

And now will go on to other Labor Days when lived on High. We bought Colo peaches which came about that time and were so good to can, and then was when I made a peach jam which everyone liked to well, it had orange rind and Marashino Cherries) a few for color. You, Tom, called it Halloween Jam, and was so pretty and yellow, and one time two men from White City came for super. Dad met them downtown and invited them, and I put on a dish of that jam and one fellow kept spreading it on so thick was gone too soon, so I went to basement and brot up a pt jar and he sure made headway on that, and I thought if he came again would put on apple butter or some cheaper spread. (Ibid, September 1983)

Do you remember Tom when a little boy you wanted a live turkey for a pet and so in fall when up to Junction City, he bought you one at a produce pace. It was a cull and we brought it home in a box and you would pet in all way home [and] put it in a big cage back of garage, and fattened it up and cooked it. As I remember you did object to us doing that but maybe you did. I know I would [not] let Dad kill my duck, but ducks are smarter than turkeys. (Ibid, December 1980)

I used to like the warm summer Sunday dinners as did not have the oven meals so much on the day when weather hot and would have a can of salmon in fridge and cooked peas after got home from church and had a salad and fruit, coffee. Dad would make me iced coffee as had hot . but he would drink it also but later would have a cup of hot.. He did it because of me, fixing the iced coffee. I would sip on it so nice and cool in the breakfast room with shoes off and we would sit and talk longer than on other days. (Ibid, July 1979)

THOMAS TORGESON FAMILY MEMORIES
From Florence Torgesons Letters unless otherwise noted

There is no particular order to these excerpts at this time

I do remember the hassle about the outhouse at home [in White City, Kansas]. So few things I remember about when my brothers were there but mother would get mad [about the state of the outdoor toilet] and they got busy. She never let that job wait until the droppings hit our bottoms like some folks did. There was always a box of lime to put down, and we had to sweep [the outhouse] out and keep it clean. They moved the building to another location close to the old spot. I never knew about winter up there taking care of that. As I remember Mother was particular about things. We had to pick up the rotten apples under the trees. I guess she wanted to keep us busy some of the time, and we had plenty of chores. (July 1979)

Now Mother when making a quilt would cut out the blocks all boxed, etc. Not the hit and miss kind [like me] but that way.

Read an article the other day. To conserve on fuel at the peak time. Iron in the morning and other chores before the heat of the day came and it reminded me of Mother. She would cook a kettle of the new little potatoes from the garden and then we would brown for supper as that did not take long to brown them and cook the kettle of beets as that takes time, so long to cook. Well you are doing the same thing on young cook stove [at the cabin in Maine, where the cook stove took the chill off in the morning as well. *C*ooking pea soup, etc. and heat dish water and on hot summer afternoons, she would pull down the shades on the sunny side and close the back doors on the west, and we kids had to either stay in our out and no running back and forth letting in flies. An she had a pitcher of lemonade from real lemons for us to take out with us.. And our house seemed to comfortable, except was hot in bedrooms at night many times. But going back to the shady afternoons, I can remember when at other homes how hot it seemed as the kids were allowed to run in and out all afternoon. We seldom went anywhere in the afternoons as there were four of us to play together [Mae had been married and gone from home years before] and mother thought that enough. And she wanted to rest some. (July 1979)

Up early and fortified with a bowl of oatmeal with raisins, and have just read this article about "Hot Cereal Mornings." I don't think the writer is as old as I, as some things we didn't have then, but I do remember we all ate oatmeal. Mother had a large double boiler to cook it. Dad said his mothers oats was scorched some of the times, and we always had a hot breakfast, sometimes pancakes with pork tenderloin, or bacon and eggs, and no one seemed to be picky about what was on for any morning, like kids do now. Of course always good homemade bread, oven toasted so crisp. But mush made with cornmeal is best. (March 1980)

This article in this mornings paper and it and others of hers brings me back to my younger days, This one about greens, mother used to cook horse radish, lambs quarters. We kids wouldnt eat them, and now we are eating all kinds of greens. I sure like beet greens. (14 May 1984)

And I am thinking about my Mother on 4th when were all kids. She always had fried chicken (she raised chickens) and new potatoes & peas, beets and the gallon freezer of ice cream. We kids helped some by shelling peas and picking over beans, but she was the one working over a hot stove. (July 1980)

When I was growing up my favorite piece of chicken was the wings, Dad liked back & neck, Gladys thigh, Kate legs and Mother and Bernice the white meat, always fried two chickens as we raised them, and my job was to cut up chickens and also pick off feathers after I was half way grown up. (July 1980)

The Native article [I don't know what magazine or article she is referring to] was interesting and I had recently read that Harpers Bazaar as it was called years ago had folded up as so may of our magazines from the past have. Sat Evening Post, Life, etc. And I remember about how Mother wanted us to have good things to read but could not afford many magazines then. She got us "Youths Companion" and there was a small magazine something like Readers Digest called Path Finder" and later there was "Delineator and Ladies Home Journal, maybe someone would hand down to us and I was so eager to read. (July 1980)

I shall always remember a good friend that ran the Hotel there in WC. She was good to so many folks. She called me in one day when I passed by and asked me if I would like some magazines to read and keep but I would have to bring our little wagon (We had one for groceries) as too heavy to carry so many magazines, so I was sure glad to have a chance to get them. There was two years of them and I was so excited as there was two numbers of DEC and Christmas stories and ideas how to make little gifts out of those Dec numbers. What a wealth of reading and advertising was interesting also. (July 1980?)

This picture reminds me of a swing in our front yard in my childhood days, only ours didn't have a top of it, and how we loved that swing, and in back yard under a large tree were two rope swings with a swing board seat in it. (July 1980)

And it seems lately that certain things I read remind me of that subject in my younger years in W. C. [White City] and reading about wheat. Occasionally Mother's bread wasn't up to standard and Dad was never the kind of person to criticize food, but he would say, "What happened to the bread this time." and she would say, It must be the flour, as flour was better with some age to it.

The first year Day and I were married we lived next door to a middle age couple and their married daughter & little girl lived with them. The father was killed in some kind of accident, so the daughter worked at the flour mill where she tested and weighed flour and baked a loaf every day, and they would bring us a loaf. The flour was called "White Loaf" and it was the top brand. I remember using it.

When my Dad worked at grain store, we kids liked to jump in the wheat bins, only 2 at a time but not often if Dad caught us, and we would chew on it.

And then while on Nature subjects. in Aug, we called them dog days when winds would be so hot, and Dad would worry so about the corn crops. And he would be so tired and face dirty from helping shovel grain in bins in their store house. Lots of times he would come home late to supper but we would eat without him and I am sure that was more restful for him also. So ever generation has their hang-ups. Storms, etc to battle, and the the good times too. (August 1980)

I thought of an old scrub plum tree by our wind mill, that when in bloom the bees were thick on it. There was an old was tub, had been washing machine and had a wooden stopper in it and one day, some kids and I were around close and the stopper was full of bees and the only brave thing I did when young. I took hold of that stopper on one end where no bees and pulled it out, bees just held on and the kids were amazed. I knew they wouldn't bother me as have had them crawl on me. (May 1981)

Recd such a nice letter from you so will answer your questions about the two little sisters. One of the sisters died of a ruptured appendix and the other of typhoid fever. The next year I had typhoid fever and out was touch and go for a while with me. The first solid meal I had was 3 t cream of wheat. I remember that and I cried for more, but Dr.'s orders not as been on liquids for so long. The doctor said the drainage [in the yard] was bad not far from the well, as stock was close or some such deal, so mother saw to it that it was taken care of. Even the first yrs of married life when I would go to Dr for some ailment he would ask if I ever had the fever. And once in a while when I was growing up after the big hurt of losing the girls, mother had said Millie was like and angel, almost to good to live. She was orderly and would pick up every little raveling from mother's sewing, and quiet. Back to me. I lost all my hair but it came back quickly for school the next fall. Short and curly. I don't know where the picture was taken [of the two little sisters, apparently] but it seems odd they, the folks hadn't them in a picture as most of us had a picture [taken] during our younger years and I never heard Mae [her older sister, Mae (Torgeson) Christensen] talk about the sisters. She was home until I was 10. It may be folks didn't talk about things like they do now. Maybe bottled up their grief. (February 1983)

Am doing a little family research stuff. As I was straightening up the box in the closet of picture, etc and this little enclosed envelope] has always intrigued me as a girl growing up.] It was in a little drawer on side of a dresser. You know the kind that has the two little drawers on each side of a mirror. Well, may times when mother was gone I would go in her room and look at this envelope contents, a little ring, a party invitation and the 2 pictures, and someone has the ring and invitations. but want you to look it over. [I don't remember ever seeing those pictures, but would love to have had.] I have spent the day thinking about those little sisters and I don't remember them. Mother has told us about them. I have one thing straightened out. Have always thought Millie was the older, but it was Merle and she died very young, two years old, while Millie was 7. And I remember mother telling what a good child it was and would be so neat and no doubt she was also missed her more 2 year old Merle. And I see Kate was born Dec 29, 1900 which was only 3 months after Merle died. How mother ever got through two babies deaths and 2 miscarriages and live as long as she did and have a good mind until she died. And I thinking of all the happy times I have had with all my sisters, all those reunions etc. Am so glad both of you like history and can share with you, mine. [Millie was the next sister older to Florence and Merle was the next sister younger. It must have been hard for her to having both sisters next to her die. This is the first time I remember her saying that her mother had two miscarriages, making it nine pregnancies in all. I don't recall seeing the two pictures that she mentioned and would love to see what those little girls looked like.]

In your last letter you mentioned maybe a [heat] register cut in floor for upstairs would help heat up a room. [At this time we lived in an old 1775 log house with a c1790 brick addition. It had an antiquated heating system.] We had one in W.[hite] C.[ity] home. It was over the dining room and into my parents bedroom. The heater was going in dining room all the time and real cold weather we kept the living room door shut. It made that bedroom cozy. We used to envy the folks having that room, they would shut that room up during the day, and is was cozy there. They would shut the register off at night, except when we had dates. we used to hear it open, as part of we couples sat in that room. Sometimes there were three of us dating at the same time. [Florence, Kate, and Gladys] Our bedrooms were sure icy. We wore long underwear and flannel gowns and blankets and I was still cold. Would take a heated brick wrapped in piece of blanket to bed. We had lots of covers but they were so heavy. (February 1983)

Have been lying down on bed, trying to take a nap, but no sleep came and I got up thinking abut hot afternoons when I was growing up. We called August dog days, dont know what they meant, seems as though we associated Aug. as the hottest summer month. Mother would dry the shades [on windows[on the sunny side of house and we kids had to stay in or out during the middle of afternoon as Mother didnt want the screen door open and shut so much and let the flies in. She would make us a pitcher of lemonade and we would take it and sit in the shade of an apple tree, and late summer apples called Maiden Blush. which was yellow and so sweet. They have ripened in late July. We went barefoot all summer, wore shoes on Sun. Not ear as cool as under the apple tree, and then as we grew older she bought us one of those double swings, a seat facing the other and we enjoyed that and always had swings under some bug tree. She wanted us to stay home since there were 4 of us. Mae was too old to play with us, and if we went out in sun to go to well or toilet hot afternoons we had to put our sunbonnets on, and I can see now that she wanted us to keep well. She did not know then that being exposed to hot sun for a period of any length caused skin problems etc.

Dad did not raise watermelons but he would bring one home, from some farmer wagon, and we would leave it out on north side of house in grass & dew and it would get cooled off. Then sometimes would set it in a tub of cold well water, how we lived watermelon. We had one cherry tree. maybe more, and it had such good cherries, and I was picking one morning and a large bull [black?] snake was lying on one of the branches, so I have never been fond of cherries, and I was scared to go pick after that but mother made me do it. She had to kill the snake and she didnt like to do that but it had to be done. (July 1983)

And I told them about my 4th of Julys. We 4 sisters each had a 5c pkg of fire crackers, which we shot off first thing in the morn, then took the red wagon over to the ice house across the st from us to get ice for making the ice cream. And our noon dinner was fried chicken (we raised the chickens) new potatoes and peas, beets, etc and we thought it a wonderful day.

One thing I got on a 4th of July was a card from my cousin Ruth, and I have never seen a Fourth of July card since and wonder about Halls Marks not getting wise to that, they make plates and paper napkins for that date. This card of mine had a little girl on it and a fire cracker as tall as she with the words "Go off with me on the Fourth." I wish I had that card now, and it was the first card I ever received through the mail. One 4th of July after Mae was married she and Bob drove down for the day and for a treat he brot a freezer of store ice cream, it was a large one too, and he said we had to eat it up before they went back home in late afternoon. We were excited about it, but go over it having to keep eating it, no way to freeze it like now. (July 1983)

Going back to 4th of July, when I was at home in W.C. Bob & Mae came [from Junction City] for the day and brot a large freezer of ice cream (commercial kind) which was a treat for we kids as we so seldom had store kind as mother made ours. Well we had big helpings at noon after a big dinner of fried chicken etc, and then another helping mid afternoon and Bob told us we had to finish it up as he had to take the freezer back to the ice cream pace. Well we got our fill that day of ice cream as had no refrigerator then to keep left over ice cream, so 4th of July was one of our favorite holidays. Mother always made a freezer of ice cream. We went over to an ice house close by, in sort of a barn, men hauled in river ice and had it covered with saw dust to keep frozen and it was fun to go in ice house as was so col. Mother warned us not to eat any ice as was full of germs from the river. (12 July 1984)

When I was in the grades [grade school] we would have elections at school, and only Democrats was a boy in my class and I, and I used to wish just once I could brag, and so after I was in H. S. or rather the year I graduated Wilson became pres. and my Dad got the Po. [Post Office at White City, Kansas] because of that and he had it for 8 yrs and was a good paying job for him and a challenge for a man like him that had no schooling only grades and I don't know how far he got, but he made a good living with this job, and that was exciting. The only way we could hear reports was over phones and newspapers. (August 1980)

When I was young they didn't wrap Christmas gifts just hung them on the tree as is, and I remember after Mae was married, I was 10 yrs then and the first Christmas she came home, I looked in her suitcase, when no one was around. I knew somehow she would have hair ribbons and I wanted to see what color mine was. There was ribbons for all we sisters and all i one box with our names on them. And mine was the color I liked so well.

(December 1982)

The article about greens reminded me of the time mother had a Bridal Brunch for me announcing my engagement. This was Aug. 1st and she wouldnt tell me what she was going to serve, and I cant remember what she had but for something to put the salad on (our garden lettuce all gone) but she used the tops of carrots for greenery, and she made a pretty deal to put, I think it was jello salad, on it. We kids never ate greens she cooked, like horse radish, lambs quarter etc, one of our wealthy women in W. C. [White City, Kansas] when she had club in winter time she would call to Herrington, a larger town and have them send lettuce on morning train, for any luncheon etc. she had. Her daughter was one of my best friends and I loved staying all nite there. She had a bedroom all to herself, a fireplace, blue wall paper & white painted wood work. We didn't have room for a nite guest. [Undated]

The article about snakes in orchard reminds me of twice I had experience of picking cherries and a big old bull [black?] snake laying across the limb. Poor mother had a horror of snakes also but she was brave and would get the hoe and kill it, and I went in fear every summer, as she would make me pick the cherries and sisters would help also, but going to privy and looking down and laying across a wooden beam was a snake, and I still feel the same fright in any outdoor one, but I can't help it. Jenays little girls touched a snake out to zoo, but I never told them how scared I am of one and the next phobia was tomato worms, the big kind that climb to the limbs, dont think they are on them much anymore. (March 1981)

I have finished reading "The Lord God Made them all" Harriots last book, quite interesting, and now have read them all, and still wouldnt like a vets life. I saw quite a bit of animal life when I was young. When I was young one time coming home from school I saw a calf half born, our side walk from school was across the road and there was where the barn was, and the cow. [I don't know whether or not it was the Torgeson's barn.] And I woudnt eat oatmeal for a long time as I didnt want to have milk on anything. Mother never noticed that I didnt with so many kids around the table, how could she, she didnt eat breakfast wit us. Then I got over that and another time , was evening, and Dad came in with arms &hands covered with blood, and he told mother he had to help deliver the calf. She didnt see me there and again I went without milk on things, so I wouldnt make a good farmers wife. The when little chickens hatched during a snow storm, she would bring them in to cookstove oven, and the feathers sure did smell as they were wet. (March 1982)

It's been hard for Kansas to have a Democrat Gov. but in later years we have had several. When I was in the grades [grade school] we would have elections at school, and only Democrats was a boy in my class and I, and I used to wish just once I could brag, and so after I was in H. S. or rather the year I graduated Wilson became pres. and my Dad got the Po. [Post Office at White City, Kansas] because of that and he had it for 8 yrs and was a good paying job for him and a challenge for a man like him that had no schooling only grades and I don't know how far he got, but he made a good living with this job, and that was exciting. The only way we could hear reports was over phones and newspapers.

So I had to go from H School into training in P.O. and there was so much to learn. Was more to it than putting mail in boxes. There were 4 rural carriers and then first W War started and thaw was a busy time for everyone. Made mail very heavy with overseas mail etc. and women got busy with knitting and canning classes etc, and we had to finger print all Germans in town and farms and a lot of red tape going on and there were Red Cross classes, but a good thing for women in small towns to have an outlet from their home life, mingle with people. (August 1980)

In my last letter about dates I left out our reunions [with her sisters] started. The night before Mothers funeral all we girls [five] were up to Maes and were sitting at table talking and Bernice said, 'Now lets dont drift apart. Lets get together every Oct for a Reunion." And we drew names, and poor Gladys drew for the first one. She was always a little uptight about company for any length of time, was the cooking that bothered her, but that first Reunion 28 years ago [1953]was wonderful. She had games for us to play and just all to be together for a whole week was really something, and so no we have added Zita [sister Kate's son, Frances Schump's wife] and Charlotte [sister Kate's daughter] and still had ones after [sister] Gladys] left, only they have been in the summer when Charlotte was closer. (September 1981)

Am thinking about Labor Days in past, the colo]rado] peaches came in around that times and I made a jam that was pretty and colorful. Was peaches and ground up oranges and marchino cherries (now taboo on account of coloring) you called it Halloween jam as so orange color. And the white clematis and trellis was always in full bloom that day. (July 1981)

JOHN GEORGE HAHN

John George Hahn, ca. 1880-1887 (Photo to be improved. Editor)

The back of the photo reads: A. C. Hammerly Photographer, Millerstown, Butler Co., Penna. P. O. Address, Barnhart's Mills, PA. Because John G. Hahn was at that place in the 1880 census, he was at least 62 years old in this photograph. His died in Bay City, Bay County, Michigan in 1887. Because we do not know when he went to Bay City, this photograph could have been taken after 1880 and before 1887, between the ages of about 62 to 69. Thomas Hahn has the original image.

Chronology:
1788 There may be a John G. Hahn age 92 in the 1880 census for Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. Check this again. So far I can't find him.

1883 Possible death year of Mary Ann Ellenberger

1885 Son Christian Frederick married in Wyandotte County, Kansas to Martha Frances Defries
1887 Death year of John G. Hahn at Bay City, Bay County, Michigan.

John George Hahn was born at Stuttgart, Württemberg, Bavaria, Germany about 1818. (Edward O. Hahn Notes and 1870 Census which see below) He was probably known earlier as Johan(n). Nothing is known of his family, his childhood, or his education. We do not know when he emigrated to the United States or whether or not he emigrated with his parents and/or other family members, or for what reason. In Immigrates to America, 1600-1800s Immigration Records, p.238 from Genealogy.com, there is an entry for a John G. Hahn, age 13, male, from Germany to the USA and "Date of Arrive" as 30Sep32q. The first record we have found for the John G. Hahn we know as "ours" in the United States was in 1848-1849, when he began a term as a Reformed German Evangelical Lutheran minister at the St. Paul's Lutheran Evangelical Church in Millerstown Borough (Chicora), Donegal Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania.. ("Millerstown Borough," Chapter 43, History of Butler County Pennsylvania, 1895, p. 15)

This view of the Town of Chicora was taken from the Hemphill Cemetery in 2001. The church to the left in the background is the German Lutheran Church with which John Hahn was associated and the church on the right in the English German Church. John Hahn's daughter, Christene (Dieter) Hahn was buried in this cemetery and it is possible that John's spouse, Mary Ann Ellenberger was buried there as well. (The photo was provided by Vonda Moore.)

On 15 November 1850, John applied for United States citizenship. In 1851, he married Mary Ann Ellenberger, who was born on 12 January 1829 at Sherrett, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. We cannot find him in the 1850 Federal Census for Pennsylvania, possibly because he was not a citizen of the United States. In 1853, John finished his term as a the minister of the pastor of the St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church in Millerstown Borough (Chicora), Donegal Township, Butler County Pennsylvania. On 16 April 1853, his daughter Margaret/Margarhetta Hahn was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. Although it is assumed that John and Mary Ann lived in Butler County, where he preached, his spouse, Mary Ann, may have returned home Sherrett in Armstrong County to have her daughter, Margaret/Margarhetta. John was naturalized in Butler County on what appears to be 13 October 1853. It is not known where -- or if -- he preached next. His son, Paul Nicholas Hahn, said that there were fourteen children in the family, that he was the last of the fourteen children, and that eleven of the children lived to maturity. We do not know the names of the children that died early. Paul said that the children were born in Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, and Pennsylvania, places where John Hahn had preached. Daughter Matilda Hahn was born in Pennsylvania in 1855. Daughter Bertha Hahn was born on 13 October 1857 at Melan, Ripley County, Indiana. Daughter Emma M. Hahn was born on 11 August 1858 at Sandusky, Ohio. Daughter Christene Christiana [?] Hahn was born on 17 May 1861 at Sandusky, Ohio. On 31 March 1864, son Christian "Chris" Frederick Hahn was born at Swan Creek (now Anchorville), St. Clair County, Michigan. On 5 June 1866, daughter Mary Louise Hahn was born at Swan Creek (now Anchorville), St. Clair County, Michigan. On 4 March 1868, son John G. Hahn was born at Swan Creek (now Anchorville), St. Clair County, Michigan. On 1 August 1869, Edward G. Hahn was born at Roseville, Erin Township, Macomb County, Michigan (a part of Detroit). The communities of Swan Creek and Roseville were some thirty miles apart. The John G. Hahn Family appears in the 1870 Census at Roseville, Warren Township, Macomb County, Michigan.

Census: 1850, US, Pennsylvania, Butler County, Fairview Township, LDS Film 0200610, National Archives Microcopy 432, Roll 760, but could not find Hahn. Daughter Margherita Hahn was born in 1853 in Armstrong County. Searched

Donegal Township and Fairview Township in Butler County and Sugar Creek Township in Armstrong County with no success. Where is John G. Hahn? Perhaps as an emigrant alien he was not enumerated?

Census: 1860, US, Ohio, Sandusky: Daughter Emma M. Hahn was born in Sandusky, Ohio in 1858 and daughter Christene Christiana Hahn was born there in 1861, so it seemed likely that the Hahn's would be there in the 1860 census. However, I could not find them there or anywhere in the 1860 census. Although there is a chance I missed something, there is the possibility that they were somehow missed in this census. A search of Sandusky might be productive if anyone has the time. Otherwise, I will have to wait until some service indexes the 1860 Federal Census.

Census: 1870 Roseville Post Office, Warren Township, Macomb County, Michigan. Heritage Quest Online Images. NAR Film Series M593, Roll 688, p. 117. Enumeration date, 2 Jue 1870. George C. Lamb, Ass't Marshall. Number stamped at top 117. Page No. 5 also listed on the census sheet. His neighbors were mostly farmers. p. 5, Dwelling 35, Family 35. A George Siferlin family next door, Dwelling 36, Family 36, was also from Bavaria.
Line 3. Hahn, George J. Age 52 [1818]. Male. White. Minister of the Gospel. Personal property $100. Born Wurtemberg. Father foreign born. Mother foreign born. Male over 21. [Note that he is listed with the first name of "George," which is helpful in identifying other records.
Line 4. Hahn, Mary Ann. Age 41 [1829]. Female. White. Keeping House. Born Pennsylvania. Father foreign born. [Actually born Pennsylvania]
Line 5. Hahn, Margarett. Age 16 [1854]. Female. White. At Home. Born Pennsylvania. Father foreign born.
Line 6. Hahn, Matilda. Age 15 [1855]. Female. White. At Home. Born Pennsylvania. Father foreign born.
Line 7. Hahn, Bertha. Age 13 [1857]. Female. White. At Home. Born Indiana. Attended school within the year. Father foreign born.
Line 8. Hahn, Emma. Age 11 [1859]. Female. White. Born Ohio. Attended school within the year. Father foreign born.
Line 9. Hahn, Christina. Age 9 [1861]. Female. White. At Home. Born Ohio. Father foreign born. [Note that may have been called "Christiana," full name being Christene Christiana.]
Line 10. Hahn, Christian. Age 7 [1863]. Male. White. At Home. Born Michigan. Father foreign born.

Line 11. Hahn, Loisa. Age 5 [1868]. Female. White. At Home. Born Michigan. Father foreign born. Her name was possibly changed from "Licusa" or "Lienza."
Line 12. Hahn, John. Age 2. White. At Home. Born Michigan. Father foreign born.
Line 13. Hahn, Edward. 10/12 [1869]. Born in August. Male. White. At Home. Born Michigan. Father foreign born.

It is not known when the family moved to Peachville (present Buena Vista), Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where his son, Paul N. Hahn, was born on 16 September 1876. It is not known how long the Hahns were at Peachville, but they appear at "Barnhart's Mill" Post Office, Fairview [Donegal] Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania in the 1880 census for that place. On 27 May 1872, son August Christophorous Hahn was born at Roseville, Erin Township, Macomb County, Michigan. According to Descendant Stan Hahn, great-grandson of John George Hahn, he died at Bay City, Michigan in 1887. We do not know why he was in Bay City, but perhaps he was living with one of his children. The only child who appears to have lived in Michigan was Matilda Hahn, married to Frank Lee. It is not known where Mary Ann Ellenberger died or where. She might have been buried in the Fair Cemetery with her parents, John Ellenberger and her mother Elizabeth Fair, in presently unmarked graves or she might have been buried in the Hemphill Cemetery, Chicora, Butler County, Pennsylvania. where their daughter Christene (Hahn) Dieter is buried. It appears that Christene was the only one of the children who remained in Pennsylvania. A key to the burial place may be wherever Enos Ellenberger is buried as he was living next to them in the 1880 census.

Census: 1880, US, Pennsylvania, Butler County, Fairview Township, Barnhart's Mill. LDS Film 1255109, NAR Film T9-1109, p. 43. Enumerated 18 June 1880, Dwelling 419.
John G. Hahn. Self. Occupation Farmer. Age 62 [1818]. Born Germany. Father and Mother born Germany.
Mary A. Hahn. Keeps House. Age 51 [1829]. Born PA. Father and mother born PA.
Christian Hahn. Son, Farmer, Age 17 [1863]. Born MI. Father born Germany. Mother born PA. Attended school within the year.
Louisa Hahn. Daughter. At Home. Age 15 [1865]. Born MI. Father born Germany. Mother born PA. Attended school within the year.
John Hahn. Son. At Home. Age 12 [1868. Born MI. Father born Germany. Mother born PA. Attended the school within the year. [The name Licusa or Lienza earlier may have been a mistake by a enumerator or researcher for daughter Loisa/Louisa, or , more likely, the former may have been changed her name to Louisa/Louisa to be more "Americanized."

Edward Hahn. Son. At Home. Age 11 [1869]. Born MI. Father born MI [? Check. Should be Germany.]. Mother born PA. Attended school within the year.
August Hahn. Son. Age 8. Born MI. Father born Germany. Mother born PA. Attended school within the year.
Paul Hahn. Son. Age 4. Born PA. Father born Germany. Mother born PA. Attended school within the year.
John G. Hahn's neighbor in the 1880 census at Dwelling 418, was Enos Ellenberger age 39, Mary Ann Ellenberger's younger brother. In addition to the Heritage Quest Online image, there is an LDS Film 1255109, vol. 19, 177-754, enumeration date 18 June 1880, p. 43, Dwelling 419 that is suppose to be a John G. Hahn entry. I have a note that says there is a John G. Hahn on "line 17" that has a John G. Hahn age 92, in which case he would have been born about 1788. Is there such an entry? If so, could this be his father? An uncle? Line 17 in this entry is also the line that says than John G. Hahn is age 62, so the age 92 seems unlikely.

The children of John George Hahn and Mary Ann Ellenberger were:
[In the John G. Hahn Family Photo Album referred to below and owned by descendant Dorothy (Wheat) Stockdale of Edina, Minnesota, most of the undated images were described by Paul Nicholas Hahn, son of John G. Hahn. The relationships are described with relationship to Paul Hahn. We hope to be able to add these images to this site one day.]
1. Margaret/Margarett/Margarhetta "Maggie" Hahn was born On 16 April 1853 in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. She married Frank Lee. Census: 1870 US, Michigan, Wayne County, Ward 6, First Precinct, Roseville Post Office. But note, she was also found with the George J. Hahn Family in this census at Roseville, Warren Township, Macomb County, Michigan, Line 5. Hahn, Margarett. Age 15 [1855]. Female. White. At Home. Born Pennsylvania. Father foreign born. It seems that she was counted twice. Their children were: Edward "Ed" or "Eddie" Lee, Daisy Lee (married Walter Webber), and Birdie [that is Bertha] Lee. These are also the children listed in the household of Frank Lee in the 1880 Federal Census for Linden, Genesee County, Michigan, Hahn: Frank Lee. 2. Matilda Hahn was born in Pennsylvania in 1855. Nothing further has been found about her. Her image was not identified in the John G. Hahn photo album.

3. Bertha Hahn was born on 13 October 1857 at Melan, Ripley County, Indiana. She was in the 1870 Census, US, Michigan, Macomb County, Warren Township, Roseville Post Office. [In the Family of George John Hahn], Dwelling 35, Family 35] Line 9. Hahn, Bertha. Age 13. Female. White. At Home. Born Indiana. Attended school within the year. Hahn Notes) Bertha was in the *Census: 1930 US MO, Jackson County, Kansas City. [In the family of her brother, August C. Hahn at 3131 Olive Street, Dwelling 40, Family 34. Bertha is listed as Family 35, crossed out.] Line 73 Turner, Bertha D. Sister. Did not live on a farm. Widow. Able to read and write. Born Indiana. Father born Germany. Mother born Pennsylvania. Bertha died in 1936, probably Kansas City, Missouri, and was buried next to her brother, Christian F. Hahn, in the Hahn Family plot in the East Lawn Section of the Fairlawn Cemetery, a part of Mt. Hope Cemetery, Topeka, Kansas. She is not noted in the John G. Hahn Family Album, but identified were nephew Gleason Turner, Delbert Turner and wife, Gleason Turner, brother-in-law William Turner, Grandpa Turner [probably her father-in-law], of Belton, Missouri, and Joe Lytle, Bertha's brother-in-law, as well as Aunt Lizzie Lytle, Claude Lytle, and Herbert Lytle, whose relationship is not known.

Florence (Torgeson) Hahn, the wife of Walter Hahn. nephew of Bertha. had this to say of her in a 1982 letter from Florence to her son, Tom Hahn:

> Guess your article on dishes made me think, and I didn want a plate from any of the 3 sets of dishes I have so I got out one from Aunt Bertha gave me a very old one called "The Indian Tree," has a sprongly [spraggily?] tree of blossoms, and little bunches of fruits and blossoms around the rim of plate, it isnt a thin China. Do you remember Aunt Bertha . She was a widow and lived in K.C. and kept house for an old couple, and the year we lived in K.C. [1928?] when you were 2 yrs she would come see me on her day off and would bring little tidbits of fancy nuts, like cashews etc which were unusual for ordinary folks in those days. and other bits of other food wrap[ped] in little bundles and just enough for me. And then after she quit working and we were back in Topeka she came to visit all we Hahns. She was grandpa Hahns, I think oldest sister. we girls called her Aunt Bert, her husband had been dead a good many years before we got [married] into the family and her request was she wanted to be buried here by Grandpa H. and I cant remember if she went after he did. Of course when she lived in KC. she had Uncle Gus and Aunt Nellie etc to visit with. She had young ideas and didnt dress like an old lady. the way old ladies dressed then. So she gave e the India Tree plate and I treasured it and much of the time it is on the Hutch and she gave me the metal tray I set the toaster on all the time and I sat a long time looking at it and thinking about the Past, that is an old ladies privilege.

4. Emma M. Hahn was born on 11 August 1858 at Sandusky, Ohio. In the Census: 1870 US, Michigan, Macomb County, Warren Township, Roseville Post Office, p. 5 Dwelling 35, Family 35. Line 3. [In the family of her father, Hahn, George J., that is, John G. Hahn]: Line 8. Hahn, Emma. Age 15. Female. White. Born Ohio. Attended school within the year. Father foreign born. she married Peter "Pete" Evans and had a child Monica. (E. O. Hahn) She is in the John G. Hahn photo album and identified as Emma Hahn (Evans) and also as Emma Evans, husband Pete, and daughter Monica, of Detroit, Michigan. [One cannot tell whether or not all of hem are from Detroit, or just daughter Monica.] Emma married on 17 September 1905 in Wyandotte County, Kansas, Charles L. Layman. 5. Christene Christiana [?] Hahn was born on 17 May 1861 at Sandusky, Ohio. Christine Dieter's children, Mary, Carl, Bertha, Lee Emma, were identified in the John G. Hahn Family Album, but where is Christene who died and was buried at the Hemphill Cemetery at Chicora, Donegal Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania in 1930.

6. Christian "Chris" Frederick Hahn was born on 31 March 1864 at Swan Creek (now Anchorville), St. Clair County, Michigan. The data of Chris Hahn was transferred to Christian "Chris" Frederick Hahn Family Page on 4 August 2004.

7. Mary Louise Hahn was born on 5 June 1866, at Swan Creek (now Anchorville), St. Clair County, Michigan.

8. John G. Hahn was born on 4 March 1868 at Swan Creek (now Anchorville), St. Clair County, Michigan. Brother John Hahn, wife Amanda, and sons Lester and Ernest and daughters, Bessie and Esther, were identified in the John G. Hahn Family Album.

9. Edward G. Hahn was born on 1 August 1869, at Roseville, Erin Township, Macomb County, Michigan (a part of Detroit). The communities of Swan Creek and Roseville were some thirty miles apart. He was identified as Edward as a Lutheran Minister and as Ed and Helena in the John G. Hahn Family Album.

10. Augustus 'Gus" Christophorus Hahn was born on 27 May 1872 at Roseville Post Office, Erin Township, Macomb County, Michigan. His nickname was "Gus."

Gus's sister-in-law, Mattie Hahn, spouse of his brother, Chris Hahn, Christian F. Hahn told Thomas F. Hahn (Chris Hahn's grandson) in the 1930s that Gus Hahn lived with them. She said she sewed marbles in his pants so he wouldn't wear them out at the knees. It is possible that the story was about his brother, Paul, but it is possible likely that both Gus and Paul lived with the Chris Hahn family. Gus would have been about 14 and Paul about 10 when they married in 1886. Gus died in 1964 at about age ninety. Gus married Amelia "Nellie" Scott. She was born in Germany. Their children were:

a. Ralph Hahn

b. Edith Hahn was born on 27 May 1907. She married George Ragman. Their son was Larry.

c. Ray A. Hahn married Martha Lou ("MarLou"). Their children were Dick, Marilyn, Nancy; Roy married Dorothy Boyce, son Tommy.

The latter may be a "boarder or a lodger. He is not in the 1930 Ancestry.com census index for Missouri, so he is probably still in Kansas, although from the 1930s he lived at Kansas City, Missouri.

11. Paul Nicholas Hahn was born on 16 September 1876 at Peachville (now Buena Vista), Butler County, Pennsylvania. Marguerite Hahn (spouse of Vernon Hahn, son of Paul, Christian Hahn's brother) wrote in a letter to Thomas F. Hahn on 11 November 1995: "He [Paul] always said he was the last of 14 children...His mother (or maybe it was his father) died when he was 7 yrs old and the other passed when he was 13. Evidently there wasn't anyone to care for him in Pennsylvania and he came to Ks. and lived with Uncle Chris and Aunt Mattie. Paul married Eva L. Miller. Their children:

a. Elma, was born in November 1905. She married Roy Wheat. He died on 14 August 1999. Their children are Kelles and Dorothy. Kelles married Jo Ann Winters. Their children are Renee and Roy.

b. Dorothy married Don Stockdale. Their children are David and Donna.

c. Vernon N. Hahn married Marguerite Breeden. Vernon and Marguerite moved to Highland [Kansas?] in 1939 and returned to Kansas City, Kansas 14 years later. They had four children. Their son Vernon was born in November 1907. He died on 18 August 1964.

Mary Ann died about 1883. Vonda Moore, an Ellenberger researcher, and the descendant of William Ellenberger, brother of Mary Ann Ellenberger, said that one or more of Mary Ann's sons paid her way back to Pennsylvania from "out West" during the last part of her life. We do not know what "out West" means. It is not known where Mary Ann Ellenberger died and was buried, but the Chicora, Butler County, Pennsylvania area is a possible place, as that is where John began preaching and where they returned at the end of their lives to live. John and It is noted that Mary Ann and John lived next door to her brother, Enos Ellenberger, and his wife in the 1880 census for Sugar Creek Township, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and it is possible that she was buried to them. We do not know where Enos and his wife were buried. Because her spouse, John Hahn, was buried 1n 1887 in Bay City, Bay County, Michigan, it is possible that she died there. However, it seems likely that John Hahn moved to Michigan to be with one of his children sometime after Mary Ann's death. John and May Ann's daughter, Christene (Hahn) Dieter was buried in the Hemphill Cemetery at Chicora, along with her husband and their daughter and perhaps her daughter. Between these graves and the next grave is vacant land that may hold the remains of Mary Ann Ellenberger.

The space between the Christene (Dieter) Hahn Family in the foreground and the next grave marker in the upper right, is a possibility for the burial place of Mary Ann Ellenberger. (The photo of 2001 was provided by Vonda Moore.

Burial Practices - - Followed by a Listing of Cemeteries Containing Delaware-Lenape Persons

A description of the burial of a Delaware chief's wife in 1762 clearly indicates the importance of feasting and the redistribution of goods, particularly European trade goods, in the burial ritual David I. Bushnell, Jr., Native Cemeteries and Forms of Burial East of the Mississippi River. Bureau of American Ethnology Bulletin 71, (Washington, D.C., 1920), p. 22. As with the Algonquians, burial was in a cemetery located outside the village, and graves were marked with painted or decorated posts. The deceased was wrapped and covered to avoid contact with the dirt. At the end of the funeral procession from the village to the cemetery area, "two stout men [carried] loads of European manufactured goods upon their backs." After the grave was covered and surrounded by a palisade, food was prepared and passed out. Then presents were distributed the many things which had been carried by the two men in the rear of the procession. Those who had rendered assistance were given the most valuable and highly prized pieces, but no one was omitted. . . . At dusk after the burial, a kettle of food was placed upon the grave, and this was renewed every evening for three weeks. (Heckewelder, quoted in Bushnell 1920:22)

The Delawares also put a tobacco pouch, knife, tinder box, tobacco and pipe, bow and arrow, gun powder and shot, skins and cloth for clothes, paint, a small bag of Indian corn or dried bilberries, sometimes the kettle, hatchet, and other furniture of the deceased, into the grave, supposing that the departed spirits would have the same wants and occupations in the land of souls. (Loskiel, quoted in George C. and George H Pepper, Exploration of a Munsee Cemetery near Montague, New Jersey. Contributions from the Museum of the American Indian, vol. 2, Heye Foundation (New York, 1915), p. 17.

Some of the earlier burial practices are noted in the obituaries of Ruby Cranor, Some Old Delaware Cemeteries [in Oklahoma]:

Tom Buffalo - Tom Buffalo was buried a at the Delaware Cemetery, Sunday and there, as usual, 'amongst the relatives and friends he left, a hole was cut in the coffin to let his spirit out...Tom Buffalo was an honest Indian whose blood had never mixed with the white race, and he had never joined the white man's church. Joining the white man's church dispels the traditions of the full blood and they affect beautiful metallic coffins -- but this who die in the religion of the tribe prefer to be buried in wood. Even the corner is sawed off a wooden coffin and in case of a metallic box, punch hole are put-in--to let the spirit. 30 June 1925.

William Easey - ...As customary with the Delawares no burying one of the brothers, the grave will not be dug, nor no space decided upon until the body arrives at the cemetery. Six Indians will then start excavating for the grave while Indian women prepare a feast, consisting of chicken, pork, beef and other delicacies. which will be eaten at the head of the grave. With his head to the east William Easey will then be buried. A hole will be bored in the "box" to let the spirit out-then the juice of berries, which makes a bright red, will be painted around the hole. The services will constitute nearly the day. Clothes of the decease man will be buried with his body. with the exception of a few which will be given to those who dig the grave. Chief Elkhair, sky pilot for the Delawares, will preach the funeral in the Delaware language. March 5, 1927.

Josie Elkhair - ... Taps will soon be sounded` for the last of the full bloods of the Delaware tribe and the tribal ceremonies will soon be history, since the younger generation does not observe these rites. Mrs. Elkhair died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Com Davis living near Post Oak last Monday. The grave was dug by full blood Indians. The casket containing the body was deposited beside the grave and was kept open until the last minute before lowering it into the ground. While the ,men dug the grave the women prepared the feast. Chief Elkhair chanted the burial service in the language of his tribe. When the grave was made ready a hole was drilled in the corner of the casket to allow the spirit to escape, according to tribal traditions. The aged mother of the dead woman placed all her daughters clothes in the grave as soon as the casket was lowered and then distributed her personal belongings to those who had assisted in the last days of her sickness and to the pall bearers. Immediately after this service the food was eaten by the entire assemblage and all dispersed.

If the dead person had been a male the feasting would have occurred two or three days. [!] Friday, January 12, 1923.

George Falleaf - The funeral today at 10 o'clock at Cotton Creek Cemetery of George Falleaf 77, honorary chief of the Delaware tribe. The eulogy will be delivered in the Delaware language by Charles Elkhair. The grave will not be dug until the body arrives at the cemetery. A hole will be cut to one corner of the casket to permit the spirit to rise. Only tribal members and whites who are friends of the family will attend. Following the ceremony, members of the tribe will hold will hold a feast, sitting around the grave. They will leave some of the food on the grave. The. one of the nearest relatives to the deceased will gather leaves and twigs and build a fire near the grave. After the fire burns a while it will be extinguished - indicating it is the last camp fire for the deceased. After 10 days another feast will be held and food again will be left on the grave. Examiner, September 12, 1939.

Frank McEwin - Frank McEwin's spirit will arise from his grave on the Caney northwest of Dewey next Friday afternoon and eat his last portion of earthly food with the remainder of the tribe of Delawares who will be on hand, probably 300 strong to bid his farewell on his journey to the last-the fairest pasture of the Happy Hunting Grounds...The funeral rites for the Delaware who adheres to the old customs of the tribe are original with the tribe and consists of a long ceremony. When the body is first buried with all the clothes of the deceased stuffed in the coffin, the tribe has a big feast, leaving much food on top of the grave for the spirit to eat. A hole is cut in the coffin then into [the] rough box, and a long stick is inserted into the rough box hole. The dirt is tamped around this stick. At the end of twelve days...the spirit is supposed to come forth when the stick is pulled out of the ground. opening the passage from the coffin. The Delaware tribe has arranged for the purchase of a 200 pound hog for this occasion and bounteous other food stuffs will be on hand. Members of all other tribes in this region, which for most part consist of the Cherokees and the Osages, will not be welcomed at this feast, it is understood. This last feast is reserved for the full blood members of the tribe only, it is asserted. Morning Examiner, November 20, 1921.

ARMSTRONG-SECONDINE #2 CEMETERY

Directions: About five miles east of Nowata, Oklahoma, on Highway 60, take the Big Creek Ramp Road north 2.3 miles, to what is now a dead end. At the section line, turn right and go east less than 1/4 of a mile to a narrow, tall opening and drive into the woods.

BIG CABIN CEMETERY (Big Cabin, Oklahoma)

This cemetery is located 1.3 miles west of Big Cabin, southwest of Vinita, and 53 miles northeast off Tulsa off Route 66 in Craig County, Oklahoma. It is at Latitude 363159N and Longitude 0951341W.

The Big Cabin Cemetery was created officially when the Cherokee Nation sold the town 9.16 acres of land lying west of the Missouri-Kansas and Texas railroad right-of-way for the sum of $45. The money was raised from donations and pie suppers. Craig County court house records further show that the town was given a deed for another parcel of land for the sum of $4,574 in 1982 to enlarge the cemetery area. The cemetery has been described by tourists passing through as an unusually pretty area. ("Big Cabin," History of Craig County). DEWEY, OKLAHOMA DELAWARE CEMETERY

This cemetery, known as "the Delaware Cemetery," is located in Section 7, Township 24 north, Range 13 East, and is two miles north and one and one-half miles west of Dewey, Oklahoma. This strictly a Delaware Indian Cemetery. In 1904 the land surrounding it was allotted to Lillie Williams, but the land was set aside as a burial ground and known then as the "Sam Williams Cemetery." Don Tyler became the owner of the land in 1829 and in Deed Book 68, page 199, is filed and recorded a deed from Don Tyler to the County, a plot containing the cemetery for the express use of the Delaware. This is a peaceful spot, situated on a high rolling hill covered with majestic oak trees on the bank of the Caney. It is about a mile down-river from the forks of the two Caney Rivers. many Delaware families who have had much to do with the settling of Washington County are buried here. (his item was taken from an unknown book, Chapter III, "The Delawares Come to the Area, p. 10.)

EUDORA, KANSAS DELAWARE CEMETERY

Leavenworth County, Kansas Map

The cemetery itself is located just inside in Leavenworth County, but many of the persons buried in the cemetery were from Fall Leaf and other communities shown in this map; click this link: Eudora, KS map from MapQuest.

This is a small, pleasant, well-maintained cemetery. Eudora, Douglas County is a small town located east of Lawrence, Kansas off of Kansas Route 10. From the Municipal Building at Main and Sixth in downtown Eudora, take County Route 1061 a mile or so north to the Kansas River, where cross the bridge and go about one-half mile on Leavenworth County Route 1 to the cemetery on the east side of the road. There is a country lane on the north side of the cemetery. There are only a few burial markers. Not all burials are necessarily those of Delaware persons. In a plaque in the cemetery is a memorial to the Delaware Indians, tracing a bit of their history. It says, in part, "We will have peace as long as the moon will rise and set on the Kaw." It reads also, in part, "We honor the early settlers who came here to build homes, schools and churches and respect the government of our country. This plot of land was set aside for a burial plot and some of the settlers are buried in the northeast corner. But we do not have a record of their names. The Indians intermarried with the German settlers and most of the names listed here are part Delaware Indian." Those with a grave marker but no inscription are noted by an asterisk* The graves with a grave marker are in capital letters:

GILSTRAP CEMETERY (Near Bartlesville, Oklahoma)

UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Gilstrap Cemetery is located approximately six miles south of Bartlesville, Oklahoma on Silver Lake Road on the Tyler-Irwin farm, that is, in Section 7, Range13 East, Township 25 North 13 East, in Washington County, Oklahoma. It is likely that the cemetery was disturbed in the creation of the pond in the area. A listing from Ruby Cranor, Talking Tombstones, Pioneers of Washington County, p. 122, contains more data than another listing we have which says it is p. 126. The maps seem to have come from the latter listing. That listing says: "For these pages on Washington County cemeteries, credit is respectfully given to Ruby Cranor, The records preserved of these three burial places are but a small portion of her efforts to preserve county history."

Gilstrap Cemetery No. 1:

GILSTRAP CEMETERY

Located on Tyler-Irwin farm about 6 miles south of Bartlesville on Silver Lake Road. There are 3 different areas where there are noticable traces of graves. Some sunken spots without stones or markers are in evidence.

Near the Irwin Ranchhouse and to the west are 4 graves:

ELAM, Gracie Meade (Carr), wife of Mathew E. Elam, d. 28 Oct. 1889, age 17 y., 11 m., 10 d. (dau. of Nelson F. Farr)

CARR, Edward R., d. 15 Apr. 1877, age 9 y., 8 m., 15 d. (son of Nelson F. and Sarah A. Carr)

ROGERS, Hillard, d. 5 Sept. 1870, age 51 y., 5 m., 10 d. (son of John and Tiana (Foster) Rogers)

ROGERS, Martha, wife of H[illard], d. 18 Jan. 1870

MILLUS, Edward, age 10 y. and Elmer, age 6 y., killed 13 Jan. 1911. (Ramona Harold): Two sons of William Millus of Hogshooter were killed by nitro glycerine. It is supposed they struck it with some object and it exploded. The older boys head was entirely blown away and the younger had a forehead missing. They were buried at Gilstrap Cemetery.

MORRIS, Edward G., d. 18 Feb. 1899, age 37 y., 1 m., 29 d.

In the Gilstrap cemetery No. 2, which is in the southeast corner of the TYLER-IRWIN farm, near a farm pond there appears to be five burials.

BELL, Samuel, d. 1874, age 40 yrs.

MARSHALL, Elizabeth, d. 30 Oct. 1875

THOMAS, J. M., (Co D, 78th Pa Inf (GAR) (no stone)

WELCH, James, Co D, 6th Kan Cav (GAR) Buried 4 Feb. 1898, no stone

ROGERS, Martha, wife of H., d. 18 Jan. 1870, age 44 y., 10 m., 12 d. (dau. of John and Sarah Fields)

In the southwest corner near the stone fence are:

GILSTRAP, A. J., d. 7 Nov. 1869, age 40 y., 7 m., 1 d. (A white man. The oldest grave with an engraved marker in Washington County.)

(The author has this note: Numbered graves following No. 18 may or not apply to the name or location, except Nos. 24-26. [Not quite sure what this means.]

"Harold R. Farrar, a researcher in Washington County, probably contributed some of the data.

At present there are no grave markers for the occupants of the cemetery except for three stones which were removed to the face of an adjacent farm pond. This is the cemetery in which Betsy Wilaquenaho is thought to be buried. Researcher: Vickie Wilkins/Swiftwater Hahn

GRINTER CHAPEL CEMETERY (Kansas City, Kansas)

The Grinter Chapel Cemetery is located adjacent to the Grinter Chapel United Methodist Church located at 78th & Swartz Road, Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas.

This surname listing was prepared by the Wyandotte County Genealogical Society in July 1993. A complete listing of the cemetery will be entered after the listing has been received. Only a part of the burials are Lenape-Delaware. The Lenape-Delaware burials will be designated as such when they are sorted out. Editor.

KETCHUM CEMETERY (Ketchum, Craig County, Oklahoma)

This cemetery is located at Ketchum, Oklahoma. Below is a listing of some of the occupants:

East Center Section: Fred [Freddie] Stephenson Born: December 23, 1892 Died: October 1962
Actually born 23 December 1894 and died 14 October 1962. End of row; no stones for 150 feet to the fence.

East Center Section: John Henry Stephenson. Born September 27 , 1873 Died: June 1, 1938
He was born in Kansas, the son of Andrew and Mary Tiblow . His wife was Rosa Lee Stephenson. Luginbue Funeral Home, Vinita, Oklahoma.

East Center Section: Rosa Lee Stephenson Born 1882 Died 1963
(Obituary 8 August 1963) John and Rosa had a double stone inscribed "Love and Memory."

East Center Section: William Riley Ketchum Born: 1827 Died May 28, 1880
The Grand River Dam Authority relocated the grave from the Ketchum Family Cemetery. The original Ketchum Cemetery was in Mayes County and moved to Craig County when the dam was built. His niece, Jane A. Thompson, said his death was due to tuberculosis at age 60, but according to the data on the stone marker, his age would be 63 or 64. He is now buried in Plot#105, Grave #310.

East Center Section: James Ketchum: Born 1816 Died: December 22, 1880.
Reverend Ketchum was a Methodist minister, as were his father and grandfather before him in Kansas. His daughter, Jane, said that he died from pneumonia at age 55, but according to his grave marker he died at age 63 or 64. He is now buried in Plot #105, Grave #310.

East Center Section: Elizabeth Swannock Connor Ketchum Born 1827 Died Feb. 25, 1925 "Mother" (Obituary 26 February 1925) and "Ketchum Notes" 5 March 1925. She married 1. John Connor in 1853. They had one son, Silas Connor (1859-1895). After John Connor died, she married 2. Rev. John Ketchum on 7 December 1865. The Town of Ketchum was named for James and his family. They had three children: James (1866-1886), Jane Annie (Janana) Ketchum Thompson (1870-1947), and Lucinda Ketchum Ward Byres (1872-1947). The funeral of Elizabeth was on a Thursday at the Methodist Church. Rogers Funeral Home. Researcher Vickie Wilkins: Freddie Stephenson, buried in this cemetery, is her grandfather.

KETCHUM PRIVATE CEMETERY (Ketchum, Craig County, Oklahoma)

This cemetery is located near Vinita in Craig County, Oklahoma. On 8 June 1939, the Works Progress Administration, as a part of its Indian-Pioneer History Project for Oklahoma, recorded the Ketchum Private Cemetery. The cemetery was founded by Louis Ketchum in 1904 [on his Indian Allotment] and was in 1939 on the premises of Sol. G. Ketchum [his son]. The address was given as Route 5, Vinita [Craig County], Oklahoma. The report said that there were 11 graves, 6 of them marked, and that the cemetery was in good condition. The location was described as Craig County, SE-NE-NE of Section 10, Township 34, Range 80. (Works Progress Administration, Burial Ground Form, Vol. 56, No. 6168).
The six headstones with inscriptions read:
Lewis Ketchum 1808 - 1904
Elizabeth [his wife] 1835 - 1913
Simon W. [son] 1855 - 1894
Lucinda [daughter] 1858 - 1876 [There is also a grave marker for Lucinda Ketchum in the White Church Cemetery in Kansas City, Kansas. That marker reads, Ketchum, Lucinda Age 18 yr, 7 mo Daughter of Louis & Elizabeth. The date of death was 3 August 1877.]
Solomon C. [son, marker is apparently blank]
Hatty Ann [daughter] 1868 - 1869

This cemetery, also known as the Fairlawn Cemetery, is located to the east and north from the intersection of West 17th and Fairlawn Road on the west side of Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. The entrance to the cemetery is on 17th Street. It contains a small number of Kansas Lenape-Delaware burials, all descendants of Anna (Marshall) Grinter mother of Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries mother of Martha Frances "Mattie" (Defries) Hahn. These burials are all in Section A of the East Lawn section of the cemetery. This section is across the cemetery road and a bit to the north of the Singing Tower. The data in quotes is the actual grave marker inscription:

*__Beckman, Mary Louise (Hahn)__. Daughter of Martha "Mattie" Frances Defries and Christian Frederick Hahn, [born 19 November 1892, died 11July 1945]. Her spouse, Leslie F. MUNSEE CEMETERY (Ottawa, Franklin County, Kansas)
Cemetery data entered 26 June 2002 and Revised 2 July 2002

This rural, attractive cemetery is located 6.6 miles west of Ottawa, Franklin County, Kansas. There are many burials here but only a small number of grave markers. (Photo by Thomas Swiftwater Hahn)

Swiftwater Hahn)

To reach the cemetery from the south end of Ottawa, Kansas on Main Street at 23rd, turn right on paved Labette Road and go 3.0 miles to graveled Kentucky Road where turn left and proceed 1.0 mile to Kingman Road. Turn right on Kingman Road and go 2.0 miles where you cross Indiana Road. Proceed across Indiana Road for .6 mile up a hill and to the right to the cemetery, a total of 6.6 miles from the beginning of the directions. An attractive stone marker at the entrance gate says MUNSEE INDIAN CEMETERY 1859. For more information about this cemetery, contact Munsee Debbie Badders Telephone 785-242-5614 in Ottawa.

PRAIRIE CEMETERY (Leavenworth County, Kansas)

In Bonner Springs, Kansas, take K-32 (called Front Street in Bonner Springs) west about five miles. Turn right on Loring Road. Go to and through the intersection of 158th Street (Leavenworth County Road 2) until your first left turn. Proceed until you can turn left again and drive straight into the cemetery. This information is from Joyce Lawrence, whose 4th great grandmother, Margaret Perry McCleary is buried there. She says that her third great grandfather, Elias McCleary, purchased the Lenape cemetery some time after her death on 26 March 1884. Margaret died at the home of her son, William McCleary in Leavenworth, Kansas. Joyce's great-great grandfather . Thomas Jefferson McCleary, may also be buried in this cemetery. She says that there is no actual town, but there are farm houses along the way and that there are many old graves in the cemetery as well as new ones.

The photograph taken by Bern O'Malley was provided by B. J. Ryan

This is an attractive cemetery has many vandalized and broken grave markers. The small rectangular stone in the photograph next to the large grave marker says W. H. That is probably the marker for William Honeywell. We think that marker for Sarah (Owl) Honeywell may be a marker next to his. Their childrens' names are on nearby markers. There is also a marker for Elnora, probably born in 1856 and died in 1888, the wife of Eli Moore Honeywell. She probably was born in 1856 and died in 1888. According to the Wyandotte Gazette for 9 July 1875, Eli Honeywell married Nora Myers. There are also markers for the Eli Moore Honeywell children. We are looking for more information on the possibility of other Lenape-Delaware burials here. We welcome additions and further information. The researchers on this cemetery are Joyce BooDotte@aol.com or Betty Jane Ryan bejryan@aol.com (Kansas Delaware) who provided the photograph.

SILVER LAKE CEMETERY (Bartlesville, Oklahoma)

Located in Section 30, surrounded by the Hillcrest Country Club Golf Course, South of Bartlesville, this cemetery was known as the Harry Arnold Delaware Cemetery. It was established before Allotment soon after the Delaware people came here in 1867. It is well kept and still being used. The information for the Silver Lake Cemetery is a compilation of data from Ruby Cranor's "Talking Tombstones" and data gathered by Raymonda Sarcoxie Allen, November 9, 1980. Used by permission, with many thanks for their hard work.

WILLOW SPRINGS CEMETERY (Craig County, Oklahoma)

The Willow Springs Cemetery is located in Craig County, Oklahoma. It is a little three-acre cemetery that belonged to Mary Henrietta Stephenson. Before she legally became an adult, her mother, Fannie Francis Stephenson sold the land allotment and the three acres became a part of the Ketchum Cemetery.

This map, provided by Vickie Wilkins, shows the original three acres where the original Willow Springs Cemetery was. It shows the burials of several of Vickie Wilkins's Stephenson Delaware Family: Fannie, Freddie, John, Mary A., Mary H., Rosa, and Walter Stephenson.
Unknown grave locations: Willow Springs. Andrew Stephenson. Born about 1845 in Indiana. Died March 31, 1900. Researcher: Vickie Wilkins

DELAWARE TOWN
The Lenape-Delaware Presence in Southwest Missouri ca.1820-ca.1830

Much of the data to be included was provided by the Center for Archaeological Research, Southwest Missouri State University, 901 South National Avenue, Springfield, MO 65804, (417) 836-4889 (Office) (417) 836-5363 (Center). On 4 January 2005 Gina S. Powell of the Center ginapowell@smsu.edu sent an email to Tom Hahn stating:

> Hello Dr. Hahn, I'm so glad you contracted us regarding our work at Delaware Town and environs. We have been using the web site that you edit for a skeleton of historic background. The main reason that we think that archaeological investigations at Anderson's Village)or Delaware Town) is important is that there is so little documentation of the decade from 1820-1830.
> We have been taking field schools to the James River for 4 years in search of the village, and have explored and documented other 1820s sites, such as the former location of the Wilson trading post. In 2003 we gained access to a field that we thought had high potential. And we were right! We have thus far located a single house location and excavated a large, interior storage/trash pit. This pit was full of artifacts diagnostic of the 1820s and of the Lenape themselves. Among te artifacts are ceramic shards typical of the 1820s, gunflints, lead bullets and scraps, brass tinkle cones and possible arrow tips, glass beads, silver brooches, animal bones, and a few household items, like nails, glass, and knife fragments.
> During the summer of 2004, the first week of field school was spent searching for Marshall's trading post near the confluence of the Finley and James Rivers. We used Marshall's probate to try to locate his trading post and distillery. What we found were farms where the ground had been moved and moved and moved again during the 170 years, making the early historical period very difficult to detect. Additonal research is in order before more fieldwork is done. . . .

Missouri Circa 1825 - Reproduced from an original 19th century steel engraving by Jonathan Sheppard Books - Albany, NY 12220.

This 1825 Map of Missouri originally produced by Jonathan Sheppard Books shows the presence of the Delaware in the southwest corner, with the Kickapoo to the north and the Shawnee to the east. The White River is just north of the Arkansas Territory border.

Rendezvous for a Nation: The Delawares on James River (By Lynn Morrow)

Selected excerpts of the typescript:

(From "Delaware Towns: A Trader's Emporium and a Last Rendezvous"

The Upper White River settlements during the 1920s was a conglomeration of: French, English. and Scotch-Irish traders and hunters, numerous nationals of Delaware, Shawnee, Kickapoo, Cherokee, Piankeshaw, Peoria, and other origins, half-breed peoples interspersed throughout, black slaves of traders and free blacks among Indian groups, and white squatters on Federal lands and on Indian claims. *Interpreters, clerks boatmen. freighters, blacksmiths, stockmen, and agriculturalists were included among the laborers. Even the trade invoices reflect the cultural diversity among the Delawares as merchandise was separated according to "Emigrating Indians" and "Civilized Indians."

The largest entrpeot for the dissemination of trade goods was the Gilliss Trading Post on the Upper James River. The Federal annuities allowed by treaty to the Delaware and other Indians were administered through the Superintendent of Indian Affairs, St. Louis. Richard Graham, one of General William Clark's subagents, was responsible for the upper White River tribes during the 1820s. Through other subagents such as Col. Pierre Menard of Kaskaskia-Ste. Genevieve and resident subagents among the tribes such as John Campbell on James River, the federal monies were distributed.

Louis Lorimer had functioned as the primary Ozarks Delaware and Shawnee protector and patron from the 1780s until his death on the eve of the War of 1812. In his will he named his "trusty friends Jean Baptiste Valle and St. Gemme Beauvais of Ste. Genevieve" as guardians of his underage children (Lorimer ca. 1811) Lorimer and Valle for many years had a successful mercantile among the Apple Creek settlements. Therefore, with the death of Lorimer, William Clark asked and received permission for the appointment of Pierre Menard as subagent for the Delaware and Shawnee (Carter 1949:632-633 and 651). At some time during the 1810s Louis Lorimer, Jr., a West Point graduate and veteran of travels on the Missouri River to Ft. Osage, continued his father's trading interests among the Delaware. Lorimer, Jr., built a trading post at the mouth of Swan Creek which William Gilliss bought in 1822 (see Morrow 1981: 147-167 for Gilliss background). It is also possible Peter A. Lorimer may have been at Swan Creek.

William Gilliss, who became the chief trader among the Delaware on James River, apparently began trading while in the Kaskaskia-Ste. Genevieve area after the War of 1812. His many influential business associates included General William H. Harrison in the of Northwest Territory and Col. Pierre Menard, Territorial Governor of Illinois and famous trader and diplomat among the Indians...

In the fall, 1820 transactions, numerous familiar names appear in the immigration saga of the Delaware into the Ozarks: James Wilson powder, lead, tobacco, gunflints; G. Beauvais rifle locks, gun repair; Vital St. Gemme corn; Francois Menard corn, beef; William Gilliss beef, a coffin; J. B. Valle flour - 17,600 pounds, beef - 22,266 pounds, tobacco - 200 pounds, corn 462 bushels;

Francis Janis corn; Michael Jani corn; and many more...

Through Menard and Vale, William Gilliss traded with the Delawares and realized his own personal fortune - one that in essence was financed by the $4,000 perpetual annuity awarded them by the St. Mary's treaty of 1818. Gilliss' success was also due to his personal relations with William Anderson, head chief of the Delaware. and his diplomatic cohabitation with Indian women.

The Richard Graham Papers do not suggest much hostility among the James River traders. L=Licensed traders such as William Marshall, who also was supplied by Menard an Valle, did complain to Graham when he knew Gilliss or others had not complied with the regulations. But on the whole a virtual trading monopoly did not seem to exist. It was tied to Ste. Genevieve families, with Menard and Valle having the most influence. Apparently a major reason for unhindered profits made at the Delaware towns was that Menard and Valle established reciprocal trading agreements with John Jacob Astor.

By the Spring of 1823 new Delaware being established on the James River reflected the ever-increasing national arrivals of the tribe. At this time Astor bought out Stone, Bostwick & Company who were primary consumers of the Mississippi Valley trade. Peripheral arrangements included an association with Menard and Valle "who had ties with traders working throughout southern Missouri unto Arkansas and what is now eastern Oklahoma." (Lavendar 1964:341) Menard and Valle were to buy their merchandise from the American Fur Company and, in turn Astor was given the first right to buy their furs. (Terrell `963:370) While this arrangement was practiced in the mid-1920s Menard and Valle had the advantage of the majority of the Delaware Nation assembled in one general locale long the James River.

The Delaware in Southwest Missouri settled in a cluster of villages along James River and in a scattering of camps throughout the region. Tribal members were with Shawnee groups in the northern Ozarks, at the headwaters of the Casconada in Wright County, at the mouth of Black Mingo and in the Stoddard County swamplands; near the great bend of White River" (both north and south of it). on the upper Finley River near Linden in Christian County, and westward in the Red River country. Their settlements in the James River country were similar to "at least nine Delaware town from present Indianapolis to the environs of present Muncie" along the West Fork of White River in Indiana. (Westlager 1978:54) (Figure 9) The James River villages included those of band leaders William Patterson and Captain Ketchum, who formerly had villages at Apple Creek (Weslager 1978:221) Among other leaders who had, or may have had their own villages, we Nacoming, Killbuck, Black Beaver, Pipe, John Quick, Suwaunock, and William Anderson. (See the document, June 10, 1826, Delaware Agency James Fork of White River for a list of "chiefs, councilmen and captains" of the Delaware on James River for potential village leaders [Figure 11] [not yet included] The Delaware claimed some 33 square miles in 1825 and 60 in 1829...

The basic Delaware land claims lay along the upper river corridor of James River. The southern boundary was the mouth of Finley River...A number of the families already settled on Delaware land were white pioneers mentioned in many local writings: Pettyjohns, Yoachums, Friends, Pattersons, Mooneys, Wells, etc. [Chief] Anderson allowed some of the whites to stay. The chiefs expressed "a wish for Mr. Mooney who lives on the James that he should remain as he has always conducted himself well and friendly to the Indians." (Graham Papers September 20, 1825) The rest were removed, although often just outside the legal limits of Delaware claims. This is precisely what Slocom Yoachum and John (?) Denton did below the mouth of Finley, where they and several others established peach brandy and whiskey stills...

With the arrival of [Chief] Anderson's group to James River in 1822, Anderson's village became an official seat foe the trading bureaucracy. Subagent John Campbell lived and wrote official correspondence from there and the Kickapoo called on Campbell at Anderson's. Campbell complained to Graham about not being paid to interpret for the Kickapoo but he apparently continued to do so. Interpreters were always valuable on the trading frontier and at Anderson's village interpreter training took place. A trainee, James Conner, was from the Connors family who functioned in the center of Delaware life from Indiana through Missouri and in the Great Plains. Campbell used James Connor as an assistant during one council mission, and, > found with a little practice he will make a first rate interpreter. He speaks the English language very well and has come to speak the Delaware language well so says the Indians. He is now with me reading and writing. I think that him and Troit together would answer all our purposes well as to the interpreting (Graham Papers September 27, 1825).

When traders applied for licenses in the upper White River country and wanted trade with more than one tribe, they had to be established at Anderson's Town (Graham Papers April 9, 1825). Campbell wanted the Superintendency to construct Federal buildings on the James "opposite Anderson's dwelling . . . built on the pan of Wilson's buildings. " Anderson's house was located near a "fine spring and good timber." Campbell found it" disagreeable to board w9ith those people" but in an official capacity he apparently visited all the Delaware cabins (Graham Papers July 25,, 1825). Lack of material amenities naturally disturbed Campbell and he implored Graham "not to forget to send tea. his hat, trunk and mattress by Wilson (Graham Papers May 19, 1825). . .

For the most part Campbell was the primary law officer in Southwest Missouri during the 1820s. Even at that he was not sure of his own jurisdiction, and he asked for clarification when criminal actions were brought to his attention. Apparently Indian posses were at his disposal should he decide to use them. . On the James River, Agent Campbell struggled with numerous thefts of stock among Indians and Whites and the ever-present problem of illegal whiskey. . .

The Delaware huts may have been the more common type of domestic residence. Certainly there were "cabins" of varying quality patterned along traditional single-cell structures or combinations of double-cell, saddle, and dog-trot houses (see Appendix IV, Gilliss Trading Post Function) [not included herein]. The Delawares' common neighbor, the Shawnee, were known for vertical log houses in Tennessee and on Apple Creek, but no evidence exists yet to suggest Shawnee or Delaware vertical houses in the upper White River country...

Epilogue: . . . During the 1830s a few Delaware apparently remained in the Missouri and Arkansas Ozarks. Most of them went on to Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. Delaware and Osage tribesmen visited their 0ld homes in Southwest Missouri until 1845, according to Statistics of the Population of Greene County, 1876:18. . . . Glliss of course continued his Indian commerce on the border of the Missouri and Kansas reservations. He lived in a log house until he built his stone mansion and became and almost mythical person around Kansas City long years after his death. Joseph Philibert stayed in the same area as Gilliss for two years, investing land there and in St. Louis. He returned to White River country. established a large farm at the mouth of he James River, and became a well-known pioneer in modern Stone County. James Wilson, interpreter and trader on James River, reputedly named the town of Springfield for his home town of Springfield, Massachusetts. . . . Wilson was fired as interpreter by Campbell for improper dealings with the Delaware. Although Wilson lived with the Delaware women he was accused of stealing their iron and swindling the Indians of their money. Before his death ca. 1835 he went to St. Louis for a French bride, and returned to Wilson Creek. . . .

But the most locally significant principal of Delaware Towns background in this regard was trader William Marshall. Marshall's death in 1833 produced a two=year probate litigation as the Greene County Court sought to administer his some $12,000 estate including two slaves. Over-half was awarded to the Menard-Valle Company of St. Genevieve, but accounts payable and accounts receivable among Greene County pioneers was lengthy. Marshall, who had moved to Ingle's old mill downstream to the mouth of Finley where he had a Plantation," ran this small industry and was also a "banker" for numerous people by providing cash and services credit (History of Green County 1883: 131-132) . . .

Of the above four Indian traders who all came together at Kaskaskia-Ste. Genevieve and were involved in the Delaware Towns Indian trade, only Gilliss did not live out his life in the James River area. Gillis removed with the annuities [to the Delaware]. Perhaps the others regretted the Delaware removal as they pondered the beneficial effect to the local economy and improvements that annuities as transfer payments had produced. Marshall, Philibert, and Wilson all three, by virtue of the "annuity trade," became early influential citizens of Greene County.

"The History of Delaware Town" probably written by Paul. W. Jones, (From Christian County , Missouri: History & Families, Paducah, Ky: 1998 (Turner Publishing), p. 33

From 1820 to 1830, when the first white settlers came into the region that now comprises Christian County, the only settlement of any consequence in the entire area that is now southwest Missouri was Delaware Town. It consisted of the James Fork Trading Post (named so because it was situated on the James Fork of the White River), several homes, a warehouse, a building where cheese was made (all these structures were made of logs), several hen houses and corn cribs, the many lodges of the Delaware Indians who resided in the village of the principal chief of the tribe, Captain William Anderson, and a large horse-racing track where the Delawares raced their mounts and wagered on the outcome.

This was all situated on the main trail through the area at the time, the Delaware Trail, which later became known as the White River Trace. The trail forded the James River upriver from the present-day Highway 14 bridge, one of the first two bridges in the county was installed at the site in the late 1880s. That wooden structure was replaced by a metal truss bridge in 1904, but6 has since been removed entirely. No access to the river is now available at the site, but a nearby graveyard is named the Delaware Cemetery. [A short history of the Delaware westward follows but is not included as it duplicates data elsewhere in this site...

...by 1818, the advancing tide of settlers forced them to sign another treaty which would locate them on new lands in what is now Christian County. In return the US government agreed to pay the tribe an annual annuity in silver totaling $4000, give them 120 horses, and provide them with [a[government-employed blacksmith. Thirteen hundred and forty-six Delawares and their fourteen hundred horses were ferried across the Mississippi River in the summer of 1820 to take up residence on the new lands, which had been chosen for them by General William Clark of Lewis & Clark fame.

Other villages strung out along the banks of the James River were those of Captain Ketchum (Whose Lenape name was Tah-whee-lalen), Capt. Pipe (who was of the wolf clan), Capt. Patterson (Meshe Kowhay), Capt. Beaver (who was of the turkey clan), Natcoming and Suwaunock (Chief Anderson's son).

The whites in the Delaware Town area at this time were William Gilliss (who owned the trading post and also had one on the banks of Swan Creek near what is now Forsyth), Joseph Philibert (who worked for Gilliss a the James Fork Trading Post), William Myres (who clerked for Gilliss at the Swan Creek Trading Post), James and Phoebe Pool (he was the government-paid blacksmith for the Delawares), Richard Graham (Indian Agent), John Campbell (Indian sub-agent), William Marshall (a competing trader who also built a crude mill on the Finley River near its mouth), James Wilson (competing trader who was located on the banks of the creek that would come to bear his name) and Solomon Yokum) who was ordered off the reservation by Campbell for selling whiskey to the Delawares).

There were also several slaves belonging to Gilliss who served as cooks and cheese makers. In addition, Baptiste Peoria, who was part Indian and part African, served as an interpreter and guide for Gilliss.

William Gilliss, the most successful of the traders, lived in a double-pen, dog-trot log house at Delaware town. Twice a year he'd dispatch Philibert and a helper to drive two wagons to the town of Ste. Genevieve on the Mississippi River to pick up supplies. It would take them 15 days to get there and much longer to return loaded down with trade goods. [There follows a detailed paragraph on the contents of the wagons on such a trip in 1827.]

The Delawares used their annual annuity from the government, paid in silver (one theory has it that Solomon Yokum, after being kicked off the reservation, melted down this silver specie to form his own Yokum dollars in order to hide the fact that he was still selling whiskey to the Indians) to purchase trade goods. By the time they had come to Delaware Town, they had adopted many of the European ways of living, In addition to breechcloths, they wore white men's clothing, used metal tools an d hunted with rifles. While some lived in the traditional rounded lodges made from tree limbs, brush, cedar boughs and animal hides, others resided in log cabins, with a dirt floor and a hole in the of to allow smoke from the cook-fire to escape.

William Gilliss followed the Delawares to Kansas after they signed the 1829 James Fork Treaty that removed them even further west. Their new lands were situated near the Missouri River, Gilliss became a wealthy man and was one of the founders of Kansas City. By the end of 1830, the Delawares had left southwest Missouri. Looking at a map drawn by surveyor John C. Sullivan in 1824, it appears that the Delaware lands (stretching 70 miles east to west and e44 miles north to south) covered most of Christian County, as well as Stone and a portion of Taney, Barry, and Lawrence counties. During its heyday, the Delaware Town settlement was the place of importance in the Missouri Ozarks...

Present-day Springfield, Missouri is the nearest town to the old Delaware Town, located some 12 miles distant. The following 1836 account briefly describing was written about six years after the Delaware departure:

Springfield

We arrived at Springfield on Wednesday 16th day of September [year date not presently known]. This is a Poor Race [sic] & the country is indifferent that surrounds it. There are some 8 or 10 log- cabins which form the place. There are 3 or 4 Stores 2 groceries, 2 Black-Smith shops & one Tan-yard. This is the first pace that I ever Knew of a Post Office being kept in a grocery. The Post office of this Place is the first After we left Boonville. We staid in this Place one night & part of a one day. We were entertained by T. Campbell the Tavern keeper. His Table was Tollerably well furnished, as well I presume as the country affords. . .

Indian Village

Twelve o clock when we started for a stand 12 miles distant known by the name of the: Delaware towns: This place was once an Indian village of considerable Strenght [sic], but it is now in a State [of] dilapidation therefore bears but few marks of former greatness. There is a Large creek (Wilson) running along the Side of this old Town. It is said, that the Idian [sic] Graves are seen for four or five miles on the Bank of this creek.

We traveled on & passed the Line dividing Missouri from Arkansas Territory my [by] next day after we left the Indian Village. The Line is 34 miles from a small town in Arkansas Territory called Fayetteville. The country along here is very rich & Produces the best corn I ever saw. On the 21st September, we arrived at Fayetteville We were delayed here some hours, Reshoeing a Part of our horses. . .

A Gun Repair Tool Kit for the Delaware Indians by James E. Price

While conducting research in the Missouri Historical Society archives I discovered a document relevant to early American industries. It is an invoice of June 27, 1822 for tools provided as annuities to the Delaware Indians by the U.S. Indian Department on behalf of Major Richard Graham who was an Indian agent living in St. Louis, Missouri. Graham authorized the purchase of the tools from B. L. Valle who presumably delivered them to the Indians living at that time on the Current and Jacks Fork Rivers in the area now encompassed by Ozark National Scenic Riverways in the southeastern Ozarks of Missouri.

The assemblage of tools represented by the list appears to constitute a kit of maintaining and repairing firearms. The list of entries for 11 categories of metalworking tools and 9 of woodworking tools, assuming the files were used only on metal. The metalworking tools would have allowed the Indians to shape, pierce, hold, cut, tap, and cut threads on gun parts. The woodworking tools were probably intended for use in repairing and making gunstocks. A hand saw was provided for cutting wood and chisels and gouges for bedding barrels and inletting locks and other parts. A jack plane, a smooth plane, and a round plane were probably intended for shaping and smoothing gunstocks after they were roughed out with the drawknife provided. The bitstock provided was probably intended for boring holes for the lock and escutcheon plate screws and for other piercing.

The 300 pounds of iron included with the tools were probably for raw material for the manufacture of gun parts. Other contemporaneous documents indicate that most metal forging work was done by European blacksmiths for the Indians at the expense of the U.S. Indian Department. . .

Miscellaneous Items of Correspondence (Mostly from Richard Graham Papers) A few items have been given emphasis by your editor.

[To] P. Menard: Department of War 8 Augt.1821

Sir, Your letter of the 7 June, enclosing an estimate for the quarter ending 3th Set. next, has been received.

Funds for the 1st & 2nd Mos have long since been remitted to you, this Gov. Clark, which I presume you have received before this time. A remittance was also made directly to you on the 23 May last of $3341.66 on account of the expenses of the emigration of the Delaware, of which you were informed by letter of that date, and emigration of the Delaware, of which you were informed by letter of that date, and which I had hoped would be sufficient to cover all the expenses of the Delaware emigration as it was the entire balance remaining of the appropriation for that object. But as it appears from your estimate for the quarter ending the 30th Sept. next, that it will not be sufficient. I have deemed it advisable to authorize you to draw on Gov. Thos. A. Smith. the receiver at Franklin, Missouri, for $6021/the amt. pf your estimate, which I confidently expect will, with the sum before remitted, be amply sufficient to cover all expenses attending the emigration of the Delawares, and also of the Kickapoos, for the present year.

The expenses of the Delawares, where they are present located, are very heavy, in consequence of the scarcity of the game, will continue to be so while they remain here; it is therefore desirable that they should be removed as soon as possible, to a country where game is more agreeable; and I have enclosed an extract of your other respects will be rendered more agreeable; and I have enclosed an extract of your letter to Mr. Graham, their agent, and called his attention particularly to this subject. . . .(signed J. C. Calhoun)
[It is not specified exactly where the Delaware were located at this time, but it appears from the letter below that they were not yet at the James Fork of the White River]

From R. Graham. 4 March 1822 An estimate of such articles as should be furnished m to the Delawares now residing on the Currant River in the State of Missouri and to thopse on their way to the Currant, consisting of altogether of about 2400 souls for thee months, and which should continue until their corn is made 2700 bushels of corn at 50cts $1350
12000 bushels of flour at 21/2 cts 300
900 powder at 40 cts 360
2000 lead at 5 cts 100
400 tobacco salt at 161/2 67.331/2
2000 flints at 1.25 20
To transport the flour, powder, lead, Salt, and Tobacco, will cost 500 that is 16 carts at $35 per trip [Total so far] $2734.831/2
An additional amount should be allowed for meat for those, who are on their way and of course have not been able to make a winter hunt--an allowance of 15 meat per head per each quarter at 8 cents per lb 1440 [grand total] $4174/831/2
This would give to each indiidual 1/3 of a qt. of corn or a little better than 6 oz. per day
5/6 of an oz of flour pr day
2 oz of meat per day

The Honble the Secty of War in his letter of 23 April 1822 says, "you will exercize your discretion in furnishing provisions to the new Delaware Emigrants for a reasonable time. but it my opinion that the government is not bound to furnish any thing more than a due proportion of corn for support until they can raise it for themselves.". . .

Researcher Note: Menard and Valle supplied William Gillis, William Marshall, and perhaps others during their two years residence with the Delawares in modern Shannon County . . . [Shannon County is in southern Missouri about midway between Greene County--where Delaware Town was located--and Cape Girardeau. Editor]

R. Graham to Wm. Clark, Superintendent of Indian Affairs. Sr. Louis, 2 July 1822

Sir: The Secty of War informs me that you have been appointed under an act of Congress passed at the last Session Superintendant of Indian Affairs at St. Louis and by direction of the President your Superintendance will enha[n]ce the several Indian agencies on the Mississippi and Missouri & requires me to correspond with you in relation to my duties and take your instruction upon all points connected with them.

Under these direction and to give you a view of the situation of my agency I beg leave to state that early in May last I received from the Secty of War a draft for$10, to pay the following annuities

Delawares $4300
Weas 3000
Kickapoos 2000
Great Osage 500
Little Osage 500

Stating to me at the same time "the Delaware annuity to be $5500 of which $1200 have been remitted to Mr. Johnson to pay for horses furnished to the last immigrants, The $2000 due to the Kickapoo under the Treaty at Edwardsville and the private annuities of the Delaware chiefs Anderson & Lapanihilie [spelling?] & the an allowance to the Delawares in lieu of Salt, will be remitted as soon as an appropriation is made by Congress.

I have not received the latter annuities & am now waiting for them before I proceed to distribute the others, as I do not wish to make two trips for their payment besides at this particular time all the Indians are out at their Summer hunt & will not return before 1 Aug. If therefore these annuities have been remitted to you, I would like to receive them at as early a date as possible. . .

I herewith enclose you an estimate of expenses necessary in removing the Indians (Delaware & Kickapoo) to the Lands designated for them by Gov, this Estimate embraces the lowest possible amt. that can be expended for them with a view to keep them from starving. . .
(Folder 13)

[To] Gen. Wm. Clark, Superintendent of Ind. Affairs. St. Louis, Oct. 3, 1822

Sir: . . . The Delaware & Shawnee will commence their movement this fall for their Lands. which I have selected agreeable to instructions from the Honble the Secty of War they are situated in S.W. corner of the State Bounded by the Osage Boundary line on the W. tye Kickapoo Boundary on the NE & running from those lines to include such quantity of land as may be deemed advisable to grant to them, to include the Great Bend of White River at James Fork with a reservation of the lead mines (the Indians expect 70 miles square), The Cheifs of the Delaware are extremely anxious to have the extent of their lands finced, their boundaries run out at [as?[marked, & the White people who are now settled on there removed as speedily as possible. I will have by leave to request the policy of ordering off as soon as practeable all the squatters on those lands designed for the Indians. Numbers of families have settled themselves on those lands neither this year past & many are moving from Boonslick County to settle in them. The Lead mines on White River are worked by White people under an old unconfirmed Spanish grant, it is said, of this grant I know nothing tho, am informed it is for 5 leagues square, if so & proved to be, a good claim, it will interfere with the lands to be granted to the Delawares.

The Kickapoos have settled on the Veangus [?]a Tributary stream of the Osage & about 25 miles East from the boundary of their own land. They are unwilling to move on their own lands. Refused to receive from me their annuities for the present year. [There follows a long speech--not included herein-- from Kickapoo expressing their dissatisfaction for the arrangement made for them, a speech that was undoubtedly repeated by other tribes.]

I found some difficulty in getting the Osage to agree to give up their Factory on Marie deCigne but when they found there was no treaty of obligation to continue the factory. they consented to yield . . .

I am happy to inform you that a treaty of peace has been entered into between the Osages, Delawares & Shawnees & perfectly tranquility is restored to all the Indians within my agency. Respectfully. . . R Graham, U.S. Ind. Agt.

R. Graham,. U.S. Ind. Agent to Mr. James Wilson, Interpreter to the Delaware Nation. St. Louis, 6 Nov. 1822

Sir: Enclosed is a talk & wampum from the Stockbridge Indians to [Chief] Anderson o the cheifs of the Delaware Nation & one from myself. You will read them both to Anderson and his cheifs. You will take their answer down in writing & forward it to unto the Secty. of War.

Col. Menard informs me that it is possible [probable?] probable Mr. Souchet [spelling?] will overtake you on the road as you will be with your wagon - if so, and Anderson is not with you, you will hurry on to where he is as an answer to the Stockbridge Indians is required at as early a day as possible.

Let me know how the Indians are getting on. What number will move this fall.

St. Louis January 21st: 1824 Major Richard Graham, Washington City

Dear Sir Inclosed you will receive a letter intended for you which was inclosed to me from Batesville by Col. Boswell who states that the Indians are very noumerous about that peace & the Inhabitants much alarmed. I have coutuned [cautioned] to Col. Boswel that I have no control over the Indians in the Territory of Arkansas. Col. Menard is on White River and will interfer in proveting [sic] Defensettes between Whites and Indians. I have also answered the letter of Col. buckle in which he is informed that it will be the duty of your sub Agent to demand the murders of five men - [?]and that there is not the slightest sinallent [sic] probability of the White River Indians uniting with the Osage in the event of a rupture with the united States. The movement of part of White Rain [?] band near the White River indians intended now for seperation of themselves from the mischievous part of their nation that than a wish to gain Auxilery [?]

Gen. Atkinson sent an express a few days ago to Col. Arbuckle ordering him to come a demand to be made of the murders of five Americans. Those Osages are so much in the habit of commiting outrages against the American traders, & citizens passing through their country it will become necessary to punish them as the will is increasing.

The Delawares on White River as it appears from reports & letters from Anderson are nearly in a state of starvation.

Tully has not returned from the Kickapoos, nothing of much importance amongst the other Tribes of your agency. [The remainder of the letter is not of interest here.]

[From] A.L.S. Pierre Menard to: Wm. Clark, Superintendent of Indian Affairs St Louis. 1824 February 15 Mouth of Swan and White R.

Subject: The Delawares have gone to the woods to get subsistence since they have no corn or game near their village. The Peorias, Piankashaws and Weas have also taken to the woods. Nevertheless they are moving in closed to Anderson on James Fork in order to be back at Anderson Village by the 25th or 30th. Will be better able then to give an account of the situation of the Indian.

Persons: Delawares, Anderson, Shwanees, Peorias, Piankisha, Weas, Wm. Marshall, James Wulson, Mr. Lorimier

Places: James Fork, State of Missaury, Mississippi, Anderson Village

[To] Gnl. EWm. Clark. Delaware Agency 22 Sept. 1824

Sir. The Delaware Indians in addition to the places already allotted for trade, wish for their convenience the three forks of White River to be established as one of the points. I will observe that place is without the boundary of Treaty allotted to the Delaware Indians. Yrs. Respectfully R. Graham, U.S. Ind. Agt.

Charges against James Wilson, U.S. Interpreter for the Delaware Nation of Indians, exhibited by John Campbell, U.S. Sub Agent

Charge 1st: Want of knowledge of the Delaware Tongue
Charge 2nd: Not interpreting according to the true meaning any talk from the Agent to the Indians & from the Indians to the Agent Charge 3rd: For giving advice to the Indians contrary from that which the Agent had given.
Charge 4th: For contempt of the Government.
Specification 1st: Inasmuch as the said Wilson did curse the Govt. of the U.S. when being told that he did not interpret according to the true intent & meaning of the orders of the Government.
Charge 5th: For cheating the Indians
Specification 1st: The said Wilson did keep and make use of Iron, belonging to the Indians and intended for their use.
John Campbell, Sub Indian Agt.

[1825?] To: Gen Wm. Clark, Superintendent of Indian Affairs St. Louis. [This letter shows that many Delaware were still in Illinois in 1825.]
Subject: Reports in conformity with Clark's instructions to visit the different Indian hunting camps within the State of Illinois and to urge the Indians to remove to their own lands west of the Mississippi early in the spring. The Potawatomis have been friendly with the whites, but are unwilling to move from their -resent location which is on military bounty lands. The Kickapoos have not yet emigrated. but have caused no complaints to have been made because of their conduct. It is of the opinion that most of the Indians will have to be forced from Illinois, so strong is their attachment to the land of their fathers. The whiskey they obtain so easily is largely confirming them in this stand. The Delawares have been conducting themselves well, but drink to excess and are loathe to leave a place where it is so easily obtained. Recommend prohibiting all trade with the Indians in the State of Illinois after the 1st of June and also preventing them from planting any corn in that state.
Persons: Potawatamies, Kickapoos, Macina, Delawares, Miami Indians
Places: Illinois, Mississippi River, Laryamo, Little . . .[?], Kaskaskia River, Edwardsville, Wabash. [Signed] A.L.S. R. Graham

(Folder 13) From John Campbell to Major Richard Graham. Anderson's Village, James Fork, May 19th 1825.
Sir I have this day pointed out a situation for building opposite to Anderson's dwelling, where there is a fine spring and good timber for building. I would advise that the buildings to be built on the plan of Wilson's buildings. I am unable to ascertain what they will cost, but it will be considerably above one hundred dollar. I have had a talk today with [Delaware Chief] Anderson today on the subject of the man hoo [who] is selling Whiskey to the Indians he is much dissatisfied that he is not removed. I should have started down on Sunday but on examining the laws I am not satisfied that my powers extend me fully on this subject and I will attend to it immediately. I think it would be well to write to the proper authority in Arkansas and no [know] wheather those persons have account to squatt without permission on the publick lands. If there can be no way to break this set of horse steelers and whiskey sellers up, we shall have no peace in this nation. The Kickapoos have called again today asking me to visit them. I shall goe and see them soon as Anderson leaves. This Anderson wishes me to write you to mention to Genl. Clark Something about the horse that was taken from his son by the man Anderson took the whiskey from as he cannot get his horse. Please send me some tea by Wilson and dont forget my hat. Be sure to make the arrangements with Col. Menard to bring my trunk and Mattras and the articles in my memorandum, send me paper and quils, Ink powder for Wilson.

Track[?] wishes to say to you the number of persons belonging to there family there is twenty souls in all here including Bob hoo are entitled to there share.

Inclosed yuo have the list of horses lost by the Dellawares and the evidence persisely as they gave it in. It is more lengthy than is necesary but they would have every particular set down. I should of done it myself, but had no paper and my pen has given out. I wish you would urge the nessisity of having ur buildings put up, for it is very disagreeablbe to have to board with those people. I wish you would write me fully on the subject of those horse thiaves and whiskey sellers. I wish to no wheather I shall be Justifiable in taking some of the Indians with one and forcing those fellows to give up the property belonging to the Indians. Write me all the news and don't forget my letters.

(Folder 13) John Campbell, Sub Indian Agt. to Graham. James Fork,. White River, July 25th, 1825

Sir. Inclosed you have some documents for your parusal on the subject of hog killing by the Dellawares. The dispute betw Natcoman and Mr. Marshall is not yet settled. Marshall has gone to Cape Herrardoe [Girardeau) for evidence. There is much feeling here amongst the Indians about the manner in which the annuities shall be distributed. The poor Indians complain to me constantly and that that they they in the duration get little or nothing that the big fish eat all the little ones up. There complaints are made by Killbuck's band and very justly so too. I am creditably informed at he Killbuck and his great men have signed receipts to Gillis & Boys [Boyce] for Seventeen hund dollars to be paid out of this annuity. This is for depts. [debts] contracted by Killbuck and a few of his band. By this means the poor of his band are to get nothing. This is unjust and ought not to be suffered. I hope you will inform Col. Menard of this and prevent his excepting those orders of Killbucks. Anderson the Chief Joins me. He is much disatisfied with me in consequence of the corse I have persued to endeavor to stop them frombringing in such quantities of whiskey. Thjere has not been less than three hundred dollars of whiskey brought in the nation by the Indians since you left. This Andersenand myself have called the chiefs and soldiers together several times and I have said everything I could to to atop it but to no purpose. Anderson says we will stop but them goe on and see what will be there fate. You have no conception of the Difficulty I have had undergone since I arrived here. I have not had three days rest since I have been here. I believe I have erected every cabbin on the Dellaware land. I have just returned from a visit to the Peankeshaws and Weas and Peorias. they join me in endeavoring to stop them from bringing in whiskey below. The chief of the Piankeshaws informed me that some of those white people who were permitted to remain on the and by Anderson had brought in whiskey and sold it tot he Indians. I remained and watched them for two days but could not ketch them. On my return I called on Anderson [and] told him that they must leave the land. He called the chief and they councilled together. finally concluded that I should notify those men that if they do soe again they must leave the land immediately but they must have it all wints [wintr?] so soon as them crops were finished. [As clear as mud. Editor] I have visited the Kickapoos frequently, I have made them give up some horses which they had belonging to the whites. I should be glad if the could be anint [another] interpretor for the Kickapoos. I have had that to do myself which is not my duty. They wish someone to visit them on the Osage river which I shall doe as the fires are done. Some Jurion [?] has written to the Kickapoos that they would furnish them goods at a very reduced price for there annuity. They had agreed to take there goods from Col. Menard as they told me themselves. I doe not expect that any body will furnish them lower than Menard.

I have now given you a full view of everything worth your attention. Except that I have notified Mr. Wilson that I should not [call] on him again to interprat for me, he is by no means fit for that place, he cannot give the propper interpratation of anything, he will always put his own construction upon what I say to the Indians and what they Indians say to me. This I have caught him at frequently and giving different advise from myself. This Anderson and a great many of them tells me now. They say they thought I would find it out myself. I have do soe to my satisfaction. You can doe as you please. I informed him on the 21st of this month that I should not call on him again. I have spoken to Troyet [?] to act for me for the present. Send me the outlines of the late treaty that I may no the boundary lines. Give my best respects to Govener Clark and family and to Col. Abinander [?] I am much oblige to you for the hat you sent me. Write me by Col. Menard. Send on the newspapers.

6 August 1925 (Folder 13) Point Pleasant, New Madrid County,. Missouri. S. G. Hopkins to Magr. Graham

My Dear Sir, Much excitement has been produced in this vicinity for the last two or three months in consequence of a prevalent rumour that the small settlements of Indians on the borders of the River St. Francis were to be forcibly broken up and their inhabitants removed beyond the White River . . . A correct knowlede of the St. Francis which runs parallel with the Mississipi for upwards of one hunded a[nd] fifty miles on a direct line, and at n place is more than twenty miles from it, is from one extent to the other sunk by earthquakes and filled with timbers which have died and fallen into the water, rendering it unavigable for every species of boats except canoes; the west (or lead) fork as it is termed enters from the high country which divides Black and White river from the tributaries the St. Francis; and from fifty miles from its confluence wit the east fork. has suffered equally, and is equally circumstanced as respects its navigation. An hundred miles above the junction of these two, a bay or bayon [bayou?] (as it is here treed) connect them together. Within the island thus formed; and at a very small elevation abve the level of the water, of the two rivers, spread over an immense surface as it is, by the sinking of the country, live those Indians in three villages. They consist of Shawnees, Delawares, and Muscogees Creeks. It seems as if providence in commiseration of their misfortunes had directed them thither, where white men will not live; and where there is just enough of fish, fowl, and game to minister to their subsistence. without encroaching on the rights of others. In their character UI am happy to bear witness, from two years residence in this neighborhood, that they are inoffensive, useful, and in some degree industrious. They raise good stocks of Horses, cattle, and hogs; and make a sufficiency of bread-stuffs fro home No charge of dishonesty has ever been, even colourably, sustained against them, and the little trade they furnish in furs, peltries, Bears, oils is extremely acceptable to our small community from its vicinity, and the facilities afforded in obtaining it. About three years ago three negroe men owned by George Colbert (a Chickasaw) were forced from his savage cruelty to abandon his service; and betook themselves to these villages They are still there. A. Walker of this County received authority from the son of Colbert to seize them. I was at the villages with him. The Indians did not object to his doing so; but for some cause unknown to me, he declined, and returned without them. In the transition [translation?], although an eye witness, I could not discover any thing reprehensible in the conduct of the Indians, They say it is a matter between Indians - that n white man is interested; and as it regards the permission given to the negroes to live among them, George Colbert alone is insured and that he, to their knowledge is a cruel unprincipled savage. I have said there's much on this subject, lest improper colouring from motives if reward, or profit, might have been given to it.

In an interested point of view, as a citizen here, I should dislike the removal of the Indians, 1st because it would deprive us of their little trade, which operates at a great convenience and 2ndly because their occupancy of that isolated country keeps off worse neighbors. Will you be so kid as to give me your own and the views of the government of this subject as early as convenient,

In the sentiments I have expressed I know the whole community here heartily accord; and if necessary will unite in a petition to the government. It is probable my friend Capt. Lessieur (the oldest inhabitant of this part of the state and a respectable citizen in any country) will also make some statements on the subject You may especially rely on his information and knowledge of the country.

James Fork 2nd September 1825

Dr [Dear] Peter, Inclosed [sic] you have the letters your Indians, one of them you will read to those Indians in presence of Magt. (?) Campbell. Have sent you by Wagon, 150 pairs of small ear bobs, it is all I had & you will credit me for them. Your friend Mr. William Marshall was here Yesterday and was much displeased at some reports of some Indians. He was informed that you have told the Indians that you were the only one that could and would have goods, that him Marshall & Gillis & Boyer, credit was not good and that they could not have goods any longer, I told him that I was sure you never used such language and that it was false, Magt. Campbell told him the same. Should we be so lucky as to make an advantageous contract for skins, you will be informed in time yours ?? Pierre Menard

Ps I believe that James?? is the one who has made that report to Marshall

Sir I have the honor to enclose to you a statement of the claims of the Delawares for Horses stolen from them on there journey from Indiana to Missouri. These claims do not form and part of those which have already been laid before the Government. . .

20 September 1825. Anderson's Village John Campbell to Major R. Graham. Abstract (Folder13)

Will call on the Delawares for payment for stolen hogs as soon as proof can be obtained against them. Has warned that traders against giving credit on the faith of being paid out of Indian annuities and has lectured the Indians on the justice of unequal distribution of the annuities. Says that "puting a stop to there bringing in whiskey is moreally and physikally impossible." The Kikapoos have left their village for the Red River to make their winter hunt and the Piankeshaws left about the same time. The Delawares are dissatisfied at not receiving their iron as usual and [Chief] Anderson has heard that the Cherokees are planning war. Mentions Delaware Natcoming and Killbuck among others.

John Campbell to Major Richard Graham or Gov. Clark, St. Louis, 27 September 1825, Anderson' village. Abstract of document. (Folder 13)

Encloses Anderson's speech delivered on the murder of his son. Describes the incident of the son waiting behind his party to search for their stolen horses and of never being seen again. Feeling is high against the Osages who are suspected of the deed. Speaks of two interpreters who will receive twenty dollars per month. Asks Graham to send him writing paper and ink powder.

Sir Since my letter of the 28th was closed anderson has informed me of a man by the name of Sollomon [sic] Yokam hoo [sic] is just settled inside of the Delleware [sic] line and has erected a distillery on the other side of the line and has made a quantity of peach brandy and has been selling it for some time in quantities to the Indians; there is a number of those outlawd [sic] characters settled all below him hoo [sic] are also selling whisky [sic] constantly to the indians, if there cannot be some plan devised to remove them from that place, the Dellewares [sic] and Weas and all those lower indians will be a lost people before two years… can point out any way that this Yokam who lives on the indian land can be removed i wish you to doe [sic] soe [sic] if i had any assistance i would soon remove him but i am now left alone without a white man in the nation four or five old indians are left her [sic] with the chiefs to take charge of the Villages I am apprehensive i shall have some difficulties with one or two others that are living on the land before i get them off i am told that they will not pay there [sic] rents to the indians if soe [sic] what step is to be taken to compell [sic] them. I have just started Truit (?) and Conner again to notify them all that they must remove Subject: It is gratified his views are approved by the War Department. Met with some difficulty in bringing the Delawares and Shawnees to agree to become friendly with the Osages. Te Kickapoos are pleased with the idea of peace and will readily give their influence to carry it into effect. A small war party f Cherokees have killed a Frenchman and threaten to kill all those who trade with the Osages. Wishes to be instructed as to his power of granting licenses. Has been much pleased with the Delawares who desire to become farmers. They appear to be very industrious. Has furnished them with iron to shoe their horses an they are forced to go great distances for game, laming their horses in the process.

Delaware Village March 16th 1826

Sir On my arrival at this place I find but few Of the indians have arrived but they are daily expected, One of the Dellewares [sic] arrived two days ago, and brings the accounts of the Dellewars [sic] and Kickapoos having killed five Osages on the waters of red river. There were ten Dellewares and ten Kickapoos who were hunting together at one camp, the Osages came to them and told them they had been to war against the Pawneas [sic]. They invited them to camp with them [.] they did soe, in the night [.] the Kickapoos proposed to the Dellewars to kill them [.] the Dellewares replied saying that there [sic] chief and there agint [sic] had told them that they must not doe [sic] any mischief while on there [sic] hunt. but before daylight they all concluded to join and tomhawk them, which they did accordingly. They justify this act because the horse belonging to Andersons son hoo [sic] was killed was seen amongst the Osages, another reason they ?? that the Cherrokea [sic] chief told them that the Osages had killed eleven of his people last fall and one Shawny [sic] and one Delleware [sic] boy. The Cherrokea [sic] chief is now collecting all his wariors [sic] and intends striking the blow in about fore weaks [sic] there was when this young man left Marshalls trading town [emphasis added] on red river, about eight hundred collected from the different tribes, about 6 weaks [sic] since the Osages have killed five Dellewares [sic] among them was George White wj his father one woman and two boys, so soon as this news reached Natcoman on red river he started with five men determined to have scalps, the indians have all left red river on there [sic] way home[.] soe [sic] soon as they arrive I shall be able to get all the particulars, and will communicate them to you, there is at present soe [sic] many reports that I don't think it necessary to notice them, I called what indians there were here soe [sic] soon as I arrived and delivered your speach [sic] to them alsoe [sic] Goviner [sic] Clarks letter, they appeard [sic] to be well satisfied with there [sic] contents, I am endeavoring [sic] to suppress the war as much as possible untill [sic] we shall hear from you what Col. McNears (?) has done with the osages. Lawfanialy? The second chief died about one ?? since I laid before the chiefs the map sent by me they are well pleased with the country, and soe [sic] soon as the Shawneas [sic] chiefs and Kickapoos chiefs arrive they will then visit that country on the Kansan river, I will send an express as soon as the indians all arrive I should be glad to have a Kickapoo interpretor when they arrive, I wish you to get all my letters out of the post office and send them, and some of the newspapers since the siting [sic] of the last congress, send Col. Mcnares [McNears]Letter as soon as possible, tell Goviner [sic] Clark Anderson will answer his letter by the next oppertinity [sic] give my best respects to Goviner [sic] Clark and family and remain Sir yours with Respect

There seems to have been a lot of bickering about and between the various Indian traders as can be seen in this letter from William Marshall concerning William Gillis:

From John Campbell at Delaware Village to Major Richard Graham, Indian Agent, near St. Louis December 9th 1826 (Folder 13)

Major R. Graham Sir I write you a short note, giving you my opinion of matters things here. I am satisfied there is too many persons here acting as agents and advisors hoo [sic] are all working for there [sic] own interest. some it appears from indian reports don't want the Dellewares [sic] to exchange there [sic] lands without the goverment [sic] consent to pay there [sic] debts I suppose to the traders, others want reserves of land made for them; others want pay for there [sic] buildings , some of the persons say if the agents will help them that they will assist the agents in affecting what they wish for the goverment [sic]. all those things combined together has more or less influence upon the mind of the Indians. permit me to further state to you that I think it bad pollicy [sic] to permit the traders to cultivate soe much of the indian soil and to keep such large stocks of horses and cattle in the neighborhood of the villages, and pay the indians no rent and sell them corn at an extravant [sic] price to them the indians have no encouragement to raise corn or stock, some of the traders are now clearing more land. those hoo [sic] have indian families of children I think ought to be allowed to cultivate soil sufficient to support there [sic] children but nothing more. I hope there will be a stop put to this grand imposition as soon as possible, you will very readily perceive from the above remarks from what source they come Indians are not very apt to make those remarks of themselves. I wish you to send me some washington papers by Mr Mitty and letters if any, since I enclosed you my report, Mr William Marshall has lodged a written report against Mr. Wm Gillis for having sent a number of pack horses to the woods with goods to trade with the Indians without license which is the fact, the goods are sent to the three forks of white river, for soon as Gillis arrived from St Genavive [sic] I informed him of Marshalls Report, and that I should hold him accountable for the forthcoming of the goods and ?? untill [sic] I should hear from you on the subject. I hope you will not delay giving me some instructions how to proceed, I wish you to answer my letter fully on the subjects above stated, you have inclosed [sic] Marshall letter. I have sent Col Menard a coppy [sic] of Marshalls letter as he is much interested in this affair. [[Chief] Anderson has called on me and expresses a wish that Mr Gillis may have license to trade on the three forks of white river, this you will be the best judge of yourself. I have permited [sic] Mr Gillis to remain at the three forks of white river untill [sic] I should hear from you as it was the particular wish of Anderson, but he is not to trade any of the goods You have no idea of the high ground this gentlemen takes here he is more than agent. I could say much more to you on this subject but let this suffice for the present, or untill [sic] I see or hear from you, which I hope will be soe soon as you can send me the answer. Did not intend saying so much in this note as I have (??) but this affair of Gillises has compelled me to do so. this leter [sic] is only intended for you and myself.

I am Sir with Due Respect your John Campbell

THE THOMAS TORGESON FAMILY

As a Young Man in White City, Morris County, Kansas (George A. McMillan, Photographer, Council Grove, Kansas/Hahn Collection)

Thomas Torgeson (Hahn Collection)

There is nothing like a person's handwriting to add some flesh to the bones of history. From this letter we know that Thomas Torgeson made a trip to California to visit visiting his sister "Tiggey" (Matilda Johnson) and others, that he appears to still be living in White City in September 1923 as his stationery reflects that, and, that Florence and Walt Hahn were living at 1620 Buchanan in Topeka. Taral Torgieson or Torjieson, later known as Thomas "Tom" Torgeson, was born in Bygland, East Agder, Norway on 29 September 1857. His place of birth may have been the Horverak Farm at Aardal, as that is where his parents lived in 1854. He emigrated to the United States sometime after 21 March 1862, with his parents, Tarald Torgieson and Torbjord Johnsdatter (Matilda Johnson) and probably did his sister, Torborg Torgiesdatter (Matilda Torgeson), when he was about five or six years old. Because the latter was born at Janesville, Rock County, Wisconsin on 7 September 1862, we know that the parents arrived in the United States sometime before that date. It is not known from from port they departed in Norway, on what ship they traveled, or at what port they entered the United States. After they lived at Janesville, they moved to or near Dodgeville, Iowa County, Wisconsin (which Tom Torgeson later called "Doggyville"). In 1869 or 1870, they emigrated to Kansas, perhaps first to Junction City, Geary County [according to an unsubstantiated report by a descendant.]. They have not as yet been found in the 1870 census in any state. The Thomas Torgeson family first appears in the public records of Kansas in the Parker Township of Morris County. (1875 Kansas Census) They were enumerated again in the 1880 census for Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas.

Willie Ferguson, son, age 5, and was born in Kansas.
George Ferguson, son, was age 2, and was born in Kansas.
Evan Ferguson, a farmer, was age 40 brother [of Thomas, Sr. and was born in Norway.]

Tom Torgeson became a citizen of the United States, but the data on his citizenship process need to be located. (Index to Naturalization cases 1856-1897 LDS Film 1711040/1; Declaration of Intention 1862-1897/2; Naturalization Petitions 1865-1870, 1872-1890 LDS Film 1711262/5-6.) He worked on the family farm near Parkerville, but by 1884, he was living at White City, Morris County, Kansas. (Morris County Enterprise, 1 February 1884, p.3, "Mr. Thos. Torgeson, of White City, was in the city [Parkerville] Wednesday.") In the 1885 census, a Thomas Torgeson was living in a boarding house in White City, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County. White City was incorporated on 17 October 1885 and had about 300 citizens at that time. (R. Alton Lee, T-Town on the Plains, p. 58)

According to the 1885 census for White City, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas, viewed 8 October 2004 at the Kansas State Historical Society Research Center at Topeka, Kansas). p. 3: Dwelling 19, Family 19:
Line 3, Thos Torgeson, was age 36 [but only partially legible], was born in Norway, was from Wisconsin, was a farmer.

Line 8. Mildred Torgeson, age 1, was born in Kansas, was from Kansas.
In this census, his brother, Newt Torgeson, was enumerated at age 21 at Dwelling 21, Family 21 and his brother Henry Torgeson, age 29 and listed as a "retired farmer," was enumerated at Dwelling 59 Family 58 [?].

On 30 April 1886, Thomas Torgeson married Margaret "Maggie" Louise Torgeson, at her parents' home at Parkerville. (8 May 1886 White City Whig), although their wedding certificate says that they were married at Council Grove, Morris County, on 29 April. It it not known where they first lived at White City, but they later lived in a frame house across from the high school. The house was moved to a farm, perhaps in the 1960s.

The 1900 census says that they lived on Goodnow Street in White City. Tom Torgeson worked as a clerk in the grain business in a grain elevator and feed store for 13 years and was the Postmaster in White City (a Wilson appointee). About 1926 they retired to Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. They lived most of their lives in Topeka at 912 West l7th Street, a house that was still standing in 2004. Their children Florence, Floyd, Bernice, and Gladys lived in Topeka at one time or another. Gladys and Bernice lived on West 17th Street with their parents when they first moved to to Topeka.

A Place Card for the 50 the Wedding Anniversary of Margaret (Owen) Torgeson and Thomas Torgeson (Hahn Collection)

In 1936, Tom and Maggie Torgeson celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in Topeka:

> Married Fifty Years. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Torgeson who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently were the honor guests at a family dinner and reception given in celebration of the occasion. They have lived in Topeka for the last ten years and have a wide circle of friends. Mrs. Torgeson, who before her marriage was Margaret Owen, came to Kansas with her parents when she was l year old and settled in Solomon City. Mr. Torgeson with his family came to Kansas in 1870 and after living in Junction City for a brief time moved in '76 to White City. They were married in Council Grove, where they made their home. [It is thought that they did not live in Council Grove, but at White City at that time.] Mr. and Mrs. Torgeson had nine children, seven of whom are living. They are Mrs. R. H. Christensen, Junction City; Mr. Floyd Torgeson of North Topeka, Mr. Allen Torgeson of Napa, Calif.; Mrs. Frank Schunt [Schump] of Kansas City; and Mrs. Walter Hahn, Mrs. J. M .Murphy, and Miss Bernice Torgeson, of Topeka," (Topeka Capitol Article)

(Hahn Collection)

Tom Torgeson died on 30 March 1939 at his home in Topeka. Thomas Hahn's diary says that he died at 6 p.m. His death certificate says that he "died at age 81 yrs 6 months at his residence at 912 W. 17th., Topeka, Kansas. Died of prostate cancer. (State of Kansas, State Board of Health, Death Certificate No. 289 22692.) His funeral service was in White City. He was buried at the White City Cemetery in Morris County. (LDS FHL Film 0002128. White City, Morris County, Kansas Cemetery Record.) To reach the cemetery, in White City cross the railway tracks on the west side of the town and and take the road north about 1 1/2 miles. He has a stone marker in excellent condition, viewed on 26 June 1998 by his grandson, Thomas Hahn, and his great grandson, Chris Hahn. His grave marker reads: THOMAS TORGESON 1857-1939. Wife Margaret L. shares the same stone marker. There are also stone markers for daughters Mildred A. (1893-1900) and Merle A. (1899-1901).

His obituary in the Topeka Capitol said of him:

> Thomas Torgeson, 81, died last night at the home, 912 West Seventeenth street, following an illness of about three years. He was born September 29, 1857, in Norway, and came to the United States at the age of six, locating in Dodgeville, Wis. Later he moved to Junction City, Kan., and from there to Parkerville, Kan. In 1876 he moved to White City, residing there until thirteen years ago when he moved to Topeka. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church. Torgeson is survived by the wife, Mrs. Margaret Torgeson; five daughters, Mrs. R. [Robert] H. Christensen, Junction City; Mrs. W. F. [Walter Frederick] Hahn, Topeka; Mrs. Frank Schump, Kansas City, MO; Mrs. Gladys Murphy and Miss Bernice Torgeson, both of Topeka; two sons, Floyd Torgeson, Topeka and A.G. [Allen Gerald] Torgeson. Imola, Calif; twelve grandchildren; four great grandchildren; two sisters and four brothers. Burial will be at White City. A funeral service will be conducted there Sunday afternoon at 2:30 'clock.

Another obituary said:

> Thomas Torgeson, 81, died at his home 912 West Seventeenth. He was born in Norway September 29 1857. and came to the United States at the age of six years to Dodgeville, Wis.
> Later he moved Junction City, Kan., from there White City where he remained until thirteen years ago when they moved to Topeka. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church.
>
> He is survived by his widow Margaret Torgeson of the home, five daughters Mr. R. H. Christenson [Christensen], Junction City; Mrs. Frank Schump, Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. W, F, Hahn, Mrs. Gladys White and Miss Bernice Torgeson, all of Topeka; two sons, Floyd, of Topeka, and A. G. Torgeson, Imola Calif.; twelve grandchildren, four great-grandchildren, two sisters and four brothers.
>
> Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Sunday at the White City Methodist church, burial in the White City Cemetery. The body will lie in state at the Wall-Diffenderfer mortuary until 9 p.m. Saturday.

Another obituary, probably from the White City Register:

> Thomas Torgeson, the oldest child of Thomas and Mathilda Torgeson, was born near Christianand [Christiansand, a small coastal town in southern Norway], September 29, 1857, and died at his home in Topeka, Kansas, March 30, 1939, at the age of 81 years and 6 months.
>
> At the age of 6 years, he came with his parents to America, settling in Wisconsin, where they lived until 1870 when they came to Parkerville, Kansas. They lived on a homestead three miles east of White City. In 1876 Mr. Torgeson came to White City to work for Mr. W. R. Bigham and from that time until he moved to Topeka in 1926 he was identified with the business life of this town. For nearly nine years he served as postmaster. It was during his early life in White City that he joined the Congregational Church and later transferred his membership to the Presbyterian Church.
>
> On April 10, 1886, he was united in marriage to Margaret Owens [Owen], who survives him. To this union nine children were born, two preceding him in death. The remaining are Mrs. Mae Christenson [Christensen], of Junction City, Mrs. Kath[e]rine Schump, of Kansas City, Allen Torgeson of Imola, California, Floyd Torgeson, Mrs. Florence Hahn, Mrs. Gladys Murphy and Bernice Torgeson, all of Topeka.
> This is only the second break in a family of six brothers and two sisters. [William Torgeson died in 1936.]Besides his family, and brothers and sisters, he leaves a host of other relatives and friends who will always remember him as a very good and kind man. One of his pleasures was to talk and visit with those people who were closely connected with his earlier life and he always had a word of greeting for all with whom he came in contact.

The funeral service was held at the Methodist Church in White City on Saturday afternoon with a large crowd of friends in attendance. There were many present from over the county and from neighboring towns.

Rev. Orlando L. Sample, pastor of the Methodist Church and the music was given by Mrs. Joe . . . [the remainder of the obituary is missing.]

They had no children. The Taggart's lived in Goodland, Sherman County, Kansas for the remainder of their lives. Tom was the County Attorney for Sherman County. Bernice worked in his office, in an abstract office, and for the social welfare office. They lived in two different homes in Goodland. Tom Taggart died on 12 June 1961 at Goodland and was buried in the cemetery there. After Tom's death, Bernice had built and lived in another house there. In 2003, she moved to Wheat Ridge Acres, an assisted living facility there. On 28 March 2004, she celebrated her 100th birthday there with friends and relatives.

ABSTRACT OF STOCK STOLEN BY WHITES FROM THE DELAWARE TRIBE OF INDIANS SINCE THE TREATY of 1854

A copy of this document was provided by Charles Goslin. The original document in which the documents were contained was from a woman named Johnson, possibly a descendant of the Indian Agent at the time, Fielding Johnson.

This is a first hand look at the losses incurred by the Delaware who had limited legal recourse in recovering stolen property or in obtaining compensation. The first ink manuscript is entitled "Abstract of Stock Stolen from the Delaware Tribe of Indians Since the Treaty of 1854." But, apparently it covered only period from October to December 1862. It has 12 pages with 201 single line entries showing the name of each claimant and annotations under two headings: "number and value of stock evidently stolen by whites" and "not proven to have been stolen." The second manuscript has 39 pages with a more detailed entry for each listing than the first manuscript and the determination that the claim was or was not equitable and just. The entries are probably in the hand of John G. Pratt, the agent for the Delaware Indians whose papers are in the Kansas Historical Society holdings and appears to be the same entry that is on Roll 9, beginning Frame 391 and is dated October - December 1862. The document is noted as the "Office Copy." The listings seems to be the same list of stolen stock that appears in Roll 9 of the John G. Pratt microfilm starting on frame 391 and dated October - December 1862. The Pratt Papers are at the Kansas Historical Society Research Center at Topeka, Kansas. The microfilm is also a part of the collection of the can also be seem at the National Archives

I have used both of the above documents in the preparation of this listing. There were a few minor differences in spelling between the two documents. At a later date I may also make another list in alphabetical order. For ease in finding an entry, I have placed the family names first. The Lenape-Delaware names remain as they were in the document. Bear in mind in your research that sometimes the latter are difficult to transcribe and that the names vary from record to record, in both English and Lenape-Delaware, but particularly the latter. In some cases, I cannot differentiate between an "e" and an "o." and other vowels and consonants. For example, Conner may be Connor. In the case of Delaware women married to white men, the stock would probably have been only her own personal property not that of the family as a whole. It appears that the names listed are adults only.

DELAWARE 1842 ROLL OR CENSUS WITHIN THE FORTH LEAVENWORTH AGENCY

This roll or census is a variation of the 1842 Delaware census or roll. The roll of the heads of families by number with the number and ages within each family can be found on Page 1 of Faye Louis Smith Arellano, transcriber. Delaware Trails: Some Tribal Records 1842-1907 published in 1996, reprinted 1998. ISBN 0-8063-0194-5. Order from: Clearfield Co., 200 E. Eager Street, Baltimore, MD 21202.

I alphabetized this listing in order to assist me with the transcribing a document recorded several years later and I thought I would put it here in the web site to assist others in their research. In the document English first names were first and then the family name. For ease in finding an entry, I have placed the family names first. Lenape-Delaware names remain as they were in the document. Bear in mind in your research that sometimes the latter are difficult to transcribe and that the names vary from record to record, both English and Lenape-Delaware, but particularly the latter. The 1842 document is important as it is the first record found of a listing of Delaware. Other lists may be available from from their periods of residence in southeast and southwest Missouri, Indiana, and Ohio, but is so, we have not found them. Editor

There were 260 names of Heads of Families consisting of 189 males under 10, 260 males of males of 10 and under 40, 53 males over 40, 182 females under 10, 302 females of 10 and under 40, and 73 females over 4, total 1,039 individuals. However, it appears that 16 of these Heads-of-Families individuals were not Delaware, so that the total number of Delaware is probably 1,018 individuals. comprising 181 males under 10, 245 males of 10 and under 40, 50 males over 40, 179 females under 10, 293 females of 10 and under 40, 70 females over 40. Faye Louise Smith Arellano indicates that the 16 individuals may have been non-Indian, but she also notes on page 8, Delaware Trails:

> Most, though perhaps not all of the individuals enumerated here on the last page of the 1842 Delaware census . . . are Munsees. The Whiteeyes, Hill, Lewis, Israel, Peters and Samuel surnames all appear on an 1852 census of the 98 Christian Indians within the Kansas Agency (the successor to the Fort Leavenworth Agency, established 1 July 1851). [See Delaware Trails for a more detailed explanation of the non-Delaware individual's on the census roll.

1864 March buried in Lot P-13, Bennettsville Cemetery, Delaware County, New York

Nathan Curtis was born on 12 June 1787 (Luther Curtis Bible) in Chesterfield, Hampshire County, Massachusetts. He "Removed to New York State to Chesterfield, Massachusetts]." (FAMILIES OF CHESTERFIELD, p.116. Harold E. Curtis, DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS, RICHARD AND WILLIAM CURTIS OF SCITUATE MASS, PART III, 326.76). Nathan first married Ruth Bonney. Their daughter, Ruth Bonney, was born on 30 April 1810, so her mother, Ruth Bonney, may have died as a complication of Ruth Curtis' birth.

Nathan married second married Zoe (Xoe) Cudworth on 27 November 1810 in Scituate, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. She was born in Scituate on 26 May 1790 (Luther Curtis Bible). Nathan died on 4 March 1864 and was buried in March 1864 in the Bennettsville Cemetery, Chenango County, New York. Zoe died on 13 March 1882 and probably died and was buried at Nanticoke, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, where she was living in the 1880 Census with her son Luther Curtis and his wife Helen Hubel. Nathan died on 4 March1864. His tombstone Grave No. P-13 in the Bennettsville Cemetery. It is on Corbin Road near Masonville, Delaware County--in Chenango County Cemetery says: Nathan Curtis Mar 4 1864 76 years 8 months. In the same "plot" is daughter Rebecca's spouse, P-11 Isaac Cables 1820-1861; [No grave No.] Mary. J. Curtis Wife of Nathan Curtis, with no dates. Who is this? ; and, P-12, his son, Nathan Curtis Dec 28 1862 46 years 3 days. (http://www.rootsweb.com/nydelaware/cemchenangobennettsville.htm Bennettsville Cemetery.) The fact that Nathan Curtis, Jr. died a little over a year before his father did, most have had a profound effect on their families, to just what extent we do have not yet figured out, although we know that both widows were seemingly not very financially settled, as one (Zoe) soon went to live with her children and the other hired out as a "housekeeper." (Cemetery and gravestone data provided by Mary Cable of Deposit who recorded the information of sent photos of the graves. Mary stated that many of the braves were marked only by pieces of slate in the ground with no inscriptions.]

Hoe (Zoe) Curtis: Most of her data from the time that she married Nathan Curtis, Senior in Scituate, Massachusetts is included here with Nathan, at least for the present.

In the 1855 Census for Sidney, Delaware County, New York, Nathan and Chloe [(Zoe] Curtis were farming at Sidney. In the 1855 Census Nathan and Xoe Curtis were farming at, or near, Tompkins, Delaware County, New York. [Details of the census to be added.] So far we have been unable to locate them in the 1860 Census. We don't know their circumstance between the 1855 Census at Tompkins and Nathan's death on 4 March 1864 and his subsequent burial in the in the Bennettsville Cemetery in Chenango County, New York. Why was he buried there? Had they been living with one of their children near that place? In the 1865 Census for Delaware County, Xoe was living with her daughter Rebecca, age 36, formerly married to Cable, her husband, Jonas Hobbs, "formerly in the army " and their sons Ervin M. Hobbs, age 12, and Myron L. Hobbs. How [Xoe] was age 7, born Massachusetts, a widow, and had 12 children. To my knowledge, she had only been married the one time, to Nathan, so the children were theirs. Perhaps a search of Zoe's children and spouses in the 1860 Census and 1870 Census might reveal where she was in those years. In the 1870 Census for Masonville, Delaware County, New York (Series M5893m Roll 924, p. 312, enumerated on 9 August 1870, Heritage Quest Online Census Image, on Line 18, Dwelling No. 219, Family 228 probably at the same location where they were in 1865, Jonas Hobbs, age 43, wagon maker, born New York; Line 19, Rebecca Hobbs, age 41, Keeping house, born New York; Line 20, Irwin L. Cable, age 20, Farming. born New York; Line 21 Melcomia?/Melvemia? Cable, age 17, at home, born, New York; Line 21 Eugenia Hobbs, age 4, born New York; Line23 Howard Hobbs, age 3, born, New York; Line 24, Xoe Curtis, age 80, born Massachusetts, father of foreign birth. In the 1880 Census for Nanticoke, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, on Page 501 B, Page No. 10. Supervisor's District ___?. Enumeration District No. 111...Nanticoke Borough, in the County of Luzerne, State of Pennsylvania...Enumerated on the 16th day of June, 1880. Pleasant Street. Dwelling No. 111, Family No. 95. Zoe [Xoe] is listed as "Mother," widowed, was born in Massachusetts and with parents born in Massachusetts in the household of her son Luther Curtis and his family. She would have been about 90 years old.

We do not know know where Zoe died and where she was buried, but the possibilities narrow somewhat from a letter provided by her descendant, Kay Friedlander, from Zoe's grand-daughter Nettie to Zoe's grand-daughter, Vernia, both the daughters of Luther Curtis:

> Nanticoke April 5th 1881
> Dear Sister Your letter was gladly received. it found us all well. Grandmother [Zoe] is here, came Saturday morning before we had breakfast. she cant tend her feet her side catches her so, her feet are getting ever so much better but are bad enough yet. She seems to dread to go down home [Delaware County, New York, or where?][.] she says she could not tend her feet if they rolled off. she says if only She had the means to pay you for taking care of her she would not go. John and I have been planing a way. that is if you will agree to keep her, each of us will pay a dollar a month or more if need be as long as she is as well as she is now, & if she gets bed sick we can pay more, we spoke to uncle [who is?] about it & he is willing & says he will write to aunt Betsy [who is?] about it, and I think Emmet would be willing to do his share. if you will except the offer, write and tell Pa [Luther Curtis] about it & see if he is willing to pay something write to him soon for Grandmother is in a stew to get settled. I think your dress must look good the samples are real nice put it in a bag and bring it down you will be most to choice [?] of it to ride so far in it. I will send you a piece of my beautiful dress. John is waiting to take this to the office so I will have to close. come down as soon as you can get away. Nettie Oddly enough, both Nettie 7 April 1882) and Zoe (13 March 1882) died within a little over three weeks of each other? Coincidence? But it certainly must have had an effect on what Nettie was trying to do for Zoe and her life.

Nathan and Zoe had 12 children, according to a census statement by Zoe, and we know of the following: Harriet, Asahel, Betsey, Cynthia, John, Nathan Arthur, Luther, Rebecca, Orrin, Monroe, and Chester as follows:

47 F i. Harriet Curtis was born on 3 December 1811 in Chesterfield, Hampshire County, Massachusetts and died on 13 September 1883. Harriet married Ozias Spoor on 11 September 1831. He died on 24 July 1842.

48 M ii. Asahel Curtis was born on 18 October 1813 in Chesterfield, Hampshire County, Massachusetts. Asahel married Elizabeth Johnson on 11 May 1836 in Afton, Chenango County, New York.

49 F iii. Betsey I Curtis was born on 25 December 1815 in Chesterfield, Hampshire County, Massachusetts and died in 1904. Betsey married Samuel J. Teed III on 23 June 1841. He died after a long illness on 18 April 1884. The letter below from Betsy (Curtis) Teed (sister of Luther Curtis), to her niece, to Sarah Lovernia Bennett, indicates that the Teed's lived in Trout Creek, Delaware County, New York on 23 April 1884.

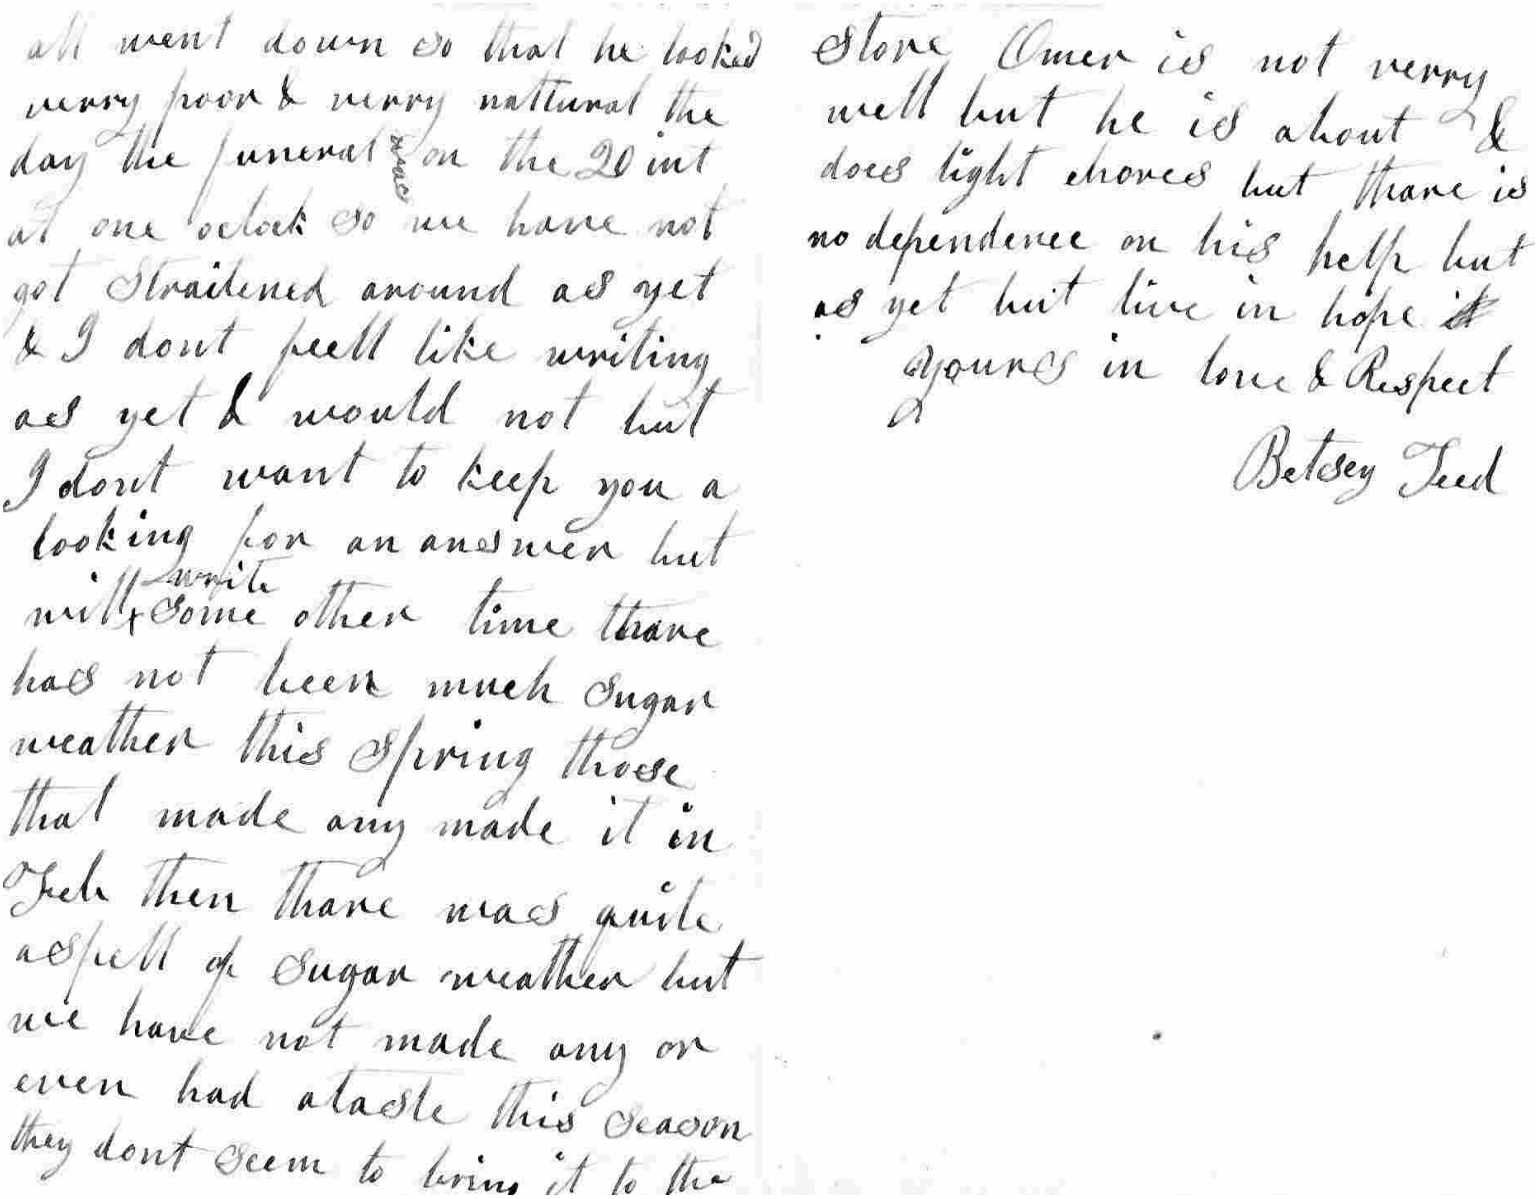
Monroe[6], Nathan[5], Luther[4], Elisha[3], Joseph[2], William[1]

MONROE, 326.76(11), b. August 21, 1834, probably in Sidney, Delaware Co., New York, son of Nathan and Zoe (Cudworth) Curtis.

According to Reference [100], he married, first, Marion M. Van der Hule on April 15, 1857, who died with her first child. He married, secondly, Harriet Landers of Afton, Chenango County, New York, widow of the Hon. Asahel Bixby, on Jan. 18, 1863.

The family is not listed in Chenango County or Delaware County at the 1870 census.



Reference [100] also states that "Monroe Curtis was first a school teacher, then had an Insurance and Real Estate Agency for the rest of his life. He was for many years at Hanover, Luzanne Co., Penna, and then retired to his farm on the river road at Afton N.Y." He died in 1911 [100].

At the 1900 census he was living in Orleans, Cattaraugus County, N.Y. He was listed as born August 1834, and living alone.

Betsy Teed letter probably to Sarah Lovernia Bennett, perhaps either before or after the letter above. Who is Owen? (Submitted by Kay Friedlander)

50 F iv. Cynthia Curtis was born on 26 September 1819 in Chesterfield, Hampshire County, Massachusetts. Cynthia married Charles Northrup of Franklin, Delaware County, New York. He died on 16 August 1864.

51 M v. John Curtis was born on 23 September 1821 in Bainbridge, Chenango County, New York. He died before 1890 and was buried before 1890 in Bennettsville, Bainbridge Township, Chenango County. John married (1) Elmira or Almira Birdwell on 4 July 1848 in Sidney, Delaware County, New York. Elmira was born about 1829 and died on 13 May 1853. John married (2) Caroline M. Warner on 3 December 1854.

+52 M vi. Nathan "Nat" Arthur Curtis was born on 22 December 1822 in possibly Bainbridge or Otego, Chenango County, New York. He died on 25 December 1862 and was buried in the Bennettsville Cemetery, Chenango County, New York.

53 M vii. Luther Curtis was born on 20 June 1825 in Bainbridge, Chenango County, New York.

According to (Harlan E., The Descendants of Thomas, Richard and William Curtis of Scituate, Mass. -1638 "Private Records from Bruce T. Sherwood of Sherburne, N.Y. 1950." Luther Curtis married Charlotte Bennett on 30 December 1846, and in 1850 was living in Sidney, Delaware County, New York.. Charlotte died on 3 June 1865.

This source says that:

> Luther was a farmer and school teacher and lived with his wife and family at the Phineas Bennett across the road from the Curtis house in Bennettsville [Bainbridge Township[. Luther had a large family of daughters. After the death of her parent she removed to Cannonsville [Delaware Co., N.Y.] and purchased a farm on the river. About 1865 he went to live in either Plymouth or Nanticoke , near Wiles-Barre in Luzerne Co., Pa., where he kept a store with some success. His mother lived with him. Three of the daughters were teachers. At least one, Mrs. John Fairchild graduated from Mt. Holyoke. The family as enumerated inn the 1850 Census for Sidney, Delaware County, N.Y. consisted of Luther, age 24, b. N.Y.; Charlotte, age 22; and Sarah, age 2.

It appears that he married three times, in possibly the following order. Luther married (1) Charlotte Clarissa Bennett on 30 December 1846. They were in Otego, Otsego County New York in March 1847, "The first [Sunday School] class in the village of Otego was formed March, 1847 Luther Curtis, Charlotte Curtis." (D. Hamilton Hurd, The History of Otsego County New York, 1740-1878). In 1850, they were living in Sidney, Delaware County, New York. (Census?)(In 1855 Census) they were living in Sidney or Walton. The 1855 Census for Delaware County will have to be consulted tom confirm which town,) and in 1860, they were living at Walton, Delaware (Census?) Charlotte died on 3 June 1865. . Kay Friedlander said that she found inscriptions in the text books of their children Sarah Lovernia Curtis and Emmet Curtis when they lived there. Walton was previously known as "New Road," She died in 1865. In that year, their son Emmet Curtis was 11 years-old, Edgar Curtis was 4, and Nettie was 6. (Census?) (2) In the 1870 Census in Plymouth Borough, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, his wife was listed as Teresa. Helen and James Hubell were also listed in his household. She must have died between 1870 and 1880, because in the 1880 Census for Nanticoke Borough, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, Luther was married to Helen Hubel. She was born about 1830? in New York. A letter from Helen indicates that she and Luther had moved to Beach Haven Luzerne County, Pennsylvania and that "grandmother" was with Vernia [daughter Sarah Lavernia (Curtis) Wildrick. "Grandmother" was undoubtedly, Zoe (Cudworth) Curtis. (Much of the data on Luther and his father was provided by Kay Friedlander.) Luther's will is recorded at the Luzerne County Court House: Curtis , Luther, Salem Township, 1892, 300 M 556.

> We know little about Charlotte Bennett's parents. According to the 1850 Census, Luther Curtis, Charlotte Curtis, and their daughter, Sarah Lovernia were living in Sidney, Delaware County, New York. The adjacent property [next down on the census page] was owned by Ebenezer Bennett who had a wife, Charlot, and daughter Sarah A., so it seems possible that those persons were probably Charlottes parents, and Charlotte's sister, respectively. [The census entry indicates that they were living in the same dwelling. Editor] There is an Ebenezer Bennett at Franklin, Delaware County in the 1830 Census with 1 male 5 and under 10, 2 males 15 and under 20, 1 male 40-50 and 1 female under 5, 1 female 5-10, 1 female 40-50. There is an Ebenezer Bennett in the 1840 Census for Sidney, Delaware County, New York (Ancestry.com Online Images 15-16 of 22 from Roll 274, p. 38-92) with 2 males 20-29 years old, 1 30-39, 1 50-59 [born 1781-1790] and 1 female 10-14, 1 female 15-19 and 1 female 50-60 [born 1790-1800], 2 of whom were engaged in agriculture. In the same 1840 census there is also an Ebenezer Bennett at Franklin, Delaware County, New York 80-90 years old [born 1850-1860] and a female 60-7 [born 1770-1780]. (Ancestry.com Online Images 5-6 of 36 from Roll 274, p. 437 which shows Ebenezer Bennett a "veteran". Could the older male and female be Charlotte's grandparents? I was unable to locate Ebenezer and Charlotte Bennett in the 1860 Census, but will try some more. As Ebenezer was age 75, he may have been retired from farming and they were living with someone. In the 1870 Census for the Town of Franklin, Delaware County, New York, enumerated 29 June 1870 Ancestry.com Images 18-19 of 80, p. 159, Lines 1 and 2, Ebenezer Bennet was 84 was born in Connecticut and Charlott was age 81 and was born in Connecticut. They were living at Dwelling 130, Family 168 in the Household of their son, Line 38, Geo. W. Bennett, age 65, a farmer, real estate worth $8,000 and personal property worth $4,000 and his wife Caroline Bennett, Line 39, also age 65, Keeping house. Also listed with the on Line 40 was Mary E. Hanford, 4, At home. They do not appear to be in the 1880 census, According to Kay Friedlander, Ebenezer died on 4 January 1875 in Wells Bridge [near Franklin, New York] and Charlotte died shortly before that time. According to a letter from Charlot (Bennett) Curtis, Sarah Bennett married LeGrand Stone and they lived in Wells Bridge near Franklin, New York. They had a son Theodore who died at 23. He had a daughter Netta.

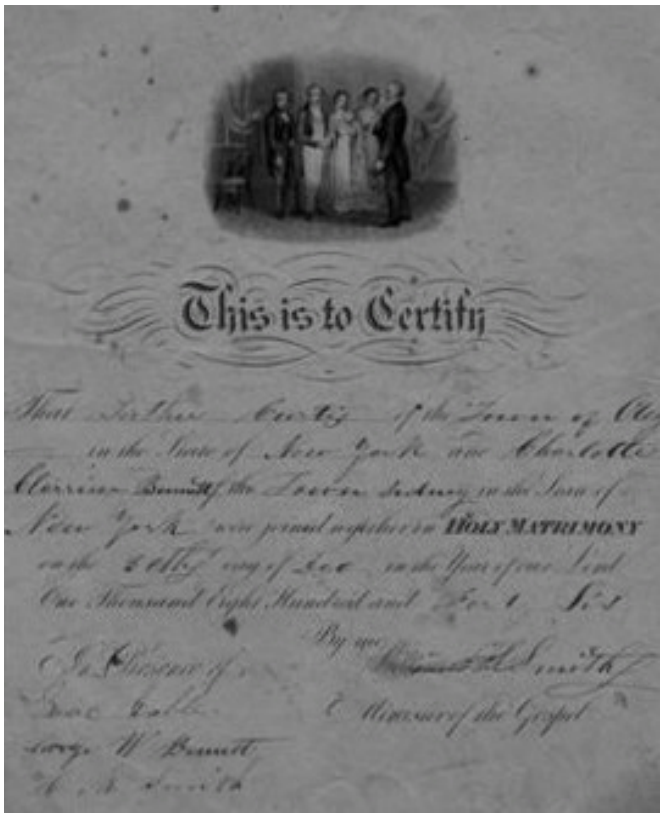
In the 1855 Agricultural and Domestic Manufacturing Census for ____ [probably Sidney], Delaware County, New York [Dwelling? Farm?] No. 336 enumerated 28 June 1855:

Frame house worth $300, personal property [perhaps $358--needs to be checked]



Luther Curtis age 30, born Delaware County, had been in city 6 years, a farmer.
Charlotte C. Curtis age 27, born Otsego County, had been in the city 6 years.

At some unknown date, the Luther Curtis's moved to Nanticoke, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, where he was a founder of the Methodist Church.

Certificate of Marriage of Luther Curtis and Charlotte Bennett (Provided by Floyd DeWitt).

Luther Curtis and Charlotte Bennett had at least four children:

1. Sarah Lovernia "Vernia" Curtis was born in Plymouth, Wyoming County, Pennsylvania on 13 May 1848, and died on 29 April 1907. (Luther Curtis Bible and 1850 Census for Sidney, Delaware County, New York. She married Hezekiah Wildrick. In the 1870s they were living in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania. Plymouth is not far from Nanticoke and just over the Wyoming County Line. They had three sons: Luther Curtis Wildrick, William Wildrick Curtis, and Edgar Wesley Wildrick. He was unmarried and died of consumption.* See below for her descendants. Kay Friedlander said, "Lavernia lived in several places after she married Hezekiah Wildrick--Nanticoke, Trucksville, Beach Haven, Salem township all in Luzerne County. I think she moved to Sayre sometime after her husband died in 1907 but I have not verified that nor have I found where she might be buried."

2. Edgar Wesley Curtis was born on 21 October 1860 at New Road, Delaware County, New York. He married in 1889 Mary Carolyn Witman, of Nanticoke, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania. Weseley Curtis was educated in the public schools of Nanticoke, and in Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., where he was graduated in the class of 1884. Immediately thereafter he entered the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and on January 1, 1891, accepted his presented position as the freight agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at Nanticoke. Mr. Curtis was a very popular railroad man, had won the confidence of his employers and the respect of their many patrons along the line. Socially was a member of the P. O. S. of A., and in politics he was a Republican. Mostly from H. C. Bradsby, 1893, History of Luzerne County, Pennsylvania). Wesley and Carolyn had two children: Emmet LeRoy was born on 8 September 1891 and died after 1920 and Ethel Caroline Curtis who was born on 1 May 1890.

3. Walter Curtis who was Edgar's twin and who died on 21 November 1860 at one month old.

4. Mary Janette "Netta" or "Netta" Curtis was born about 1859 and died on 7 April 1882. She married John H. Fairchild. a farmer in Nanticoke, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania. Kay Friedlander said, I believe he was fairly well to do because someplace I have a photo, or print of their home. She cannot have been married too long and I don't believe there were any children of her marriage. It is my assumption that Nettie had consumption but so far no proof. She wrote a letter to Vernia from the home of her aunt Sarah Bennett Stone (Mrs. Legrand Stone) who lived in Wells Bridge NY and it appeared she was trying to get well there."

Other possible children were Lodema Curtis, Luther Adrian Curtis, and Emmet Parmer Curtis. The latter died in 1893 at Bloomsberg College where he had probably been a teacher.

54 F viii. Rebecca Curtis was born on 3 November 1828 in Delaware County, New York. She died on 14 October 1908 in Nineveh, Broome County, New York and was buried in October 1908 in the Nineveh Cemetery under the name of her second husband, Jonas Hobbs. Her stone reads, "Rebecca Curtis Cable wife of Jonas Hobbs."

. Her grave marker reads, "Rebecca Curtis Cable wife of Jonas Hobbs." Rebecca Curtis on 12 October 1847 at Sidney, Delaware County, New York married (1) Isaac Cable/s (Marriage Record, Town Clerk's Office, Sidney (It is unclear from this note from Mary Cable of Deposit, New York whether the marriage date was 12 October 1847 or whether that was the date that there was a news item in a newspaper). Another note But a note also says that she married at 17 on 13 November 1847). He was born on 2 March 1820. Isaac died on 31 March 1861 "age 41 4 mo. 29 d." and was buried in the Bennettsville Cemetery, Bainbridge Township, Delaware County, New York. In the 1860 Census for Sidney [?], Delaware County, New York, Isaac Cables was age 40, Rebecca age 30, Erwin age 7, and Myron age 5. Rebecca married (2) James or Jonas Hobbs on 20 September 1864. He was born about 1837 in New York. In the 1865 Census for Sidney [?]. Delaware County, New York, Jonas Hobbs was age 37 and had been in the Army, Rebecca age 36 and had three children, Erwin Cable 14, Melvin Cable 12, and Myron L. Cable 9, and Hoe [Zoe] Curtis, mother-in-law, born Massachusetts, had 12 children and was a widow. [Where was she in later census enumerations?

55 M ix. Orrin S Curtis was born on 12 February 1831 in New York and died on 15 July 1840.

56 M x. Monroe Curtis was born on 21 August 1834 in probably Sidney, Delaware County, New York and died in 1911. Kay Friedlander also reported a Monroe Curtis living in New Jersey with a birth year of 1834 in the 1880 Census, so that needs to be checked out as to whether or not Ether that is our Monroe Curtis or a coincidence in name and birth year.

According to (Harlan E., The Descendants of Thomas, Richard and William Curtis of Scituate, Mass. -1638 "Private Records from Bruce T. Sherwood of Sherburne, N.Y. 1950."

> He married, first. Marion M. Van der Hule on April 15.185, who died with her first child. He married, secondly, Harriet Landers of Afton, Chenango County, New York, widow of the Hon. Asahel Bixby, on Jan. 18, 1863. The family was not listed in Chenango County or Delaware County at the 1870 census. . . Monroe was first a school teacher and then had an Insurance and Real Estate Agency for the rest of his life. He was for many years at Hanover. Lusanne [Lucerne County?], Penna. and then returned to his farm on the river road at Afton, N.Y. He died in 1911. SA the 189- census he was living in Orange, Cattaraugus County, N.Y. He was listed as born August 1864, and living alone. . . . [His one child] died as an infant.

According to the 1880 Census for Nanticoke, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania (LDS Family History Library Film 1233149, NA Film No. T9-1149. p. 523c,) he was married to Harriet _____ who was born about 1836 in Vermont.

1. Monroe Curtis, self, age 46, born New York, farmer, father's birthplace New York, mother's birthplace Massachusetts
2. Harriet J, Curtis, wife, age 44, born York, keeping house, father born Vermont, mother born New York
3. Chester E. Curtis, son, single, age 20, born New York, blacksmith, father born New York, mother born, New York
4. Alice Curtis, sister, single, age 21, born New Jersey, at home, father born Connecticut, mother born New Jersey [An earlier census shows that she was adopted.]
Plus seven other males, including curiously John Hahn age 62 born Pennsylvania, who were farm laborers.
57M xi. Chester Curtis, born New York.

Nathan Curtis, Sr. Family Record as recorded in a Curtis Family Bible from the Luther Curtis Family. A copy was also sent by Mary Cable of Deposit, New York, which included the statement, "Los Angeles July 12, 1921. Given by Aunt Clarinda." We don't know whose Aunt Clarinda" Nathan Curtis. Born June 12, 1787. Xoe [Zoe] Cudworth Curtis. Born May 26, 1790. Zoe stated in one census that she had had 12 children. Chester Curtis may be one of the two missing children. Ruth B. Curtis was Nathan's daughter his spouse, Ruth Bonny, who may have died in child birth)
1. Ruth B. (Bonney) Curtis was born on 30 April 1810. [The Bible version has only "B," not Ruth B. (Bonny) Curtis]
2. Harriet Curtis was born on 3 December 1811.
3. Asahel Curtis was born on 18 October 1813.

Additional information on Luther and Charlotte Curtis provided by Kay Friedlander kay@lightink.com :

Luther and Charlotte's daughter Sarah Lovernia Curtis married Hezekiah Wildrick. They had 3 sons.

1. William had several children. One son, Harold I knew until he died and I also know his daughter Katherine Halstead a retired nurse.
2. Edgar H. died of TB about 1910. He spent time at a sanitarium called Bon Air In Bradford PA . I learned much of that information from letters from him and his sweetheart Alice Barclay to my grandparents Orie Croop who was married to Luther Curtis Wildrick.
3. Luther was the 3rd son of Hezekiah and Sarah Lovernia Bennett Curtis. Luther Curtis Wildrick died when my father was 3 in a railroad crash. Sayre was a big railroad town having Lehigh Valley shops.

Luther Wildrick was first married to an Irish woman named Margaret Cassidy. They had two children, Helen and Loretta. It is my assumption that Margaret died during childbirth and the baby died too. That is definitely a guess. I do know that my father's mother Orie raised Luther's child by his first marriage. Her name was Loretta and she married Glenn Fish. That branch is where the Curtis line will be continued.

Luther Wildrick married Orie Croop in 1909. Besides Loretta Wildrick Orie also took in and cared for Margaret Cassidy's mother according to a letter I read. Grandma Wildrick was indeed a saint. She raised 4 children on her own. She had been a school teacher when she married Luther. She was Valedictorian of her 1900 Sayre PA graduating class. I found her speech, "Rowing Not Drifting". She also was a very religious woman and taught the little children in Methodist Sunday School classes. She was an active member of the WCTU. She died when I was 16 in 1960. As young children we would go to her house after we got out of school until my mother got home from work at 5. Her Sayre house was always filled with fun things for children to do. She had a chicken coop in the backyard and lots of canaries inside. She raised beautiful African violets. It is her house that I've been cleaning out for 2 years and where I've gleaned so much information because she saved everything.

Orie and Luther had 3 sons.

1. John Wesley Wildrick who was only one year old when his father was killed. He married Helone Green and they never had children. She was a school teacher. In 1978 they moved into Grandma's house. They too were pack rats and this was compounded with the Alzheimer's Disease my aunt suffered. John was one of the best plumbers around but failed to bill people. They were also very active in the Sayre Methodist Church. John was a Seabee in the South Pacific during WWII. Helone died in a nursing facility and John came to spend the last several months of his life with us in Ithaca. He died of colon cancer.

2. Luther Curtis was the oldest son and he married Laura Semans whose parents had a farm in Naples NY. Curt, as he was known, went to Center College in Kentucky and taught school and farmed. They never had children but the nieces went to stay a couple of weeks on the farm every year. It was a real highlight of our lives. I was very close to them both throughout my life. Curt served in the Air Force during WWII.

3. Andrew Adelbert was my father. He married my mother Anna Cowell 25 Apr 1937 in Norwich NY. It was a secret elopement. My mother was a surgical nurse at the Robert Packer Hospital in Sayre, PA. In the late 30's women were not allowed to work and be married so they kept it secret for a year or so. Finally they "fessed up" and because she was scrub nurse and OR supervisor for Donald Guthrie (the chief surgeon) who could not manage without her he granted permission for mom to continue to work. She thus was the first legally married nurse who worked there. My father had been a clerk at a hardware store then became a Metropolitan Insurance salesman. My parents also lived in Sayre, PA a town of about 7000 inhabitants.. My mother's mother, who had been widowed twice (my maternal grandfather dying when my mother was 7) lived with them. She died when I was 2. My sister Francine Anne Wildrick was born in 1942. She was brain damaged during birth by forceps. The result is moderate mental retardation. I think in 1943 my father was drafted or enlisted in the Army. I was born in September 1944. He was killed in February 1945 in France by a German sniper just before the wore ended. He never saw me. (Submitted by Kay Friedlander, who submitted the item below as well.]

The below item is put in as received from Kay Friedlander. I will work it in to the text above later. Editor

What I have learned from the Luther and Charlotte Bennett Curtis data is that in 1850 they were in Sidney, in 1860 they were living in Walton both in Delaware Co NY. Walton used to be called New Road and I found that inscription in the text books of Sarah Lovernia and Emmet Curtis when the family lived there. I have deciphered that Sarah Lovernia is nicknamed Vernia and Mary Janette is Nettie or Netta.

Luther evidently was married 3 times.

1. My gg grandmother- Charlotte Clarissa Bennett who died in 1865
2. In the 1870 census in Plymouth Luzerne Co Pa Luther had a different wife-"Theresa". Helen and James Hubell were also in the household at that time. She must have died because

3. In the 1880 census Luther was married to Helen and Hoe(Xoe, Chloe) was with them.

4. I have letters from Helen and another from Nettie Curtis Fairchild to Sarah Lovernia which I'll scan and send to you when I get home. The one from Helen indicates that she and Luther had moved to Beach Haven (no date), Luzerne Co PA and that "grandmother" was with Vernia. I assume because the Beach Haven house was small. I have not found Hezekiah and Sarah Lovernia Wildrick yet in the census but know they were in Luzerne Co Nettie died in her early 20's but in her letter talks about an uncle being in PA and then going back to NY. I wonder if this was a Curtis, Bennett or possibly a Hubell.

Luther obviously remarried because he had young children still.. In 1865 when Charlotte died Emmet was 11, Edgar 4, Nettie 6.
I'd send you the census data if you don't have when i get home,

I also have found Charlotte's sister Sarah through a letter to her niece. She married a LeGrand Stone and they lived in Wells Bridge near. Franklin, NY. They had a son Theodore who died at 23. He had a daughter Netta and the wife (mother) must have died in childbirth.
My question is why did Luther move to Pennsylvania?

One wonders if this was their removing from farming and perhaps even Sidney. However, they do appear in the Sidney 1860 Census so the date of that Census should be found and noted.

CHRONOLOGY:

1823 December 23 born Bainbridge, Chenango County, New York [What proof?] 1855 census says born Otsego County.
1845 16 November married Clarinda Hood of Masonville, Chenango County, age about 22
1848 Had been in Delaware County since about this year re census
1850 In Tompkins, Delaware County, age 28 re census
1855 In Delaware County, age 30, Town of Tompkins re census
1860 In Sandford, Broome County, New York as a farmer, age 37 re census
1862 25 December died. Buried Bennettsville Cemetery, Delaware County, age 46

Bainbridge, Chenango County, New York copied from an 1865 Map of Chenango County found in the Museum at Bainbridge. It is perplexing that Nathan Curtis, Junior may have been born at Bainbridge and was buried at the Bennettsville Cemetery but as yet there is no have no documentary evidence of him in Chenango County.

Nathan "Nat" Arthur Curtis (Nathan, Luther, Elisha. Joseph, William, Thomas, John) was born on 22 December 1822. (Luther Curtis Bible) He married Clarinda Hood on 16 November 1845 in New York. Nathan died on 25 December 1862. He was buried in the Bennettsville Cemetery, Chenango County, New York.

Monroe[6], Nathan[5], Luther[4], Elisha[3], Joseph[2], William[1]

MONROE, 326.76(11), b. August 21, 1834, probably in Sidney, Delaware Co., New York, son of Nathan and Zoe (Cudworth) Curtis.

According to Reference [100], he married, first, Marion M. Van der Hule on April 15, 1857, who died with her first child. He married, secondly, Harriet Landers of Afton, Chenango County, New York, widow of the Hon. Asahel Bixby, on Jan. 18, 1863.

The family is not listed in Chenango County or Delaware County at the 1870 census.

Reference [100] also states that "Monroe Curtis was first a school teacher, then had an Insurance and Real Estate Agency for the rest of his life. He was for many years at Hanover, Luzanne Co., Penna. and then retired to his farm on the river road at Afton N.Y." He died in 1911 [100].

At the 1900 census he was living in Orleans, Cattaraugus County, N.Y. He was listed as born August 1834, and living alone.

3. Clarinda Hood was born on 18 September 1826 at Masonville, Delaware County, New York.

Apparently she needed employment, as she was found in the 1880 Census for Caroline, Tompkins County, New York as a servant with Thomas Brink and his children:

1880 Census for Caroline, Tompkins County, New York, p.C, Supervisor's District 9, Enumeration District 111, W. H. Phillips, Enumerator. Enumerated 19 June 1880. Dwelling 113, Family 119:
Line 27. Thomas W. [?] Brink, age 41, Farmer, widower Line 28. Arthur Brink, 16 at School
Line 29. Mary Brink, 9
Line 30. John Brink, 4
Line 31. Clarinda Curtis, age 53, widow, servant, born New York, parents born New York.

Possible Photograph of Clarinda (Hood) Curtis Floyd Dewitt provided this photograph sent to him by Bob Winans. Floyd said, "Second from left standing in back of Mary Watrous (Carrie Curtis's daughter) is Winifred Curtis holding my Uncle Curtis. The old lady looking between them might be Clarinda. When they took those pictures they tried to put family members together. I don't know why they would put her there instead of on the left with all the other people that were not in the first picture [not included here].

Clarinda died on 21 October 1906 in Broome County, New York. Clarinda was buried in October 1906 in the McClure Cemetery, McClure, Broome County, New York. (See her ancestry in the Hood Family .)

Thomas Hahn sighted the grave marker of Clarinda Curtis in the McClure Cemetery on 8 August 2001. It was a granite marker, about 12 by 18 inches, lying flat on the ground. It says: CLARINDA CURTIS 1826-1906 CORINTHIANS _____. The marker was about 80 yards up from the gate in the fence at the back of the McClure United Methodist Church. The marker is straight back up the hilly cemetery from a point about in the middle of the back of the church, in the vicinity of two large pine trees. The marker had previously been adjacent to the marker of Joshua Smith and Mary Bullock several years ago, adjacent to a large pine tree. There is a Joshua Smith age 61 and a Mary B. [Bullock] Smith age 56 with a son 14 in the 1880 Census for Deposit, Delaware Co. It appears that a large tree may have fallen and some markers may have been moved, as Clarinda's marker is now 15-20 feet away from the Smith-Bullock marker, near the marker of a Wilma Lobdell and a Barnes. It appears that Clarinda's grave marker was simply removed to a nearby convenient spot, and that the present nearby grave markers have no relationship to hers. The McClure United Methodist Church in front of the cemetery is in the settlement of McClure, Broome Co., NY. The settlement is in the Town of Sanford (Deposit) NY. The church and cemetery are just above the intersection of NY Route 41--on which the church faces--with NY Route 17. Route 28 is just another 50 feet or so beyond to the south. Mary Cable of Deposit, New York stated that the church records were destroyed in a fire many years ago, but it may be worthwhile to contact the last known minister, Deborah Rose, to see if there is a listing of individuals in the cemetery.

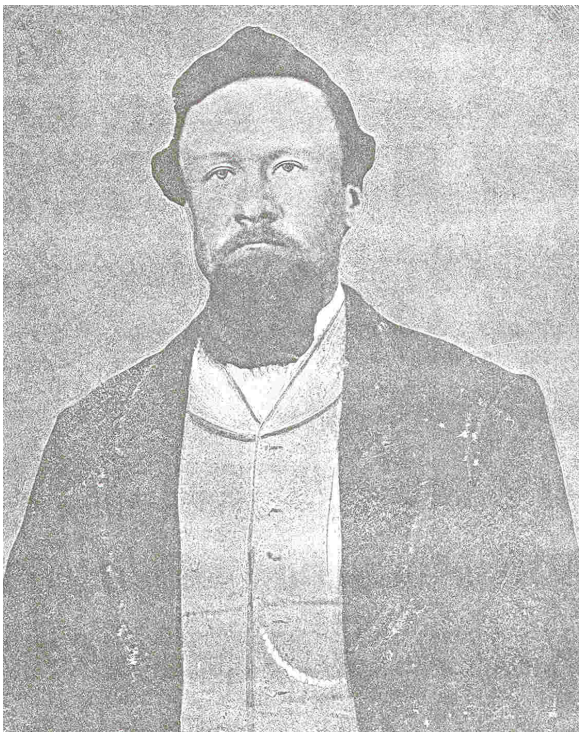
Descendant Floyd DeWitt told Tom Hahn on 5 July 2006 regarding Clarinda Curtis being buried in the McClure Cemetery:

> Two of her Granddaughters live in McClure. Mary Watrous [daughter of Carrie Curtis] married Art Gregory. (I knew both of them when I was a small child.) Also my grandmother Winifred Curtis, Winifred was married to Clinton DeWitt. Clinton DeWitt and [Janes Arthur] Art Gregory were half brothers. My Great Grandfather owned the Farm at the cemetery and also the cemetery. There was a picture taken at the farm in McClure, my Grandparents Clinton and Winifred, his brother Elton Floyd DeWitt, Winifred's brother Nathan Curtis, and Charles Gregory, were all heading to homestead in Montana. They stayed at Tom's [Tom Hahn] Great Grandmothers house [Addaline (Curtis) Owen] on the way out. My Grandparents and many uncles and aunts are buried in McClure. Art Gregory's brother George is buried very close to Clarinda Curtis. As an addition, here herewith a news item from the Deposit (New York) Courier of 3 February 1915: "Mrs. Mary Watrous is visitng her cousin Mrs. C. O. Hupman,"



The children of Nathan Curtis, Jr. and Clarinda Hood:

1. Caroline "Carrie" Curtis was born on 18 November 184, died on 7 April 1915 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Arthur Gregory, of Sanford. The funeral was at the daughter's home. Carrie was buried on 11 April 1915 in the Pine Grove Cemetery at Sanford. According to an local; newspaper obituary [unnamed], she "was survived by M. H. of Rochester, George of Elmira, Mrs. C. Sowles of Rockroyal, Mrs. Charles Winnie of Sydney, Mrs James S. Arthur Gregory of Sandford, Mrs. Ernest Rosencrantz and R. C. Watrous of this village [Sanford?]"

In 1895, Carrie married Sherman R.. Watrous. According to Mary Cable of Deposit, New York, "Sherman Watrous (1838-1914), residence Hale Eddy, farmer, entered military service 22 August 1862, rank private, in Company F. 137th Regiment, New York Volunteers, discharged 3 March 1863, length of service six months, discharged for general disability, died on 1 August 1914. He was born in Hale Eddy, New York and died in New York on 1 August 1914." He was also are buried in the Pine Grove Cemetery at Sanford. In the 1850 Census for Tompkins, Broome County, New York she enumerated as "Celinda," was age 2, born in New York; in the 1855 census for Tompkins, 1st Election District, she was age 7, born in Delaware County and had been there seven years; in the 1860 Census for North Sanford, Broome County, she was age 12 and called "Carrie."

i. Mary J. Watrous married on 28 July 1866 James Arthur "Art" Gregory. He was born 20 October 1874 and resided at Deposit, New York. Their children were Hayes Arthur Gregory, Grace E. Gregory, Winifred S. Gregory, and Nellie M. Gregory.

2. Dwight (Dewit) M. Royal Curtis was born about 1850, died on 2 January 1893 on South Street, Walton, Delaware County, New York and was buried on 5 January in the Walton Town Cemetery. He married Zeliatte Houck (Hawks), daughter of Rufus Houck and Phebe Lewis, on 30 September1874 in Hancock, Delaware County, New York. They were married by the Reverend Walsworth. (Delaware County Biographical Review) Zeliatte was born in 1856 on Walton. Delaware County, New York. She died on 16 Jun 1894 in Walton, Delaware County, New York. They had the following children:

i. Winifred "Winnie" M. Curtis was born in 1875 in Walton, Hancock County, New York and died in 1937. Winifred married Clinton William Dewitt, son of Marcus W. Dewitt and Elizabeth E. Reichard, on 5 August 1895 in Walton. Clinton was born in December 1872 in McClure, Delaware County, New York and he died in California. They had the following children:

a. Curtis Levant Dewitt was born on 11 August 1903 and died in 1993.

b. Floyd Arron Dewitt was born on 30 May 1909 and died in January 1978.

c. Benson Mead Dewitt was born on 24 September 1911 and died on 1 September 1993.

From a news item in the Deposit Courier of 16 May 2906, "McClure News." : Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Dewitt and son, Curtis, start on their western journey Wednesday. They expect to stop in Kansas, where they will visit Mrs. Dewitt's brother. Nathan Curtis, formerly of this place. After a short visit they will join Mr. Dewitt'd brothers, Charles Gregory and Elton Dewitt, in Fromberg, Montana."

ii. Nathan Ross Curtis was born on 6 December 1878 in Walton, Delaware County, New York He married Effie Jane Bradley on 6 December 1904 in Petersburgh, Illinois. Effie was born on 16 January 1878 in Petersburgh, Illinois. Three of their children were born in Illinois, two of them died young, Dwight R. surviving. Nathan and Effie moved to Kansas, but they moved to Montana where they lived next door to Clinton and Winifred DeWitt according to the 1910Census. Dwight and a daughter, Dorothy, were also living there. Dorothy married and had three girls. But, by 1920, Nathan and Effie were back in Kansas where a daughter Bertha was born about 1925. Later Nathan moved to California where he died on 4 July 1947 in San Diego. Dwight R. also lived in California. Effie died on 3 November 1957 in San Diego, California. They had the following children: [Needs editing]

Nathan Ross Curtis, bro. of Winifred, lived in Kansas (i think close to your GGrandmother) 3 of his children were born in ill. his wife (Effie Bradley) was from there. 2 children died young, 1 Dwight R. lived. Nathan ended up in Montana, they lived next door to Clinton and Winifred DeWitt on the 1910 census. Dwight and a dau. Dorothy were also living there, by 1920 he was back in Kansas, a dau. Bertha was born about 1925. He then moved to Calif. where he died, also Dwight R. died there. Dorothy married and had 3 girls. I could never trace Bertha.

a. Harold Bradley Curtis was born on 8 August 1908 in Menard, Illinois and died on 23 December 1908 in Menard, Illinois.

b. Dorothy Malinda Curtis was born on 1 March 1910. Dorothy married Robert Howard Sagar on 6 August 1929 in San Diego, California. Robert was born on 20 April 1905 in Frewsburg, New York and died on 31 May 1972 in National City, San Diego, California.

c. Raymond Leroy Curtis was born on 13 April 1913 in Kingman, Kansas and died on 13 September 1913 in Kingman, Kansas.

d. Bertha W. Curtis was born 1920 in Kansas.

iii. Bertha Curtis was born in 1879. She died in 1899 in Walton, Delaware County, New York and was buried in 1899 in the Walton Town Cemetery, Walton, Delaware County, New York. Bertha died in 1911.

3. Addaline "Addie" T. Curtis was born on 22 Apr 1851 and died on 3 March 1944.

4. Munroe "Munzo" Curtis was born in 1853 in Delaware County, New York and was christened on 16 March 1856 in the Baptist Church, Deposit, Delaware County, New York.

Floyd DeWitt commented that Nathan and Clarinda may have moved to this general area so as to be near Clarinda's parent--John Warren Hood and Jerusha Lewis--who were found at Cannonsville in the 1880 Census. This all helps me to understand why Addie Curtis was from Cannonsville when she married Orson Owen in 1867.

> Polly (Mary) Hulce Benedict, and her husband, Thaddeus Benedict, are listed as having died in Lansing and East Lansing, Iowa. That is not correct. There is no such place as East Lansing, Iowa. If there were it would have to be East Lansing, Wisconsin, as Lansing, Iowa, is on the Mississippi River. However, there was both a Lansing and an East Lansing, New York, in Tompkins County, just NW of Broome County, New York. However, Deposit, where the couple are buried, is in Delaware County, NY, not Broome county.]

MARGARET "MAGGIE" LOUISE OWEN

Margaret "Maggie" (Owen) Torgeson (Hahn Collection)

The Handwriting of Maggie Torgeson from her Bible (Hahn Collection)

Margaret "Maggie" Louise Owen was born on 13 September 1870 at Waverly, Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa. A note in her Bible says "My birth place, Margaret L. Torgeson." [and in a different hand, probably her mother's, Addaline (Curtis) Owen Varner] "You were born in Waverly, Bremer Co, Iowa." A note from Dorothy (Christensen) Waters [grand-daughter, daughter of Mary "Mae" (Torgeson)

Christensen and Robert "Bob" Christensen] to Thomas Hahn also says that she was born in Waverly. However, to date, no birth record has been found for her. It appears that her birthday was later than the enumeration of the 1870 Census at Waverly.

In a letter written by Margaret (Owen) Torgeson in 1939, she included an article that she had written, entitled. "A PIONEER LIFE."

> I wrote this one winter night after dad [Thomas Torgeson] passed away. It all seemed so real I had to write it. A Pioneer Life. When I was 1 year old [about 1871] my parents [Owen Anderson Owen and Addaline "Addie" T. (Curtis) Owen] moved to Kansas from Iowa where I was born. My father hired a man to bring us as they were moving out here. There were five families in all moving at that time in moving wagons drawn by oxen. It took six weeks to make the trip. We landed in the Solomon [River] Valley and lived for a time in a sod house with [a] ground floor and when it rained the only dry place was under the table. Our table was home made and our chairs were nail kegs and boxes. It was hard living for a time. Finally my father got a job on the [railway] section. As time wore on he was made section foreman, and that was his work for a good many years. Then he moved to Solomon City, still held his job. When I was between 8 & 9 we were moved to Parkerville, Kansas. For 4 years he was a section foreman, then he took over a job as a grain buyer for a man by the name of Joe Drake. When I was 13 years old my father bought a farm 3 1/2 miles from Parkerville. There was a large family of us, twelve in all. Never was there more than 4 at a time as sickness and death took from our loved ones. I had 5 brothers and 7 sisters. I never had a brother live to be 5 years old... I was married at an early age, 15 [in 1886]. I never had much girl life. I was married a year and 7 months when our first baby girl [Mary Mae Elizabeth Torgeson] was born [in] 1889. Our life was a busy one raising a family and working hard to care for them but we pulled through somehow. My second baby was born, a boy [Floyd Nathan Torgeson]. My how happy, a girl and a boy. We did not stop there. In 1891 another boy [Allan "Al" Nathan Torgeson] came. In 1893 a little girl [Mildred Anetta Torgeson] came to make us happy. In 1907 my father [Orson Anderson Owen] passed away and our oldest girl was married. It sure seemed sad to have it all come at once. One should not feel so when their children marry, but it leaves such a vacancy in the home it takes a while to live it down. In a year's time our oldest boy married. In the meantime we had births and deaths in our family, still we both kept right on working early and late, then sickness and death visited us. We had two little girls died [Mildred Anetta Torgeson and Merle Agatha Torgeson], just one year and three months between them.

Another girl [Florence Vivian Torgeson] took sick in another year. I began to feel like I was going to have all my little girls taken. Things took a turn for the better. I have raised them all up to a pretty good age. Four of them live close to me. Three others in other towns. My husband and I had our 50th anniversary. in 1937. My husband passed away in 1939. I have 12 grandchildren, 4 great-grandchildren. There have been some very interesting times in my life, some not so interesting. My life has been very full. Hard work, but lots of good times too. I don't know if I would have made it any different only it might have been better in some ways. One has to have just about so much suffering along with the good and the bad. he Lord has been with me through all. There have been times when I thought I could not bear no more, but the good Lord made everything possible for me to bear. Sometimes we seem to be far away, but if we come to him and ask for help he never turns away. He is always close by with his loving arms to protect and care for us. Since I have lost my companion I am still learning lessons.

Maggie Torgeson also said in a note: "I wrote this one night while Dad was sick [about 1939].

> TORGESON FAMILY. Mae [Mary Elizabeth] was first born 1887. 1 yr. 7 months later a boy [Floyd Nathan] came to us, then 2 1/2 later another boy ] came to bless our home, Allen [Nathan] by name. 1 yr. and 8 months another little girl came to us always welcome, Mildred [Anetta] was her name. 3 1/2 years still another girl, Florence [Vivian] by name. 2 Yrs later still another little one, a girl Merle [Agatha] was her name. 2 yrs later Katherine ["Kate" Margaret], still plenty of names. 2 years later another sister to all these girls, Gladys [Louise]- Brownie seemed to suit her better so she went by that name for a long time-then last but not least came Bernice [Imogene] which made 9 in number by the old saying is true the more the merrier. [She did not mention the deaths of Mildred at just over eight years and Merle at 2 1/2 years old, but she did later in a little item she wrote called "A Pioneer Life," above. "Mae was the first to leave home when she [was] at the age of 20, a little better than a year later Floyd took unto himself a companion-then no more marriages for a while. Allen was away from home a great deal, then he went away to war 1 1/2 yrs then he came home to be one of us for a while again. He worked for Torgeson Bros. for awhile then he went to Topeka, he then met his fate a very nice girl [Alice L. Kneith] and was married and started out for himself. Kate took a companion, Frank [Schump] by name.

> Later Florence took unto herself a husband [Walter Frederic Hahn] to care for her. There are two sweet girls [Gladys and Bernice] left to brighten a home for some good man, hope they get one. Mother and Dad have stood all of this fairly well." March 28, 1940. Kate's oldest son [Francis "Fran" Schump] took until himself a wife [Zita Southard], hope they have a happy life-also a contented one. 1940. Bernice took unto herself a companion [Thomas "Tom" Taggart] -hope for a happy married life.

In the Census 1880 for Parker Township, Morris County, Kansas, Orson Owen , her father, Orson Anderson Owen, enumerated as "O. Andrew Owen," was age 36 and was a railroad foreman. Her mother, Addie Owen, listed as "A. Francis T. Owen," was age 26 and was keeping house. Margaret Owen, enumerated as "Maggie "Owen, was age 10 and had attended school; her sister, Mary Owen was age 4 and had attended school; and her brother, Jackson A. Owen, was age 9 months. [He died young in Parker Township.] The only thing known of Margaret Owen's life in Parkerville was found in a newspaper item which said, "Parkerville Lyceum Declamation: Maggie Owen [at age 13 1/2]." (The [Morris County] Enterprise) From this we know that she attended school in Parkerville, but we are not sure where they lived at this time, that is, whether in town or in the country. Unfortunately, the 1885 Census entry for Margaret Owen and here family has not yet been located, but they were still living in Parker Township. It is not known whether or not her father was still a railroad foreman, but he was farming.

On 30 April 1886, Margaret "Maggie" Louise Torgeson married Thomas Torgeson , at her parents' home at Parkerville. (8 May 1886 White City Whig), although their wedding certificate says that they were married at Council Grove, Morris County, on 29 April. It it not known where they first lived at White City, but they later lived in a frame house across from the high school. The house was moved to a farm, perhaps in the 1960s.

The 1900 census says that they lived on Goodnow Street in White City. Tom Torgeson worked as a clerk in the grain business in a grain elevator and feed store for 13 years and was the Postmaster in White City (a Wilson appointee). Margaret lived the life of a housekeeper and a mother during these years. She had nine children: two boys and seven girls, two of whom died while they were living in White City.

Her children were:

1. Mary "Mae" Elizabeth Torgeson was born on 6 November 1887 at White City, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas. She married on 6 November 1907, possibly at the home of her parents in White City, Robert "Bob" H. Christensen. He was born on 12 December 1878 in Davis, now Geary, County, Kansas, died in 1944 at Junction City, and was buried in the Highland Cemetery there.

2. Floyd Nathan Torgeson was born at White City on 14 June 1889. He married first on 2 June 1910 in Kansas, Alice L. Kneith. She was born about 14 June 1899, died at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas on 22 January 1941, and was buried there. Alice was from Jamestown, South Dakota.

3. Allen "Al" Gerald Torgeson was born on 31 December 1891 in White City. He married on 30 November 1923, Sevena "Nev" Larsen of Napa at Napa.

4. Mildred Anetta Torgeson was born on 27 August 1893 at White City, died in White City on 1 September 1900, and was buried in the White City Cemetery. She died of typhoid fever, diphtheria, or brucellosis.

+5. Florence "Flo" Vivian Torgeson was born on 23 March 1897 at White City. Florence Torgeson he married on 5 September at Topeka, Kansas, Walter "Walt" Frederick Hahn. He was born on 28 October 1895 at Muncie (present Kansas City. Wyandotte County, Kansas), died on 4 February 1967 at the Veteran's Hospital at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas, and was buried in the Mount Hope Cemetery in that city. Florence died on 5 October 1999 at Shepherdstown, Jefferson County, West Virginia, was cremated at Smithsburg, Washington County, Maryland, and her ashes were inured at the Mount Hope Cemetery, Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas in the Spring of 2000.

6. Merle Agatha Torgeson was born in White City on 21 February 1899, died there on 21 September 1901, and was buried in the White Cemetery Cemetery. She died of either diphtheria or yellow fever.

7. Katherine "Kate Margarett Torgeson was born on 29 December 1900 at White City. She died on 23 May 1976 at Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri, and was buried there. She married on 22 May 1918 at Kansas City, Francis Schump.

8. Gladys Louise Torgeson was born on 15 June 1902 at White City and grew up there. She married first, in Topeka, on 1 July 1933, Jack Murphy. Gladys married second, Joseph "Joe" White, in Topeka. She died on 20 March 1978 at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas, and was buried in the Mount Hope Cemetery in Topeka.

9. Bernice Imogene Torgeson was born on 28 March 1904 at White City. She was christened on 15 December 1912 at White City. Bernice married Thomas "Tom" Taggart at the Trinity Methodist Church at Topeka on 28 March 1941. She is living in 2005.

Additional information on the children of Margaret and Thomas Torgeson can be found under the entry for her spouse, Thomas "Tom" Torgeson.

About 1926, Thomas and Margaret Torgeson retired to Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas where lived most of their lives in Topeka at 912 West l7th Street, a house that was still standing in 2004. Their children Florence, Floyd, Bernice, and Gladys lived in Topeka at one time or another. Gladys and Bernice lived on West 17th Street with their parents when they first moved to to Topeka. They lived together for several years. Their first house probably was just a block away from their parents. For several years they lived in the Toulon Apartment House in the 600 block of Topeka Boulevard, and then at 1124 High Avenue, next door to their sister, Florence and her family.

An unknown newspaper account of her Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary said: "Mrs. Torgeson, before her marriage was Margaret Owen, came to Kansas with her parents when she was 1 year old and settled in Solomon City..." (The remainder of the article is under Thomas Torgeson, her spouse.)

After retirement, Maggie and Tom Torgeson moved to Topeka on West Euclid Avenue) present West 17th. Not long after his death she moved to a smaller house on at 1843 Second Street, on the southeast corner of Second and Jewel Avenue, across the street from _____ Park to the north. In her later years, she later lived around with her children and sisters.

Margaret Torgeson was a quiet, dignified person who spent her life as homemaker. She was a good cook and a good house keeper. She enjoyed needlework and making quilts. She made nearly 100 quilts in her lifetime. Margaret liked to listen to the radio. The fondest memory of her grandson, Thomas Hahn, was making taffy and pulling it on the cold enclosed back porch in Topeka. My un-fondest memory is being put on the little landing to the basement which contained my nemesis--the awesome Hoover vacuum cleaner. She was at her sister Clara's home in Newton, Kansas when she died, on 29 October 1952. Her daughte, Bernice, and her spouse, Thomas Taggart, went to Newton from Goodland Kansas to make the necessary funeral arrangements. (Tom Hahn Photo)

Margaret Torgeson died at the Bethel/Deaconess Hospital, Newton, Harvey County. She had been visiting with her sister, Mary (Owen) Akey, in that city. Her certificate of Death, issued by the Kansas State Board of Health, and deposited with the Division of Vital Statistics as Registrar's No. 192/ No.52-015375, states:

General

Orson Anderson Owen was born on 1 September 1842 in Chardon, Geauga County, Ohio. It is not known why his parents where at that place, but they were in Broome County, New York, about 1836-1837 when their daughter, Catherine M. Owen was born there. (1850 Census) Orson was at Sanford, Broome Count with his parents in 1850. (1850 Census) Orson grew up in in probably a rural setting at with his three sisters at Sandford, Broome County, New York, as his father, Benjamin Owen, was a farmer. Orson worked on the farm and attended school. In 1855 at Sanford, Broome County, Orson was age 13, his father, Benjamin Owen, age 44, his mother Sarah Owen, age 38, his sister Kate, age 18, and his sister Francis, age 7. (1855 Census). He was listed as "Arson." The 1860 Census indicates that at age 18 he was living with his family, was a [farm] laborer at Sanford, Broome County and had attended school. His father, Benjamin Owen was 49, his mother, Sarah Owen, was 45, his sister Catherine was 20, and his sister Frances was 12 According to his charge Papers from the Civil War, We know that he was and had a 5 feet 6 1/2 inches high, and had a dark complexion, dark eyes, and black hair.

Orson joined the Union Army in 1862 and was discharged in 1865. Later, in 1865, at age 22, he was enumerated with his family at Sanford, Broome County, New York with his father, Benjamin Owen, and his mother, Sarah Owen. He had joined the Army 16th New York as a private and had served for three years with no wounds. (1865 Census)

Civil War Service

According to his Battery Muster-in Roll dated 10 December 1861, Orson Owen mustered into service in the Union Army on 31 January 1962, at Binghamton, for a period of three years at age 19. Much of the data in the following Service Records are duplicated, but each adds something different to his life and military service.

Orson Owen served in the Union Army in the Civil War. From his Discharge Papers, we know that:

> Orson A. Owen [was] a private of Captain R. H. Lee's 16th Independent Battery of New York Artillery VOLUNTEERS who was enrolled on the Thirty-first day of January one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two to serve three years or during the war. According to the hand-written "Discharge Papers of Broome County Soldiers in the Civil War, County Clerk's Office, Binghamton, New York," titled "Miscellaneous Records," provided by Deanna Peterson:

> "Orson A. Pvt. in Capt. R. N. Lee's 16th Independent NY Artillery, enrolled Jan. 31, 1862, discharged Feb. 7, 1865 at Federal Point, N.C.; born in Ohio; age 19 years; 5"6" and one half; complexion dark; hair black; occupation farmer."

The available "Battery Muster Rolls" show him present as a Private of the 16th Independent Battery of the New York Light Artillery: 28 February 1862; 30 April 1862; May and June 1862 Mustered in March 27 1862 [with a note, "Added Aug. 2 1910.]; July and August 1862; September and October 1862; November and December 1862; January and February 1863; May and June 1863; 10 April 1863; July and August 1863; September and October 1863; November and December 1863; January and February 1864; March and April 1864; May and June 1864; July and August 1864; September and October 1864; November and December 1864; January and February 1866 Mustered out of service by reason of expiration of term Feb 8.65. His "Muster-out Roll" said that he was last paid to 31 August 1864; that his clothing account was last settled 30 June 1864 and that he had drawn $19.92 since; that he was due $100 for bounty and that transportation was due from his place of discharge to place of enrollment; and, shoppage for one canteen lash. 45cents and one haversack 67cents, total $1.12. He appeared on the Battery Muster-out Roll dated Elmira, N.Y. July 6, 1865. The paper that said he was to be discharged was signed at the Headquarters, U.S. Forces, Fort Fisher, N.C., so that is perhaps where he was last assigned.

(Florence Hahn Letter of November 1982) Dad I went to Gettysburg the time we went with the Blanks to [postal] convention. We didnt want to go but didnt say so, as was their trip too and am glad we went. She was looking up an uncles gravesite. So Ive been to Gettysburg [too]. And watching the movie last night I thought about Grandpa Owen. I never heard mother say anything about his [Civil] war experiences. or him telling about it to her as a girl.

As mentioned, Orson was discharged on 6 July 1865 and his mail was to be delivered to Gulf Summit, Broome County, New York. According to a newspaper item on his wedding in 1867, he was from Gulf Summit. As also mentioned, Orson Orson was enumerated with his family at Sanford, Broome County, date of enumeration not known. Are Gulf Summit and Sanford one and the same, Gulf Summit being the mail address? Or did he in fact live separately from his family at Gulf Summit? Owen was married to Addaline "Addie" T. Curtis on 26 February [1867] at Deposit, Broome County New York by Reverend J. G. Oakley. There was a Certificate of Marriage, but so far we haven't found it. (Bureau of Pensions, Department of the Interior, letter of 26 February 1867.) An item in a Deposit newspaper said that "Orson A. Owen of Gulf Summit, NY married to Addie T. Curtis of Cannonsville, NY at Sherwood Hotel "in said village 26 Feb. 25 Feb 1867." Mary Cable of the Broome County Historical Society at Deposit, stated to Tom Hahn that, "The Sherwood House ... was first built as a store. Taylor Sherwood bought the store, enlarged it, and called it the Sherwood House. The date of its opening is unknown. Its name was changed in 1880 to the Central Hotel." Adaline Curtis was born on 22 April 1851 at Cannonsville, Delaware County, New York. She was the daughter of Nathan Curtis and Clarinda Hood. See her Biography for a more complete description of her life. Addaline Curtis.

There is no record of what Orson did for a living after he and Addie married, but he was probably a farmer as he had been and continued to be much of his life. It appears that Orson and Addie, his father and mother, and other members of the Owen and collateral families emigrated from New York to Iowa c1868. Orson was married on 26 February 1867, so Benjamin and his family probably left some time after that. There is no mention of Orson or his father or mother in the 1867 Census for Bremer County, Iowa, where they eventually moved.

One of his Civil War pension papers said that he was in New York until 1868. Orson's daughter, Elizabeth Owen, was born about 1868 in Michigan, as she appears at age 2 in the 1870 Census as being age 2. It seems likely, then, that at least some members of the family would have been there about that time, perhaps only long enough for Elizabeth's birth. Orson and the other members of the family who left New York were in Iowa in the 1870 Census. Most of them, including his parents, were at Waverly, Washington Township, Bremer County in the 1870 Census. Orson Owen -- enumerated as "Austin A.," the head of family, born in Ohio, was age 26, and a [probably farm] laborer, Adaline Owen, keeping house, was age 20, and Elizabeth Owen was age 2. Elizabeth, born in Michigan, was not listed in subsequent censuses, so she must have died young.

The next decade brought great changes to Orson Owen and his family. Their daughter, Margaret "Maggie" Louise Owen, was born on 13 September 1870 at Waverly, but about 1871, Orson and his family moved by oxcart from Iowa to the Solomon River Valley in Dickinson County, Kansas. She wrote in 1939 at Topeka, Kansas:

> I wrote this one winter night after dad [her husband, Thomas "Tom" Torgeson] passed away. It all seemed so real I had to write it. A Pioneer Life. When I was 1 year old [about 1871] my parents [Orson Anderson Owen and Addaline "Addie" T. (Curtis) Owen moved to Kansas from Iowa where I was born. My father hired a man to bring us as they were moving out here. There were five families in all moving at that time in moving wagons drawn by oxen. [We wish we knew who the other four families were.] It took six weeks to make the trip. We landed in the Solomon [River] Valley and lived for a time in a sod house with [a] ground [dirt] floor and when it rained the only dry place was under the table. Our table was home made and our chairs were nail kegs and boxes. It was hard living for a time. Finally my father got a job on the [railway] section. As time wore on he was made section foreman, and that was his work for a good many years. Then he moved to Solomon City, still held his job. When I was between 8 & 9 [1878-1879] we were moved to > Parkerville, Kansas. For 4 years he was a section foreman, then he took over a job as a grain buyer for a man by the name of Joe Drake. When I was 13 years old [1883] my father bought a farm 3 1/2 miles from Parkerville. There was a large family of us, twelve in all. Never was there more than 4 at a time as sickness and death took from our loved ones. I had 5 brothers and 7 sisters. I never had a brother live to be 5 years old.

Although there was an 1875 Kansas Census, Orson Owen and his family were not found in that census in Dickinson County or Morris County. However, the writing of the microfilm was very faint and difficult to read, so he m might have been missed. Their daughter, Mary Owen was born about 1876, but it is not known where. (1880 Census) Their son, Willie Owen, was born about 1879 in Parkerville, Parker Township, but he died on Wednesday, July 6th 1879. (The Morris County Enterprise, July 1879) Curiously, in June 1880 it appears that Orson was in Council Grove: " O. A. Owens of Council Grove was interviewing his friends in Parkerville and White City yesterday. Also, later in that year, "O. A. Owens has moved into the house of the Minney property." (Morris County Enterprise, 4 November 1880) In the Census 1880 for Parker Township, Morris County, Kansas, Orson Owen , listed as O. Andrew Owen, was age 36 and a railroad foreman. Addie Owen, listed as A. Francis T. Owen, was age 26 and keeping house. Their daughter, Maggie Owen, was age 10 and had attended school; daughter Mary Owen was age 4 and had attended school; son Jackson A. Owen was age 9 months. [He died young. in Parker Township.] Their daughter, Elizabeth Owen, who had been born in Michigan, about 1868, was not in this census, but it is not known whether she died in Iowa or Kansas. O. Anderson on 31 October 1881 was paid an indenture of $553.93, but we don't know what this was for. Regarding his job on the railroad was this newspaper item, "O. A. Owens, section foreman at this place [Parkersville, probably], is now working six men on the road and he will still want more. Now is a good chance for parties to secure work through the summer at $1.20 per day." (The Morris County] Enterprise, 2 June 1881)

It seems apparent that Orson was farming as well. "O. A. Owens left a sample of Fultz wheat in our office this week which will be hard to beat. It is four feet in length and the heads are long and well filled, and give promise of a good yield. This was raised on high prairie land." (Ibid., 9 June 1881) And, O. A. Owens this week showed a sample of fall wheat which was grown on his farm near this city that measured 39 inches in height. It had commenced to head and Mr. Owens said he had never had a better stand or a brighter prospect for a large yield than this year. (Ibid., 18 May 1882) And, O. A. Owens showed us a sample of his wheat this week that was excellent. He will harvest within the next two weeks. (Ibid., 8 June 1882) This wheat may have been grown on land that bought in November 1881: "17 November 1881. Owen, O. A. Grantor Union Pacific Ry Company. Vol. O, p. 4-7 N 1/2 of NW 1/4 of Section 5 Twp 15 R7 83.88 acres [An Indenture dated 31 Oct. 1881 $553.93 duly paid ma be associated with this transaction.]" (Morris County Deed Book. Orson was involved in local matters, as in April 1882,Orson was on the Parkerville City Council (Ibid., Morris County Enterprise, 6 April 1882). Orson seems to have been proud of the products he grew on his far, "O. A. Owen left with us this week a sample of corn that would be hard to beat. It was grown on sod; the first crop, and it is better than the average grown on old land." (Ibid., 19 September 1884)

For some reason, Orson Owen and his family could not be found in the 1885 Census for Parker Township, Morris County, Kansas, even though they should have been there. That is a shame, as there was an Agricultural Census that year which would have provided interesting information about the family. She was known as "Sarah Clara." Orson bought additional land in 1887. " 7 Nov. 1887. Owen, O. A. UP Ry Co. Warranty Deed Vol. Y p.555. SW4 [of] NW4 Sec [of] Sec 5 T15 R7 40 acres. [$265.15 9 Sep.]" Their daughter, Sarah Clarinda "Clara" Owen, was born in probably Parker Township in 1888. (1895 Census) In the 1895 Census for Parker Township, Orson "O. A. Owen," a farmer, was age 51; Addeline Owen was age 51; daughter Mary Owen was age 18; daughter Clara Owen was age 7 and had attended school; daughter Margaret "Maggie" Owen was not in this census with the Owen Family because she had married in 1886 and was living in White City, Morris County, Kansas, with her husband, Thomas "Tom" Torgeson." The good thing about this census is that there was an agricultural census un which the Owens were included. From it we have a better picture of their "farming life." O. A. Owen had 90 acres in farm with 55 acres under cultivation, 40 acres under wire fence. The value of the farm was $900, the value of improvements and machinery was $400. There were 35 acres corn planted, 20 acres of oats and 100 pounds of butter were made. He had 4 horses, 2 milk cows, 21 other cattle, and 2 swine, with the value of animals $27. There were 40 apple trees, 60[?] peach trees, 50 cherry trees, 60[?] apple trees not bearing, and 1 dog.

In the Census: 1900 Kansas, Morris County, Parker Township, Orson is listed at the same dwelling as John Lunde and daughter, Josephen, Family 64. [I am not sure what this means. It may be that these two were tenants on his farm. Editor] Orson's was Family 65. Orson Owen, a farmer, was age, 57, born in September 1842 in Ohio, and his father was born in Massachusett and his mother was born in New York. He owned free farm No. 38 free of mortgage. His wife, Addeline Owens, was age and was the mother of 9 children, 4 living. Clara Owen was age 12 and had attended school 6 months. Martha Owen was age 3. In the Agricultural Census: 1905 Kansas, Morris County, Parkerville Township, Kansas Historical Research Center, Topeka, Kansas, A. Owen, at age 62, was a farmer, and Adaline Owen was age 54. They now only had 2 1 1/2 acres with a cash value $600, $20 cash value of buildings, with 30 chickens sold. Of general interest, the following prevalent wages, in dollars and cents, were taken from this census:

> Farm labor 20 [per month] with board. In cities, [per day] laborer 1.50. carpenter 2.00, mason 2.00, house painter 1.50, servant 2.50 per week, clerks 1.50. Wheat 80c/bushel, corn 50c/bushel, fat cattle 5c/ lb., milk cow $30, fat hogs 4 1/2c/lb, shoat hogs 4c/lb. Also, according to the Morris County Enterprise, 28 April 1883: There were 772 inhabitants in Parkerville Township.

Civil War Pension Papers

There was a considerable amount of correspondence between Orson Owen and the United States Pension Bureau concerning his modest Civil War Pension. Most of it concerns the amount of the pension based on Orson's pension based on his declining health beginning about 1890 when he was 48-years old. It appears that most of Orson's health problems were those that would have been to most farm-working men at the time: (1890) "He was unjustly reduced from $10 to $6 [per month]. "Unable to earn a support by reason of rupture." (1891) "Had inguinal hernia." (1897) "New disabilities rheumatism and dispepsia [dyspepsia]." "Mo medical records found [from Civil War Records." "I can do light work only." (1898) General Affidavit; Age 30, residing Parkerville, "Most of the time is incapacitated for manual labor. He is a man of temperate habits." "Wife's maiden name Addaline T. Curtis, married at Deposit NY 26 February 1867 by Rev. J. G. Oakley and had Certificate of Marriage from the same." (1898) Age 56. "I claim to be totally incapacitated for the performance of manual labor by reason of said disabilities." (1900) "Zadock Baker declared him to be honest and industrious and sober" (1900) "Ailments came on gradually and "was not due to vicious habits." (1900) Living child Sarah Clarinda Owen born 4 Apr 1888, Martha N. born 22 February 1897." "Now has disease of kidneys. height 5'9", weight 155." Orson Owen died 26 April 1908 at Parkerville, Parker Township, Morris County, Kansas. "He was found in the barn dead. He had diabetes but I dont remember that, or that he had been sick. (Florence Hahn to Nat Hahn in July perhaps 1978.) He was buried in the Parkerville Cemetery. His grave had a Civil War Veteran's marker. The inscription on the stone monument says, "O. A. Owen 16 N. Y. L. A. [New York Light Infantry] ((Ancestry. com Internet 25 Dec. 2000, Image 1254) Thomas Hahn, Orson's great-grandson, has a photo of his burial stone but he and Chris Hahn, Orson's great-great-grandson, could not find grave site on 26 June 1998. Darrel Haley says that Charles Bob Strom of White City confirms that the grave marker is still there. (Village Press, White City, KS 66872-9303) He has, or there is, a plat of the cemetery that was founded by a Masonic Lodge. Email 6 March 2001 to Thomas Hahn from Tammy Tillich (ttillich@tctelco.net): I found Orson A. Owen's well as Adeline listed in Volume II of the Cemetery Volumes...Owen is simply listed as O. A. Orson Owen and Addaline (Curtis) Owen had nine or ten children, four of them whom lived to maturity. According to their daughter, Maggie Owen, "There was a large family of us, twelve in all. [That number would have included Orson and Addie.] The five children who didn't survive were their sons. It appears that we are missing the names of one Owen son who died young. The known children of Orson Owen and Addaline Curtis were:

1. Elizabeth Owen was born in Michigan about 1868. She died sometime between the 1870 Census and the 1880 Census.

2. Margaret "Maggie" Louise Owen was born on 13 September 1870 at Waverly, Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa. She married on 29 or 30 April 1886 at Council Grove or Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas, Thomas "Tom" Torgeson. He was born 29 September 1859 near Bygland, Easy Agder, Norway. Thomas Torgeson died on 30 March 1939 and was buried on 2 April 1939 at the White City Cemetery, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas. Margaret died on 29 October 1952 at Newton, Harvey County, Kansas and was buried in November 1952 in the the White City Cemetery, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas. (See her complete entry under Margaret "Maggie" Louise Owen.)

3. Willie Owen was born about 1877 in Parkerville, Parker Township, Morris County, Kansas and died on Wednesday, July 6th 1879 " "Died of Diptheoric Croup, Willie, only son of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Owens, in his second year." (The Morris County Enterprise, July 1879)

4. Mary E. Owen was born in 1876 and died about 1970 in Kansas. She married Herbert Akey. I have a note that she also married Clifford Brewer? She was in the Census 1920 at Lyons County, Kansas.

5. Jackson A. Owen was born in 1879 age 9 months at Parkersville, Parker Township, Morris County, Kansas. He died young there. (1880 Census)

6. Sarah Clarinda "Clara" Owen was born on 7 April 1885 and died at age 94 on 29 August 1979 in Morris County, Kansas. She was buried in 1979 in Milford, Morris County, Kansas. She married first George Baker. He was born in 1873 and was buried in 1938 in Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas. She married second Amos Reed.

7. Andrew Jackson Owen was born on 27 July 1880 in Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas and died on 16 August 1884 in Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas. He was buried in Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas.

8. G. Washington G. Owens Owen was born on 18 Jan 1883 in Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas. "O. A. Owens now has a son who will answer to the name of G. Washington G. Owens." (The [Morris County] Enterprise, 5 April 1883.p.3)

9. Martha Norma Owen was born on 22 February 1897. (Orson Owen Pension Folder #68, Docket A-70) he married Oscar Brown, a veterinarian. By law, because Martha was not adult when her father and because, because, apparently by Kansas law, her mother didn't automatically become her "guardian," and in answer to the requirements of the U.S. Pension Office, the Judge of the Probate Court of Morris County appointed Addie Owen Martha's guardian on 17 June 1908. According to the Social Security Death Index: Martha Owen Brown. Death Date: 10 December 1994. Place of Death: Henderson, North Carolina. Residence: Henderson, North Carolina, 97 years. Birth Date: 22 February 1897. State of Birth: Kansas

Adaline T. Curtis with Her Daughter, Martha Norma, and her nephew, Nathan Ross Curtis, ca.1900. He was the grandson of Nathan Curtis -- Addie's father -- and the son of Dwight (Dewitt) Royal. M. Curtis and Zeliaette Hawk (Houck). At this time Addie lived at Parkerville, Kansas. She does not look well in this photograph. Note that she was about age 47 when she gave birth to Martha. Palmer Owens) was probably born about 1789-1790 in possibly Dutchess County, New York. He married Catherine "Kate" _____ about 1810. She was born about 1790, probably in New York. According to the 1850 census he was born in Connecticut and Catherine was born in New York. According to the 1855 census, he was born in Dutchess County, New York and she was born in Westchester County, New York. The 1865 Census also says that she was born in Connecticut. In the 1870 census, in the entry for his son, Amos, it says that both he and Catherine were born in Connecticut. So, their birth places have not yet been proven.

There was a Palmer Owen in the War of 1812, but there is no proof that it was the subject Palmer Owen. However, we have never seen any other Palmer Owen in New York, so it seems reasonable that it is he. One record regarding 1812 service says, "For the following pensioners of 1812, or their widows, one hundred and sixty acres of land a piece were obtained through the agency of Levi Seley: Palmer Owen, [and nineteen others." (Source to be added when found.) In a message from Deanna Peterson on 6 June 2005, we now have further information of Palmer Owen's 1812 service:

> There was a Palmer Owens in the 5th Artillery and Infantry (Colden's) New York Militia. He was a private in Capt. Zachariah Flagler's Company of Artillery, New York State Militia. He was on the Company Pay Roll Sept & Oct 1814. Commencement of service or of this settlement, September 13, 1814. Expiration or service or of this settlement, October 19, 1814, Term of service charges, 1 month 7 days. Amount of pay 9 dollars 80 cents. Remarks: discharged Sick 11 October 1814. Residence Berne, Albany County. Another card is the Company Muster Roll for September 10 to October 22, 1814. Date of enlistment shown as 13 September 1814. Remarks: discharged Sick 11 October 1814. [However, this is the only time that we have seen Berne, Albany County as his place of residence.]

There is not much known of Palmer Owen's life other than the fact that he was a Methodist Minister (History of Delaware County, 1797-1880, p. 349). We know that he had land from indenture below and the fact that he sold land to his son, Benjamin Owen. (Source to be added later.] That probably means that he was a farmer, albeit perhaps on a small scale, as well. The only public record of him that we have found so far was an indenture (1866), that provides information on Palmer's children and a description of his land.

> This indenture, made this first day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty five, Between Benjamin D. Owen, Amos R. Owen, Salley A. Piney, Betsy A. Alexander, Eli W. Owen, James R. Owen of the first part and Clarisa C. Graves of Sandford Broome County New York of the second part. Witnesseth. That the said parties of the first part in considerations of the sum of one hundred dollars to them in hands paid by the party of the second part, the receipt whereof, is hereby confessed and > acknowledged, have bargained, sold, remised, and quit claimed, and by these presents, do bargain, sell, remise and quit claim unto the said party of the second part, Clarisa C. Graves and to her heirs and assigns forever All or right, title and interest as heirs at law of Palmer Owen, late of Sanford Broome County New York, diseased [deceased] in and all that certain piece or parcel of lands lying in the Town of Sandford, being in rear lot no. 25 in Randolph township and subdivision no. 1 Broome Tract being in the north half of said lot....containing forty one 25/100 acres of land, being the same more or less, being the same premises owned and occupied by said Palmer Owen....E. W. Knapp. Justice of the Peace. Recorded September 7, 1866 1:245 p.m. A. T. Eggleston, Dep. Clerk. [Details of the metes and bounds and extraneous legal language were not included herein.]

Palmer died on 23 January 1864 at age 74. He was buried in the Methodist Cemetery at Sanford, Broome County, New York. [His birth year and place of birth was deduced from census records; his death year is from New York Cemetery Records, Methodist Church [Cemetery?, p.137; his birth year may have been from another, unknown book listing burials in cemeteries, p.3.] A year after Palmer's death in 1764, Catherine was living, at age 75, with her daughter, Clarissa Graves, and her husband, James Graves. (1865 Census for Sandford, Broome County. Catherine was buried in the Methodist Church Cemetery at Sanford, Broome County, New York. She died on 16 December 1866 at age 75 and was buried in the Methodist Church Cemetery at Sanford. (Unknown book on listing of burials in cemeteries, p. 3 and New York Cemetery Records, Methodist Church [Cemetery?] One researcher said that she had seen Palmer and Catherine's graves in the Methodist Cemetery, but three others of us have been there and could not find them, possibly because the grass and weeds were so high and the hill so steep that most grave markers were hard to find. Someone needs to go there in the dead of the winter to take a look.

According to the 1865 census, Catherine had 12 children. From the 1860 census it appears that Palmer and Catherine had at least six sons and three daughters.

1865 New York Census for Sanford, Broome County. Palmer is not in the census, but his widow, Catherine is, with her daughter Clarissa (Owen) Graves and her husband, James H. Graves and their family. Catherine at age 78 was reported as being born in Connecticut. See Clarissa's entry below.

According to the 1865 Census for Sandford, Broome County, New York, Catherine Palmer [and presumably Palmer Owen] had 12 children. From the 1860 census it appears that Palmer and Catherine had at least six sons and three daughters. The children that have been identified are:

1. Benjamin D. Owen was born on 18 January 1812 (Census: 1900 US, Iowa, Boone County, Garden Township) He died on 18 December 1902 in Garden Township, Boone County, Iowa. He was buried in Lot 199, Grave 4 in the Fairview Cemetery in Douglas Township, Madrid, Boone County. (Fairview Cemetery Association Record & Map) He married Sarah (Sary) Hulce. (See his entry in the Benjamin Owen Family)

2. Amos R. Owen was born about 1813 in Broome County, New York. He married Rachel _____. Amos was in the 1835 New York Census in Sanford, Broome County, p.3; the 1855 New York Census in Sandford 1st District, Broome County: Amos Owens, age 42; Rachel Owens 38, wife; Mary Owens, age 18; Ester Owens, age 9; Palmer Owens, age 5 months; the 1860 US New York Census in Conklin, Broome County; the 1870 US New York Census in Conklin, Broome County; the 1875 New York Census in Conklin, Broome County; and, the 1870 New York Census for Kirkwood [?], Broome County, he is listed at age 67, was born in New York, his father was born in Connecticut, and his mother was born in Connecticut, Rachel at age 63 was born in New York father born Connecticut and mother born New York. Census Index 1875 in Conklin, Broome County, New York. Census 1880 Conklin, Broome County. Listed as Parent of Etti Vance Owens, Amos Owens, at age 67, was born in New York, his parents were born in Connecticut; Rachel Owens, at age 63, was born in New York, her father was born in Connecticut and her mother was born in New York.

3. Salley E. Owen was born about 1815. She married John Pinney who was born about 1809 (The year of the marriage was from the New York 1850 Census for Sanford, Broome County New York, p. 183.) They went to Iowa sometime before 1870 as they were enumerated there in the 1870 Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa Census in Bremer County (National Archives Microfilm Series M593, Roll 378, p.321, enumerated 15 August 1870): John Pinney age 60, farmer with real estate worth $3,400 personal property $1,640], was born in New York; Sally Pinney at age 55, keeping house, was born in New York; Horace Pinney, at age 23, farmer, was born in New York; George Pinney, age 20, farmer, was born in New York.

4. Betsy A. Owen was born about 1822 in New York. (1860 Census for Colesville, Broome County, New York) She married William Alexander probably before 1845. (Based on the oldest child in the census of 1860.). (The marriage is based on the 1866 Indenture re Palmer Owen's will and on the 1860 census for Colesville, Harpersville Post Office, Broome County, New York) in 1866. Betsy relinquished her inheritance of a share of her father's land under his will to her sister, Clarissa Owen.

Census 1850 New York. Where are Betsy about age 28 and William Alexander, about age 32? There was supposed to have been born in New York.

Betsy Alexander does not appear in the 1870 census, although her spouse and four children do. It appears that Betsy (Owen) Alexander died sometime between the 1865 census and the 1870 census and that is why Harriet Alexander is living with her aunt and uncle in the 1870 census. Of the girls, only Arletta Alexander is living with her father, as the housekeeper.

8. Clarissa C. Owen was born about 1835 at Sanford, Broome County, New York. (The LDS International Genealogical Index shows her name as Clarissa Mary Owens.) She married James Henry Graves before 1855 in New York. He was born at Masonville, Delaware County, New York on 26 September [probably] 1828 and he died on 3 October

1915 at Newton, Harvey County, Kansas. She died before 1871.

In the 1850 US New York Census for Sandford, Broome County, Clarissa Owen was enumerated with her parents. In the New York 1855 Census for Sanford, Broome County, Clarasa Graves was enumerated at age 20, was born in Broome County, had lived in Broome County 20 years; James Graves, at age 28, was born in Delaware County, was a farmer, and had lived in Broome County 6 years; Laura was 6/1/2 and had lived in Broome County 6 1/2 years. Catherine Graves, mother [of James Graves], was 73, had been born in Dutchess County, and had been in Broome County 6 1/2 years.

In the 1860 Census for Sandford, Broome County, New York, p. 880, Line 15. Dwelling 1765 Family 1765 James Graves was age 32, a farmer with real estate $10,000 and personal property $400, was born in New York; Clarissa Graves was age 28 and was born in New York; Louise Owen was age 6 and was born in New York; and, Catherine Owen [Palmer Owen's widow] was 70[?] 76[?] and was born In Connecticut. The family next door, line 9, at Dwelling 1764 Family 1764, was that of Benjamin Stiles 42, a farmer with real estate value $15,000 and personal property $830, was born in New York, and his wife, Elizabeth [Stiles] at age 36; Seldin Stiles,. age 17, a laborer, had attended school, was born in New York; Anne Stiles, age 15, was born in New York and had attended school; John Stiles, age 12, was born in New York, had attended school; Alice Stiles, age 9, was born in New York, had attended school. Elizabeth was the sister of James Graves, the spouse of Clarissa Owen. On the other side of Clarissa and James Owen on line 19, Dwelling 1766 Family 1766 was was James L. Owens, age 51, a farmer with $200 real estate, personal property $700, was born in New York; Mary Owen, age 51[?], was born in New York; Mary Owen, a teacher, was born in New York; Harriet Owen, age 18, was born in New York, Ann Owen, age 12, was born in New York. Who is this family?

[To be worked into the text below. Editor] Deanna Peterson Email to Tom Hahn 15 October 2002: I have about decided that Clarissa died between 1 June 1870 and 16 Aug 1870. The information that I have says the census lists everyone who was living in the house on June 1. However, the actual census was taken 16 Aug 1870. What makes me think this is that Clarissa is listed after her daughters on the census which I find unusual. Therefore, my thinking was that perhaps she was living there on June 1, but had died before 16 Aug.

So the census taker might have said something like, "Was anyone else living here on June 1?"

CENSUS: 1920 in Independence Township, Appanoose County, Iowa, p. 112A, line 25, there is a Clarissa Owen 87, mother-in-law, living with Thomas L. Patterson, [no wife listed], born Iowa on Farm 113. This would make her birth date about 1833, matching pretty well the birth year of Clarissa in 1835. In 1837 in Iowa would there have been much of a population?

In the 1865 Census for Sanford, Broome County, New York, James H. Graves was age 38, was born in Delaware County, a farmer, a landowner; Clarissa Owen, his wife, was age 30, was born in Broome County; Laura Owen, his daughter, was age 10, was born in Broome County; Flora Owen, his daughter, was 3 7/12, was born Broome County; Catherine Graves, his mother, was age 75, was born in Connecticut, the mother of 12 children, a widow; Harriet Alexander, age 13, a servant, was born in Broome County. Clarissa died on 3 October 1915 at Newton, Harvey County, Kansas.

On 1 August 1866, Clarissa bought from her siblings the land that they [and Clarissa] had inherited from their father who had died in 1764. The land is described in the entry for Palmer Owen, above. This land has not been plotted on a modern topographical map, but it appears that the land was "home land" of Palmer and his family and that Clarissa's purchase was so that she and her family and her mother, Catherine, Palmer's widow, could live there? Catherine Palmer died in December 1866, so maybe that minimized one of the reasons for Clarissa's purchase. Or was it purchased for some other reason? It appears that was one reason Benjamin Owen (and his son, Orson A. Owen and his wife, Addeline Curtis) and Sally (Owen) Pinney (Piney) sold their inheritances as they went to Iowa to live sometime before 1870, as Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa, was where they were enumerated in the 1870 census. Perhaps Clarissa and James Graves changed their minds about New York once Catherine Owen died in 1866 as they too went to Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa. It is not known when they went, or whether the families went separately, but they were all enumerated in the 1870 census.

In the 1870 Census for Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa, National Archives Microfilm Series M593, Roll 378, pp. 321-322, Line 27, Dwelling 54, Family 52, James H. Graves, was enumerated on 16 August 1810 at age 44, a farmer with personal property worth $1,100; Laura Graves, at age 16, was at home, attended school; Flora Graves, at age 8, was at home; Clarissa Graves at age 35 was Keeping House. All were born in New York.

We don't know when Clarissa Graves died and where she was buried. It has been pointed out that it is curious that Clarissa was listed last in the 1870 census above; usually the wife is listed next below the husband if he is the head of the household, which he is in this case. Is it conceivable that Clarissa died between 1 June, when the census began, and the date of enumeration of 16 August? The next thing we know is that James Graves evidently moved to Nebraska as he was enumerated in the Hamilton, Hamilton County, Nebraska 1880 Census (5-99-4-22[?]). In 1885, James Graves was enumerated with Charles and Flora Bishop [his daughter] and their family in the 1885 Nebraska Census for Broken Bow, Custer County, Nebraska on line 84, at age 58, a farmer, with also George Bishop, at age 69 and E. Mary Bishop [Charles's Bishop's parents?] and their daughter, Rose Bishop, age 10. James Graves died on 3 October 1915 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charlie Bishop, one and a half miles west of Newton, Harvey County, Kansas and was buried in Newton in the Greenwood Cemetery. In the 1900 Soundex for Harvey County, Kansas, James Graves was listed at 523 West Ninth Street in Newton with Charles Bishop, his son-in-law Edna Graves, a sister-in-law of Charles. His obituary in the Kansas Republican for 4 October 1915, said that he was survived by his daughter, Mrs. Josephus Brown of Newton, a son, J. H. Graves of Oklahoma, and four grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

THE PORTER FAMILY

[There is unfinished work here. Editor]

Of particular assistance to me in ensuring that this is an accurate account of the Porter Family is the research of J. T. Lamkin multimodal@juno.com .Most of the data are from him. The documentation is meticulous and shows just what historical research is all about. Those with additional, corroborative, or conflicting documentation should send what they have to that E-mail address and to this web site swiftwater@lenapedelawarehistory.net . Lamkin attributes much of the credit to John M. and John A. Porter.

1. John PORTER is the earliest ancestor that we have proven in the Porter Family Line of our interest. He was born 1695-1720. It has been suggested that John was born in Ulster County, Ireland and that emigrated from there, first to Pennsylvania, and then to Prince Edward County, Virginia. However, no proof of that has been found. There have been attempts to link John Porter to, successively, Thomas Josiah Porter, George Porter [Jr.], George Porter [sr.], and Endymion Porter of England, but that link has not been proven. It is mentioned to alert researchers to look for possible English ancestors of John Porter, but not to add it to these ancestries as such. In fairness to the author, Olive Swann Porte, who provides the interesting story of the Porters back to the 1400s in Warwickshire in her article "A Genealogical Record of the Porter Family of England and America" she might be right. The basic problem is that there are no citations of documentation accompanying it. The principal impediment is the proving that Thomas Porter was John Porter's father. Additionally, undocumented data in the Word Family Tree gives John Porter's father as Samuel Porter, born 1673-1696 in Norfolk County, Virginia and his mother as Mary Sidney. She born between 1695-1711. Those who believe that John Porter married in Virginia point to the fact that there was a large Anthony Family in Henrico County, Virginia, some of who moved to Prince Edward County about the time of its formation.

The first evidence we find of John Porter is the 1755 tithable list for the newly-formed Prince Edward County, Virginia area. In addition to John Porter, the listing includes Hugh Porter and Andrew Porter, but there is no proof of a direct relationship among them. None of the three show a prior presence in the area by being in the 1750 Amelia County tax records. [Amelia County was the parent county of Prince Edward County.] In Prince Edward County, John Porter lived along Vaughan Creek and Spring Creek. (Captain John N. Porter, "History of

John Porter first married Mary "Polly Anthony about 1740. She was born about 1715-1730. Her father was said to be William Anthony and her mother Alice _____ [Documentation needed]. Mary Anthony died before October 1773 in Prince Edward County, Virginia (or about 1769), possibly in the childbirth of her daughter, Rachel Porter) [Source needed.] Unfortunately, that is, about all that we know of the Anthony Family.

John Porter married second, Ann Dixon, on 13 October 1773, in Prince Edward County or Bedford County, Virginia. [Source needed.] She was born about 1724 (or 1730). Ann married first, John Carson, who died in 1762, and second, Walter Eakin/Akin, who died about 1771. John Porter died in Prince Edward County, Virginia, in 1781.

It appears that John Porter was active in community affairs. For example, The Porter History (annotation, p.2) says:

> John Porter was a close associate of Rev Richard Sankey who was alleged to have been born in Ulster County, Ireland; served on the third Prince Edward County, Virginia property processing (boundary confirmation) committee 1767; signed with three sons [Nat. Porter, Wm. Porter, and Jno. Porter, Jr., along with Hugh and Samuel Porter] the Petition of Sundry Inhabitants for religious freedom on 24 September 1776 [See the text of this petition, just below.]; and may have fought in the Revolution as part of the militia. [One family researcher says that John Porter may have served at Yorktown, but that is unsupported and unlikely because of his age and his death about 1781; no record of him in the Revolutionary War or the militia have been found.]

> To the Honourable the President and House Delagates of the Commonwealth of Virginia, to to meet at Williamsburg the first Tuesday in October 1776. The Petition of Sundury of the Inhabitants of Prince Edward County, respectfully sheweth, That we heartily approve, and chearfully submit ourselves to the form of Government adopted at your last session; hoping that our united American States will long continue free and Independent. The last Article of the Bill of Rights we also esteem as the rising Sun of religious Liberty, to relieve us from a long night of ecclesiastic Bondage: and we do most earnestly request and expect that you would go on to complete what is so nobly begun; and will raise religious as well as civil liberty to the Zenith of Glory, and make Virginia an Asylum for free enquiry, knowledge and the virtuous of every Denomination. Justice to ourselves and Posterity, as well as regard to the honor of the Common Wealth, makes it our indispensable Duty, in particular to intreat, That without Delay, you would pull down all Church Establishments; abolish every Tax upon Conscience and private judgement; and leave each Individual to rise or sink according to his Merit, and the general Laws of the Land. The whole amounts of what we desire is, That our Honourable Legislature would blot out every vestige of British Tyranny and Bondage, and define accurately between civil and ecclesiastic authority; then leave our Lord Jesus Christ the Honor of being the sole Lawgiver and Governor in his Church; and every one in the Things of Religion to stand or fall to him; he being in this respect the only rightful Master: And your Petitioners as in duty bound, shall ever pray. Note that at least two persons, Jno. Grinter, whose son, Francis Grinter, later married Rachel Porter, and John Thompson, under whom John Grinter served as an apprentice, were associated with the Porters later in Kentucky. John Porter died before 1781 in Prince Edward County, Virginia. His spouse, Ann (Dixon) Porter died after 1781, in probably Prince Edward County or Campbell County. John Porter named her in his will, by saying, "I give and bequeath to my dear wife Ann Porter one negro fellow named Mick during her natural life & and at her death said fellow to be sold, & the price to be equally divided among all my children, and my negro wench named Bett to be sold at my decease & the price to be equally divided between my wife & all my children." And, "my dear wife Ann is to have her third of the land & the benefit of the dwelling house during her natural life & her third of all my stock of every kind & her third of all my household goods & furniture with a chest, saddle and bridle off the whole with use of the office houses.

WILL OF JOHN PORTER

This is the will of John Porter [emphasis added]: Prince Edward Co., VA. Will of John Porter (Sr.), 1781 In the name of God Amen. I John Porter of Prince Edward County in Virginia being in perfect sense and memory, calling to mind my mortality, do make and ordain this my last will and Testament. First, I give my soul to God who gave it; and my body to the earth in hopes of a glorious Reformation. As to my worldly estate, I dispose of it in a manner following. First I will that all just debts due by me be be paid. I give and bequeath to my dear wife Ann Porter one negro fellow named Mick during her natural life & and at her death said fellow to be sold, & the price to be equally divided among all my children, and my negro wench named Bett to be sold at my decease & the price to be equally divided between my wife & all my children, and I bequeath to my son John

Porter one hundred & fifty acres of land, part of the tract I now live on joining my son William's line, running the whole length of his line across the creek. The remainder of my land I give to my two sons Oliver and Francis to be equally divided as they can accommodate matters. But my dear wife Ann is to have her third of the land & the benefit of the dwelling house during her natural life & her third of all my stock of every kind & her third of all my household goods & furniture with a chest, saddle and bridle off the whole with use of the office houses. The other two thirds of my stock and household furniture to be equally divided among my unmarried children. I give to my daughter Ann, one horse saddle & bridle of the whole. My cash I allow to be equally divided among my wife and unmarried children. I give to Susanna Carson wife of William Porter] two cows, and her son William Carson Porter one cow off the whole personal estate. I do hereby revoke all former wills by me, declaring this only as my last Will and Testament. And I do hereby constitute & appoint my dear wife Ann Porter my son William Porter & my son Francis Porter executors of this my last Will & Testament. As witness my hand and seal this eighteenth day of January one thousand seven hundred & eighty one. Witness present Rich Sankey Thomas Baldwin John Porter (Seal) At a Court held for Prince Edward June 1781 this last Will & Testament of John Porter dec. was was presented in Court and proved by Rich Sankey, Thos. Baldwin, Thos Carson witnesses thereto and ordered to be recorded. On Motion of Anne Porter & William Porter two of the Executors therein named who gave bond and..... File contributed for use in US Gen Web Archives by: J. T. Lamkin Thos. Carson. [Note in the will, John Porter names, William Carson, the son of his daughter, Susan (Porter) Carson, but no John Carson. A son, Anthony, was born in 1781 after the will was executed.]

The children of John Porter and Mary (Anthony) Porter were:

2. William A. Porter, Lieutenant-Captain, was born about 1746. Researchers have suggested his place of birth as Belfast, Ulster County, Ireland; Pennsylvania; and, Virginia. J.T. Lamkin says that there is some difference of opinion as to what regiment Lt.-Capt. William Porter belonged. John A. Porter said that he joined the American Army as early as 1775 and served continuously throughout the war first as a member of the 12th Virginia Regiment. Others say Both William and John Porter, Jr. were members of the 2nd Continental Line Regiment" and were members of Captain (promoted March 8th, 1776) Everard Meade's Company (dated March 1st, 1777), both as Corporals. It is possible that the Captain Ballard, mentioned as the officer they enlisted under, was one Lieutenant William Ballard (?). When formed, the 2nd Continental Line Regiment" consisted of 7 companies and they were commanded by Captain's Francis Taylor, Everard Meade, Buller Claiborne, Samuel Hawes, William Sanford, Morgan Alexander, and Thomas Tebb. The regiment was later expanded to 10 company strength (authorized January 11th 1776) and one of these companies was commanded by George Nicolas, later promoted to Major. Thomas Carson does not appear in any roll of the 2nd that I have found so far. An important fact: both the 1st and 2nd Virginia regiments were formed of volunteers from throughout the commonwealth with Rifle companies formed from the less settled frontier areas and Musket companies from the eastern regions; they were both organized at Williamsburg on October 21st, 1775. During the Winter of 1777/1778 at Valley Forge, William Porter -- by now an Ensign-- appears as Fit for duty from the months of December 1777 until June 1778. John Porter appears as Fit for duty from December 1777 to January 1778 and as Discharged February/March 1778. Thomas Porter appears as Fit for duty from December 1777 until June 1778; all are on the roll of Captain William Taylor's company. The 2nd Virginia Continental Line Regiment" did not participate in the battle of Trenton or the battle of Princeton. Whatever the regiment - It was the land grants awarded him for three plus continuous years of service that drew William and five of his seven siblings with their families to Logan County, Kentucky in 1797. One source say they left Prince Edward County, Virginia to escape the bitter political battles then occurring. The Porters were ardent Whigs. (See Jillson, Kentucky Land Grants, p. 225. The grave of William Porter was marked "Revolutionary War Soldier" by the. (Small Cemeteries of Kentucky (976.9755/ V22h at the LDS Family History Library at Salt Lake City, Utah).

William was not named as a beneficiary, but an executor, in his father's will of 1781. [Perhaps his father considered his receipt of Bounty Land was sufficient for his needs?] William died on 8 July 1828 in Butler County, Kentucky and was buried there in the Porter Cemetery at Sugar Grove, Butler County, Kentucky. His grave marker reads, provided by the North Shore Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution says," Revolutionary War Solder, born 1746, died 1828" (Small Cemeteries of Kentucky, "Porter Cemetery")

William Porter possibly first married Hannah _____according to researcher Louise Carson Drake,. It has been suggested that William Porter and she had a son, named John Peter Porter, born about 1775-1776, but the is no proof of the marriage or that John was the father of such a person has been found nor was he in John Porter, Sr.'s will. He married on 9 September 1794 Ann/Jane Arthur. She was born possibly 1763-1775 and died about 1850 in Campbell County, Virginia. He married second, his step-sister, Susanna/h "Susan/Sukey/ Suky" Carson, daughter of John Porter and Anne (Dixon) Porter. She was born on 9 October 1755 in Bedford County, Virginia and died on 25 July 1830 in Butler County, Kentucky. The date of the marriage was given in Prince Edward County [Virginia] Marriages (1854-1866) as 9 September 1787, in Campbell County, Virginia. But, there is evidence that the wedding was recorded then and took place earlier. Other years mentioned are 1770, 1780, and 1781The year of 1787 would coincide with the birth of their third son, Thomas Porter, in 1788. It appears to be thus because John Porter in his will refers to Susanna Carson in his will which indicates that William and Susanna were not married in 1781 when the will was drafted. Susannah was named, as "Susanna," in John Porter's will, as the recipient of two cows.

The second son of William and Susanna (Carson) Porter was Anthony Porter. Based on the data on his tombstone, it appears that he was born in 1781, after John Porter's will was written. Susannah was buried in the Sugar Porter Cemetery at Sugar Grove, Butler County, Kentucky, next to her spouse, Captain William A. Porter. Her grave marker reads, "Susannah Porter consort of Col. John Porter, born 1754, died July 25, 1830 age 76 yrs. old." (Small Cemeteries of Kentucky, "Porter Cemetery) (5 August issue of the National Banner & National Whig newspaper. [In Porter Family Cemetery: Sugar Grove - Butler County, Kentucky, compiled by Bow Law, in the Roots Web site for Butler County, Kentucky, he says, "The cemetery is located near Sugar Grove, Kentucky. Take highway 231 out of Bowling Green to Morgantown, turn left on highway 1083 to the Sugar Grove-Dimple Road. The cemetery is less than a mile on the right on a hill in the woods. This was a very large cemetery but many of the stones have been destroyed by cattle. There were several field stones in the cemetery."] Her grave marker in the Porter Cemetery says: "Wife of Capt. William A. Porter, born 1754, died July 25, 1830 age 76 yrs. old."

The children of William A. Porter and Susannah Carson were:

3. William Carson Porter was born on 8 June 1776 or in 1779 in Prince Edward County, Virginia. He was in Missouri by 1826. William died on 3 November 1841 in Waynesville, Pulaski County, Missouri. A William C.[arson?] Porter had numerous land patents in that state. William married on 30 August 1778 in Campbell County, Virginia, Elizabeth "Betsy" A. Carson. She was born on 10 April 1796 in Campbell County, Virginia, the daughter of Thomas "Saddler Tommie" and Mary (Dinwiddie) Carson. She died on 3 April 1857 in Butler County, Kentucky.

2. Florence Porter was born before 1750. [Unknown source] An 1872 memo said that she was born in Ulster County, Ireland. An undocumented source says that she was born in Campbell County, Virginia, but Campbell County was not formed until the 1780s. Florence died on 13 October 1829 in Butler County, Kentucky. (Caney Fork [Butler County, Kentucky] Presbyterian Church minutes). There are other possible -- but undocumented -- dates of 1811 and 8 August 1822.] Florence married William Ewing about 1770 in probably Prince Edward County, Virginia. The son of James and Anne (Dunn/e) Porter, he was born before 1740. [Source needed] The place of birth is uncertain, but places suggested to date are Lancaster County, Pennsylvania;, Cecil County, Maryland; and, Amelia County, Virginia in 1749. Ewing names appear in the Amelia County, Virginia Order Book as early as 1746 and are listed in the 1750 census. The will of William Ewing was probated on 1 June 1799 about 1770 in Logan County, Virginia. (Will Book A: 4, 8 Florence was not named directly in the will of her father that was executed in 1781. Florence Porter and William Ewing raised her brother, Francis Porter, and her sister, Rachel (Porter) Read. Florence (Porter) Ewing's family accompanied Florence's brother, William Porter, and his family to Kentucky in 1797.

The children of Florence Porter and William Ewing were:

3. Mary Ewing was born after 1770 [in Kentucky] and she died after 1815 [in Kentucky]. Mary married on 21 October 1797 in Warren County, Kentucky, Elijah Halsell/Halsey, son of William and Catherine (Waggoner) Halsell/ Halsey. She died on 17 September 1824 or April 1824 or 11 September 1824 in Butler County, Kentucky. She married on 22 August 1808 in Logan County, Kentucky David Porter, son of Hugh and Isabell Porter. He was born 1775-1790 in probably Prince Edward County, Virginia and died before 1811 [in Logan County] Kentucky. *2nd Husband of Margaret "Peggy" Porter [?] Ewing: She married second in 1814 in probably Butler County, Kentucky, Cunningham Read, son of Moses A. and Rachel (Porter) Read. He was born about 1790 [in Hanover County] Virginia and died on 30 August 1834 in Butler County, Kentucky.

3. Nathaniel Reid Ewing[?] was possibly born in 1790 and died after 1, but there is no evidence that such a person was a member of this family.

2. Colonel John Porter [Jr.] was born on 24 October 1759 in Prince Edward County, Virginia. He died on 24 September 1833 in Butler County, Kentucky. John was buried in the Porter Cemetery at Sugar Grove, Butler County, Kentucky. His grave marker read, "Col. John Porter born 1759 died Sept 24 1833."(Small Cemeteries of Kentucky, "Porter Cemetery.") He served in the Revolutionary War but not long enough to receive Bounty Land. He married first on 3 January 1785, in Charlotte County, Virginia, Sarah "Sally" Clark. She was born in 1764 in Charlotte County, Virginia. Her father was John? Edward? Thomas Clark/e and her mother was Ann (Paulette) Clarke/e. Sarah Clark died on 12 June 1832 in Butler County, Kentucky and was buried there in the Porter Cemetery at Sugar Grove. [Source needed] John married second, in November 1832 in Kentucky, Roseman/Rosmond Brady. She was born about 1765 in Virginia and she died on 1 January 1855 in Kentucky. Sarah was buried in the Porter Cemetery at Sugar Grove, Butler County, Kentucky. Her grave marker reads, "Sarah Porter consort of Col. John Porter , died 1832 in the 68th yr. of her life. born 1764." It is not known when John Porter and his family moved to Kentucky. The last land sale in which he was involved was in Prince Edward County was in 1800; he was is the 1799 tax list for Logan County. In his father's will, John Porter wrote, "I bequeath to my son John Porter one hundred & fifty acres of land, part of the tract I now live on joining my son William's line, running the whole length of his line across the creek. [Sources are needed for the above entry.] John Porter married second, in November 1832 in Kentucky, Roseman/Rosmond Brady. She was born about 1765 in Virginia and died on 1 January 1855 in Kentucky. They had no children.

The children of John Porter and Sarah Clark were:

3. William Porter was born about 1784 in Virginia (or Logan County, Kentucky and was murdered on 8 July 1838 in New Orleans, Louisiana. He married on 12 March 1798 in Logan County, Nancy "Wonnah" Haden, the daughter of William M. and Nancy Ann (Johnson/ Johnston) Haden. She was born on 12 March 1798 in Logan County and died on 12 May 1884 in Ohio County, Kentucky.

She was born 1795-1815 in [Alexandria, Rapides County, Louisiana] and died before 1851 in [Texana, Jackson County, Texas.]

3. Benjamin Clark/J. Porter was born 18 January 1785 or 1795 in possibly Prince Edward County, Virginia, died on 9 July 1849, and was buried in Caldwell, Burleson County, Texas.

He married Mary Proctor, daughter of Major Thomas and Sally (Haden) Proctor, on 23 September 1819. She was born in 1805 on Goochland County, Virginia and died, possibly in childbirth, on 23 September 1819 in Logan County, Kentucky. He married second on 29 June 1823 or on 27 August 1824 in Butler County, Kentucky Matilda Jane/Johnson Wilson, daughter of George B and Agness (MacMakin) Wilson. She was born on 23 December 1803 in Logan County, Kentucky and died on 2 or 12 October 1890 in Caldwell, Burleson County, Texas.

3. Oliver Cromwell Porter, (II) was born in 1787 in Prince Edward County, Virginia and died in 1863 in Ohio County, Kentucky. (Another source [?] said that he was born on 1 November 1793 and died on 26 March 1863.) He married on 20 February (or 20 September) 1809 in Sumner County, Tennessee, Jane "Jennie" Bracken/Brackin, daughter of James and Rosannah Bracken/Brackin. They may have divorced. Jane was born about 1790 in probably Sumner County, Tennessee and died before 1814 in Ohio County, Kentucky. [See 1850 Census.] He married second on 10 February 1814 in Butler County, Kentucky, Rebecca Davis, daughter of Temple and Ann (Baldwin) Davis. Rebecca was born in 1788 in [Charlotte County] Virginia and died before 1850 in Kentucky. (The weddings are recorded in Sumner County, Tennessee Marriage Records and Marriages - Kentucky to 1850. The 1850 Ohio Co KY census lists Oliver's wife as Jennie. According to John M. Porter, Oliver lived life "large" and might he have had two families?

Oliver Cromwell Porter married Rebecca Davis.

3. John William or Wilson [?] Porter, Justice of the Peace, was born on 12 May 1790 in Prince Edward County, Virginia and died on 15 October or 15 November 1846 in Porter's Prairie, Burleson County, Texas. He married about 21 July 1818 in Butler County, Kentucky, possibly Rachel Neel, possibly a daughter of Thomas and Mary (Hamilton) Neal/Neill. She was possibly born before about 1795. John married second, about 1822 in Butler County, Kentucky, Susan W. Eaton, daughter of Reverend Robert [?] Eaton. Susan was born on 14 July 1801 in Tennessee and died on 13 May 1855 in Caldwell, Burleson County, Texas.

3. Ann "Nancy" Porter was born on 9 August 1794 in Prince Edward County, Virginia and died on 2 October 1842 in Butler County, Kentucky. She married on 14 August 1809 in Logan County, Kentucky, William Porter Carson. He was born on 14 May 1787 in Campbell County, Virginia and died on 4 October 1852 in Butler County, Kentucky.

3. Elijah R. [?] Porter was born about 1795 in Virginia and died after 1850 in probably Butler County, Kentucky. Some believe this is the Elijah Royster who died in a Mexican prison during the 1840's, but he is listed in the 1850 Butler County, Kentucky Census. He married on 29 January 1818 or 1 December [1818?] in Butler County, Kentucky, Nancy Royster, probably the daughter of Thomas and Agness (Richardson) Royster. Nancy was born 1785-1805 in probably Goochland County, Virginia before 1834 in probably Butler County, Kentucky. He married second, on 16 June 1834 in Butler County, Kentucky, Partheny/Parthena Bennett, possible daughter of Elisha and Elizabeth (Adcock, Hancock) Bennett. She was born possibly about 1815 in Butler County, Kentucky and died before1850 in [Butler County], Kentucky.

3. Mary Ann/Alice Porter was born on 12 June (or 20 August) 1802 in Butler County, Kentucky and died of cholera on 12 October 1828 in Russellville, Logan County, Kentucky. She married about 25 October 1817 in Butler County, Kentucky Peyton/Payton Leftwich Parrish/ Parish, son of Joseph and Sally (Edgar) Parrish. He was born in May 1794 in Bourbon County, Kentucky and died of cholera on 31 July 1835 in probably Logan County, Kentucky.

2. Anne/Anna Porter was born 1750-1760 in Prince Edward County, Virginia, or, in March 1749/1750. The birth year was probably closer to 1750 than 1760. Note that the birth year of 1760 was the same year in which her spouse, Thomas Carson was born.] She died on 21 August 1829 in Butler County, Kentucky and was buried in the Carson Cemetery in Butler County. [Source] In her father's will of 1781 he wrote, "I give to my daughter Ann, one horse saddle & bridle of the whole." Anna married on 3 October or 23 December 1782, in Prince Edward County, Virginia, her step-brother, Thomas "Revolutionary Tommie" Carson, the son of John and Ann (Dixon) Carson (Marriages of Prince Edward County, Virginia 1754-1810, p.63 and Marriages of Some Virginia Residents 1607-1800) but possibly Prince Edward County, Virginia. Thomas Carson died on 18 January 1840 in Butler County, Kentucky. Anna Porter and her immediate family accompanied her brother William Porter to Kentucky in 1797.

The Descendants of Anna Porter and Thomas Porter Carson are:

3. John P. Carson was born 28 November 1783 and died on 3 December 1854. He married on 16 October or 3 December 1807 Mary "Ollie" Porter, the daughter of Francis Porter and Sarah "Sallie" Carson. She was born on 22 November 1788 and died on 4 March 1851.

3. Ann Dixon Carson was born on 6 June 1785 in Prince Edward County, Virginia and and died on 12 June 1834 or 1836 in Butler County, Kentucky.1845. She married on 12 June 1845 Richard S. Thornton. She married on 30 September or 22 October 1805 in Logan County, Kentucky. He was born on 2 January 1776 in Bucks County, Pennsylvania and died in 1834 or on 15 September 1835 or 23 November 1840 in Butler County.

3. William Porter Carson was born on 14 May 1787 in Campbell County, Virginia and died on 4 October 1852 in Butler County, Kentucky. He married Ann "Nancy" Porter, born on 9 August 09 1794 in Prince Edward County, Virginia, the daughter of John and Sally (Clark/e) Porter. Ann died on 2 October 1842 in Butler County, Kentucky.

3. Thomas Ewing Carson was born on 27 December 27, 1789 in probably Campbell County, Virginia and died on 18 December 1828 in probably Butler County, Kentucky. He married on 17 August 1812 or 1813 in Butler County, Kentucky, Jane Bell "Ginsey" Carson. She was born on 20 May 1794 in Campbell County, Virginia and died on 17 August 1840 (or 1848) in probably Butler County, Kentucky. KY (or 1848), the daughter of Thomas "Saddler Tommie" and Mary (Dinwiddie) Carson. Revolutionary Tommie Carson surveyed Lt-Capt William Porter's Kentucky land claim in 1792 according to Jillson. He, Carson, was not entitled to land because he did not serve three contiguous years even though he did serve over three years during the Revolution.

2. Nathaniel Porter was born about 1762 in Prince Edward County, Virginia. He was not named in his father's will. Nathaniel served in the Revolutionary War, but he did not serve long enough to receive Bounty Land. He and his brother, Oliver Porter, left Prince Edward County, Virginia immediately after the Revolutionary War, perhaps parting on bad terms. Nathaniel died before 10 December 1817 in Putnam County, Georgia. John Porter married first, an unknown woman, before 1784 in probably Prince Edward County, Virginia. This branch of the John Porter line is the least known. JTL has letters between John A. Porter and Oliver Porter's descendants in Georgia about 1895 indicating that the descendants of the brothers were known to each, but there was no communication. This supports the idea that there was some estrangement between Oliver and Nathaniel after arriving in Georgia. Some of this may stem from the speculation concerning the so-called "Portuguese lady" that Francis Porter married. She was born possibly before 1755. She died before 1805 in [Oglethorpe County, Georgia]. He married second, Elizabeth _____ , on 15 May 1805 (or after 21 May 1805) in Oglethorpe County, Georgia. Elizabeth was born 1750-1765. She died in 1823 in Jasper County, Georgia. [Sources are needed for this entry.] [Children?]

He was born on 26 August 1815 in Georgia and died in 1871 in Greene or Morgan County, Georgia.

2. Captain Francis Porter.

Captain Francis Porter was born about 1765 in Prince Edward County, Virginia. (Small Cemeteries of Kentucky, "Porter Cemetery," Sugar Grover, Butler County, Kentucky. He was too young to serve in Virginia Continental Line, as did his brothers, but he may have served in the militia, as his grave marker says, Captain." It is not known when he went to Kentucky and whether or not he went there directly. Francis was named in his father's will of 1781. "The remainder of my land I give to my two sons Oliver and Francis to be equally divided as they can accommodate matters." Francis does not appear in the 1799 Logan County, Kentucky tax rolls. He died on 21 October 1821 or 1822 in Sugar Grove, Butler County, Kentucky and was buried in the Porter Cemetery there. His grave marker reads, "Francis Parker died October 25, 1821, aged 56 yrs. [born about 1765] in the 56th year of his life." (Porter Family Cemetery) Francis married on 8 January 1788, in Campbell County, Virginia, Sarah "Sally" Carson. She was born on 20 November 1766 in Bedford County, Virginia. Sarah Carson was the daughter of James S. Carson and Mary Ann Helm. She died on 2 June 1854 in Sugar Grove, Butler County, Kentucky, and was buried there in the Porter Cemetery there. Her grave marker reads, "Sarah Porter wife of Francis Porter, born Nov. 20, 1765, died June 2, 1854. (Porter Family Cemetery)

The children of Francis Porter and Sarah Carson were:

Benjamin "Ben" D. Owen was born on 18 January 1812. (1900 Census and grave marker data) We know little of his early life other than what we find in the census's. In 1820, Benjamin at age 8, was with his family, in Jefferson Township, Schoharie County, New York. (1820 Census) In 1830, at age 18, Benjamin was in Broome County, New York with his family. We do not know why and when the family moved from Schoharie County to Broome County. By 1842, his father, Palmer Owen, was a Methodist minister, but we do not know how much earlier he became a minister and if this was his only profession. It is possible that Palmer was engaged in farming as well as preaching at this time. In any event, Sanford was a very small place, a rural community, and Benjamin probably lived a typical boyhood in that kind of setting. Nothing further is known of his childhood from 1812 until 1830. On 20 November 1833, at age 21, Benjamin married 21-year-old Sarah Ann Hulce, the daughter of Samuel H. Hulce and Sarah "Sally" Plummer. It is not known where Benjamin and Sarah married, but is was probably someplace in Broome County. In 1826 and 1850 there are land records for her father at Tompkins In Broome County. Sarah was born on 31 July 1814 at Deposit, Broome

County, New York.

It is not certain where Benjamin and Sarah Owen were in 1840 as they have not been found in the census, but in 1842, their son, Orson Anderson Owen, was born at Chardon, Geauga County, Ohio. There was a Benjamin Owen enumerated in the 1840 Census), but that Benjamin, age 15-20 and a female, age 15-20, presumably his spouse, were too young. That is, they should have been about ages 28 and 26 respectively. (US Index Ohio, Lake County, Concord) There is a deed where Palmer Owen sold land to Benjamin Owen. [We need to obtain the data from this deed. Editor] In 1850, Benjamin, Sarah, and their children Catherine Owen and Orson Owen were at Sanford, Broome County, New York. [Sanford was spelled Sandford earlier] In the 1855 Census for Sanford, Broome County, New York, Benjamin Owen was age 44, Sarah Owen age 39 [1814], Kate Hulce Owen, age 18, and Arson [Orson] age 13. In 1860, the Benjamin Owen Family was presumably living on a farm at or near Sanford as he was enumerated at age 49 in the 1860 Census for Sanford, Broome County, New York as a farmer. With him was his wife, Sarah Owen, age 45, and his children Catherine Owens age 20, Orson Owens age 18, and Francis Owens age 12. The children had all attended school that year. Benjamin had real estate valued at $500. In the 1865 New York, Broome County, Sanford, :
Owen, Benjamin T., 53, was born in Delaware County
Sary A. Owens, age 48, was born in Delaware County, had 4 children
Arson A., age 22, was born in Ohio
Francis M. Owens, 17, was born in Broome County
Florence E. Owens, 5, was born in Broome County
The census record indicated that Benjamin and Sarah had four children and that Orson served three years in the 1t New York as a private, enlisting 29 January 1861 and being discharged in good health with no wounds.The Sanford [Broome County], New York Map of 1866 shows a B. D. Owen residence a couple of miles northeast of Gulf Summit -- a short distance east of the New York and Erie Railway -- in what appears to be Randolph Township. Mary Cable of the Deposit, Broome County, New York says that they were in the 1865 Census for Broome County, but I do not have that census.

Benjamin Owen and his family moved to to Waverly, Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa as that is where they were enumerated in the 1870 Census. Also in the 1870 Census in Iowa were Benjamin and Sarah's son, Orson Anderson Owen and his wife, Addaline (Curtis) Owen (Waverly); their daughter, Catherine (Owen) Benjamin and her husband, Abraham Benjamin (Butler Township, Butler County, Iowa); their daughter, Francis "Franny" (Owen) Moon and her husband, Harmon Moon and his brother, John Wesley Moon (Waverly); Benjamin's sister, Sallie E. (Owen) Pinney and her husband, John Pinney (Waverly); Benjamin's brother, James Reuben Owen and his wife, Ruth Hyde (Waverly); Benjamin's sister, Clarissa C. (Owen) Graves and her husband, James Henry Graves (Pleasant Grove Township, Floyd County, Iowa). There may have been members of the collateral families who also moved to Iowa of whom we are unaware at present. The other three children of Palmer Owen appear to have remained in Broome, County, New York, except for John Owen who is unaccounted for in the 1870 Census.

As with all migrations, we are interested in knowing why they left the place in which they lived? The Civil War Years were undoubtedly difficult years to migrate and probably many families had to postpone any plans they might have had until the war was over. In his Diary, Samuel August Maxwell, in commenting on Benjamin Owen, said, "All came west about 1866 and lived at Waverly [Bremer County], Iowa for a few years and then some of them removed to Central Iowa [Boone Co,] and Orson later to Kansas. (Cole Manuscript Collection, Samuel August Maxwell Diary, Minnesota Historical Society) It appears that their reason for leaving may have been a combination of several factors. 1. Both Orson Owen and James Reuben Owen (Palmer Owen's brother, Orson's uncle) James Reuben Owen returned to Broome County from the Civil War about 1867 and , Orson married immediately after his return in February. 2. Benjamin's father, Palmer Owen, died in 1864 and his mother, Sarah Owen, died in 1866. 3. The land that Palmer Owen had was probably not sufficiently extensive to provide sufficient land to his children. 4. And, probably most importantly, the availability of land and new opportunities in Iowa that attracted the Owen families to that state.

We do not know exactly when they left New York or if they all left at the same time. Orson was married on 26 February 1867, so he and Benjamin and his family probably left some time after that. Orson's daughter, Elizabeth Owen, was born about 1868 in Michigan, as she appears at age 2 in the 1870 Census as being age 2. It seems likely, then, that at least some members of the family would have been there about that time, perhaps only long enough for Elizabeth's birth. Maybe they were visiting a relative on the way West? It appears that they all went to Iowa at the same time. In 1869, Benjamin and Sarah, of Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa sold the New York land that had been previously sold to them by Benjamin's father, Palmer Owen. So, we know that they were in Iowa by that time. [I hope to have this deed and an earlier one available soon. Editor]

In the 1870 Census for Waverly, Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa, Benjamin was enumerated as a farmer as he had been previously in New York. He was age 53, had real estate valued at $4,800 and personal property at $400. It appears that he was doing well financially. His wife, Sarah, keeping house, was age 48. Their daughter Jenny was in school. Their son, Orson Owen, was on his own as a farmer at Waverly, with his wife Adaline (Curtis) Owen and their daughter, Francis "Franny" Catherine age 2. In the 1880 Census for Butler Township, Butler County, Iowa, their daughter, Catherine (Owen) Benjamin, was living in Butler County, Waverly area with her husband, Abraham Benjamin, of New York. Why Catherine and Abraham went to Butler County as opposed to Bremer County is not known. In the 1870 Census for Waverly, Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa, their daughter, Francis "Franny" (Owen) Moon, age 20, was married to Harmon Moon, age 34, from New York, and their children, Marion Owen age 2 and Harrison Moon age five 5 months, and John Wesley Moon, a brother of Harmon in the 1880 Census, were also in the Waverly area in 1870. As in the case of case, it appears that they married just shortly prior to leaving New York.

In the 1880 Census, we find Benjamin, age 67, as a farmer and Sarah, age 56, keeping house, in Butler Township, Butler County in the household of John Howe, age 47, born in Pennsylvania. It is not known whether or not there was any relationship between the Owen's and the Howe's. In the household was John D. Howe, John Howe's brother. Their daughter, Francis "Franny" M. (Owen) Moon and her spouse, Harmon Moon, their children Marion Moon age 2, and Harrison Moon, age 5 months were living in the next door house down. Also in the household was John Wesley Moon, Benjamin Moon's brother. (Census 1880), It appears that Benjamin and Sarah "sold out" their property in the Waverly area in Bremer County and moved to Butler Country to simplify their lives, as "senior citizens," and to be near one of their children. For some unknown reason, Benjamin , about age 74, Sarah, about age 69 [she should have been about age 71] by 1885, had moved to Garden Township, District 54, Boone County to live with their daughter, Jenny Myers age 28 and her husband, Jay Myers, a farmer, age 26, born in Pennsylvania. (1885 Census) Benjamin and Sarah had finally given up farming on their own and apparently needed a place to live and perhaps needed the support of their daughter Jenny and her husband. As usual with all families, we sorely miss the absence of 1890 Census records, and have to skip to 1900 where we find Benjamin age 88 and Sarah age 85 still with their daughter Jenny and family in Boone County, Garden Township, Iowa. In the census, Benjamin stated that he had not been farming for 12 years, that is, since about 1888.

We know nothing about the health of Benjamin and Sarah prior to their deaths. The Iowa Death Records 1880-1921 Boone County. (LDS FHL Film No. 1034317) do not have the pages covering Owen. Perhaps there is another copy somewhere. Boone County Vital Records Death 1897-1910 (Film No. 1034317 Item 1/1897-1920 1034317 Item 2) has not yet been researched. The Death Records from the Iowa Department of Public Health were sought, but the response was negative for Benjamin and Sarah. Sarah "Sary" Ann (Hulce) Owen died on 11 August 1901 in Garden Township, Boone County, Iowa and was buried in Lot 199, Grave 3 in the Fairview Cemetery in Douglas Township. (Fairview Cemetery Association Record & Map) Benjamin D. Owen died four months later, on 18 December 1902, in Garden Township, Boone County, Iowa at age 90 years and eleven days. His physician was Dr. Sturgeon and the undertaker A. M. Sundberg of Madrid, Iowa. He was buried in Lot 199, Grave 4 in the Fairview Cemetery in Douglas Township, Madrid, Boone County. (Fairview Cemetery Association Record & Map; his date of death is also on his grave marker) Thomas Hahn and his son, Chris Hahn, in June 2000 sighted the very fine grave markers that were in excellent condition. To reach the cemetery, take the road at the northwest side of Madrid, north two or three miles. From the south gate of the cemetery, go north just a bit on the cemetery road. The grave marker is a prominent one to the east, and two or three rows back from the road. The monument for their daughter, Jenny Myers and her husband, Jay Myers, is to the right of theirs. I think we found the cemetery record and map at the burial plots for the Fairview Cemetery in 1999 at the home of John Theisen at 795-3206 on 315th Rose Road.

4. Jennie F Owen was born on 25 September 1860 in New York. Jenny married Jay Myers probably about 1878-1880 in Iowa. She and Jay lived on a farm. It is not known whether or not she and Jay Myers had children. [Perhaps check the 1900 census to see.] Jennie died on 14 April 1904 at Garden Township, Boone County, Iowa, about three years after her mother's death and about two years after her father's death. The cause of her death was heart disease. Taking care of her aging parents may not have been easy for her. She was buried on 17 April 1904 in the Fairview Cemetery, Madrid, Douglas Township, Boone County, north of Madrid, next to her parents. Jennie married Jay Myers. MARSHALL FAMILY

ANNA MARSHALL

Anna (Marshall) Grinter (Hahn Collection)

A new page has been created to cover the relationship of Anna Grinter and Charles Blue Jacket and the Shawnee Prophet. If you like, you can link to tat page from here: Blue Jacket. Editor

Annie Marshall "Ann" "Anna" (married GRINTER)—Anna Marshall's Lenape name was Windagamen, meaning Sweetness. She was generally referred to as "Annie." Annie was born on 8 January 1820 in Miami County, Ohio. In 1880, at age 60, when living with her son, William Henry

Harrison Grinter, one of the members of the household told the census taker that Annie was born in Indiana. (LDS 1880 U. S. Census Extract of the census taken in Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas, FHL Film 1254400, National Archives Film T9-0400, p. 420A) Interestingly, her daughter, Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries in the same census reported that her mother was born in Arkansas. (Ibid.) Her sister, Rosanna (Marshall) Grinter, reported that she did not know where her mother was born. (Ibid. p. 427C). In the 1885 Kansas State Census for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Annie is also listed as having been born in Indiana (LDS Microfilm No. 976099). Annie died 28 June 1905 at Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas and was buried in Grinter's Chapel [as it was known then as opposed to the Grinter Chapel at the present] Cemetery, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas. (The Delaware Mission, Kansas Historical Collections). Annie's mother was Wilaquenaho, Betsy (Elizabeth) a Lenape-Delaware. Family records show that she was a Ketchum but that has not yet been confirmed by public records. Betsy was born about 1797 in the Northwest Territory, that is, the present State of Ohio. [Her birth year has been estimated from her entry in the 1862 Delaware Census where she is shown as No. 531 Marshall, Widow (alias Wilaquenaho*) [age] 65*. (John G. Pratt Papers, microfilm edition (Manuscript Division, Kansas State Historical Society, Topeka, 1967), Roll 9, "Census of the Delaware Tribe of Indians within the Delaware Agency taken February 15th One thousand Eight hundred Sixty two." She probably died in 1875 and was buried in the Gilstrap Cemetery #2 (26 miles from Bartlesville) in Indian Territory (present Oklahoma). There is no grave marker existing in that cemetery for her, however. Anna's father, William H. Marshall, a white trader, was born about 1750 to 1760 , probably in Pennsylvania. He was the son of Henry Marshall and Mary Marshall. William Marshall died about 1833 in or near Springfield, Greene County, Missouri. We do not know his place of burial.

It is likely that Wilaquenaho moved with her family when the U.S. Government forced the principal Delaware Tribe forced to migrate from Ohio to Indiana in the 1820s. Her husband, William Marshall, was a trading partner with William Conner. The William Marshall's then emigrated with the Delaware from Indiana to Missouri. William Marshall probably lived for short periods of time in the vicinity of St. Louis, Missouri, in Southeast Missouri, in Arkansas Territory, and in Texas. It is not known whether or not his family was with him at all those locations. The William Marshall Family was known to have been at the mouth of Finley Creek on the James Fork of the White River in Missouri from 1826 until 1831, where William (also known as John or "Old John") had a "plantation" and a grist mill, and where he was a trader. [History of Greene County [Missouri], pp. 131-132/Richard Graham Papers, Clark Collection, vol. 10, Missouri Historical Society, CDH, p. 147/Account Book of Menard and Valle, 1829-1831].[Find location in topographic map and its distance from Springfield.] The accounts of William Marshall are difficult to follow, because he apparently was known in Missouri and possibly Arkansas and Texas as "Old John" Marshall." Also, there is more than one William Marshall in Indiana and Ohio, and it is easy to confuse "our" William Marshal with the other/s.

Betsy Marshall took her children to the Delaware Reserve in Northeast Kansas about 1831, although her obituary says that she went to Kansas with the Delaware in 1829. (Kansas City, KS Press , 30 June 1908). From the Probate File of William Marshall in Greene County, Missouri, it appears possible that Betsy's name was also Priscilla.[I am currently transcribing the Marshall Papers, to be followed by transcribing the Trader Gillis's Probate Papers, to determine the answer. Editor] It is possible that William Marshall followed them in the spring of 1832. (History of Greene County, p, 905) One source [citation needed] says that he established a grist mill in Kansas, but I there is no evidence that he did. It appears that soon after Betsy went to the Delaware Reserve, that is, present Kansas, where she raised her family either on her own, or with the help of her family or others. And, as noted below, she later "married" an Indian named Fish.

In addition to Anna, Betsy Wilaquenaho and William Marshal may have had six other children, four sons and two daughters, but this is questionable. We previously included a daughter Lucinda, born 1827, but it appears now that she was not his daughter:

1. Mary Ann born 1823, married Henry Tiblow
2. John M. died after 4 March 1907
3. Elizabeth Jane married Fish
4. Samuel
5. Rosanna born 28 February 1832, died 3 June 1916, married James C. Grinter
6. Sarah Ann, born 28 Feb. 1832, died after 11 August 1878, married 1. W. H. H. McCamish and 2. Rankin(s). (Goodspeed, 622-623) There are various birth dates for these children in the Delaware records, some of them being inaccurate. There is evidence that Betsy had possibly two children by Fish and/or some person other than William Marshall. This will be addressed in more detail in her Biography. As late as 1868, Elizabeth [Wilaquenaho] Ketchum, who by then had long been known as "Widow Marshall," was still living in Kansas. (National Archives Microcopy 234, Roll, 301, frames 1163-1171, "Roll or Census of the Delaware Tribe of Indians within the Fort Leavenworth Agency for the year 1842," No. 104; 1862 Delaware Census, No. 531) In the Moses Grinter Ledger, now in the Wyandotte County (KS) Museum, p. 214, one finds an account headed "Mrs. Marshall or Jim Grinter['s] wife['s] mother." James C. Grinter, brother of Moses, married Rosanna Marshall, sister of Annie Marshall. This, then, is apparently Betsy Wilaquenaho, although awkwardly stated. As to when Betsy went to Indian Territory, Staab commented in Grinter Place News, Nov. 1978, "The Richard C. Adams Letter books (in the Kenneth Spencer Research Library, University of Kansas), Vol. 2, p. 174, lists on a very poorly-transcribed transcribed roster of some hundreds of Delawares protesting the terms of their spring 1868 removal to the Cherokee Nation, Indian Territory, a person whose name is spelled "Wi Jok Quiano." Staab said that in his judgment, that represented "Wi-la-que-na-ho," as no one else on the 1862 Delaware census had a name spelled anything like this. He commented further that the typist who transcribed these names for Adams seems to have been completely unfamiliar with Delaware forms.

Little is known of Annie's childhood in Kansas. An 1890 Wyandotte County history says that she attended school at the "Osage Indian mission." [The source document has not been located. Staab, Grinter Place News (Nov. 1987), commented: "The only "Osage Mission" school in Kansas, a catholic school at present St. Paul, Neosho County, opened its doors in 1847, too late for her to have attended. See Barry, Beginning of the West, pp. 559, 681-682. Accordingly, the school Annie attended was perhaps in Indiana or Ohio, or possibly Missouri."] Her sisters Rosanna and Mary Ann "Polly," her brother William, and her daughter Catherine were all educated at the Shawnee Methodist Mission in present-day Johnson County, in the 1840s. (National Archive Microcopy 234, Roll 302, frames 323-325, 733-737. [Staab says that the class rosters for those schools were not found in Martha B. Caldwell, Annals of the Shawnee Methodist Mission and Indian Manual Labor School [2nd. ed., Topeka, KSHS, 1977]; Goodspeed p. 623; 1862 Delaware census, nos. 229, 232, 238, 780, 781; Flora Harvey Little, Shawnee Indians in Kansas, (n. p, n. d,), p. 30. The Marshall's place of abode in on the Delaware Reserve is not known, but there is the possibility that it was on Marshall Creek [source], located _____. She became a member of the Methodist Church in childhood. [The Delaware Mission].

Anna married Moses Grinter, a white trader and the first settler of present Wyandotte County, 1836-1839. He was first in Kansas about 1828 when he was stationed at Cantonment Leavenworth. Moses Grinter operated a ferry across the Kansas River and was an Indian trader. He was born on 12 March 1809 at Russellville, Logan County, Kentucky, the son of Francis Grinter and Susannah Read. Staab says, in the Grinter Place News, Nov. 1987:

I disagree with the January, 1836, date given in Goodspeed, p. 623, for the following reasons: 1. Annie's first child was born December 26, 1839, and she continued to produce children every two or three years. 2. In a deposition given before Thomas B. Sykes, Fort Leavenworth Indian Agent, on January 29, 1861, and preserved on pp. 271-272 of the Moses Grinter Ledger, Moses affirmed that he had married a Delaware woman in the year AD 1839." 3. Vol. 17, No. 8 of an early Kansas City newspaper (above which someone has written "From the Kansas City Sun , July-14-1905") states clearly, in a biographical sketch of Moses Grinter, that "in January, 1838, he married Miss Anna Marshall." This clipping is in [1987] in the collection of Beth (nee Kirby) Willey, daughter of William Clay Kirby, living at 11 N. 78th St., Kansas City, Kansas. 4. A companion biographical sketch of Mrs. Anna Marshall Grinter, probably from the same newspaper, and also in the Kirby-Willey collection, gives the same date of January, 1838. 5. An obituary of Mrs. Anna Marshall Grinter, written by J. W. Payne, but not from the same newspaper as the preceding two sources, and also in the Kirby-Willey collection, gives January, 1838, as the date for the marriage. But an obituary for Moses Grinter says they were married January 1836. [Need to find this source to verify this date. Their married is confirmed by the 1842 Delaware Census where "Anna Grinter" is listed as No. 101. He died on 12 June 1878 at Muncie, Delaware Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas. The Grinters probably lived in more than one place, including Bethel and the White Church area, before building their brick home on the Kansas River about 1857. It is said that they lived in a "pioneer cottage" just above the ferry for a number of years. It appears that they might have left the White Church area about 1843, but no later than 1848.

Anna Marshal and Moses Grinter had ten children:

1. Frances Katherine born 26 December 1839, died 9 April 1908, married John C. Grinter .
2. W. H. H. Grinter born 1 November 1841, died 10 December 1887, not married.
3. Mary Jane Grinter born 3 May 1843, died 10 July 1908 married Audley Paul Defries.
4. Victoria B. Grinter born 26 June 1848, died in infancy.
5. Florence D. Grinter born 11 July 1851, died 24 October 1857.
6. Prudence Grinter born 26 June 1854, died in infancy.
7. Martha Vashtie Grinter born 16 July 1857, died 20 June 1930, married first W. D. Allen and second Henry Clay Kirby.
8. James Grinter, died in infancy.
9. Francis Grinter born 1 July 1862, died 12 July 1864.
10. Cunningham Reed Grinter born 4 March 1864, died 11 March 1924, married Elizabeth Shirley. [missing data here]. In addition, she and Moses Grinter raised her niece Rose Grinter and her nephew John Grinter. ("Genealogical Study of the Grinter-Marshall Descendants, and of Henry Clay Kirby's Family," 11 pp., compiled by William Clay Kirby, n. d., in the Kirby-Willey collection, to be cited as the "Grinter Genealogy) Annie's obituary says that five of the children are buried in the old Indian cemetery at White Church and one son is buried at the Grinter Chapel near Stony Point. (Obituary, Kansas City, KS Press, 30 June 1905) Four of their children were still living in 1878 when Moses died of a paralytic stroke. ("Death of an Old Citizen," Wyandotte ((Kansas.)) Gazette, June 14, 1878.)

The Grinter's were faithful members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. (Kirby, "Grinter Genealogy"; Goodspeed, pp. 622-624. Religious and community activities were an important part of their life. Her grandson, William Clay Kirby, born in 1894 (Kirby, "Grinter Genealogy"), remembered that she was "of a generous nature to her environment, people, and church and kin. Read her Bible regularly and her conversation was broad considering the limited education she had. The church was important in its support and upkeep to her. ([William Cay Kirby], "As I knew them in 1900," copy of typescript. 3 pp. (original in Kirby-Willey collection), p. 1) Through her adult life she endowed the White Church, where several of her infant children were buried ("Kirby, "Grinter Genealogy," p. 2), and the Grinter Chapel, where she and Moses and more of her family and kin lie today, with land and funds. (W. C. Kirby, "As I knew them in 1900" ; Probate Office, Wyandotte County Court House, Probated Wills, Vol. G, pp. 86-89 (Vols. B-Z are now deposited with the Wyandotte County Historical Society and Museum). Her last audible prayer was in the “musical Delaware Indian language." (The Delaware Mission). In recognition of her family's contribution to the community, Grinter Post Office was established in Wyandotte County in 1889. It remained open until 1902. (Robert W. Baughman, Kansas Post Offices May 29 1828 - August 3 1961 (Kansas Postal Historical Society, 1961), p. 54)

William Kirby later recalled that in 1900, at the age of 80, Annie was 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds, with thin grey hair and dark brown skin. "Toothless, medium thin face, and wore mostly a belted mother hubbard type dress with side cut through pockets," Kirby reminisced, "for easy access to her pipe and Bull Durham tobacco carried therein. She sucked a small pipe of clay rounded on the lower side, with insert stem of reed or small bamboo. Stems were 15 cents a dozen and pipes 10 cents each. The pound cloth sack of Bull Durham in handy access was on the mantle of the fireplace or easy to get to table. Tobacco was carried loose in her dress pockets, her pipe occupying one pocket. She wore glasses only when reading or sewing." Kirby also wrote that her physical fitness stayed with her to the end. In her last few years, Kirby recalled, she "lived among her children in divided time." (W. C. Kirby, "As I knew them in 1900," p. 1.) Her end came peacefully. On May 6, 1905, she made out her last will and testament, directing that after her last expenses were paid and bequests were made to the churches she supported, her household goods and real property should be distributed among her four surviving children. (Probate Office, Wyandotte County Court House, Probated Wills, Vol. G, pp. 86-89) On 28 June 1905 she passed away with her last audible prayer in the musical Delaware Indian Language. (J. W. Payne, Anna Marshall obituary, clipping from an unidentified newspaper dated probably late June or early July, 1905.) Jane Zolotor (RonaldPZolotor@aol.com) , grand-niece of Elizabeth Grinter, said of Annie's smoking: At one time the Grinter House was a restaurant and we took Aunt Lou (Leah) there and had dinner in Elizabeth's bedroom and she told us stories of Cam's mother smoking a clay pipe in a rocking chair in front of the fireplace."

Anna first shows up in earliest surviving Delaware documents that we can find, the 1842 Roll or Census of the Delaware Tribe of Indians within the Fort Leavenworth Agency for the Year 1842, under No. 101, as Anna Grinter with one male under 10, one female under ten , and one female of ten and under female under 40, that is, Anna. Incidentally, her mother, Betsy Wilaquenaho appears nearby on the roll under No. 104 as Mrs. Marshall with one male of 10 and under 40, two females under 10, two females of 10 and under 40, and one female (Betsy) over 40. Anna next appears in the Delaware Payroll of the Delaware Reserve on 18 April 1857, under No. 94 as Mrs. Anna Grinter, 1 woman, 3 children, Distribution Share $230.00. Then, on the Delaware Payroll of 1 January 1958 under No. 45, 1 woman, 3 children, Distribution Share $380.00. (Full Delaware Roll data for the years cited can be found in Fay Louise Smith Arellano, Delaware Trails: Some Tribal Records 1842-1907. See the Standard References in the Bibliography for the full citation and ordering information.) In 1856 she and three of her children received money "due the heads of W. H. Marshall." [Maxwell M. Gaskin's ? Letter of 14 April 1858 to the Osage River Agency. In ____, she is listed in "Abstract of Stock Stolen by Whites from The Delaware Tribe of Indians under Claim No. 123 for the loss of one ox and three head of cattle. The claim for the ox was approved.

In the Allotment of Indian Lands in Kansas under the Under the Treaty of 1860 "Annie" Grinter Anna No. 127 (No. 232 on the 1862 Census Roll) was allotted 78.xx acres of land in Lots 7 and 8 in the Southeast ¼ of Section 21, Township South 11, Range East 24 . Her mother, Betsy Marshall, was allotted 56.30 acres in Lot 6, SW/4 in 21-11-24 and 41.65 acres in Lot 5, SE/4 in 21-11-24. Anna Grinter appears in the Census of the Delaware Tribe of Indians within the Delaware Agency (Kansas) taken February 15th, 1862 No. 232, 12-15-1862 Allotment Number 127 at age 40 with No. 233 William Henry, 1862 Allotment No. 128, age 20; No. 234 Martha, 1862 Allotment No. 129, age 5; No. 235 page 27. In the 1862 Roll, she was No. 245. In the 1862 Census on the Delaware Reserve of 15 February she is listed under No. 232, Allotment No. 27, at age 40 with William Henry No. 233, age 20; No. 234 Martha, age 5; No. 235 Rosanna Marshall, 1862 Allotment No. 131 [a niece], age 12]; and, No. 236 John Marshall [a nephew], age 9, orphan, the niece and nephew being the children of her deceased brother. In a document entitled: Delaware Dwelling Structures, Crop Products and Livestock of 1 October 1865, "Annie" Grinter is listed with 1 frame house, 6 acres wheat, 25 acres corn, 2 ½ acres potatoes, 7 acres hay, 2 horses, 25 cattle, 50 hogs. Was this land with the house the land of another Delaware who chose to go to Indian Territory? And did Anna manage property other than that which she and Moses owned or occupied jointly? Her mother, the "Widow Marshal," is listed as having a log house, 12 acres of wheat, 7 acres of corn, 1 1/2 acres of potatoes, and two horses. One wonders if Anna and her mother were neighbors?

In the Delaware Semi-Annual Payment for October 1865, No. 158 Anna Grinter is listed with a family of 1 man, 1 woman, and five children and received a payment of $240,00. In the Delaware Semi-Annual Payment for 1866, No. 3 Anna Grinter, is listed with 1 woman, and 4 children and received $200.00 by W. H. G. [William Henry Grinter]. Anna Grinter was one of the 26 adult Delaware who elected to remain in Kansas and become citizens of the United States. In the Delaware Treaty with the United States of 4 July 1866, she is listed under 1862 Allotment No. 127, with four minor children and with the entry "Annie Grinter age 45 elected to become a citizen of the United States." [Weslager, The Delaware Westward Migration, p. 516]

In the 1885 Census for Wyandotte County, on page 4*, she is listed as Annie Grinter, born in Indiana, at age 50 or 58. In the 1875 Kansas Census for Wyandotte County, Anna 55 is listed with Moses, age 66, and children Mattie 17 [who is?], Rose Marshall 25, Polly 17, and Cunningham 11. [Film 1541, Roll 29]. She was not found in the 1880 Federal Census for Wyandotte County, so she may be listed under someone else. On 9 January 1882, Annie Grinter conveyed to Wyandotte County a strip of land in 21-11-24 for a road, [Quit Claim Book 16, p. 263. In the Kansas State Census for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Anna is listed with her son-in-law, Henry C. Kirby. As can be seen, she was a wealthy woman for the time. He was married to her daughter, Martha Vashtie, The land that her son-in-law was farming, [p. 219 or

Anna Grinter died 28 June 1905 at the age of eighty-five in Wyandotte County, Kansas and buried 29 June in that county in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery, Wyandotte Township, Kansas City, on the land that she and her husband have given to the Methodist Church some forty years earlier. Her funeral service was held in the Grinter Chapel. Her grave marker reads “Annie Wife of M. R. Grinter Born Jan. 1820 Died June 28 1905 85. She is buried next to her spouse, Moses Grinter. Her obituary in the Kansas City, Kansas Press said that she died near Stony Point. One account said that she was "supposed to be the last of the immigrants that came from Ohio in 1932." At the time of her death, she had four children who survived her, twenty-one grandchildren, thirty-six great grandchildren, and five great great grandchildren. BIOGRAPHY OF ANNIE [MARSHALL] GRINTER (Goodspeed: 1890, pp. 622-624)

Mrs. Annie Marshall, subject of the present sketch, is the widow of Moses R. Grinter, who departed this life in the year 1878. His remains rest in Grinter's Chapel Cemetery, and his grave is marked by a beautiful and costly monument, which was erected to his memory by his loving and devoted widow. Mr. Grinter was a Democrat in politics, and a strong supporter of Jeffersonianism, casting his first presidential vote for Gen. George B. McClelland. Both Mr. and Mrs. Grinter were devout and faithful members of the Methodist Episcopal Church [p. 623] South, and have at all times and in every possible way aided religious causes. They passed about forty years of married life together. and were equally popular and highly respected in the community where they resided. Since death has deprived her of the loved companion, Mrs. Grinter resides in her elegant brick residence. and being in good financial circumstances lives happily and quietly. surrounded by a host of admiring friends and her children. She is generally held in high esteem, and loved for her kindly disposition and beautiful character. Her present residence is in Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kas. She was a member of the Delaware tribe, and was born on January 8, 1820, in Miami County, Ohio. Her father was a trader in Indiana, and to her parents were born eight children --four sons and four daughters--viz.: John M. (deceased), Anna (the subject of this sketch), Jane (deceased), Samuel (deceased), Polly (widow of H. Tiblow, and lives in Indian Territory), Samuel (who died in early infancy), William (who died in early manhood), Rosanna (who makes her home in Perryville, Kas., and is the wife of James C. Grinter, a farmer by vocation. She is the youngest child of the family. The subject of this sketch received her education in the Osage Mission, but is exceedingly liberal in all her views, and a ready supporter of all schools, and a willing contributor to public matters of merit. She was married to Moses R. Grinter in January, 1836, and to this union were born ten children--four sons and six daughters--six of whom are dead. Those living at the present writing are Frances C. (wife of John C. Grinter, and resides in Wyandotte Township; they have seven children, two of whom are dead, and five living), Mary Jane (widow of A. [Audley] P. [Paul] Defries, and who makes her home in Wyandotte County), Martha V. (resident of Nebraska City, Neb., and wife of H. C. Kirby, who is a Methodist minister), C. R. Grinter (who married Miss Elizabeth Sherly, of Penn., and is a farmer by occupation, and resides in Wyandotte County), W. William] H. [Henry] H. [Harrison] (who is dead); he served in the late war, being at first a private, and belonging to Company E, Fifteenth Volunteer Cavalry; he served his country faithfully and well and was discharged after fighting nobly for Uncle Sam). Mrs. Grinter lives upon a historical spot of ground. Her husband and his brother, J. C. Grinter, were Kentuckians, and kept the ferry that was the place of crossing for the immense amount of travel between Kansas City and the mountains. It was at this point that Gen. Fremont crossed on his forced march across the plain. They kept here a store and blacksmith shop for the Indians, [p. 624] and it was also a voting precinct. At the time when Mr. and Mrs. Grinter settled in Kansas it was nothing more than a wilderness, there being no trace of civilization to be seen. The great bustling scene of enterprise, Kansas City, Mo., was then only a steamboat landing, and Kansas City, Kas., was indeed a dreary spot, without even one log cabin to indicate the great popularity it was afterward to attain.

WILAQUENAHO

Her English names were Betsy or Betsey and Elizabeth and probably Eliza and possibly Pricilla. Her Lenape name was Wilaquenaho or Willaquenaho. Her married name was first Marshall and then probably, second, Fish. In the William Gillis Probate Papers she is referred to as Eliza and Elizabeth. Elizabeth. Betsy Wilaquenaho was born about 1796-1797, probably in the Northwest Territory (present Ohio). She may have died in the Indian Territory (present Oklahoma) on 30 October 1875. Her father may have been Ninundekumen, a Miami Indian. His English name is not known at this time. Her mother was possibly Echelangonaockwe who was born about 1782 and who died about 1825. Echelangonaockwe's mother was possibly Ahkechelungunaqua, a sister of Mehshaquowha (Captain Patterson). If this is so, then it appears that Mekinges/ Makengis/Macunchis was her sister or half sister because they appear to have shared the same mother, Ahkechelungunaqua. It would then follow that Mekengis was Wilaquenaho's aunt. It is also possible that Betsy Wilaquenaho might have gone by the name of Ketchum because she was adopted or for some other reason. However, Mrs. Melinda Wilcoxen said in Perl Morgan, History of Wyandotte County, 1911, that her aunt and two of her cousins had married white men. These women are thought to have been Wilaquenaho and her daughters Anna Marshall and Rosanna Marshall, suggesting that they were of the Ketchum Family. In any event, it appears that Wilaquenaho was a Ketchum descendant. Helen York Rose in I Walked in the Footsteps of My Grandfather, p 178, says that her father was Twehullahlah. We are still trying to sort all of this out.

And, another approach, "As you know your Achechelungunaqua was the 2nd wife of Chief William Anderson ... her first husband was TWEE HUL LAH LAH nicked named Ketchum. Children, step children made no difference in those times...what a concept! Pratt gave us the last look at Chief William Anderson and wrote about his wives! " (Peggy Smith pjsmith@rmi.net) A difficult person to research.

Betsy Wilaquenaho married William H. Marshall, the Indian Trader, probably sometime before 1820, the birth year of their first child, Anna Marshall. William H. Marshall (see Bibliography) was the son of Henry and Mary (family name not known)

Marshall, who died in probably Miami County, Ohio, in 1837 and 1841, respectively. Henry Marshall and Mary Marshall are reported to have lived with their son, Samuel Marshall (brother of William Marshall), in their later years. Betsy and William Marshall migrated with the tribe from Ohio to Indiana to possibly Cape Girardeau and then Southwest Missouri in the 1820s. In the William Gillis Probate Papers, p. 231 in the transcription entitled "Gillis Probate" by Marsha H. Rising, Wilaquenaho made the following statements regarding her residence in present Greene County, Missouri. Unfortunately, the preceding page, p. 230, is missing in the transcript. Because one page is missing, it is difficult to tell what the date of the testimony was, but it was probably present at court about 14 July 1870.

Question. Are you a Delaware Indian?
Answer: Yes, I am a Delaware.
Q. Did the Delaware Indians ever live on James Fork of James River?
A. Yes they used to live there.
Q. Was there a trading post among the Delawares when they lived on White River or James Fork of White River?
A. Yes - had a merchant there...
Q. What was the names of the merchant or merchants that sold goods to the Delaware Indians?
A. Gillis was selling goods to Delawares.
Q. When the Delawares left the trading post on White River or James Fork of White River and moved away, did you move with them?
A. No, after one year I moved there. [Note that she doesn't say anything about moving with William Marshall, but is is assumed that she did. The year of her removal was probably 1831-1832.]
Q. Did you know Gillis the merchant that traded with the Delawares?
A. Yes, I knew him well - the first time I saw him was at the Currants [.] after that Gillis moved to White River or James Fork of the White River.
Q. Do you mean to say that the Delawares moved from Current River to White River or James Fork of White River?
A. Yes I moved from Current, my husband and Gillis all moved together from Current River.
Q. What was your husband's name?
A. His name was William Marshall...
Q. Did you know of any Piankeshaw women living at the trading post of James Fork of White River while you lived there?

A. Te Piankeshaws lived on White River when I was living on James Fork
Q. Did you ever see a Piankeshaw woman by the name of Kah-ke-to-qua [the alleged wife of William Gillis] at the trading post on James Fork...
A. I never see him - I lived 8 miles from the trading post on James Fork.
Q. Did you mean to say that you lived 8 miles from the trading post on James Fork?
A. That is what it is.
Q. How old are you?
A. About seventy years old. It is admitted by the Defendants counsel that deponent lived about nine miles from Baxter Springs, Kansas. [Emphasis added. Why is Elizabeth Marshall doing at that place?]
Elizabeth Marshall x (her mark)

She and her children went on to the Delaware Reserve in present Kansas about 1830-1832. William Marshall was reported to have gone to Kansas in the Spring of 1832 and to have returned to Missouri in 1833. If he did, he probably did not stay there long because he died probably in 1834. His will was challenged in Greene County, Missouri by his parents who resided in Ohio, possibly Miami County, and by his sisters who lived in Missouri. In these papers Mrs. Marshall is referred to as Priscilla (Indian), who is BELIEVED to be the same as the subject Elizabeth Wilaquenaho.

It appears that Betsy married second, or at had two children, Eliza Jane and Sarah Ann, by a Shawnee Indian named Arch Fish. On a Delaware Roll of the Cherokee Nation dated 31 March 1904, Sarah Ann McCamish Rankin shows Arch Fish as her father and Betsy Fish as her mother. If Betsy was the wife of Arch Fish, then it is not clear why there is on the Roll or Census of the Delaware Tribe of Nations within the Fort Leavenworth Agency for the Year 1842 there is a Mrs. Marshall, Roll No. 104, with one male of 10 and under 40, two females under 10, two females of 10 and under 40, one female over 40 , that is Willaquenaho, a total of six persons. (Fay Louise Smith Arellano, Delaware Trails: Some Tribal Records 1842-1907, p. 3.) This appears to be Betsy Wilaquenaho as the children "fit" and we know of no other "Mrs. Marshall" at this time. As indicated below, other records also show Betsy as "Betsy Marshall," "Elizabeth Marshall," "WiLaQueNaHo," "Mrs. Marshall," or "Widow Marshall." It may be possible that Betsy and Arch Fish were never officially married or that Betsy chose to retain the name Marshall for a legal or some other purpose. It appears that she may have had more than one child by a father other than William Marshall, probably Arch Fish. [We should point out here that many Native American marriages were not "marriages" in the legal style of the government. Nevertheless, they were relationships that were accepted according to the mores and values of the people of whom they were a part. We speak of the "marriage" of Betsy Wilaquenaho and William Marshall, for example, but to date we have found no "legal" documents relating to their relationship. Yet they were accepted as a "couple" by both Native Americans and their white contemporaries.] Descendant Wanda Weeks said in a letter to Thomas F. Hahn in the 1970s, "Wanda Weeks mentioned children [Mary Jane Tiblow, Eliza Jane Fish, and Sarah Rankin McCamish that were named in the settlement of Wilaquenaho's estate. Unfortunately, we can find nothing regarding the estate of Betsy Wilaquenaho Marshall. Wanda also said, "She had a brother named William and that is where the Idaho Delawares come in." Note that William is not listed in the below order of children.

There are indications that Arch Fish was a brother of Paschal Fish, a noted Shawnee chief. We suspect that there was only one Shawnee Indian named Arch Fish in Kansas in the 1830's, and that he was married to Betsy Marshall. It appears that Paschal Fish that was related to Tecumseh, and thus, the Shawnee Prophet. The Shawnee Prophet died in Argentine, Kansas in late 1836, about the time frame for Arch and Betsy to have been married.

The children of Betsy Wilaquenaho, not necessarily in the order of birth, are:

1. Anna Marshall. Her father was William Marshall. Anna married Moses Read Grinter. She had 1862 Allotment No. 127. (See Biographies)
2. Mary Ann Marshall. Her father was William Marshall. Mary Ann married Henry Tiblow. She had 1862 Allotment No. 117. (See Biographies) [Missing link to be found. Editor]
3. John Marshall. His father was William Marshall. (See Biographies)
4. Samuel Marshall. His father was William Marshall.
5. Rosanna Marshall. Her father was William Marshall. Rosanna married James C. Grinter. She had 1862 allotment No. 136.
6. Eliza Jane "Fish". Her father was Arch Fish.
7. Sarah "Sally/Sallie" Ann "Fish". Her father was Arch Fish. Sarah Ann married Rankin and McCamish. Sarah Ann had 1862 Allotment No. 71. (See Biographies) The McCamish that she married may have been William McCamish, Sr. (1835-1928), whose brother was a Judge McCamish, buried in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery in present Kansas City, Kansas. We had thought that Sarah Ann was the daughter of Betsy Wilaquenaho and William Marshall. This did not quite "fit" because it also appeared from various records that Sarah Ann's birth was after the death of William Marshall in 1834. A search of available records now reveals that Sarah Ann is the daughter of Betsy Wilaquenaho and Arch Fish a Shawnee Indian. Her record is being revised accordingly.

(Researchers: Tom Swiftwater Hahn and Vickie Wilkins)

Because Arch Fish may have been the second spouse of Wilaquenaho, we will add data on him as we come across it. An item from http:www.shawnee-traditions.com.Names-11.html

> Jackson, John aka John Fish - 1/4 Shawnee Métis born about 1799 - died after 1832 KS - son of William Jackson aka Fish - adopted white & Polly Rogers - 1.2 Shawnee Métis, brother of Elizabeth Nakease/98 & William Jackson/1800, half brother of Arch Fish/90, Paschal Fish/92, Isaac Fish/94. Jackson Fish/95 & Jesse Fish/96, Treaty 1831, 1832, move to KS 1832.

For some reason, Betsy/Wilaquenaho does not appear as a Marshall or anyone else on the Delaware Payroll of 18 April 1857, although there is a No. 182 Mrs. White Fish to be accounted for with three children, having received $402.50. (Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 14) Likewise, Betsy does not appear on the Delaware Payroll of 1 January 1858, although there is a No. 165 Widow White Fish/Mary Ann, two women and two children, having received $95.00, to be accounted for. (Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 21) Could it be that she has a different names in these rolls? A Mrs. Marshall [with the notation "Jim Grinter's wife's mother (that is, Betsy Wilaquenaho, the mother of Rosanna) appears on page 214 of Moses R. Grinter's Trading Post Records ca. 1860 as owing $14.60. (Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 81). On 8 November 1861, the U.S. Government allotted "Betsey Marshall," 15 December 1862 In the 15 February 1862 Census of the Delaware Tribe of Indians within the Delaware Agency (Kansas) she is listed a being 65 years of age [that is, born about 1797]. She had Allotment No. 70 and Census No. 531 on the 1862 census roll, Lot 5 of SE 4 (41.65 acres) and Lot 6 (56.30 acres) of SW 4, Section 21 South, Township 11, Range 24 East, a total of 97.95 acres, in present Kansas City, Wyandotte Co., Kansas. (Pratt Papers, microfilm edition, Roll 9, frame 270. This data can also be found in Smith-Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 28. It is likely that she left that property to her daughter, Anna Marshall Grinter, who was allotted Lots 7 and 8 in the southeast quarter of section 21. (See Anna Marshall) Her daughter Eliza Jane Fish's allotment is listed immediately below hers on the list as No. 71 and No. 1862 on the 1862 census roll along with her daughter Sarah Ann Rankins, No. 72 and No. 687 on the 1862 census roll. There is an intriguing piece of information for No. 888 Betsy Shawnee in the Allotments where she is given Section W/2 NE/4 of Section 20 in Township 11 (p. 57) and which she transferred by sale to Rosanna Grinter (p. 66). (Arellano, Delaware Trails). Isn't it interesting to note Rosanna and John Marshall, children of John Marshall, the son of Betsy Wilaquenaho, also had land in the same section and same township, Section E/2 SE/4 and W/2 SE/4 of Section respectively of Section 20, Township 11. as did William Henry, son of Annie Marshall Grinter (E/2 SW/4). The only "Shawnee" that seems to appear in the records up to this point is Arch Fish, Shawnee Indian, father of Sarah Ann Fish, the daughter of Betsy Wilaquenaho. However, later on in the Delaware Semi-Annual Payment for 1866 there is a No. 186 Betsy Shawnee, whose payment was signed for by Susan Shawnee, in addition to Betsy Marshall's entry as No. 11 noted above. (Ibid. pp. 171, 177.) Betsy Shawnee was No. 262, 1962 Allotment No. 888, on the list of Delaware who elected to retain their tribal relations in 1867, as well as No. 263, 1862 Allotment No. 890, John Shawnee, No. 265, 1862 Allotment No. Susan Shawnee, and No. 547, 1862 Allotment No. 870 Jane Shawnee. (Arellano, Delaware Trails, pp. 198-199, 208). However, the name "Shawnee" is probably only a coincidence and Rosanna Marshall Grinter was probably trying to consolidate her land near her family. [This reference to "Shawnee will be removed from Betsy's biography once we have established the genealogy of that family. Editor] Widow Marshall (alias Wilaquenaho) was by herself as No. 531 on the Delaware Census of 15 February 1862, with 1862 Allotment No. 70, at age 65 [born 1797]. ("Delaware Allotments Treaty, dated May 1960, cited in Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 106). Widow Marshall is included in the Delaware Dwelling Structures, Crop Products and Livestock ca. 1 October 1865 with a log house, 12 acres of wheat crop, 7 acres of corn, 1 1/2 acres of potatoes, and two horses. ("Delaware Dwelling Structures, crop products and livestock ca. October 1, 1856, cited in Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 144). In the Delaware Semi-Annual Annuity Payment for 1866, No. 11 Betsey Marshall received $40, signed for by E. J. Fish. (Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 171.) It is significant that a Fish signed for her, because normally only close relatives were allowed to do so. Of course, this Fish could have been her son-in-law rather than relating to her relationship with Arch Fish. Betsy Marshall is by herself as No. 326 in the list of Delaware Payments for October 1865, receiving $40.00 ("Delaware Semi-Annual Annuity Payment October 1865," cited in Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 161) She is followed on the listing by her daughters Sallie A. Rankin, No. 327 with 2 children, 1 child, receiving $120.00 (Ibid.); No. 329 Eliza Jane Fish, by herself, receiving $40.00; No. 329 Lucinda Marshall, who we think is her daughter by herself, receiving $40; and rounding out this grouping is No. 328, Quachachehese, by herself, receiving $40.00. (Ibid., p.162) Who is she and why is she in this family group? Betsey Marshall is No. 11, by herself, on the Delaware Semi-Annual Annuity Payment for 1866, receiving $120.00 signed for by E. I Fish. [possibly her daughter Liza Jane] Several of her children and grandchildren are close to her on the listing. ("Delaware Semi-Annual Annuity Payment for 1866, cited in Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 171) Betsy Marshall, 1862 Allotment No. 70, is on the list of Delaware Indians Who Elected to Dissolve Their Tribal Relations and Become Citizens of the United States under the Treaty of 4 July 1866, at age 66 [born ca.1796-1800, depending on what year the age was based. She later went to Indian Territory (Oklahoma) because she later documents show that she was there. In the Probate Papers of William Gillis, Eliza Marshall was living about a mile from John Sarcoxie who lived at the Headwaters of the Caney River. She was reported to have died in Indian Territory in 1875. [Source?] There seems to be no record of Betsy in Indian Territory (Oklahoma) until 1898. Betsy Marshall is listed on an unidentified "Index." This listing is in a small paperback pamphlet containing the names of Delaware Indians who moved from their Kansas home down into Indian Territory among the Cherokee. It is said that the type was set and the pamphlet published in the office of the Cherokee Phoenix newspaper at Tahlequah, I. T. It appears to have been done between 1898 and 1905. The list is presented in its entirety with the following comments: "1. The numbers used are those which were assigned by the Dawes Commission..." In that listing, Betsy Marshall is shown as No. 962 as dead , with John 401, Lucinda 310, Polly 402, and Rosanna 400. (Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 251) A listing of Delaware Indians Residing in the Cherokee Nation on 4 August, 1898, shows their lands, improvements, location, and valuation of improvements in possession of them prior to and on that date. In that listing, Betsy Marshall is cited with Register No. 962-D[ead] but in the CooWeeScooWee District [while living] with children living Mary Ann Tiblow, age 76 [born ca.1822]; Sarah Ann McCommish, age 57 (born ca.1841]; John Marshall, [Jr.], grandchild, age 41 [born ca.1857[*; and, Alice J. Lynch, grandchild , age 42 [born ca.1858]. Notes: a) John McCracken, Henry Armstrong, H. M. Adams were witnesses. b) See Reg. 939, 963, 401, 964 for improvements c) Jan. 2, 1899. Dec. 8, 1898, May 16, 1989. Those "improvements" were: No. 939 Daughter Mary Ann Tiblow , age 76 [1822] under Henry Tiblow--1/2 mile S. of Willow Springs School House; No. 963 daughter Sarah Ann Rankins, alias Sarah A. McCommish, age 63 [1835], at Willow Springs IT, 63 acres cultivated, 130 acres not cultivated, value $3,000; and, No. 401 John Marshall [Wilaquenaho's grandson], L[iving] at age 41, On E. Side Caney R. at Halfmoon ford, 18 acres cultivated, 10 acres enclosed, 160 acres not enclosed, value $400.

An Elizabeth Marshall was buried in the Gilstrap Cemetery #2, approximately six miles south of Bartlesville on Silver Lake Road on the Tyler-Irwin farm. There is no grave marker for her or for the other occupants of the cemetery except for three stones which were removed to the face of an adjacent farm pond. It is likely that the cemetery was disturbed in the creation of the pond. We believe that this is the burial site of Elizabeth (Betsy) Wilaquenaho.

* John Marshall, Jr., went to Indian Territory on 30 May, 1875, apparently the spring before Betsy died if we have the right Elizabeth Marshall's grave site. He lived in the CooWeeScooWee District with a post office address of Nowata, Indian Territory.

Site of the grave of Elizabeth "Betsy" Wilaquenaho in the Gilstrap Cemetery #2. There is no stone remaining for Elizabeth Marshall nor any of the other occupants other than those of the Welch grave markers that had been moved. Elizabeth Marshall's burial site would have been about where the shovel is according to Ruby Cranor's map. Vickie (Peach) Wilkins is her fourth great grand-daughter and Lillie (Stephenson) Peach is her third great grand-daughter. Vickie Wilkins did the research for finding the burial site of Wilaquenaho and provided this photograph taken in November 2000. Researchers: Tom Swiftwater Hahn and Vickie Wilkins.

An additional entry for Wilaquenaho regarding her maternal grandmother Ahkechelungunaqua was submitted by Laurence D. Heady:
She was of the Turtle Clan Unami and was sister to Meshaquowha-Captain William Patterson. He became Chief of the Cape Girardeau Delaware Band, after the death of Kikthawenund, Chief William Anderson. It is through Ahkechelungunaqua that our family is related to the prominent Ketchum Family.

The first entry is based on Helen York Rose, I Walked in the Footsteps of My Grandfather, pp. 174a, 177-180, 182, published in 1989. Some of the data conflicts with other sources. As Helen York Rose says on page 175, "The Ketchum Family is a little harder to work on...[as] in the other families I worked on.

1. Twehullahlah. [Possibly born about 1760] His names supposedly translates into "Could Run and Catch Deer" or Catchum=Ketchum, hence the family English name of Ketchum. Twehullahlah was brave of the Delaware tribe, not a chief. He married first Ahkechlungunaqua, a sister of Memshaquaowha (Captain Patterson). (According to Helen York Rose, I Walked in the Footsteps..., p. 177, she was of the Turtle Clan). She died about 1805. Their children were:

2. Lapinnihe had a daughter killed about 1820 or 1821 by the Miami who stole her horses and personal possessions, including a ceremonial doll. He was chief of the Cape Girardeau Delaware and joined Chief Anderson at James Fork, MO, where he died in 1826.

2. Tawhelalen signed the 1832 peace treaty as the third Delaware signature.

2. Tahleeockwhe (Captain Jack, or possibly James. Ketchum), was born 1780 in Tuscarawas County, Ohio, died 11 July 1857 at White Church, Kansas and was buried there in the White Church Cemetery. He served in the War of 1812 under General Cass, enlisting 18 June 1812 and being discharged 1 October 1812 at Fort Wayne, Indiana. Tahleeockwhe became the Chief of the Turtle Clan in 1826, and was Head Chief from 1849 until his death in 1857. He applied for bounty land on 3 March , Jacket No. 183943. Tahleeockwhe was a member of the Methodist Church South for 22 years. His wife is not mentioned. National Archive Records)

2. Ahkeelenqua was born 1786, married Ninundekumen/Owl, A Miami. She was killed 1825 by a Miami Indian.

2. Echelangonaoqua, married a chief. They had a daughter Ahquamdegauackwe. [This source varies from others that indicate that Echelangonaockwe was the mother of Wilaquenaho. Editor]

2. Wilaquaenaho, born 1795, died 1858, Kansas [Probably incorrect.

Evidence leads us to believe that she died about 1875 in Indian Territory. Editor], married a white trader, William Marshall. See the entry in the Biographies for Wilaquenaho. Editor.] Their children were:

3. John A. Marshall, born 1820, died 1862, married Betsy _____.
3.Anna Marshall born 1825, died 1905, married Moses Grinter
3. Lucinda Marshall born 1827
3. Rosanna Marshall, born 1930, died 1916, married James C. Grinter.

[Other sources show the possibility of other children. Editor **]

Twehullahlah married second Menshaquowha, a Sandusky Delaware.

2. Captain George (Kakeewha) (The source says that Menshaquowha "was the mother of Captain George/Kakeewha, so that it is not known for certain whether or not she meant that Twehullahlah was his father.)

DELAWARE TRIBES

As stated elsewhere, the policy of Lenape-Delaware History is to have no formal affiliation with any Lenape-Delaware Tribe or Nation or any other Native American organization. However, as a public service, we are offering limited space to any Lenape-Delaware Tribe or Nation to publish a brief history, announcements, a summary of minutes, membership requirements, etc. The purpose of this arrangement is to provide information to persons who may know about the Lenape Delaware web site but may not know how to contact the individual tribes or nations. Please note that some tribal organizations call themselves nations. That does not mean that they represent all Lenape-Delaware people but their own entity. We are trying this service as an experiment. We will see how it develops and to see if it is providing a useful service as we are limited in the space we are allocated. Groups having an interest may contact the editor. As stated elsewhere, we do not make a judgments on recognition, legitimacy, etc, but we do offer an open forum to all of a Lenape-Delaware heritage.

The following information was received from White Elk, Secretary of the Delawares of Idaho Council, on 22 October 2002:

> I have posted the oral history sessions of the Idaho State Historical Society with my Grandfather and Great Great Uncle and my grand aunt. ...All of information is from our groups, 20 plus years on this subject and the many years in litigation, winning us a little compensation for what was taken from Rebecca Lucas so many years ago. I plan to have the web site document this, and the story of our litigation, after the final outcome is known. THE MORAVIANTOWN DELAWARE NATION

The Moravian town Delaware Nation Community was established in May of 1792 and their village was first called Schonfeld and then anglicized to bear the name Fairfield. The meaning of the original village was "beautiful field or beautiful place". On October 5, 1813 the Fairfield village was completely destroyed by American Forces in the War of 1812-14. In 1815 a new village was built on the south side of the Thames River and became known as New Fairfield. New Fairfield maintained the compact village setting until the 1840's when families moved farther out to the wooded areas. It was at this time that the name Moraviantown became more commonly used. In later years the Department of Indian Affairs has referred to the community as Moravian of the Thames Band and some Native organizations have simply used the name Moravian. Today the community is officially known as the Delaware Nation but most members when referring to where they come from still call it Moraviantown. Using the name Moraviantown Delaware Nation distinguishes it from other Delaware groups that exist in Canada and the United States.

Original Homelands--The Delawares also known as the Lenni-Lenape or "Original people" lived in the north-eastern part of United States in the early 1600's when they first encountered Europeans from Sweden, Holland and England. The area the Delawares lived in can today be described as the whole State of New Jersey; the eastern part of New York State (including New York City) ; the northern parts of the States of Delaware and Maryland; and the eastern part of the State of Pennsylvania. The name Delaware comes from the "English title" Sir Thomas West carried, "Lord De-la-Warr". When West named the Pennsylvania river the "Delaware River" the Lenni-Lenape who lived on it became known as Delawares. The name stuck and today the Lenni-Lenape who live in Ontario and Oklahoma use "Delaware" in their place names.

Delaware Nation Leadership--The Delaware Nation Council has held elections every two or three years since 1869-70 when Timothy Snake and Philip Jacobs the last of the traditional life-time Chiefs died. Under the traditional way there was one Head Chief and several Second Chiefs. Today an election is held every two years for one Chief and five Councilors. The present Delaware Chief and Councilors are as follows Chief Leighton Hopkins and Councilors Gordon Hopkins, Marilyn Huff, Denise Stonefish, Geoff Stonefish and John L. Stonefish.

Land Size, Location and Population--The Delaware Nation at Moraviantown consists of 300 acres of land, which includes a stretch of the Thames River that provides traditional fishing, hunting and canoeing. The land was once much larger (51,000 acres plus) and was referred to as the Moravian Tract or Moravian Township in land survey terms. Today the same lands (excluding Moraviantown) are known as the Township of Zone and Township of Orford and are located within the municipality of Chatham Kent in southwestern Ontario. The population of the Delaware Nation at Moraviantown is 1000 with approximately 480 people residing within the community.

Language--Most of the people at Moraviantown use English as the primary language. A few speak French and some are fluent in their Native language. Today these fluent speakers are the ones helping to revive the language. The Delaware tongue is the traditional language of the people. The Delaware Nation employs a language coordinator who has helped develop the language through the publication of a dictionary, story books and classes.

Foods--Some of the traditional foods of the community are corn soup, corn bread, fried pickerel, and roast venison. The Delaware Nation at Moraviantown has a long tradition of serving good meals at all their gatherings, workshops, pow wow's and other events.

Favorite Pastimes and Sports--Some of the favorite pastimes and sports are fastball, basketball, volleyball, hockey, track & field, fishing, and hunting. Native leagues are in operation amongst the Native communities in the area and fastball, hockey, volleyball and basketball are some of the sports being enjoyed. Track & field competition takes place at the Annual Youth Native Olympics hosted by the different Native communities and also at the various school meets. The Seniors Group also meets each week and puts on fund raising dinners, has social times, and are always open to share their knowledge of the past.

Social Gatherings--Some of the Social Gatherings include an Annual Pow wow, Elders Gatherings, May 8, Anniversary Day (Date Community was founded), Christmas Feast, Fall Feast, Christmas Bazaar, Christmas Eve Church Service, Easter Sunrise Church Service, Delaware Gatherings, Spring Feast and Remembrance Day Service and Dinner.

Family Names--Some of the most common names are Hopkins, Huff, Jacobs, Lascelles, Lewis, Logan, Noah, Peters, Snake, Stonefish, Timothy, Tobias, and Whiteye. There are several new names as well but most are connected to the above names in ancestry.

Famous People--Some of the most famous people in the community involving politics were the late Omer Peters, Vice President of the National Indian Brotherhood, and member of NIB's Council of Elders. The late Albert Tobias, President of the Grand Council of Ontario and Quebec Indians 1894. Leighton Hopkins, past President of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians. Gordon Peters, past President of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians and past Regional Chief of the Chiefs of Ontario. Denise Stonefish, present Deputy Grand Chief of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians. Other famous people from the community are Stan Noah and Kevin Snake Sr. who guided Moraviantown to several All Ontario Championships with their outstanding fastball pitching; The late baseball pitchers Sam Lascelles, Charlie Jacobs, Silas Watson, Albert Tobias, Roy Snake and Pliney Stonefish were all well known to the local sports scene. Pow Wow dancer Mary C. Whiteye has won many awards and taught dancing to many of the youth at Moraviantown. Miss Festival of Nations winner Jolene Whiteye was also runner-up in the Miss London Competition. Tom Longboat Award winner, John L. Stonefish won many track and field Championships. Hockey player Gord Peters played in the professional league known as the International Hockey League. Writer of Native Legends, the late Jasper Hill or Big White Owl wrote stories for overfifty years and published several books. Linguists Beulah Timothy, Richard Snake, Mattie Huff, the late Ethyl Peters, the late Emily Johnson and the late Herb Snake helped teach young people the Delaware language. The many Veterans who served in World War I, World War II, Korean War, Vietnam War, Desert Storm and the War of 1812 are held in honour by the community. (Submitted by Arlene Micucci)

THE MUNSEE OF KANSAS

Tribe tries to regain federal recognition

Munsee descendants need act of Congress for restoration of benefits By Steve Brisendine - Associated Press Writer. Sunday, January 30, 2005

Pomona — Clio Caleb Church's ancestors gave up their American Indian identity more than a century ago. She has been trying for more than three decades to get it back. The Munsee tribe's official history in the state ended in 1900. Facing a forced abandonment of its reservation in Franklin County and relocation to Oklahoma, the tribe -- led by Church's great-grandfather, Ignatius Caleb -- instead decided to surrender its federal tribal recognition. In exchange, Caleb and the others accepted American citizenship, land in Kansas and $491 per person -- which would come to more than $11,000 today. Now, Church and other descendants of the Kansas Munsee want to regain that recognition and the benefits it carries: federally funded health care and education, as well as the right to operate tribal businesses as a sovereign nation. "My main intent is the education of my grandkids and their kids," said Church, 81. "That's what I've been fighting for these 35 years."

Formal proposal

Church's 1978 petition for restoration was rejected by the federal Bureau of Indian Affairs, meaning the Munsee will need an act of Congress. And for Rep. Jim Ryun, R-Kan., even to consider sponsoring such a bill, the tribe must first reorganize and elect a tribal council. "Until he receives some sort of formal proposal from the tribe, he has decided not to take one position or another," spokesman Nick Reid said Friday. Last weekend, a committee of Munsee descendants met in Pomona to discuss issues ranging from a tribal mission statement to eligibility for enrollment. There are about 250 descendants around the country, Church said. About 85 of them still live in the area. Some, like Church, show their heritage in their complexions. Others, like siblings Tom Plake and Linda Sparlin, are fair-skinned. But all of them are joined by 71 names on a list from 1900 -- the final enrollment of the Munsee and Chippewa Indians who shared a hilly, 12-square-mile reservation southeast of Pomona in Franklin County. "We're not just a bunch of people sitting around ‘playing Indian,'" said Sparlin, a concert singer and music teacher from Rolla, Mo. Nor, Sparlin said, are the Munsee motivated by the desire to cash in on casino gambling -- although the tribe will not give up any gambling rights to win recognition. "Might there be a casino someday? I don't know, because I don't know what my grandchildren are going to do," she said. "Am I going to do it? No."

Drafting a constitution

The committee has selected a tribal name -- the Munsee Tribe of Indians of Kansas -- and worked on the first draft of a tribal constitution. It is based on the constitution of the Stockbridge-Munsee Band of Mohican Indians, a northern Wisconsin tribe. Another meeting is set for Feb. 26, also in Pomona. At that meeting, Plake said, those who can trace their ancestry to any roll of Munsee in Kansas from 1836 to 1900 will be eligible to vote on the proposed constitution. Copies and ballots also will be sent out by mail, he said. Plake, an attorney in Tulsa, Okla., said it could be March before a tribal council is elected.

Tribal migration

The Munsee, like many tribes who ended up in Kansas, were not originally a plains people. They are part of the larger Delaware or Lenape group of tribes -- they prefer the latter term -- and in the 1600s, they lived in what is now the eastern United States. The arrival of European colonists forced them into a series of moves, and they established villages in Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. Many converted to Christianity under the teachings of Moravian missionaries, and in 1792 a number of Munsee moved to Canada to found the community of Fairfield. The migration to Kansas began in the 1830s. The Munsee -- variously known as "Muncie," "Christian Munsee," "Christian Indians" and "Moravian Christian Munsee" -- first settled in Wyandotte County, near the Kansas River. The area, home today to warehouses, salvage yards and trailer parks, is now part of Kansas City, Kan. Several businesses and two schools -- Muncie Elementary and Muncie Christian -- still recall the tribe's presence. From there, the Munsee moved north to what is now Leavenworth County -- only to see their land illegally overrun by squatters and bought up by speculators after the Kansas-Nebraska Act created the Kansas Territory in 1854.

Price of restoration

An 1859 treaty gave them the Franklin County land, to be held jointly with the two Chippewa bands. The tribe still maintains a cemetery there, although it is owned by the Moravian Church in America. The Munsee hope to set up a nonprofit organization to take over ownership of the cemetery. The push for restoration will take money, too, to hire attorneys and fund expert research. But Church said she won't give up. "It's closer than at any time in the past," she said. "It sure would be nice if this would happen before I kick the bucket. But even if it doesn't, hopefully the children and grandchildren will get the benefits."

Their origin and history, according to their web site:

The origin of the Nanticoke People began along the Nanticoke River in Southeastern Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland. Migration began in the early 1600's from Eastern Shore Maryland through Southeastern Delaware along the shores of New Jersey, and as far North to Canada and westward into Oklahoma. As a result of this migration, the Nanticoke people united with the Lenni-Lenape Indians already living in New Jersey.

According to the Wallum Olum, which is the religious history of the Lenni-Lenape Indians, we learn that Lenni-Lenape Indians settled here in New Jersey for at least ten thousand (10,000) years.

The Lenni-Lenape Indians are known by the Algonkian Tribes as the "Original People", "Grandfather" or "Men of Men", while the Nanticoke Indians are known as the "Tidewater People". The descendants of these two Tribes are still in existence today and living in New Jersey, Delaware and through-out the United States.

The Native Americans along with other minority groups have been needing representation and equal rights in this land for many decades. It was not until 1924 that Congress recognized Native American people as citizens. Also on August 13, 1978 Congress signed into law the "American Indian religious Freedom Act", this law gave the Native Americans the right to practice their religious beliefs.

Now along with other Native Americans we have begun the fight to preserve our culture. We are actively involved in the teaching of dancing, drumming, and Indian crafts to both young and old.

The Nanticoke Lenni-Lenape Indians host an annual Pow-Wow which is open to the public. The Pow-Wow presents an opportunity for the Nanticoke Lenni-Lenape Indians and other neighboring Indian Tribes to display, practice, and share their skills acquired through their rich heritage.

The headquarters of the Nanticoke Lenni-Lenape Indians of New Jersey, Inc.

is presently located at 18 East Commerce Street, Bridgeton, New Jersey. The office administers to the needs of Native Americans through housing, jobs, food, clothing, and education. Our Business hours are 9am to 4pm, Monday through Friday (closed on State and Federal holidays). Stop in and visit with us and browse through our gift shop if you find yourself in the area. The gift shop features handcrafted items.

The Reservation around Indian River was set up in the early 1700's. It was set up for a group of Indians simply called "Indian River Indians" by the English. According to Weslager, their queen was Weocomocus and Robin was her Interpreter although the English called him "king" Robin. He claimed that they originated in Worcester Co., MD and were Assateagues. Sometime after 1686 they were forced off their lands and moved north to Assawoman. By 1705 they were settled at the head of Indian River, near present day Millsborough. In 1705, appealing to the MD authorities who then controlled this area, they received about 1000 acres on the Indian River called Askecksoy as a reservation. The Nanticokes at this time were still living along the Nanticoke River in their reservations at Chicacone and Broad Creek.

Within a few years Robin was complaining to the authorities that the tribe had been tricked into selling about 600 acres to William Burton and his son Joshua. The Burton eventually acquired the other 400 acres in 1743. The English considered these "legally binding transactions" although the Indians claimed they had no idea they were relinquishing all rights to the land forever. By the 1742 Winnasoccum "uprising", the Indian River Reservation was gone although Indians continued to live in the area. After 1742 (and indeed before it) many Delmarva Indians began to leave and move northward into PA. The Nanticoke Reservations in MD were deserted. Of course not all of the Indians moved out. Remnant groups remained in Maryland and along the Indian River and up in Kent Co. in Delaware but there were no actual Reservations anymore. (Submitted by Arlene Micucci SweetHawkW0man@aol.com)

THE ALGONQUIANS

Algonquian Area Map Showing Early Areas of Occupation from Virginia through Nova Scotia on the Atlantic Coast
(From Algonquians of the East Coast, a Time- Life Book, highly recommend reading)

From time-to-time we are asked about other Algonquian language based tribes -- our linguistic cousins. Consequently, in the future we will have sketches of those tribes on this page. We will also provide links to more comprehensive coverage of each tribe. When available, we will use the data that the individual tribes provide provides to describe themselves. Much of the data used herein is the result of the careful research of many people, to who we are indebted. We encourage readers to use the links to those sites in order that you can enjoy the rich amount of Algonquian culture contained therein.

CANOY (PISCATAWAY)

The Conoy or Piscataway Indians were closely related to the Delaware and Nanticoke tribes. They originally inhabited the Piscataway Creek in Southern Maryland but were forced to move to the Potomac region because of constant attacks by the Susquehannocks. In 1701, they attended a treaty signing with William Penn and moved into Pennsylvania under the protection of the Iroquois nation, becoming members of the "Covenant Chain." The Covenant Chain was a trade and military alliance between the Iroquois and the non-Iroquoian speaking tribes conquered by the former. The conquered tribes had no vote or direct representation in the Iroquoian Council and all relations with the Europeans were handled by the Iroquois. In return the Iroquois agreed to protect the members from intertribal warfare. The Canoy settled along the southern Susquehanna River in a region once occupied by the Susquehannock. Once in Pennsylvania, they continued to spread northward and established a town in 1718 at the mouth of the Conoy Creek. The tribe continued to move and finally settled on an island at the mouth of the Juniata River.

The culture of the Conoy or Piscataway Indians was said to resemble that of the Powhatan Indians of Virginia. They lived in communal houses which consisted of oval wigwams of poles, covered with mats or bark. The women of the tribe made pottery and baskets, while the men made dug-out canoes and carried the bows and arrows. They grew corn, pumpkins, and tobacco. Their dress consisted of a breech cloth for the men and a short deerskin apron for the women. The Piscataway were known for their kind, unwarlike disposition and were remembered as being very tall and muscular. (From the Pennsylvania Department of State Internet Site.)

MUNSEE

More than 250 years have passed since the last Lenape (also called Delaware) relinquished their traditional homeland and migrated to the west or north. Bark lodges crumbled, dugout canoes rotted, wooden mortars and pestles decayed; only an occasional stone arrowhead or pottery fragment marks the places where these people once lived. The Lenape way of life has been faithfully recreated on an island called "Winakung" (meaning "Place of Sassafras") in Historic Waterloo Village. Here there are no teepees, no feathered war bonnets, no fringed buckskins or other trappings reminiscent of the TV Indians, who are usually associated with the Great Plains or the Southwest. Instead, Winakung is a life-sized Minisink Indian Village carefully built on actual archaeological evidence and scholarly research. The Minisink were the people who inhabited Northeastern New Jersey, including what is now Historic Waterloo Village. Like the Raritan, Hackensack, Sickonese and other groups, they were part of a larger Lenape "nation" comprising the people who were indigenous to New Jersey and the adjacent parts of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southeastern New York and Northern Delaware. Located in a natural and scenic setting, an earthen trail leading to the island is dotted with bark wigwams, a native garden, and a grove replete with symbols from a local Lenape petroglyph. After crossing the bridge to the "Indian Island" the visitor is transported into the Lenape world as it might have been in 1625, when European traders were visiting Indian communities to barter metal pots, iron axes, scissors, cloth, glass beads and other items for the Indians' furs and skins. Indeed, one bark longhouse measuring 60 feet by 20 feet and completely furnished with benches, fireplaces and other paraphernalia replicates a trading scene.

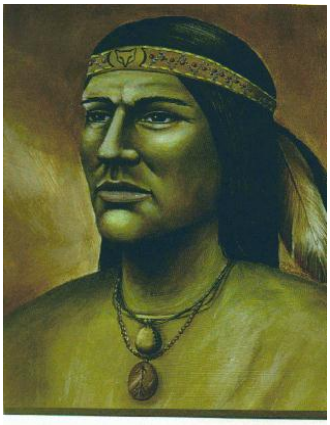
Replica of a Munsee Longhouse



Another longhouse created of saplings and bark is 40 feet long and 20 feet wide. Like the first, it is furnished with deerskin-covered bunks and shelves holding baskets, pots and pelts. Firewood is conveniently stored under the bunks. Countless braided ears of corn hang from the domed roof. A longhouse was occupied by a number of families related through the same female line. Smaller bark or sedge-covered round houses were used by single families. Several examples are located throughout the island. Two years in the making, Winakung has been visited and approved by descendants of the Lenape Indians now living in Oklahoma and Canada. It is the finest and most authentic Indian Village reconstruction in the Northeast. (From the Village of Waterloo Web Site)

MUNSEE DELAWARE

Munsee is an Algonquian language closely related to American Lenape-Delaware, but is considered by most linguists a distinct language. Only a handful of elders still speak Munsee in Ontario. Near cousins of the Lenni Lenape, the Munsee Delaware live primarily in Ontario. There are 2,000 Munsee there, and another 1,500 people in the mixed Stockbridge-Munsee reservation in Wisconsin.

NANTICOKE

Nanticoke Man

In 1772, the Nanticoke, or "tidewater people" began their trek northward to escape the violence caused by the British colonists. They stopped for a time on the Susquehanna River by the mouth of the Juniata, but by 1748 a greater part of the tribe continued north. They settled along the northern Susquehanna River and in Southern New York. Later they joined the Iroquois as members of the "Covenant Chain" and moved to Ohio with the Delaware tribe. The Nanticoke were distinguished from other tribes by their darker skin color and devotion to fishing and trapping as a main source of food. They were known as excellent farmers, hunters, and gatherers. Most of their food was provided through agricultural means. The women and children planted and tended their gardens, while the men hunted and fished. The Nanticokes believed in a variety of spirits and felt that things in nature such as water, earth, fire, and trees all possessed a unique spirit. They were rumored to have been skilled at witchcraft and had an extensive knowledge of poisons. They also transported the bones of their dead with the tribe. (From the Pennsylvania Department of State Internet Site:

Shawnee (Shawano, Savannah)

(From Native American Technology and Art)

Originally from the Ohio-Pennsylvania area, the Shawnee were driven out first by the Iroquois and then by the United States government, who forced them to first to Kansas and then to Oklahoma. Some 14,000 Shawnee currently live in Oklahoma. The Algonquian language is spoken by about 200 people in Oklahoma. Another Shawnee tribe is in Kansas.

So live your life that the fear of death can never enter your heart. Trouble no one about their religion; respect others in their view, and demand that they respect yours. Love your life, perfect your life, beautify all things in your life. Seek to make your life long and its purpose in the service of your people. Prepare a noble death song for the day when you go over the great divide. Always give a word or a sign of salute when meeting or passing a friend, even a stranger, when in a lonely place. Show respect to all people and grovel to none. When you arise in the morning give thanks for the food and for the joy of living. If you see no reason for giving thanks, the fault lies only in yourself. Abuse no one and no thing, for abuse turns the wise ones to fools and robs the spirit of its vision. When it comes your time to die, be not like those whose hearts are filled with the fear of death, so that when their time comes they weep and pray for a little more time to live their lives over again in a different way. Sing your death song and die like a hero going home. (Shawnee Chief Tecumseh)

Before the 1800s, Shawnee men wear a leather breechclout with a short flap worn only in the front, knee leggings which were gartered below the knee and fringed on the sides. In cooler leather they wore robes and mantles made of lightweight deerskin. Their winter robes were made of bear or buffalo hides. Hides were often worn of animals with the claws attached over the shoulder. They shaved the front of the heads and wore one or two feathers attached to the hair in back. The men wore sashes which were wrapped around the waist and the head. They were often crisscrossed across the chest. Their medicine bags and pouches were of the Prairie tribe style. They also wore leather belts. Important person carried fans. They had numerous necklaces of shells, beads, native copper and hair pipes.

They pierced their ears. Their earlobes were often distended to the shoulders by attached weights. They wore ear wheels, huge hopes, and rings in the holes. They worn nose rings. The men tattooed fine red lines on their faces or painted the lines on. Other colors were used, but red was the most common. After the 1800s, the Shawnee men adopted European dress with the exception of ear ornaments and face painting. Their leggings were often trimmed with ribbon work. The history of the Lenape in, A Lesson in Administration Termination: An Analysis of the Legal Status of the Delaware Tribe of Indians, especially its coverage of Delaware-Cherokee relations, is very good. Fay Louise-Smith Arellano's transcriptions in Delaware Trails: Some Tribal Records 1842-1907 contain data on Lenape/Delaware in Kansas and on those who went to Indian Territory (Oklahoma). Mary Smith Witcher's, Our Cherokee-Delaware Heritage contains data on many Delaware. Both of the latter two are recommended for those working on Lenape/Delaware genealogy. Louise Barry's, The Beginning of the West: Annals of the Kansas Gateway to the American West 1540-1854 has thousands of accounts on a daily basis of all that happened of importance in the development of the West. It is out-of-print, but can be found in libraries and by a book search. The presence of an entry does not mean that that person is more important than other persons not represented. It just means that we have the data for the entry at hand. All all important to us and we hope to provide information on as many individuals as possible.

A factor that we have in Native American genealogy and history is that much of it was not written down but passed down orally from generation to generation. We cannot always prove what has been passed down in our families, but out of respect for our ancestors and because of the lack of written sources, it must be seriously considered. Another difficulty is that such terms as grandmother, grandfather, mother, father, aunt, and do not always refer to biological members of the family, but to those adopted or otherwise brought in and treated or respected as a part of the family on the same terms as blood relations. In Lenape-Delaware History we will attempt to present both that which has been "proven" by historical research standards and that which is family history and not yet, or perhaps never, proven. This is a fine line, as some may be tempted to mix the two, but I believe that to present one without the other would be to deprive researchers of the information that may be helpful to you to further your research as well as to eliminate family tradition and the true nature of our past. Similarly, we will occasionally include accounts that are in conflict in order that Lenape-Delaware researchers can help in the quest to provide as good data as possible by knowing the specific documentation use in preparation of an entry.

The Delaware Historian Ruby Cranor has this to say of Delaware genealogy: "One must think in terms of 'Clan' and family groups. The Delaware tribe are matrilineal--that is, they trace their lineage through the maternal line. They believe that all children of the mother are full brothers and sisters regardless of who the father is. Also, all children of a sister of the mother are also brothers and sisters. One must continually keep this in mind."

Please note that we are sharing more and more of the information that we have in this section as we go along in our research because we believe that the more we share, the more we help ourselves in our own family lines. We believe that if Grandma left the family Bible to us, then we should share it with the rest of the extended family. We ask that you consider doing the same.

CHRONOLOGY 1616 - 1840

1607 - Henry Hudson, while piloting the Half Moon on the Hudson River, encountered the Delaware

1616 - The beginning of trade between the Delaware and the Dutch in New York. (Tregillis)

1626 - High and Mighty Lords, Yesterday the ship the Arms of Amsterdam arrived here. It sailed from New Netherlands out of the River Mauritius on the 23d of September. They report that our people are in good spirit and live in peace. The women also have borne some children there. They have purchased the Island Manhattes from the Indians for the value of 60 guilders. It is 11,000 morgens in size [about 22,000 acres]. They had all their grain sowed by the middle of May, and reaped by the middle of August They sent samples of these summer grains: wheat, rye, barley, oats, buckwheat, canary seed, beans and flax. The cargo of the aforesaid ship is:

7246 Beaver skins
178½ Otter skins
675 Otter skins
48 Mink skins
36 Lynx skins
33 Minks
34 Weasel skins

Many oak timbers and nut wood. Herewith, High and Mighty Lords, be commended to the mercy of the Almighty,

Your High and Mightinesses' obedient, P.[eter] Schaghen

One of the historical icons of American colonial history is the $24.00 purchase of Manhattan Island. The basis for this figure came directly from the Schaghen letter when the 60 guilders was translated using the monetary conversion rate of late 1800s. In no way does it accurately reflect the value of the goods received by the Indians for an island which they only used for hunting purposes. They also were unaware that the transaction was for permanent possession of the land--a concept totally foreign to them. Land could be used but never owned. (New Netherland Project, New York State Library)

1626 July - . . . the island was home to a small group of natives of who he called the Manhatesen--: "they are about 200 to 300 strong, women and men, under different chiefs, who they call Sackimas.". It was presumable this small band--probably a northern branch of the Lenni-Lenape Indians--with whom Peter Minuit consummated a real estate transaction.

Early Drawing of the Delaware

1643 - Native Americans, possibly Delaware, attacked the Dutch settlement of Swanendaelael. (Tregillis) At about this time, the Delaware began their migration to the west along the Susquehanna River.
1682 - The Delaware were centered at Shackamaxon, present Germantown, Pennsylvania. (K&K)
1682 - At the "Walking Treaty" with William Penn in Pennsylvania, the Delaware complained that they had been defrauded by the interpretation of the treaty. As a consequence, the "authorities" called upon the Six Nations to subjugate the Delaware. (Tregillis)
1709 - Schuylkill Lenape began settling on the Susquehanna River, first at Paxtang (present Harrisburg, Pennsylvania). (Westlager).
ca. 1717 - The Kansas River is mentioned for the first time in historical accounts and the surrounding country described: "This is the finest country and the most beautiful land in the world; the prairies are like the seas, and filled with wild animals; especially oxen, cattle [buffalo], hind, and stag, in such quantities as to surpass the imagination." (Barry, Beginning of the West, p. 12).
1720 - The Delaware surrendered their sovereignty to the Iroquois and agreed not to sell their land or to make war. (K&K)
1720s - The Southern Unami Lenape went up the Susquehanna to Shamoken. (Westlager)
1724 - Some Southern Unami Lenape went to Kittanning on the Allegheny River. (Ibid.)
By 1725 - Some Delaware were located at Kittanning on the Allegheny River in Pennsylvania.
1732 - The Schuylkill Lenape ceded land at Tulpehocking. (Westlager)

1737 - Northern Delaware were forced to move from 1,2000 square miles of their land as a result of the fraudulent "walking purchase" of their land in Pennsylvania. (Ibid.)
ca. 1742 - The Delaware moved to the Susquehanna River at present-day Wyoming, Pennsylvania. From there they moved gradually down the river, living for a while at Beaver. (K&K)
After 1750 - Most of the Southern Unami Delaware were in the lower Allegheny River Valley and in the upper Ohio river valleys where they formed the nucleus of the westward-migrating Delaware. (Smithsonian)
1751 - At the invitation of the Wyandot (Huron), the Delaware, along with the Munsee and Mahican who had also been driven out of the east, began to settle in Eastern Ohio, principally along the Muskingum River and other streams. (Tregillis)
1755 - Roger's Rangers commissioned Delaware warriors as prominent guides, scouts, and soldiers.
1758 - All Indian claims in New Jersey were relinquished by the few remaining groups of Delaware. Those wishing to remain were given a reservation at Brotherton. That group eventually went west with the Stockbridge Mahican and another Brotherton group from New England. They ended up in Wisconsin where they were joined by some Munsee who had gone to Canada and where they remain today. (Westlager)
August 1758 - A conference regarding the return of prisoners and land questions was held for about ten days between the British in Pennsylvania and the Cayuga, Conoy, Delaware, Mahican, Nanticoke, and Onondaga. (Unknown source) 1763 - British General Jeffrey Amherst approved the infection of Delaware with smallpox in blankets.
1763 - Angry colonists, known as the Paxton Boys, murdered peaceful Indians in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania in retaliation for the killing of settlers who had invaded the land of the Delaware.

By 1769 - Some Nanticoke from Maryland and Delaware and some Conoy from Maryland went west with the Delaware rather than going north to join the Six Nations. By this year some Nanticoke were in the largely-Munsee village of Goshgohink on the western side of the Allegheny River. (Smithsonian, p. 246)
By 1772 - By this year the center of the Delaware was on the upper part of the Muskingum River, at first near present Newcomerstown, and later at the present town of Coshocton. The Moravian missionaries came here in 1772 with a group of Christian Indians from Pennsylvania. (Edmund De Schweinitz, The Life and Times of David Zeisberger...p. 374, 1870)
1772 - At the Treaty of Pittsburgh, the Delaware agreed to neutrality in the American Revolution in return for assurance that the Ohio River would be the western boundary of White settlement and agreed to move to the upper forks of the Muskingum at Newcomerstown. (Westlager)

17 September 1778 - The Delaware signed a Treaty with the United States at Fort Pitt [present Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania]. This was the first treaty between the United States and an Indian tribe. The treaty included a provision for an Indian state with representation in Congress. The latter never happened. (Kappler, Treaties, pp. 3-5*).*[See the Pre-Kansas Treaty Section for the full text and for the Delaware signers.]

Wicolalind pledged aid in the war with England.

1780 - Captain John Montour musters a Delaware Company into the service of the United States.

1780s - The Delaware and the Shawnee jointly lived in a village on the Bowling Green River, four miles below the junction of the North and South Forks in Licking County. [Confusingly, there were Piqua in Ohio, also in Clark, Miami, and Pickaway counties.] (Tregillis)

April 1781 - American Colonel Broadhead attacked and defeated the Indians at the Delaware capital, Goscachgunk, present Ohio, in what is known as Brodhead's Expedition. (Thompson, Sons of the Wilderness, p. 23.)

1782 - Ninety six Christian Indians were massacred at Gnadenhutten, Ohio, in 1782 by American militia. (Smithsonian)

After 1782 - One result of the 1782 massacre at Gnadenhutten was that one Moravian mission band moved to southeastern Michigan. (Smithsonian, p. 223)

1783 - Some Delaware lived in Greentown in later Richland County (section 18 of Green Township). The town was named after Thomas Green, companion to Jelloway, Armstrong, Billy Montour, and Tom Lyons. [At least Armstrong and Billy Montour were Delaware.] The town was occupied until as early as 1812. (Tregillis)

By 1785 - A Nanticoke group of about fifty moved from a Buffalo Creek location to a village on the Maumee River near the Delaware and Shawnee. (Smithsonian, p. 246)

21 January 1785 - A treaty between the Delaware, Wyandot, Chippewa, Potawatomie, and Ottawa at Fort McIntosh established the boundaries of Indian lands in Ohio. The Delaware occupied the land between the Cuyahoga and Miami Rivers. Some of the Delaware chiefs who had served the Americans (in the Revolutionary War) were acknowledged by the treaty. (Kappler, Treaties, pp. 3-5) [See the Pre-Kansas Delaware Treaties Section for the full text and Delaware signers.]

At the end of the Revolutionary War no Delaware groups lived east of the northwest corner of the present state of Ohio. (Westlager)

1788/1789 - Some Delaware and Shawnee were located near Cape Girardeau

[Missouri]. A band of Delaware attacked residents near St. Louis. (K&K) This group, called the "Absentee Delaware," were granted permission to settle in this Spanish Territory.

1789 - Some Delaware took up lands near Cape Girardeau, [Missouri] at the invitation of the Spanish governor. (Smithsonian, p. 223)

At the Treaty of Fort Harmar the Delaware ceded more land but the Delaware retained hunting rights.

1791 - The main tribe of Delaware was at Grand Blaze, Ohio. There were 480 warriors [presumably Delaware] who served under Buckongahelas at the defeat of St. Clair. (Tregillis)

Some of the Munsee who went up the Allegheny River settled with the Seneca. (Smithsonian, p. 223)

3 November 1791 - Northwest Territory Governor, General Arthur St. Clair, was defeated by twelve hundred Indians led by Little Turtle, Blue Jacket, and Buckongahelas . (Thompson, Sons of the Wilderness, p. 7)

1792 - The Moravian mission band that moved from Gnadenhutten, Ohio to southeastern Michigan went to Ontario, Canada. They established the town of Fairfield on the Thames River which became the present Moraviatown, east of Thamesville. (Smithsonian, p. 223) Another band, the Munsee, is located at Munceytown.

August 1795 - The Treaty of Greenville, Ohio clarified the boundaries between various tribes and nations and the United States. Included were the Delaware, Wyandot, Shawnee, Ottawa, Chippewa, Potawatomie, Miami, Eel-River, Wea, Kickapoo. Piankashaw, and Kaskaskia. The Delaware gave up much land in Pennsylvania and Ohio. [See Pre-Kansas Delaware Treaties for the full text and signers.]

After 1795 - After the Treaty of Greenville, most Delaware went to the upper West Fork of the White River in Indiana where they were in several villages strung out over 40 miles for about a quarter of a century. (Smithsonian, p. 223)

After 1795 - After the Treaty of Greenville, Jerome, Captain Pipe and other Delaware went to the site of Mohican Johnstown on the south side of the stream about three-quarters of a mile from the present Jeromeville where they established a town. (Tregillis)

1804 - At the Treaty of Vincennes, the Delaware ceded lands between the Ohio and Wabash rivers.

1803 - At the Treaty of Fort Wayne, new boundaries were set for the Delaware and other tribes and salt springs were ceded..

By 1805 - Hostilities with the Osage in southern Missouri were under way. (Smithsonian, 224)

4 July 1805 - Under a treaty made at Fort Industry on the Miami River in Ohio, the Delaware, Wyandot, Ottawa, Chippewa, Munsee, Shawnee, and Potawatomie relinquished some of their claims to the United States. (Tregillis) [See the Pre-Kansas Delaware Treaties section for the full text and signers.]

18 October 1805 - At St. Louis, through the efforts of Indiana Territory Governor William Henry Harrison and General James Wilkinson, a reconciliation-and-peace treaty was made between the Delaware, Miami, Pottawatomie, Kickapoo, Sac & Fox, Kaskaskia, Des Moines River Sioux, of the one part, and the Great and Little Osage of the other part. (Jackson, ed., Letters of the Louis and Clark Expedition, cited in Barry, Beginning of the West, p. 50.

1806 - Witchcraft purges" of Delaware and Shawnee villages by followers of Tenskatawa.

1808 - There were 800 Delaware in Ohio at Wapeminskink, a few at Sandusky, a few on the Muskingum, and a large body at Fairfield, Canada. Others were located on the West Fork of the White River in Indiana where there were at least nine Delaware towns from present Indianapolis to Muncie, Indiana. They were disappointed in their life there and many reverted back to their old ways and alcoholism became a problem. (Tregillis/ Westlager)

The Second Treaty of Fort Wayne, the Delaware gave up tribal lands established by the 1803 Fort Wayne Treaty.

1814 - At the Treaty of Greenville, the Delaware pledged amity, fidelity, and aid to the United States in the war with Great Britain.

1815 - The Delaware left the Cape Girardeau Reservation in Missouri. (K&K)

8 September 1815 - At Spring Wells [near Detroit], U. S. special agents made a peace-and-friendship treaty with the Wyandot, Delaware, Seneca, Shawnee, Miami, Chippewa, Ottawa, and Pottawatomie nations living in Ohio and the territories of Indiana and Michigan. (C. J. Kapler, Indian Affairs, Laws and Treaties (Washington, 1904), 2: 110-124, in Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 74.)

By 1817 - Delaware had begun settling on the Red River in southwestern Arkansas. (Smithsonian)

29 September 1817 - Under a treaty made at the Rapids of the Miami River in Ohio, the Delaware on the Sandusky River, Wyandot, Seneca, Shawnee, Potawatomie, Ottawa, and Chippewa relinquished more land to the United States. [For the full text and Delaware signers of this treaty, see the PRE-KANSAS DELAWARE TREATIES section.)

October/Early November 1817? - The Western Cherokee (the Cherokee who had moved west of the Mississippi River to the Arkansas River), with allied Delaware, Shawnee, Quapaw, and some Americans, went to the Osage's country on the Verdigris River and raided Clermont's village [near present Claremore, Oklahoma. There were no Osage warriors at the village. It was reported that they killed more than 80 old men, women, and children and took over 100 prisoners. They also set fire to the town and destroyed their provisions. (Barry, Beginning of the West, p. 78)

By 1818 - Remnants of Nanticoke earlier from Maryland and Delaware (and perhaps Conoy earlier from Maryland) crossed the Mississippi River to live with the Delaware. (Smithsonian, p. 246)

17 September 1818 - A treaty was made between the United States and the Delaware, Wyandot, Seneca, Shawnee, Ottawa, Potawatomie, and Chippewa at St. Mary's, Ohio concerning tracts for the use of Indian reservations and additional annuities. (Tregillis)

3 October 1818 - The 1,800 Delaware living on the White River in Indiana made a treaty with the United States at St. Mary's Ohio, ceding their lands, and agreeing to remove west to an unspecified location [Southwest Missouri]. Under the terms of that treaty the main body of the Delaware settled on a reservation on the James Fork of the White river in Southwest Missouri in present Greene, Taney, Christian, Barry, McDonald, Newton, Jasper, and Lawrence Counties where the Delaware of Cape Girardeau and others joined them. Many of the Ohio Delaware remained behind on the Pipe Stem Preserve. The Delaware from Indiana trekked to Pierre Menard's agency at Kaskaskia, Illinois, where they camped, planted and harvested, then moved on to the James Fork of the White River in southern Missouri. The trip from Indiana was arduous with much illness and many deaths. They soon became dissatisfied with the Osage, Pawnee, and other tribes. Because of a scarcity of wildlife, the Delaware made forays westward to find game. This brought them in conflict with hostile Osage and other hostile groups. (Westlager)

2 February 1819 - The treaty between the United States and Spain set the western limits of the United States. The United States gave up claim, to present Texas and Spain gave up Florida and its right to the Oregon country.

1820-1822. The Delaware from Indiana trek to Pierre Menard's agency at Kaskaskia, Illinois, where they camp, pant, and harvest. then move on to the James Fork of the White River in southern Missouri. Many of the Ohio Delaware remain behind on the Pipestem Reserve.TheThe Delaware who had been at Cape Girardeau, Missouri, had gone to the Sabine and Red rivers in Texas, while others went to Southwest Missouri. (K & K)

August 10 - Missouri becomes a state. Soon after Missouri became a state, white settlers began moving into southwest Missouri. The primary route was down the Mississippi River to the White River in Arkansas, up the White River to the James River, and up the James to Wilson and Pearson's Creeks, thereby reaching present day Greene County. They established themselves as squatters, but when it was determined that the Indians had legal claim to the area, they were forced to move on, or as many of them did, bargained with the Indians and remained where they were. Names associated with this early settlement were: Augustine and William Friend, Jeremiah Pearson, John P. Pettijohn, and Joseph Phillabert. With the Delaware came a man by the name of James Wilson, who became known as the "squaw man" because he took Indian women as wives, one of whom was named Elizabeth. He settled along a stream that flowed into the James River and it became known as Wilson Creek.

2 April 1821 - The Osage, Delaware and Kickapoo Indian Agency was established as part of the St. Louis Superintendency. The Indian agent was Richard Graham. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 1) [The page numbers listed for "Hancks/Pratt," are those in Larry K. Hancks, The Delaware Indians in Kansas, John C. Pratt and the Delaware Baptist Mission. Ed.]

May - Senator Thomas Hart Benson proposed legislation to remove the tribes then settled in Missouri. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 2)

7 June - The Osage were assigned to a separate agency and the Shawnee and Delaware Indian Agency was established in St. Louis. Richard Graham continued as the agent. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 2)

Mid-September - Mission Neosho, The first Indian mission and school in present Kansas, was started by Rev. Benton Pixley and his wife. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 117)

3 March - President James Monroe signed a bill to mark out a road from Missouri to the New Mexico boundary." (Hancks/Pratt, p. 118)

16 March - President Adams appointed three Santa Fe road commissioners to carry out the marking of the road noted on 3 March. (Hancks/Pratt, 119)

3 June -The Kansa Indians ceded their lands to the United States and accepted a reservation. This opened Kansas for the resettlement of the eastern tribes. (Hancks/Pratt, 2)

7 November - The Shawnee agreed in a treaty with the United States, signed by Superintendent General William Clark at St. Louis, to move to Kansas. At St. Louis,

They agreed to cede their land claims in Missouri in the Cape Girardeau area for a tract 50 miles square win the area of the recent Osage cession and for $14,000 as payment for improvements of the land they gave up. (Hancks/Pratt, pp. 2, 127)

1826

The Shawnee from Cape Girardeau settled south of the Kansas River in present Wyandotte and Johnson counties. Colonel Lewis and some of the Lewiston band joined them; 55 Ohio Shawnee passed through Pierre Menard's agency at Kaskaskia, Illinois on their way west. The Black Bob Band refused to reunite with the Ohio Shawnee and went to the White River in Arkansas. Other Shawnee, "absentee" Shawnee, went to Texas and present Oklahoma. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 3)

1827

8 May - Colonel Henry Leavenworth, acting at variance with his orders, establishes Cantonment Leavenworth on the west bank of the Missouri River not far from the site of the old Fort de Cavagnial

25 September - A peace council held at St. Louis between the Great and Little Osage on the one hand, and the Delaware, Shawnee, Piankeshaw, Peoria, Wea, Seneca and Kickapoo on the other, to attempt to work out their differences. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 136)

About 1827 - One group of Delaware were with a group of Cherokee in East Texas and were later on the Sabine and Naches Rivers. (Westlager)

By 1827 - Cantonment Leavenworth was built on the northern edge of Delaware land. (Farley, 2) Colonel Henry Leavenworth built the fort near the site of the old Fort de Cavagnial. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 3)

14 May - The Ohio Shawnee, led by Tensquatawa, the Prophet, arrived at the Shawnee Reserve. Their hardships have reduced his influence to a low ebb. Wit a few followers he established a new Prophetstown near the present 26th Street and Woodend Avenue in Kansas City, Kansas. (Hancks/Pratt, 3) The first immigrant Shawnee had come late in 1825. About one-half of the present group came from Waupaughkonetta in Ohio, while some were from the Merrimack River in Missouri, and others were from Lewiston, Ohio, and elsewhere. With some aid from the government, they were now in three or four settlements in present Shawnee Township, Wyandotte County and in Johnson County, both south of the Kansas River. Cornstalk and William Perry were with these Shawnee. (Kansas Historical Quarterly 5:260-261, 13:442)

4 to 24 September - U. S. Commissioner Isaac McCoy led a delegation of three Ottawa, two Potawatomie, and a half-Pottawatomie interpreter on an exploratory tour into present Kansas. McCoy was a Baptist missionary from Carey, Michigan. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 152)

4 November - Andrew Jackson, a strong advocate of Indian removal, was elected President. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 3)
By the End of 1828 - Angus Langham partially surveyed a tract for the Wea and Piankashaw and another for the Peoria and Kaskaskia in present Miami and Franklin counties. These tribes/nations residing in southwestern Missouri emigrated from that region four years before the treaties of 27 and 29 October defined their legal reserves in present Kansas. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 155) Latter Part of 1828 - Subagent John Campbell came from Missouri to occupy the Shawnee Agency (present Johnson County, near the Missouri line). His charges were the Piankashaw, Wea, and Peoria, whose tracts were south of the Shawnee Reserve. He was subordinate to Agent Richard Graham in 1828-1829, to George Vashon (who succeeded Agent Graham) 1829-1820, and to Vashon's successor, R. W. Cummins, in 1830-1833). Agent Graham was in charge of the Delaware, Shawnee, Kickapoo, Piankashaw, Wea, and Peoria residing in Missouri, Arkansas, and west of Missouri. He had his headquarters in St. Louis and visited the Indians under his supervision from there. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 156)

Cyprian Choteau, one of the famous family of traders, built a trading post on the north end of the Kansas River ferry near the Grinter cabin on the Kansas Delaware Reserve. This post replaced the "Four Houses" that was located where the present Bonner Springs is because that location was too far from the military trail to be profitable. (Farley, p. 3)
By 3 January - The Wea, Piankashaw and 350 Shawnee had removed from Missouri to the lands assigned to them in present Kansas. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 156)
15 April - George Vashon was appointed the Delaware and Shawnee Indian Agent, He replaced Richard Graham. John Campbell, who lived on the Shawnee Reserve, was the sub-agent. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 4)
3 August - The Delaware who remained at Pipestown in Ohio signed a treaty with Indian Agent John McElvain, agreeing to cede their reserve to the U.S. and join the other Delaware west of the Mississippi. In exchange they were to receive $2,000 in coin and $1,000 in provisions. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 4)
3 August - 24 September-- In a treaty at St. Mary's, Ohio [on the Little Sandusky River] , the Delaware relinquished their land in Ohio in exchange for land west of the Mississippi. (Tregillis). On October 3, 1818 the Delaware were forced to cede their Ohio claims for land west of the Mississippi river in Southwest Missouri. In 1829 they were relocated once again to a reservation in Kansas. [This is the same treaty as the above entry.]

24 September - The main group of the Delaware agreed to a supplement to the Treaty of 1818 with Indian Agent George Vashon, agreeing to move from Missouri to Kansas. They were to receive support for the move, one year's provisions thereafter, a grist and saw mill within two years, and an additional permanent annuity of $1,000. Thirty-six of the best sections of their lands in Missouri were to be sold to provide a school fund. The agreement wad to be valid only after the examination and approval of the lands in Kansas. Among the signers were Captain William Anderson, Principal Chief of the Delaware Nation; Captain Patterson, Second Chief, Captain Pipe (the second of that name), Chief of the Ohio Delaware; and George Girty. (Ibid.) [See Delaware Treaties for the full text and all signers of the treaty. The above three entries are parts of the general transaction.]

19 October - In camp at the confluence of the Kansas and Missouri Rivers, a delegation of six Delaware chiefs and warriors signed approval of the supplemental treaty after examining the proposed new reserve. This large tract of 960,000 acres was intended as the permanent home for the "whole Delaware Nation." This was the first and only move that really had Delaware approval. It was brought about principally through the persistence and diplomacy of Chief William Anderson. (Tregillis/Westlager)

November - Rev. Isaac McCoy returned to Washington where he witnessed and participated in a lengthy debate over Indian removal. Removal was opposed in the northeast and favored in the south and west. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 4)

28 May - President Andrew Jackson signed the controversial Indian Removal Act. The act provided "for the exchange of lands with Indians residing in any of the states or territories, and for their removal west of the Mississippi River." (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 173)

1 June - Richard W. Cummins was appointed Delaware and Shawnee Indian Agent, replacing George Vashon. Cummins, who was sympathetic to the Indians' interest, held the position for nineteen years. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 5)

28 July - The small bands of Piankashaw, Wea, and Peoria living in present Miami and Franklin counties wrote to William Clark complaining about the interference of the Osage in their lives. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 174)

7-16 August - At Agent Dougherty's request, at Cantonment Leavenworth, the head men of the Otoe, Omaha, Iowa, Sac, Delaware, Shawnee, and Kickapoo (of western Missouri) met at and pledged amity and friendship. ("Dougherty Collection," in Kansas

Historical Society ms. division, cited in Barry, (Ibid.)
1 August - Reverend Isaac McCoy and party reached the Shawnee and Delaware agency, at the house of Major J. Campbell, on their mission to survey the boundary of the New Delaware Reserve. Kansas Historical Chronicles, XII, p. 66.)
24 August - Chief John Quick, with J. Connor the Delaware interpreter arrived in present Kansas to inspect and approve the reserve lands after making a brief tour with surveyor Isaac McCoy. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 178/Kansas Historical Chronicles, XII, p. 66.)
October - About 100 of the Delaware living on James' Fork of the White River in southwestern Missouri, led by their aged Principal Chief William Anderson, began the journey to a reserve north of the Kansas River, north of the Shawnee. (Ibid.)
Mid-November - Chief Anderson's party of Delaware had established a settlement in present Wyandotte County several miles west of the mouth of the Kansas River. (Ibid.)
1 December - Captain William Anderson and 61 other Delaware, two wagons and many horses, arrived in Kansas. They settled north of the Kansas River on the new Delaware Reserve. Anderson's Town was founded on the present site of Edwardsville, Kansas. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 5)
4 December - Agent Richard W. Cummins reported the arrival of the Delaware to General William Clark. He noted that thirty more families were expected within a few days and that others were preparing to come as soon as they could. Cummins estimated the number of Delaware at about 440 and noted that most of them were old men, women, and children. (Hancks/Pratt, pp. 178-179)

The Methodist Mission, under the direction of the Missouri Conference, was founded in 1831 under the direction of Reverend E. T. Peery, the first missionary, and his wife. (Cutler, History of the State of Kansas.)
The Methodist Episcopal Church in Missouri was the first to establish a mission among the Delaware. In 1831, Reverend Thomas Johnson built a log church in what is known as the White Church Community in Kansas City, Kansas. (Farley, p. 3) 13 January - Moses Grinter began operating a ferry across the Kansas River, presumably with an appointment from the government, near the present 78th Street and Kaw Drive in Kansas City, KS. The ferry provided the principal link between the Shawnee and the Delaware and a crossing point for Cantonment Leavenworth. (Hancks/ Pratt, 6) The ferry was located three to four miles above, and across the river from, Chouteau's' trading post and the newly-founded Shawnee Methodist Mission, in what is now Wyandotte County. This suggested an arrangement between Canton Leavenworth officials and the Delaware for travel through the latter's land, and transportation across the Kansas River. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, 181-182) Grinter was a young soldier who had lived previously at Bardstown, Kentucky. [He was probably born in the Russellville, Logan County area. Editor] He was discharged from the army, probably for the purpose of running the ferry. Grinter built a cabin on the north side of the ferry. The rope ferry was located in the northwest quarter of Section 28 Township 11, Range 29 in present Wyandotte County. The Grinter Ferry was also known as the "Lower Delaware Crossing, the "Military Ferry," or "Secondine Ferry." (Farley, p. 2)

After January - Delaware Henry Tiblow [a Shawnee Indian] established a ferry across the Kansas River near the abandoned Four Houses, about seven miles up the Kansas River from the Grinter Ferry on the site of present Bonner Springs. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 6)

February - The Mormons attempted to proselytize among the Delaware and were courteously received by Captain William Anderson (usually hostile to missionaries). They were ordered out of Indian Country by Agent Cummins. (Ibid.)

14 February - Reverend W. D. Smith described the ferry as "a tolerably good ferry, at which the mail crosses once every week going and returning between the Shawnee Agency and the Cantonment Leavenworth. James C., Grinter, his brother, is said to have assisted Moses Grinter as a ferryman from late 1849 to about 1855. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 182. See that entry for more data on the ferry.)

8 August - The 400 Shawnee remaining in Ohio at Wapaughkonetta and Hog Creek signed a treaty with Special Commissioner James B. Gardiner and Indian Agent John McElvain to agree to move to Kansas. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 6)

15 August - Captain Pipe and William Monture conveyed messages from the Delaware in Kansas to the Wyandot Tribal Council in Ohio and described the land set aside for the resettlement of the Wyandot. (Ibid.)

2 September - Ira D. Blanchard arrived at the Shawnee Baptist Mission and proposed to go among the Delaware to study their language. (Pratt) Reverend Isaac McCoy and his associate Dr. Johnston Lykins later adopted his work and plans and hired him as a teacher. Farley, pp. 3-4)

Late September-Early October - Captain William Anderson, Principal Chief of the Delaware Nation, died at his home on the Delaware Reserve in present Wyandotte County. For the past eleven months he had lived less than nine miles from his old enemy, the Shawnee Prophet. His successor was Captain Patterson. (Hancks/Pratt, 7) He may have died from smallpox. In a 22 September letter he mentioned his sons Captains Shounack (Shawannack), Pushkies, Secondyan, (Secondine), and Sarcoxy (Sarcoxie). (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 208)

Pipestown Reserve for Kansas with a party of about 30 Delaware. (They were supposed to have removed on or before 1 January1830). (Hancks/Pratt, 7) They spent the winter of 1831-1832 in Indiana. Presumably. they had arrived in Kansas in the spring or summer of 1832. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 22)

Fall - A Delaware hunting party on the plains was attacked by Pawnee. One woman escaped and made her way to a second Delaware party on the Arkansas River. (Hancks/ Pratt, p. 7)

By October - The smallpox that had broken out with the Shawnee in mid-summer spread across the Kansas River to the Delaware, Agent Cummins advised them to scatter, fifteen Delaware died before the epidemic subsided in December. The disease spread to the other Indian tribes as well. (It was reported in November that about a dozen Shawnee had died, but that the disease had subsided. It still existed among the Delaware, several of whom died. The total deaths in the Shawnee was nine and in the Delaware fifteen. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 207)

26 October - General William Clark at Castor Hill in St. Louis County, Missouri, signed a treaty with representatives of the Delaware then in Kansas and the Cape Girardeau Shawnee (the Black Bob band) then in Arkansas , giving up all claim to the Cape Girardeau grant. The U. S. Government gave to Captain Patterson, Captain Ketchum, and Na-Ko-Min annuities of $100 each for life. Most of the Cape Girardeau Delaware were then in Texas and apparently had no say in the matter. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 7.)

November - About a dozen Shawnee had died from smallpox, but the disease had subsided. It still existed among the Delaware and many died

End of 1831 - Chief William Anderson led the main body of the Delaware Tribe to their new (2 million acre) reservation in Kansas. (Smithsonian, p. 224; A Lesson in Administrative Termination, p.124)

The Baptist Mission commenced under the supervision of Dr. Johnston Lykins. (Cutler, Cutler's History of the State of Kansas)

8 February - By a War Department order, all cantonments were directed to be called forts. Accordingly, Cantonment Leavenworth was re-designated Fort Leavenworth. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 210)

19 February - Rev. William Johnson located a school for the Delaware near Andersonstown (present Edwardsville) on the Kansas River. (Ibid.)

1 March - Agent Cummins wrote to General Clark that the Kansas Delaware were very desirous that the Delaware on the Arkansas and Red Rivers join them. (Hancks/ Pratt, p. 7)

March - The Pawnee killed Chief Pushkies [The Cat] and two other Delaware in an attack on their hunting party. (Hancks/Pratt, 8) The party also contained Shawanock (a brother of Pushkies) and some Shawnee. They were on land claimed by the Shawnee. One of those killed was a woman, and another Delaware was wounded. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 211)
24 April - General Clark [Superintendent of Indian Affairs at St. Louis] reported to Secretary of War Cass that Agent Cummins had warned the Delaware in October against hunting in Pawnee country. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 8)
29 April - Superintendent William Clark's records show a payment of $25 for a "horse furnished Captain Pipe, a Delaware chief." (Barry, Winning of the West, p. 225)
Spring - Permanent buildings were erected for the Shawnee and Delaware Indian Agency on the Shawnee Reserve. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 8)
15 May - Superintendent William Clark's records show a payment of $10 to "Moonshine" to "defray expenses" of some Delaware "on their way to Kansas river." (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 225)
Late Spring or Summer - After wintering in Indiana, the last Delaware moved to the Kansas Reserve. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 8)
4 June - Superintendent William Clark's records show a payment of $15 to George Ketchum [a Delaware], to defray expenses on their way to Kansas. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 225)
24 June - A Delaware war party, led by Captain Suwaunock, attacked and burned the principal Pawnee village on the Republican River when they found that the Pawnee were not there. (Pratt) The Pawnee claimed that the Delaware were trespassing on their land between the Platte and Kansas Rivers. (K&K)
4 July - A party of Seneca from the Sandusky River, Ohio, reached their new reserve of about 67,000 acres west of the southwestern corner of Missouri, adjoining Cherokee lands. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 216)
9 July - Congress created the Office of Commissioner of Indian Affairs under the Secretary of War. Elbert Herring was the first Commissioner. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 217)
17 September - The Methodist Episcopal Church transferred the Rev. William Johnson from the Kansa to the Delaware. The Revs. Thomas B. Markham and William Johnson subsequently founded the Delaware Methodist Mission. It was initially located somewhere between Anderson's Town and the Grinter Ferry. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 9)
20 September - The Wapaughkonetta Band of Shawnee (including 16-year-old Charles Bluejacket) migrated from Auglaize County, Ohio to Kansas. They suffered considerably from the cold and from hunger. (Ibid.)

24 September - The Rev. Isaac McCoy returned from a trip to Arkansas to find Rev. Charles E. Wilson settled among the Delaware. McCoy was displeased that the other Baptist missionaries in Kansas were not consulted. (Ibid.)
30 September - For the year ending this date, at the Delaware-Shawnee Agency were the following persons: Richard W. Cummins (agent), John Campbell (subagent); Anthony Shane, James Connor, and Baptiste Peoria (interpreters); Harmon Davis, James Pool, Robert Dunlap, and Lewis Jones (gun and blacksmiths). Davis Hardin (Harmon Davis?) and James Pool were paid for labor for completing agents' and blacksmiths' building. This agency also included the Wea, Peoria, Piankashaw, and Kickapoo. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 221)
30 September - As late as this date, Superintendent William Clark's records show payments to various persons supplying provisions to small parties of "emigrating Shawnees, Delawares, Kickapoos, and Kaskaskias." (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 225)
26 October - Treaty between the United States and the Delaware.

Robert Dunlap was the government blacksmith for the Delaware. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 211)
5 February - Agent R. W. Cummins wrote to Superintendent William Clark about property lost by Delaware Chief Captain Pipe, William Monture, Isaac Hill, and Solomon Jonnicake (later Journeycake) while their party of about 30 persons was en route from the Little Sandusky River, Ohio to present Kansas. These men were among the last to emigrate to the west. Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 255)
12 February - The Rev. Isaac McCoy noted that Ira D. Blanchard has "pretty thoroughly acquired" the Delaware language. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 9)
23-26 February - Dr. Johnston Lykins and Daniel French visited the Delaware chiefs to discuss the formal establishment of a Baptist mission and school. (Ibid.)
23-25 February - Following a three-day visit by Baptists Johnston Lykins and Daniel French among the Delaware, the missionaries of "Shawanoe" Baptist Mission began regular preaching trips to [Delaware] Chief Nah-ko-min's village--the most remote of the Delaware settlements--over ten miles from "Shawanoe" (and across the Kansas River--near present Edwardsville, Wyandotte County. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 225)

April - A school was started at the Baptist Mission with G. D. Blanchard as the teacher. (Cutler)

30 March - Sup't William Clark, St. Louis, was notified (by the comm'r of Indian affairs) that his office would receive the following funds for the Delawares formerly of Missouri (per October 26, 1832, treaty terms): To purchase stock and open farms--$3,000; to "pay a person to attend their mill, and for repairs for same for 1833"--$500 (and Clark was instructed to take measures to establish the school and select a teacher); for merchandise--$5,000; for payment of some Delaware debts (money owed to traders William Gillis and William Marshall)--$12,000; annuities if $100 each for Delaware chiefs Patterson, Tah-whee-la-len (or, Ketchum), and "Nea-coming" (Nah-ko-min; Nat-coming, etc.)--$300. Kappler, Treaties, vol. 12, pp 370-372)

3 April - Isaac McCoy wrote that they had made an arrangement with Mr. Blanchard to remain with the Delaware. Ira D. Blanchard had been living with the Delaware for more than a year, learning their language. On 21 April he was baptized at the "Shawanoe" Baptist Mission." (Ibid.)

21 May - Some 375 Kickapoo and 119 Pottawatomie attached to the Prophet's band, reached the new Kickapoo reserve north of the Delaware land after an overland trip from southwestern Missouri. They were led by James Kennedy. Superintendent William Clark had estimated the Kickapoo and attached Potawatomie in Illinois and Missouri at about 650 persons--the Prophet's band of 352 including 110 Pottawatomie), on the Vermillion River, Illinois; and Kislko's band of about 300 on the Kickapoo reserve in southwest Missouri. Kenneku (the prophet) and his followers departed Illinois in the fall of 1832, attending the Castor Hill, Missouri treaties of late October as a body. After the treaty they were conducted by John McCausland to the Kickapoo Reserve in Missouri, to spend the winter of 1832-1833 there. Through various difficulties, (the Kickapoo were not happy with the situation on their new reserve. A visiting Presbyterian minister, Rev. W. D. Smith said in a 29 July letter, "They are not yet settled ... They live at present in the only unhealthy place I have seen in the [Indian] country. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 234)

Russell, arrived at the Little Platte River country (across the Missouri River from Fort Leavenworth, and from the Kickapoo Reserve--where 454 Pottawatomie already were living. About 460 Pottawatomie from that company of immigrants spent the winter of 1835-1836 on the Skunk River, in southeastern "Iowa." The destination of all those Indians was a reserve in southwestern Iowa, which had been assigned under the Chicago Treaty of 26 September 1833. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 297.

9 December - Captain Patterson's death was reported by Isaac McCoy. His death was sometime prior to 22 July 1835, however. He was the Principal Chief of the Delaware Nation. His successor was Nak-ko-min. (McCoy's Annual Register...1836, pp. 24, 28-31)

26 December - The Delaware Baptist Mission opened with 14 boys as pupils, and Ira D. Blanchard, his wife Mary Walton Blanchard, and Sylvia Case as teachers. (Hancks/ Pratt, 13) In the 1840's, they had a native assistant, Charles Johnnycake (Journeycake). (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 226)

29 December - The Cherokee Indians in a treaty with the United States made at New Echota, Ga., relinquished claim to all lands east of the Mississippi River and agreed to to remove, within two years, to the 7,000,000-acre reservation west of the Arkansas Territory and Missouri guaranteed to them by the Treaty of 6 May 1828. (The later 1835 treaty provided an additional 800,000 acres. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, pp. 298-299)

End of 1835 - Rev. Henry Rennick, Jr. was teaching 19 pupils at the Delaware Methodist Mission House . (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 260)

January - On the Delaware Reserve, Ferryman Moses Grinter married Anna Marshall, a 16-year old Delaware, the daughter of Indian Trader William Marshall. [Her mother was Betsy Wilaquenaho. Editor] They had ten children. The Grinter's land was on Sec. 20 and 21, T. 11, R. 24 E., in present Wyandotte Township. He died 12 June 1878 and she died 28 June 1905. The U. S. Census 1870 listed Moses Grinter at 61, a native of Kentucky. and Anna 50 as a native of Indiana and a son William born in Kansas. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 300)

9 March - According to Senate Report 288, 24th Congress, 1st session, on the number and situation of Indians on the frontiers, about 30,000 Indians had been removed west of the Mississippi River, and some 72,000 were yet to be removed. According to the report's "Census of Indian Tribes" and Isaac McCoy's Annual Register for 1837 there were the following Indians in "Kansas." Of the two, McCoy is probably the more accurate:

Indigenous Tribes	Census	McCoy
Kansa	1,471	about 1,606
*Osage	5,120	about 5,510
Emigrant Tribes
Pottawatomie from Indiana	441	444
Kickapoo	588	625
DELAWARE	826	921 [emphasis added]
Shawnee	1,520	823 of Kansas River
Ottawa	200	79
Wea	222	206
Piankeshaw	132	157
Peoria and Kaskaskia	132	142

*One-third to one-half of the Osage were in "Oklahoma."

Spring - Native workmen employed by the Society of friends on a 320-acre tract leased from the Shawnee four miles west of Westport, Mo. began to erect three Shawnee Mission buildings. They were probably completed by summer. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 304)

4 July - Carey A. Harris replaced Elbert Herring as the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 14)

21 October - The chiefs and head men of the Delaware, Shawnee, Piankeshaw & Wea, and Peoria & Kaskaskia met in council with Agent Richard W. Cummins and signed an agreement giving their consent to a road through their lands. (Barry, The Beginning of the West, pp. 315-316)

November - The Shawnee Prophet, Tensquatawa, died at the age of 61. He was buried near White Feather Spring in present-day Kansas City, Kansas at the present 3818 Ruby Avenue. The young Charles Bluejacket is among those present. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 14)

President Sam Houston employed Delaware scouts to protect the frontier of the newly-established Republic of Texas.

The United Brethren (Moravian) Church established a mission to the Munsee and Delaware under the direction of Jesse Vogler. Two hundred and eight Munsee lived on the north bank of the Kansas River about eight miles above its mouth. The location of the mission building was near the present town of Muncie. (Farley, p. 4)

John G. Pratt went to the Shawnee Mission to take charge of the printing office, Later, he was the Superintendent of the Delaware Mission. He learned the Delaware language and printed books for the Delaware. (Cutler)

13 April - The Northern Agency, Western Territory was replaced by the Fort Leavenworth Indian Agency, serving the Shawnee, Delaware, Kansa, and Kickapoo. The agency remained on the Shawnee Reserve and Richard W. Cummins continued as its agent. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 1)

July - General Jessup called for 1,000 western Indians to be employed against the Seminoles. Eighty-seven Delaware led by Captain Suaunock and Captain Moses were enlisted, together with a company of 85 Shawnee commanded by Captain Joseph Parks. Through an "error" they were promised $272 for six months' service rather than the customary $72. The error was discovered only after the volunteers embarked. (Hancks/ Pratt, p. 16)

17 July - A group of Christian (Moravian or Munsee) Indians left their reserve on the Thames River in Upper Canada to emigrate to the Delaware Reserve in Indian Country. (Ibid.)

Early September - The Delaware and Shawnee volunteers against the Seminole departed Westport by steamboat for a camp south of St. Louis. (Ibid.)

8 October - Col. Stephen Watts Kearny. Capt. Nathan Boone, and Charles Dimmick, civil engineer, with Company H, 1st U.S., with the 1st U.S. Dragoons as escort, surveyed the route for the military road between Fort Leavenworth and the Arkansas River. They examined the route going south, then executed the route on the return trip. (Ibid.)

September - Rev. Learner B. Stateler replaced Rev. Edward T. Peery at the Delaware Methodist Mission. He later relocated the school. (Ibid.)

16 October - The Delaware and Shawnee volunteers trained near New Orleans. (Ibid) [There were about 80 Kansas Delaware volunteers. Editor]

29 October - The Christian Indians from Canada arrived at Westport Landing with their Moravian missionary, Jesse Vogler. They settled in the present Muncie area of Kansas City, Kansas at the invitation of the Delaware. (Ibid.)

Early November - The Delaware and Shawnee volunteers against the Seminole reached Tampa and launched a three-pronged attack against the Seminole. The Delaware and the Shawnee were a part of a brigade commanded by Col. Zachary Taylor. (Hancks/Pratt, p.17)

22 November - Isaac McCoy informed General John Tipton that, "Here I enclose you a copy of the letter of the shawanoes on the subject of the Indian Bill. The same, and nearly in the same words was sent from the Delawares, Kickapoos, Putawatomies, sauks, Iowas, Kanzans, Ottawas, Peorias & Kaskaskias, Piankashas, and Weas. Each tribe signed a letter for itself--The Bill was considered in full council [of each tribe], and in some instances signed by the Chiefs in behalf of the Council, and in some instances some of the principal men also signed. (Tipton Papers, Vol. 2, p. 468)

15 December - Isaac McCoy informed General Tipton. "About 80 Delawares and about the same number of Shawanoes have been taken to the Florida war. This is an exceedingly impolitic, not to say cruel measure. To the Indians it appears in direct opposition to the peaceable measure of organizing a Territory, and they often cast it in my teeth. The inds. left this under the promise of $270. for six months service, but by a mistake it turns out to be only b$70. about 500 choctaws were mustered into service under the same promise of $270. But before they left Arkansas they were informed of the true sum, and every man returned to his home. (Tipton Papers, Vol. 2, p. 474-475)

25 December - Taylor's brigade successfully engaged the Seminole on high ground west of Lake Okeechobee [Florida], but they were forced to retreat. The actual losses on both sides were small. (Ibid.)

By 1838 - There were 1,050 Delaware in Kansas under the jurisdiction of the Leavenworth Agency. By this time the small Sandusky group in Ohio and the Christian Munsee from the Thames River in Ontario, Canada had moved to Kansas. (Hancks/ Pratt)

Immigrant tribes, including the Delaware, were forced to leave Texas under an expulsion order.

12 March - The Delaware and Shawnee volunteers were assembled at Tampa Bay [Florida], They did not suffer a single casualty. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 17)

30 March - The returned volunteers against the Seminole in Florida arrived in New Orleans, their enlistment having expired the previous day. (Ibid.)

18 April - In a speech to Congress, General Tipton said, in part, "The bill of the last session for organizing the Indian territory was submitted to the consideration of the eleven tribes, and was assented by them. These tribes are Delawares, Shawanoes, Kickapoos, Pottawatomies, Sauks of Missouri, Ioways, Weas. Piankashas, Peorias and Kaskaskia, Kansas, and Ottawas, every one of these tribes approved of the provisions of the bill;, and desired the Government to carry into effect without delay..." (Tipton Papers, Vol. 2, p. 612) Tipton gave the number of Delaware at that times as 921 persons. (Ibid., p. 595)

16 June - Licenses to trade with the Delaware, Kansa, Kickapoo, and Shawnee were issued to Albert G. Boone. William Miles Chick, Cyprien Chouteau, Charles Findlay, and Capt. Joseph Parks. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 18)

9 October - Reverend Learner B. Stateler was returned to the Delaware Methodist Mission. The construction of a new mission school began soon thereafter near the present 78th Street and Speaker Road in Kansas City, Kansas. (Ibid.)

18 October - Reverend Thomas Johnson and Agent Cummins selected a site for the Shawnee Indian Manual Labor School, six miles south of the mouth of the Kansas River and a half-mile west of the Missouri state line. Cummins reported that the Shawnee had given their approval for the school and that Johnson had agreed to discontinue the existing mission. (Ibid.) [Delaware students later attended the school.]

22 October - T. Hartley Crawford replaced Carey A. Harris as Commissioner of Indian Affairs. (Ibid.)

Fall 1838 - A second group of about 138 Munsee arrived at the Delaware Reserve. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 9)

1839

Some Delaware were forced to moved from Texas to south-central Oklahoma.

24 March - The last Cherokee removal party arrived in Indian territory [present Oklahoma]. The forced marches and the detention camps caused the deaths of 4,000 individuals out of 16,000. (Hancks/Pratt, 19)

2 October - Rev. Learner B. Stateler was returned to the Delaware. (Ibid.)

29 Oct. 1839 - The school opened at the West Building of the Shawnee Indian Manual Labor School. (Ibid.)

1840

27 Jan. 1840 - The Delaware chiefs, through Agent Cummins, informed the government that they examined the Shawnee Indian Manual Labor School and that they wished their the interest from their school funds to be divided, with $1,000 for the purchase of agricultural implements and the remainder to be used to send their children to the new school. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 20)

By February - Sixty Indian children were enrolled at the Shawnee Indian Manual

Labor School. Others were turned away because of the lack of space. (Ibid.)
3 July - Rev. Thomas Johnson dedicated a hewed-log meeting house at the Delaware Methodist Mission near the present-day 2200 North 85th Street in Kansas City, Kansas. A cemetery was established northwest of the church soon thereafter. (Ibid.)
29 September - Rev. Thomas Johnson was returned as the superintendent of the Indian Mission District and David Kinnear was placed in charge of the manual labor school. (Ibid.)

CHRONOLOGY 1841 to the Present

Sometime during the year, James Kirker, an early trapper in New Mexico, as a bounty hunter with a band of Americans. Shawnee, Delaware, and Mexicans slew about 170 Indians (presumably Apache) for their scalps for bounty. (Lavender, p. 425)

4 April - A Baptist Church with 26 members was formally organized at the Delaware Baptist Mission. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 21)

24 April 1841 - The first meeting of the new Delaware Baptist Church was held at the home of Thomas Hendrick. It was decided that the new church would be named the Delaware and Mohegan Baptist Mission Church. (Ibid.)

29 May - Agent Cummins reported that construction was underway on the East Building at the Shawnee Indian Manual Labor School. It included a school, and lodging rooms, a chapel, and a boy's dormitory. (Ibid.)

14 August - The end of the Second Seminole War was announced; no peace treaty was ever signed. (Ibid.)

Mid-August - The Delaware blacksmith shop was burned and nearly all the tools were destroyed. (Ibid.)

21 September - The Rev. Thomas Johnson sent a report on the manual labor school to the Superintendent of Indian Affairs at St. Louis. There were 78 children at the school from 21 tribes, including 22 Delaware. (Ibid.)

October - A band of Sioux attacked a hunting party of sixteen Delaware and one Potawatomie on a fork of Mink Creek in Iowa. Only the Potawatomie escaped. (Hancks/ Pratt. p. 22)

October - The Rev. Thomas Johnson was forced to give up his post because of ill health and returned to the east. The Rev. William Johnson was appointed superintendent of the Indian Mission district and the Rev. Jerome C. Berryman was placed in charge of the manual labor school. (Ibid.)

1842

A party of Delaware went with John C. Fremont on his third expedition to the West as hunters and guides and as soldiers in the Bear Flag battalion that secured California for the United States. The Delaware were never paid for their services. (Farley, p. 7)

John D. Lang and Samuel Taylor, of the Society of Friends (Quakers), visited twenty tribes, including the Delaware. They reported that they found about half the tribe cultivating corn and vegetables, keeping horses, cattle and hogs, and an abundance of fowl. Those travelers spent most of their time with the Moravian brothers among the Munsee, because he Baptist and Methodist schools were not in operation at the time. (Two Moravian men and their wives were employed as teachers and missionaries. (Ibid.)

17 January - Indian Subagent W. P. Richardson reported that he reached the site of the October battle between the Delaware and the Sioux with a five-man Delaware search party and found 14 Delaware slain and scalped, and the bodies of 28 dead Sioux. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 22)

Spring or Summer - Delaware were used as hunters by Kit Carson. It appears that they might have been employed the winter before as well. (Lavender, p. 222)

Spring - Kit Carson sent two Delaware from Kansas Landing to Taos with a message for Carson's old crew of trappers to meet him near South Pass. (Lavender, p. 227)

9 May - The Christian Indians still in Canada surrendered to their brethren on the Delaware Reserve all claim to the annuity of $400 for lands In Tuscarawas County, Ohio, ceded to the United States. They stated that they lay no claim to any land the Munsees receive in lieu of the annuity. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 22)

Summer - The Military Road that connected Fort Leavenworth, by way of the Grinter Ferry, with the newly-built Fort Scott and the forts beyond was finally completed. (Ibid.)

Summer - The Delaware blacksmith shop was rebuilt at a cost of $140 plus $75 for tools. (Ibid.)

Fall - John G. Pratt began to spend many of his weekends ministering to the Stockbridge, a small group of Indians living on the Delaware Reserve near Fort Leavenworth. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 23)

1843

Isaac Mundy, the Delaware Agency blacksmith and government paymaster arrived. He established his residence at Secondine. His wife Lucy and four slaves accompanied. Mundy brought with him an annuity payment in gold for the Delaware. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 23)

1843 -The Stockbridge Indians through Agent Cummins requested that the Baptist Board of Foreign Missions send John G. Pratt to them as missionary and teacher. (Ibid.)

July - The Baptist Board of Foreign Missions applied to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs Crawford for approval of the proposed Stockbridge mission. (Ibid.)

28-31 July - The Wyandot from Ohio arrived at the town of Kansas, one boat behind the other. They initially located on a strip of U. S. Government land between the Missouri state line and the Kansas River. Some were able to rent houses, but most were forced to remain camped in the swampy bottom lands. (Ibid.)

2 August - The Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Foreign Mission, S. Peck, wrote to John G. Pratt, to ask him to obtain plans and an estimate of the proposed buildings for the Stockbridge mission. (Ibid.)
8 August - Agent Cummins wrote to Crawford, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, about the arrival of the Wyandot in Kansas who desperately needed the $5,000 balance on the relocation payment. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 24
4 August - Superintendent of Indian Affairs, D. D. Mitchell, wrote to Crawford from Fort Leavenworth concerning the Wyandot encampment at the mouth of the Kaw. He requested a copy of the Wyandot treaty and noted that they still intended to buy land from the Shawnee. (Ibid.)
August - The Shawnee refused to go through with the sale of land from the Wyandot. The first Wyandot burials began in what became known as the Huron Indian Cemetery, on the crest of a hill on the Delaware Reserve, one-half mile due west of the confluence of the Kansas and Missouri rivers. Eventually, sixty Wyandot died from disease and exposure in this period. Negotiations began with the Delaware for the purchase of the end of the Delaware Reserve. (Ibid.)
August - John G. Pratt left for Washington, D. C. on business concerning the proposed Stockbridge mission. The Delaware chiefs were not consulted about the new mission and protested the matter to Agent Cummins and Commissioner of Indian Affairs Crawford. (Ibid.)
19 September - John G. Pratt arrived in Boston, his business in Washington still unresolved. (Ibid.)
26 September - The Board of Foreign Missions reported to the Baptist General Convention that the Pratt's had been authorized to proceed with the Stockbridge mission. Pratt was also authorized to take the press from the Shawnee Baptist Mission. Most of the missionaries with him (a move most of the area missionaries opposed). (Ibid.)
October - The Wyandot established a ferry across the Kansas River at the site of the present Lewis and Clark Viaduct and began to relocate to the Delaware Reserve. (Ibid.)
26-28 October - The Rev. Isaac McCoy's American Indian Mission Association held its first annual meeting in Louisville. Predominantly southern in membership, the Association requested that the Baptist Board of Foreign Missions transfer the missions and missionaries to its jurisdiction. (Ibid.
19 November - Ira D. Blanchard and John G. Pratt were ordained as Baptist ministers in the presence of the solemn and assembled congregation of Indians." Their certificates of ordination were signed the next day by the Revs. Francis Barker and Jotham Meeker. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 25)

14 December - The Delaware and the Wyandot signed a treaty at the Delaware Agency. The Wyandot Purchase consisted of three sections [parcels consisting of 39 sections] of land at the eastern end of the Delaware Reserve. The Delaware granted the land as a measure of respect and in remembrance of when the Wyandot had given the Delaware a home in Ohio some 80 years before, and 36 additional sections ceded for $46,080 (or $2 an acre), for a total area of 39 sections or 24,960 acres. [Farley, 10, says 23,040 acres.-Ed.] The money was to be paid in eleven installments; $6,080 in 1844, then $4,000 a year for ten years. The north-south boundary between the Wyandot Purchase and the Delaware Reserve correspond to the present 72nd Street in Kansas City, Kansas. The only two existing houses in the Wyandott Purchase were bought by James Bigtree and James Williams. (Hancks/Pratt, 25) The Delaware pay-house on the north bank of Jersey Creek where present Sixth Street in Kansas City, Kansas crosses, became the home of Wyandotte leader, William Walker. (Farley, p. 10)

Texans murdered three Delaware who were hunting on the south side of the Red River. Jesse Chisholm and others went to the scene of the killing and secured the property of the Delaware who had been killed. The murderers were captured and hanged. (Farley, p. 11)
28 February - The Delaware Mission School was closed. The chiefs agreed to use the interest on their tribal school funds for ten years ($2,844 annually to send up to 50 children to the Shawnee Indian Manual Labor School. The agreement was certified by agent Cummins. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 25)
14 March -Agent Cummins transmitted the agreement between the Delaware and the manual labor school to Commissioner of Indians Affairs Crawford. (Ibid.)
Spring 1844(?) - Delaware returning from a winter's trapping in the mountains had a skirmish with Cheyenne. Cheyenne Chief Medicine Water had his son, Touching Cloud, put on an old Spanish shirt of mail under red blanket that he wore. The Delaware supposedly wasted their ammunition on the armor and were attacked when they were re-loading their guns, and were killed. The Cheyenne, fearing retaliation, fled south. Subsequently, a group of Delaware avengers started west but were stopped by troops from Fort Leavenworth. (Lavender, pp. 256-7)
22 April - Commissioner of Indian Affairs Crawford and the Secretary of War approved the agreement between the Delaware and the manual labor school. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 25)

May-June - After a dry spring in Kansas, there were six weeks of rain in May and June, causing the great Kansas River Flood. (Ibid.)

14 June - The flood crested on the lower Kansas River. Anderson's Town was destroyed by the flood and abandoned, as were Grinter's cabin and the Delaware and Shawnee mills on the opposite side of the river. Independence Landing was destroyed by the flood, making the landing at the town of Kansas that much more attractive for westward-bound emigrants and travelers. (Hancks/Pratt, 26)
15 June - A large steamboat, loaded with timber for traders, went up the flooded Kansas River as far as the Grinter Ferry. (Ibid.)
30 June - Rev. Ira D. Blanchard reported the destruction of Anderson's Town. The flood waters went up as far as the Delaware Baptist Mission, but no damage was done to the mission buildings. (Ibid.)
30 June - A large band of Sioux and Cheyenne attacked and killed on the Smoky Hill River 15 members of a Delaware hunting party, including Captain Suwaunock. (Ibid.)
5 July - The Sioux and Cheyenne met Fremont on the Upper Arkansas River and asked him to "bear a pacific message to the Delaware." (Ibid.)
Summer - The log church of the Delaware Methodist Mission burned. It was soon replaced with a white-painted, wood-frame building on the same site, called the White Church thereafter. The Wyandot sometimes rode out to the site for camp meetings and Sunday picnics. (Hancks/Pratt, 27)
August - Fremont returned to St. Louis, having explored and mapped much of the West. (Ibid.)
24 October - A tornado struck the Shawnee Methodist Mission and manual labor school, doing considerable damage. John C. McCoy's home was destroyed in Westport as well. (Ibid.)
20 December - Six Stockbridge members of the Delaware and Mohegan Baptist Church petitioned for the establishment of a separate church organization to be associated with the Stockbridge Baptist Mission. The petition was granted. (Ibid.)

The Delaware agent reported that, "The Delawares who are considered the bravest of the brave have an unsettled difficulty with the Sioux for attacking and killing about thirty of their men while hunting in the Sioux territory. They are awaiting some action on the part of the government before they undertake to settle the difficulty themselves. (Farley, p. 12)
January - The government distributed corn to the tribes whose crops were destroyed in the 1844 flood: 342 bushels to the Delaware, 178 bushels to the Munsee, and 480 bushels to the Shawnee. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 27)
13 April - The Stockbridge Baptist Mission Church was organized with John G. Pratt as the pastor. The Revs. Meeker, Barker, and Blanchard were present. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 28)

1 May - After the split of the Methodist Church, the Kansas missions remained affiliated with the Board of Foreign Missions in Boston. (Ibid.)
18 May - Col. Stephen Watts Kearney left Fort Leavenworth with 280 men of the 1st. U. S. Dragoons on a 2,200- mile, 99-day march over the Oregon and Santa Fe Trails. (Ibid.)
8 June - The new Stockbridge Baptist Mission Church held its first meeting. (Ibid.)
9 June - John C. Fremont arrived in the Town of Kansas. (Ibid.)
23 June - Fremont's third expedition, to California, set out from Westport. Twelve Delaware, commanded by Isaac Journeycake, went along as scouts and to serve as soldiers with Fremont during the Mexican War. The party included James Connor, James Suwaunock, and Charley and James Secondine. (Ibid.)
Summer - The Delaware built a new steam-powered saw and grist mill with their own funds near the mouth of Mission Creek, some four miles up the Kaw from the Grinter Ferry. (Ibid.)
Summer - Christian Indians on the Delaware Reserve numbered 208. These included both Munsee and Moravian Delaware from Canada, descendants of survivors from the Gnadenhutten massacre. Some settled with the Stockbridge near Fort Leavenworth. (Ibid.)
29 July - Kearney's dragoons camped near Bent's Fort on the upper Arkansas. (Hancks/ Pratt, 29)
2 August - Fremont's expedition arrived at Bent's Fort and remained for two weeks for outfitting and reorganization. (Ibid.)
24 August - Kearney's party returned to Fort Leavenworth. (Ibid.)
15 Sep - Agent Cummins annual report to the Superintendent of Indian Affairs stated that the North Building at the Shawnee Indian Manual Labor School was under construction. It included a girls' school and dormitory and quarters for the superintendent's family. There were 137 students in attendance. The second annual session of the Indian Mission Conference was convened at the school. Rev. Jerome C. Berryman was returned as Superintendent of Indian Missions and was charge of the school. (Ibid.)
9 December - Fremont reached Sutter's Fort in California. (Ibid.)
29 December - The Republic of Texas was annexed to the United States and admitted as the 28th state.

February - Fremont. was ordered out of California by Mexican authorities. He went to Klamath Lake, Oregon and then turned south. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 29)
13 February - James B. Franklin replaced Isaac Mundy as the Delaware blacksmith. (Ibid.)

30 April - The Town of Kansas was re-platted by John C. McCoy, after which a lot sale was held. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 30)
9-11 May - Francis Parkman crossed the Shawnee and Delaware Reserves on his journey along the Oregon Trail and described them in his famous book, The Oregon Trail, in 1849. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 30)
19 May - The name of the Board of Foreign Missions (Baptist) was changed to the American Missionary Union. (Ibid.)
1 June - Maj. George T. Howard left Westport with a small force to scout the approaches to Santa Fe in advance of Kearney's expedition. Three or four Delaware (including James Ketchum, Lewis Ketchum and John Marshall) and six Shawnee accompanied the party as guides, hunters, and scouts. (Hancks/Pratt, 31)
June - Col. Stephen Watts Kearney with regular dragoons and Missouri volunteers under Alexander Doniphan headed toward Santa Fe from Fort Leavenworth. In addition to the Delaware with Fremont and Howard, 30 Delaware joined Doniphan's volunteers. (Ibid.)
14 June - A handful of rebellious American settlers in Sonoma proclaimed the Republic of California. They have little popular support but were backed by Fremont. (Ibid.)
15 June - President Polk signed the Oregon Treaty, dividing the Oregon country between the United States and Great Britain.
21 July - Rev. Isaac McCoy died in Louisville, Kentucky at the age of 62. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 31)
July - Maj. George T. Ward and his Delaware companions rejoined the rest of their party at Bent's Fort after spying out Taos and Santa Fe. The were soon joined by Kearney's Army of the West. (Ibid.)
7 July - The United States proclaimed the annexation of California.
13 August - Fremont and Stockton captured Los Angeles. (Ibid.)
18 August - Kearney entered Santa Fe, the Mexican governor having yielded after a token resistance. (Ibid.)
25 September - The Army of the West split. Doniphan's volunteers marched into Chihuahua . Kearney with 300 dragoons proceeded to secure California. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 32)
26 September - Francis Parkman's party returned to Westport. (Ibid.)
2 October - Cyprien Chouteau's trading license was renewed for his two posts on the Shawnee and Delaware Reserves. (Ibid.)
October - Kearney encountered Kit Carson and 15 men, including six Delaware, taking dispatches from Fremont to Senator Benton to announce the conquest of California. (Ibid)
14 November - Agent Cummins, with the aid of a "good mechanic," prepared an estimate for Rev. Pratt of the value of improvements at the Stockbridge Baptist Mission. The complex consisted of the mission house, schoolhouse, printing office, stables and various outbuildings. They had a value of $942.38. (Ibid.)

December - A frame meeting house (36' x 20') for the Delaware Baptist Mission was completed on a new site. The mission prospered until 1847. (Berry, The Beginning of the West, p. 226)
6 December - At the Battle of San Pasqual. Kearney's dragoons suffered a minor defeat, but were still able to line up with Stockton at San Diego. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 32)

21 August - The government ceded 200,000 acres back to the Shawnee. The reduced reserve was to be divided into individual allotments of 200 acres each. with approximately 900 Shawnee remaining on the reserve. Most Shawnee took their land in severalty, but there were no provisions for citizenship. The Black Bob band was allowed to retain a common reserve rather than take allotments, and land not allotted was set aside for the Absent Shawnee. The treaty gave three sections of land containing the manual training labor school to the Methodist Episcopal Church South, 320 acres to the Friends Mission, 120 acres to the Baptists, and set aside five acres for the church and cemetery of Shawneetown. (Pratt)

1 September - A provisional government was formed for the Territory

September - The pro-slavery town of Leavenworth grew up south of the fort on land illegally appropriated from the Delaware Trust Lands. The Delaware agreed to sell 320 acres for $24,000 after the fact. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 45)

7 October - Kansas territorial Governor Andrew Reeder arrived at Fort Leavenworth and established executive offices at the fort. (Ibid.)

25 October - David Z. Smith, Moravian missionary to the Munsee, asked Agent Robinson for immediate protection for his flock. White men had attempted to corrupt the Indians and threatened those who resisted. (Ibid.)
24 November - Governor Reeder moved his offices to the Fort Leavenworth Indian manual Training School. (Ibid.)

12 January - Rev. Jotham Meeker died at the Ottawa Baptist Mission. Rev. John G. Pratt was instructed by the American Baptist Missionary Union instructed Rev. John G. Pratt to oversee the mission and act as superintendent while Mrs. Meeker continued the school. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 45)
31 January - After five years of effort, the Wyandot Tribal Council signed a treaty dissolving their tribal status, allowing all competent Wyandot who wished to, to become U. U. S. citizen. They ceded the lands of the Wyandot Purchase to the United States, which was to survey,, subdivide, and re-convey, by patent in fee simple, to the individual members of the tribe. (Ibid.)
February - The Munsee vacated the Wyandot Purchase where they had lived more or less illegally for the last twelve years. The United Brethren (Moravian) mission then became the property of Isaiah Walker. (Ibid.)
20 February - The United States Congress ratified the Wyandot Treaty. (Hancks/Pratt, 46)
5 March - Commissioner of Indian Affairs Manypenny and the Methodist Episcopal Church South signed a new agreement concerning the operation of the Manual Training School. The name was changed back from the Fort Leavenworth Indian Manual Labor School to the Delaware Indian Manual Labor School. The emphasis o manual training was soon dropped in favor of academics. (Ibid.)
10 March - The Kansas Agency was divided and the Wyandot Indian Agency organized with Robert C. Miller as agent. He lived in Westport and traveled to the reserves only when on tribal business. Major Benjamin F. Robinson continued as agent for the Delaware. (Ibid.)
20 April - Moses Grinter was authorized to open a trading post with the Delaware. (Ibid.)
30 July - The government appointed Delaware Indian Agent Benjamin F. Robinson and the Wyandott Tribal Council appointed Lot Coffman and John C. McCoy as commissioners to oversee the division and allotment of the Wyandot Purchase among the individual members of the tribe. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 47)

Morse, who had been in the east for a visit. In later years Miss Gowing gave a detailed description of the mission complex as it was at the time of her arrival. There were seven buildings, including a large, two-story frame residence with a one-story L. There was a similar dormitory for the Indian children, and a long school building divided internally by folding doors, both also of frame construction and facing south like the residence. Smaller outbuildings consisted of a wash house (the 1848 schoolhouse), a smoke house and a large stable built of logs. The frame church building stood about 1/4 mile away (possibly with a small cemetery nearby). For the third year in a row, attendance was 95 pupils. In addition to the two teachers, the boarding students were overseen by a matron, Mrs. Muse. (Ibid.)

1 November - Wyandotte County voters confirmed Wyandotte as the county seat. (Ibid.)

30 May - Under the Treaty of Sarcoxieville, the Delaware agreed to take the lands of their Diminished Reserve in severalty, as provided for in the Treaty of 1854. Each tribal member was allotted 80 acres, with allotments set aside for about 200 Absentee Delaware. Principal Chief John Connor was to receive 640 acres in fee simple, while the band chiefs Sarcoxie, Neconhecond, and Kockawtowha, and the interpreter Henry Tiblow, were each allotted 320 acres. The chiefs were also to draw an annual salary of $1,500 from the tribal trust fund. A tract of 320 acres was set aside on Stranger Creek, where the mill, schoolhouse, and Ketchum's store was; 160 acres for the agency building; 160 acres for the Baptist Mission; and. 40 acres each for the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South, with the balance not allotted to be sold to the Leavenworth, Pawnee & Western Railway @ $1.25 per acre. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 57)
30 May - The Delaware signed a treaty with the United States Commissioner Thomas B. Sykes at the Delaware Agency at Sarcoxie on the Delaware Reserve. (Ibid.)
6 June - William G. Bradshaw was engaged to operate the Delaware mill on Stranger Creek, replacing William Cortez. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 58)
15 June - Delaware were participants in the Kiowa and Comanche campaign as guides in Maj. Sedgewick's command. As noted in Lt. J. E. B. Stuart's diary, participants were Fall Leaf, Sarcoxie, John Williams Buscom, Wilson, and Bullit.
20 July - Rev. Charles Ketchum died at the age of 48 and was buried in the cemetery at White Church. He had been an interpreter, an ordained deacon and chief Delaware supporter of the Methodist Episcopal Church. (Ibid.)
October- Fifty Delaware sent a letter to President Buchanan protesting the Sarcoxieville Treaty and complaining that Delaware Indian Agent Thomas B. Sykes had provided three of the chiefs with liquor, so that they were drunk when signing. (Ibid.)
24 October - Moses Grinter closed his trading store at Secondine. His account book showed $14,134.13 still owed to him by his Delaware customers. (Ibid.)
6 November - Sarcoxie and Neconhecond led a delegation to Indian Territory [in present-day Oklahoma] to inspect lands that might be purchased from the Cherokee for the resettlement of the Delaware. (Ibid.)
28 November - The Delaware inspection party signed a letter at Cherokee Station on the Neosho River offering to buy 200 sections of land from the Cherokee Nation. (Ibid.)

April - In retaliation for his warning to Col. William H. Emory -- commander of troops in Indian Territory-- of an impending Confederate attack, Texans destroyed the farm of noted Delaware scout Black Beaver, seized his livestock and grain, and placed a price on his head. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 59)

31 May - Col. Emory's troops, guided by Black Beaver, safely reached Fort Leavenworth after a 500-mile march from Fort Cobb in Indian Territory. (Ibid.)

2 July - The Delaware and the U. S. Commissioner, William P. Dole, at Leavenworth signed a treaty. Also present was attorney Thomas Ewing, Jr., agent for the Leavenworth, Pawnee & Western Railway. The treaty allowed the railroad to secure title to Delaware lands with a mortgage rather than cash. The railroad issued bonds to pay for the land, using 100,000 acres as security, then offered the remaining 123,000 acres for sale at $20 to $50 an acre. That gave to the railroad a profit of up to $3,000,000 without investing a cent of its own money. (Ibid.)

July - The Delaware were assigned their 80-acre allotments. The commissioners carrying out the work boarded at the Delaware Baptist Mission. (Ibid.)

24 September - Sarcoxie, Neconhecond, and John Connor addressed a petition from the Delaware to George McIntosh, Principal Chief of the Creek Nation, imploring his tribe to side with the Union. "We, the Chiefs of the Delawares, promise and obligate ourselves to lend the whole power of the Nation to aid and protect such tribes as may be invaded...We will permit no other Nation to war against the Union with impunity. (Ibid.)

24 September - A man named Hunneywell was taken by troops from Fort Leavenworth for supposedly attempting to incite the Delaware against the Union. A resident of the Delaware Reserve, with a Delaware wife, he had gone to Missouri to see about some horses for Rev. Pratt. He was released the next day. (Right along, the Delaware had been pressured to support the secession party when the Civil War erupted along the border. (Ibid.)

25 September - Rev. John G. Pratt contracted with Agent Johnson to serve as physician for the Delaware at $1,000 per annum. He was to be paid quarterly, for a period of four years. Rev. Pratt had been performing that function without salary for several years. (Ibid.)

4 October - Fifty-four Delaware under Captain Falleaf enlisted at Fort Leavenworth. (Ibid.)

October- Charles Journeycake was chosen as a chief of the Delaware. By 1865 he was designated a Assistant Chief and the traditional three band chiefs apparently done away with, because none signed in that manner. (Ibid.)

October - The Delaware volunteers, together with Lane's Kansas Brigade, arrived at Fremont's encampment near Springfield, MO. (Hancks/Pratt)
2 November - Fremont was relieved of the Western Command. Captain Fall Leaf's Delaware volunteers accompanied Fremont back to Sedalia out of personal loyalty to the general, then refused to continue their service. He discharged them and they returned to Kansas. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 6
December - The Creek chief Opothleyahola led a large group of pro-Union Indians to Kansas, fighting their way northward through Indian Territory. With him were at least 111 Delaware refugees, including James McDaniel, a political ally of the Principal Chief John Ross. (Ibid)

2 January - Rev. John G. Pratt completed a census of the Delaware living within the jurisdiction of the Delaware Agency. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 62)
March - Commissioner of Indian Affairs Dole convinced the War Department that two regiments of Indian volunteers should be raised to escort hundreds of loyal Indian refugees back to their homes in Indian Territory. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 63)
April - Five or six Delaware stole 14 head of horses from Wyandot Chief Tauromee on the Seneca Reserve in Indian Territory. He pursued them back to Kansas and recovered part of his property. He then filed a claim against the Delaware Nation for $830 in loss and damages. (Ibid.)
2 May 1862 - Brig. Gen. James G. Blunt took command of the Department of Kansas. He assigned Col. William Weer of the 10th Kansas Infantry to command Dole's "Indian Expedition." Two regiments were formed, the 1st Kansas Indian Home Guards consisting of loyal Creek and Seminole and Col. John Ritchie's 2nd Kansas Indian Home Guards, a more diverse group including Delaware, Kickapoo, Osage, Seneca, Shawnee, and refugees from the Five Civilized Nations. (Ibid.)
3 June - The American Baptist Missionary Union agreed to relinquish its indenture to the 160-acre allotment occupied by the Delaware Baptist Commission to Rev. John G. Pratt. The government still continued its appropriation for the school and conveyed title in the property to Rev. Pratt. Rev. Pratt would then lease the property back to the Union on the same terms as their previous occupation. (Pratt) June - Col. John Ritchie, with Capt. Fall Leaf's help, recruited 86 mounted Delaware for Company D of the 2nd Kansas Indian Home Guard. Delaware enlisted in the services of the Union numbered 170 out of 201 eligible Delaware between the ages of 18 and 45. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 63) [This enlistment rater of 75% of the eligible male population must have been the highest in the United States during the Civil War, and perhaps ever in United States history.]

12 June - As a procedural matter, Rev. Pratt gave up his interest in the American Baptist Missionary Union's former indenture to the Delaware Mission property. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 64)
June - Rev. Pratt accompanied the Delaware chiefs to Washington. It was agreed that the Delaware could remain on their present reserve and schools and improvements were encouraged. The government promised to restore to the Delaware their stolen bonds and to build an academy, but neither was done. (Ibid.)
28 June - The First Federal Indian Expedition under Col. William Weer left Fort Scott for the Cherokee nation. The 1st Regiment had more than 1,000 men. Co. Ritchie's 2nd Regiment had 500 to 600 [including Delaware troops]. Roughly half the troops were mounted. (Ibid
30 June - Rev. Pratt prepared a report on the Delaware Baptist Mission School. For the past six months there were 52 boys and 30 girls in attendance. (Ibid.)
2 July - Delaware Indian Agent Fielding Johnson reported Tauromee's claim against the Delaware to the Bureau of Indian Affairs. He vouched for Tauromee's loyalty and asked for instructions. (Ibid.)
3 July - Troops from Col. Weer's expedition surprised Col. James Clarkson's Confederates at Locust Grove in Indian territory, taking 110 prisoners over the next three days, most of Col. John Drew's Cherokee Regiment (supporters of Principal Chief John Ross) went over to the Union, although Drew remained loyal to the Confederacy. The Cherokees were attached to Ritchie's Regiment (which included the Delaware). (Ibid.)
16 July - Weer's expeditionary force occupied the Cherokee capital of Talequah. (Ibid.)
18 July - Col. William Weer occupied Fort Gibson. Despite his clear success, he was accused of exceeding his orders, removed from his command, and replaced by Col. R. W. Furnass. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 65)
27 July - While scouting the area between Tahlequah, Fort Gibson and Parkhill, troops from the expeditionary force encountered part of Stand Waite's Choctaw-Cherokee regiment at Bayou Manard [?]. Thirty-six Confederate Indians were killed (including their commander, Lt. Col. Thomas F. Taylor) and over 50 wounded. (Ibid.)
27 July - Principal Chief John Ross, his relatives and supporters, with the Cherokee national records and $250,000 in Confederate gold, started north for Kansas. (Ibid.)
7 August - Ross and his party arrived at Fort Scott. A week later he and his family left for Pennsylvania where they remained for the duration of the war. Backed by the Confederacy. Stand Waite assumed the position of Principal Chief of the Cherokee nation. (Ibid.)

6 September - Rev. Thomas Johnson submitted his last report on the Shawnee Indian Manual Labor Training School to Shawnee and Wyandot Indian Agent James B. Abbott. Attendance in the past year was 52 Shawnee children raging in age from 7 to 16. (Ibid.)
15 September - In his annual report to the Superintendent of Indian Affairs, Agent Abbott vouched for the loyalty of the Shawnee, with some 60 serving in Union forces and perhaps 40 more planning to enlist. he stated that the manual labor school appeared prosperous and well run. (Ibid.)
20 September - In an engagement at Shilley's Ford in Missouri, Col. John Ritchie's 2nd Kansas Indian Home Guard began fighting with other Union troops in the confusion of an attack. Ritchie lost his command over the incident and Captain Fall Leaf's Delaware returned to Kansas. Some were eventually classified as deserters; Falleaf [Fall Leaf] and Delaware Indian Agent Fielding Johnson worked for over a year to straighten out the mess. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 66)
30 September - The operation of the Shawnee Indian Manual Labor School was suspended and the contract between the government and the Methodist Episcopal Church South was suspended. (Ibid.)
3 December - Rev. John G. Pratt and Delaware Indian Agent Fielding signed the final contract by which the Delaware Baptist Mission became the property of Rev. Pratt. (Ibid.)
18 December - The Delaware Tribal Council adopted a code of laws for the government of the nation. Unlike the Shawnee or Wyandot, most offices were appointive with power remaining concentrated in the hands of the chiefs. The laws say nothing about the office of chief, their number, or the nature of tribal elections. (Ibid.)

Company M of the 6th Kansas Volunteer Cavalry, a Delaware Company, was mustered into service in the Union.
24 January - The Turkey Band of the Delaware Nation sent a petition to Commissioner of Indian Affairs Dole, asking for government recognition of Tonganoxie as successor to the late Kockatowa as chief of the Turkey Band and Joseph W. Armstrong as councillor. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 66)
27 March - The Wyandot were transferred from the Delaware Agency, partly at the request of Tauromee's Indian Party. There was continued friction between the two Wyandot factions and their respective councils. (Ibid.)
12 April - Delaware Indian Agent Fielding Johnson appealed to Commissioner of Indian Affairs Dole to decide which tribal council legitimately represented the Wyandot.

Johnson favored the Mudeater (Citizens Party) council. No decision was reached. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 67)

11 May -The Delaware Tribal Council repeated the request of 24 January or the recognition of Tonganoxie and Armstrong. Shortly thereafter Neconhecond, chief of the Wolf Band of the Delaware, died. (Ibid.)

July - The Delaware Baptist Mission School reached its peak of 107 pupils. Lucius Bolles assumed direction of the school, his wife Nannie and her father Charles Journeycake both served part of the time as teachers. At about this time, Rev. Pratt erected a steam-powered mill in a stone building on the east side of Mission Creek. It replaced an earlier animal-powered mill just to its south. (Ibid.)

31 July - Brig. General Thomas Ewing, Jr., commander of the Department of the Border, established military posts at Westport, the manual labor school, and Little Santa Fe to protect the border with Missouri from guerrillas. (Hancks/Pratt, 68)

21 August - William C. Quantrill with 450 men attacked and burned Lawrence. Some 200 buildings were destroyed and 182 men and boys were killed. The guerrilla retreated as armed Delaware arrived at the north side of the Lawrence ferry. In the aftermath, Delaware led by White Turkey crossed the Grinter Ferry and picked off stragglers from Quantrill's band. (Ibid.)

23 August - Alarmed by what was feared to be a guerrilla attacked but turned out to be a brush fire, the children were hurriedly sent home from the Delaware Baptist Mission. (Ibid.)

28 October - Stand Watie's Confederate Indians burned the Cherokee capital at Talequah [Indian Territory]. They burned principal Chief John Ross' house the next day. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 69)

3 February - John Moses and 150 Delaware sent a letter to Commissioner of Indian Affairs Dole that Ben Simon had been chosen to succeed Neconhecond as chief of the Wolf Band, with James Simon as second chief. Joseph W. Armstrong was chosen as chief of the Turkey Band with Joseph Thomas as second chief. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 70)

12 and 15 February - The state legislature called for the removal of all Indians from Kansas. (Ibid.)

24 February - Clara Glowing returned to her home in Concord, Massachusetts, ending over four years service as a missionary teacher at the Delaware Baptist Mission. (Ibid.)

14 April - Senator Lane informed Rev. John G. Pratt that his appointment as U. S. Indian Agent for the Delaware had been approved. Fielding Johnson was dismissed (despite Rev. Pratt's continuing support) after killing a man who assaulted him. (Ibid.)

23 April - Attorney W. M. Slough of Leavenworth wrote to Rev. Pratt, urging him not to accept the position of Delaware Indian Agent. (At this point Pratt had not yet been formally notified of his appointment.) (Ibid.)
April - Construction of the Union Pacific Eastern Division Railway westward from Wyandotte reached Secondine on the Delaware Reserve. (Ibid.)
15 May - Fielding Johnson received official notification of Rev. Pratt's appointment and in turn wrote Pratt of his readiness to turn over the office. Among the Wyandot, Tauromee's Indian Party council welcomed the change, and Pratt regularly attended their council meetings. (Ibid.)
9 June - J. C. Wyland sent Fielding Johnson an estimate of the cost of constructing a new Delaware mill at Evansville, including moving the engine and boiler from their present location at Sarcoxieville. The total was $4,638.30. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 71)
September - A report from Rev. John G. Pratt states that in addition to the four chiefs, there was a council of five members, selected according to fitness, which functioned as a legislative body or court. Another document from 1864 indicates that each band had one councillor, but that the band chief and the specific councilor could in turn select additional councillors, so that their number was apparently variable. This is consistent with Article VI of the 1862 Laws, which indicates that an unstated number of councillors were to be appointed by the chiefs, functioning in a manner similar to the Wyandot Legislative Committee. The chiefs and councillors together then appointed the clerk, three sheriffs, and a jailer. A treasurer was appointed annual on 1 April with specific duties, and appropriations were approved by the council twice a year, in April and October. The list of individuals who held the office of Delaware Principal Chief is better documented than among the fragmented Shawnee, but still somewhat uncertain. (Pratt?)
13 September - Reverend Pratt as the new office as Delaware Indian Agent, submitted a report on the status of the Delaware to Commissioner of Indian Affairs Dole. There were 1,055 members of the Delaware nation resident on the reserve. An inventory of their possessions included 554 horses worth $40,800 (the numbers were down substantially because of the war), 989 head of cattle worth $24,275, 1,807 swine worth $10,842, and 92 sheep worth $460. Despite the tribe's wealth, "The Delawares are affected by the unsettled conditions of the country. many of them are in the army. Their families are consequently left without male assistance." (Ibid.)
20 September - Commissioner of Indian Affairs Dole wrote to Rev. Pratt concerning 26 Delaware who were mustered into the 6th Kansas Calvary in 1862. The Army said they were mustered for three years, but the Delaware were supposedly told that it was for the remaining term of the regiment. Dole asked Pratt for documentation. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 2)

December - Construction of the Union Pacific Eastern Division Railway across the Delaware Reserve reached a point on the north side of the Kansas River opposite Lawrence. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 73)

2 January - Unknown persons murdered Rev. Thomas Johnson, living on his farm near Westport. He was buried in the Shawnee Methodist Mission cemetery southeast of the manual labor school. (Hancks/Pratt, 73)

1 September - Lucius Bolles Pratt, son of Rev. John G. and Olivia Evans Pratt, died at the Delaware Baptist Mission at the age of 24. The mission school continued under his wife Nannie. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 75)

26 December - The Wyandotte County Commissioners examined the route and appraised properties to be taken for the Missouri River Railroad (present Missouri Pacific), part of which would run through the Delaware Reserve. (Ibid.)

1 January - Construction of the Union Pacific eastern Division Railway reached a point on the north side of the Kansas River opposite Topeka. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 76)

May - The Union Pacific Eastern Division Branch line across the Delaware Reserve opened to Leavenworth. (Ibid.)

4 July - The Delaware signed a treaty [14 Stat. 793--See Treaties for the complete text]] agreeing to sell their remaining lands in Kansas. The railroad through the former reserve having been completed, the Delaware were to receive full value of the lands sold in the treaty of 1860. The new treaty authorized the Secretary of the Interior to sell all the remaining part of the Delaware Reserve to the Missouri River Railroad Company at $25.0 per acre. Those Delaware who elected to become citizens [of the United States (and Kansas)] could retain their 80-acre allotments and were entitled to an equitable share of the sale proceeds. Monies from the sale of allotted lands would go to the individual owner, while the monies from the sale of lands not allotted would be added to the tribe's general fund. The U. S. in turn agreed to sell to the Delaware 160 acres for every man, woman, and child that chose to remove to Indian Territory at the price the United States paid for it. Delaware going to Indian territory were then being expected to pay for their own removal.) Almost as an afterthought, the railroads were granted 200-foot rights-of-way through any new Delaware Reserve. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 77)

July - The Delaware Council House near the present 134th and Parallel in Kansas City, a mile and one-half northwest of the Baptist Mission, burned down. (Ibid.)

19 July - Treaty between the United States and Cherokees, 14 Stat 799, art. 15 provided that all tribes that the United States to the Cherokee Nation east of the 96' must pay headrights and will enjoy the rights of native Cherokees, but such tribes could also pay for their lands and thereby preserve their sovereignty. (A Lesson in Administrative Termination. See Treaties for the full text)

11 August - The United States signed a major treaty with the Cherokee, regularizing their post Civil War relationship. (Although John Ross had died, pro-Union Cherokee insisted that he be listed as Principal Chief.) Article 15 of the treaty provided for the settlement of friendly Indians on unoccupied Cherokee lands, at a price to be mutually agreed upon by the tribes. The government hoped to relocate the Delaware to the lands in question. (Ibid.)

20 August - President Johnson formally declared be Civil War to be over. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 77)

13 October - Reverend Pratt issued instructions to the Delaware delegation (the council and their interpreter) that had been chosen to proceed to Indian territory to examine the Cherokee lands. he provided them with a map of the lands in question, a copy of the Cherokee treaty. and a certification of their authority. (Ibid.)

7 November - The Cherokee National Council passed a resolution to enter an agreement with the Delaware, allowing for a reservation east or west west of the 96'. (A Lesson in Administrative Termination)

3-4 December - The new Delaware mill at Evansville burned. (Ibid.)

9 December - Delaware delegates, electing to preserve tribal organization, in company with Cherokee delegates, made an agreement for a 10 x 30-mile tract in Indian Country east of the 96'.

16 December - Special Agent Vital Jarrot and Joseph Bogy (brother of Commissioner of Indian Affairs) wrote to Reverend Pratt from Lawrence. They were commissioned to make new treaty proposals to the various tribes still resident in Kansas. They asked Pratt to assemble the Delaware at Tiblow on Saturday the 22nd. If the tribe was favorable to their proposal, Pratt and two tribal delegates were authorized to return to Washington with the commissioners to sign the treaty. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 78.

25 December - Special Commissioners Jarrot, Bogy, and Warnsworth wrote to Rev. Pratt from De Soto in Johnson County. Pratt asked them if they wished to confer with the Wyandot, but Abelard Guthrie informed them that the majority of the Wyandot were in Indian Territory and the others dispersed/ Still, if two Wyandot could be chosen to go to Washington, they could go with Rev. Pratt and the Delaware delegates. (Ibid.)

29 December - The Paymaster General for the District of Kansas requested Rev. Pratt's assistance in making payment to Cos. B, C, and D, 2nd Regiment of Indian Home Guards. Pratt was to inform him as to where and when the companies could be assembled. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 78)

A detachment of Delaware accompanied Hancock's expedition of 1867 against the Indians west of Fort Larned and several served with Custer at that time as scouts, guides, and hunters. Farley says that due to all the travel, many Delaware settled far from the reservation. (Farley, p. 9)

January - Superintendent of Indian Affairs Thomas Murphy at Atchison instructed Reverend Pratt to make an immediate investigation of the burning of the Delaware mill. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 78)

9 January-The United States established a post office at Edwardsville, Kansas, on the site of Anderson's Town. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 79)

25 January - Reverend Pratt prepared a Memoranda of National Expenses for the Delaware for the latter part of 1866. The salaried positions included two sheriffs at $100 each, one jailor and one clerk at $75 each, two assistant smiths at $45 per month, and a lumber measurer. (Ibid.)

31 January - The Delaware Tribal Council notified Reverend Pratt that they have decided not to rebuild the mill and discharge miller William G. Bradshaw. Pratt was to sell any equipment and lumber that was salvageable. (Hancks/Pratt, p.79)

14 February - The commanding officer Leavenworth approved the military escort for the treaty payment, but denied Reverend Pratt's request for the use of Sibley tents to shelter the Delaware at the payment site. He said that if shelter was to be provided at all, it would have been done by the Indian Department. (Ibid.)

16 February - Miller William G. Bradshaw sent a detailed report of the burning of the Delaware mill, together with an estimate of the loss, to Rev. Pratt. The total was $2,335. Bradshaw believed that the fire was arson; the roof was a sheet of flame before any of the rest of the building was touched and suspected employees of the Union Pacific, Eastern Division. There had been conflicts with the railroad over the cutting and milling of timber on the Delaware Reserve. (Ibid.)

18 February - The Delaware tribe accepted the 9 December agreement, and 985 Delaware elected to preserve their tribal relations and enroll for removal to a new reservation in the Cherokee Nation. Those not enrolling on the 18 February registry would thereby remain in Kansas, sever their tribal relations, and become United States' citizens. (A Lesson in Administrative Termination, p. 124)

18-24 February - Rev. Pratt made a treaty payment to the Delaware. The official enrollment list of the Delaware Nation prepared by Rev. Pratt listed 1,160 Delaware, 985 of who had reluctantly agreed to move to Indian Territory. The remaining 175 Delaware were to become citizens of the United States. They retained their 80-acre allotments. [21 adults and 49 minor Delaware. Why the discrepancy? (Ibid.) Those remaining became known as the "Kansas Delaware Tribe of Indians, "now the Kansas Delaware Tribe of Indians, Incorporated.]

23 February - The omnibus treaty negotiated by the Special Commissioners was signed, affecting a half dozen tribes with lands in Kansas. The treaty provided for the surrender of the last lands still held by the Ottawa, Quapaw, Seneca, Mixed Seneca and Shawnee, and the Confederated Peoria, Kaskaskia, Wea and Piankashaw. The mixed band of Seneca (Mingo) and Shawnee were to divide, the Mingo joining the main group of Western Seneca and their lands sold separately for different amounts. (There was no mention of the Wyandot who were once with the mixed band.) (Ibid.)

29 March - Nathaniel G. Taylor was appointed Commissioner of Indian Affairs replacing Lewis V. Bogy after less than five months, but his confirmation was delayed. There was continuing turmoil in the Bureau of Indian Affairs, with charges of corruption. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 80)

3 April - Delaware Indians accompanied General Winfield S. Hancock as scout guides, hunters, and interpreters on a move from Fort Hacker to Fort Larned. A detachment of Delaware scouts accompanied Colonel Custer west of Fort Larned. (KHC, v. 27, pp. 212-213)

8 April - The Delaware and the Cherokee signed an agreement by which the Delaware were to become part of the Cherokee Nation in Indian Territory. They were to pay $279,424.28 into the Cherokee tribal fund for what they assumed were voting rights, citizenship and a proportionate share of Cherokee lands, although they did not intend to give up their Delaware identity and tribal organization. (There was over $900,000 in the Delaware tribal funds; by contract, in the wake of the Civil War the Cherokee were land rich but money poor.) The Delaware allotments were in a 10-by-30-mile area in present Washington County, Oklahoma, but were interspersed with the Cherokee. Many Delaware felt that they were being cheated by the Cherokee; they had no legal representation but the Cherokee's attorney was Thomas Ewing, Jr., former agent for the Leavenworth, Pawnee & Western Railway in Kansas. Among other problems, much of the land purchased turned out to be for life tenure rather than in perpetuity. In addition, the Delaware were excluded from access to certain Cherokee tribal funds. (Ibid.) The treaty referred to the "incorporation" old Delaware into the Cherokee Nation. (A Lesson in Administrative Termination, p. 124. [The Delaware who went to live with the Cherokee were later known as the "Eastern Oklahoma Delaware Tribe of Indians," headquartered at Bartlesville, Oklahoma. This group is now called the "Delaware Tribe of Indians," headquartered at Bartlesville, Oklahoma. In spite of the name, this tribe is a tribe, per se, and has no jurisdiction over the "Western Delaware Tribe of Indians," sometimes referred to as the "Absentee Delaware," at Anadarko, Oklahoma, nor the Kansas Delaware Tribe of Indians, the Idaho Delaware Tribe, or any of the other Delaware or Munsee Delaware tribes or nations.

8 April - Superintendent of Indian Affairs Thomas Murphy wrote to the Acting Commissioner of Indian Affairs from Atchison that the Delaware-Cherokee treaty would save the government the cost of one agency. (Ibid.)

11 April - The [Eastern Oklahoma] Delaware Tribal Council wrote to the Acting Commissioner of Indian Affairs. asking for an accurate account and final settlement of the monies due the tribe. (Hancks/Pratt, 81)

15April - The [Eastern Oklahoma] Delaware noted in the 3 April started out in pursuit of the Pawnee. (KHC, p. 214)

6 May - The [Eastern] Delaware acting in General Council refused to ratify the Articles of Agreement due to the reference of "incorporation. The majority of the Delaware signed the resolution signed the resolution [?] rejecting the same as a violation of the 1866 Delaware-United States Treaty. (A Lesson in Administrative Termination, p. 124.)

13 June - The Cherokee National Council ratified the Articles of Agreement. A Lesson in Administrative Legislation, p. 124)

6 August - Agent Pratt grudgingly transmitted the resolution rejecting the Articles of Agreement to the Superintendent of Indian Affairs, presenting the resolution as an "expression of that unfettered class, which seek to keep alive old Indian customs and traditions." [Emphasis added. In spite of my declaration to try to be unbiased, Reverend Pratt seems less and less an admirable person. Editor] (Ibid.)

December - The mainstream of the Delaware began their move from Kansas to Indian Territory. (Ibid.)

27 December - Sixty-eight Delaware affixed their names to a document renouncing their status as Delaware and affirmed their new status as United States' Citizens. [And became the Kansas Delaware Tribe of Indians.]

1868

16 January - Three fourth of the Delaware Tribe again petitioned the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, protesting the Articles of Agreement as a violation of the 1866 Treaty; Delawares now faced starvation and poverty in Kansas.

5 May - The Commissioner of Indian Affairs traveled to Kansas, [and] after assurances from the Commissioner, [the] Delawares proceeded into the Cherokee Nation. (A Lesson in Administrative Legislation, p. 124)

Spring and Summer - The Delaware continued their move from Kansas to Indian Territory. Nominally supervised by Rev. Pratt. Each family made its own preparations and traveled at its own expense, the 200-mile journey taking from ten days to two weeks. They suffered considerable hardship and there were many deaths over the next year. The Delaware Baptist Mission school was closed. Missionary teacher Elizabeth S. Morse, 53, retired after 20 years of service at the mission and went to live with friends. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 81)

June - The Grinter Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church South and adjoining cemetery were founded on two acres donated by Moses and Anna Grinter at the southwest corner of the present 78th Street and Swartz Road in Wyandotte County. (Ibid.)

21 September - Agent Pratt reported sickness during the [Delaware] tribe's removal; 200 of 985 Delawares died during the removal. A Lesson in Administrative Legislation, p. 124) [This was 20 percent of the population. Much is made, deservedly of the "Trail of Tears" of the Cherokee an the Seminole, but many do not realize that the Delaware suffered a great many deaths during each one of its removals, albeit over a longer period of time.]

16 October - Charles Journeycake wrote to Rev. Pratt from the Cherokee Nation in Indian territory and asked him to pay a rent of $2,100, saying that he would reimburse Pratt later. Rev. Pratt paid the debt. (Hancks/Pratt, p. 81)

FAMILY HISTORY

Family History was created in order to have a place to have Family Histories, that is, to have entries on families that are longer than are suitable for the Biography Page. We will be experimenting with what format is best for Family Histories, Family Group Charts, Pedigree Charts, etc. For the time being, the lengthier ones, at least we be put here. This "Home Page" for Family Histories will have links directing you directly to the history of your interest. Admittedly, the current histories are those of the editor and technical editors, a prerogative as the owners of the site. Editor

CURTIS FAMILY ((Some of the earlier data is from Frederick Hoener Curtis, A Genealogy of the Curtis Family, 1903. Revised 1935?)

CURTIS LINE From John Curtis born 1574 to Addaline "Addie" T. Curtis born 1851

Addaline "Addie" T. Curtis Nathan "Nat" Arthur Curtis [Jr.] Nathan Curtis [Sr.]

Researcher: Thomas F. Hahn swiftwater@lenapedelawarehistory.net

(Harold E. Curtis, The Descendants of Thomas 1, Richard 1, and William Curtis 1 of Scituate, Massachusetts. "The surname Curtis originated from the Middle English word curteys or corteys (Old French, curteis) and was given as a nickname, meaning "the courteous one"...It became a popular surname from the 13th century downwards. The earliest forms can be observed in the rolls (Rotuli Hundredorum) containing lists of all the taxable persons of each county in England, taken by the order of Edward 1...The subjects of this genealogy settled in Scituate, Massachusetts and in the seventeenth century > records of that town the forms Courtis, Courtiesse, Courteous,, Curtise, Curtiss, and Curtis are found...The Scituate Curtis's came from Ash, near Sandwich, in the County of Kent, England." [Southeast England]

The first generation of the Curtis Family of our line to come to Plymouth Colony from County Kent, England were the four sons--Thomas, John, Richard, and William--and the daughter, Elizabeth, of Thomas Curtis. He married Richardene_____. Thomas Curtis was born about 1587 and was from Ash, County Kent. He died on 11 December 1631 at Ashe-juxta-Sandwich, whereupon. Richardene married (2) William Blackmore and (3) on 25 May 1632. Sometime thereafter Richardene _____, Richardene and Thomas Chambers took her five children from County Kent, England to Massachusetts and were there in Scituate, Plymouth Colony, by 1638. (Curtis Genealogy. p. 1920-=1921) One of the brothers, William Curtis is the ancestor of the current researchers of this family on this web site. William was born in Nazing, County Kent, in 1638 (Ibid, p. 960-961)

Some of the Curtis Family and their Collateral Families are undoubtedly buried in the Men of Kent Cemetery in Scituate, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. (Photo by Curtis Descendant Darrell Haley)

More may be included later on, but the emphasis right mow is on the American Curtis Family of William Curtis of Scituate. His sister, Mary Curtis, married Richard Banks and married (2) William Blackmore, and (3) Jacob Bumpas. The families of her brothers,. John Curtis and Richard Curtis also settled in Scituate, where Richard married in 1749 Lydia Hollet.Thomas Curtis, born 2 November 1619, went to York, Maine. He married Elizabeth _____. John Curtis appears to have left no descendants. (Check which brother went to York, Maine.

For three generations the Curtis's lived in Scituate as along with the other early English settlers in Plymouth Colony. (Second generation Joseph Curtis/Rebecca _____; third generation Elisha Curtis/Sarah Chittenden) In the mid-1700s, fourth generation Luther Curtis, migrated to Chesterfield, Hampshire County, Massachusetts, where he was an early settler of that place. His son, Nathan Curtis -- fifth-generation -- and his spouse, Zoe Cudworth, went to New York by 1822 as that was where his son, sixth-generation Nathan Arthur "Art" Curtis was born on 22 December of that year (Luther Curtis Bible) at Bainbridge or Otego, Chenango County. Nathan Arthur Curtis was married to Clarinda Hood. Both father and son were farmers in Delaware County. By 1860, Nathan Arthur Curtis was in Broome County, New York. His daughter, Addaline "Addie" T. Curtis, seventh generation, was the last of this Curtis line to bear that name. She and her spouse, Orson Owen, and his parents and several of his family migrated to Bremer County, Iowa about 1868. About 1871, Addaline and Orson Owen, traveled six weeks by oxcart to the Solomon River Valley in Dickenson County, Kansas where they first lived in a sod house. Orson was a farmer there before working on the railroad. Several years later they moved to Parker Township, Morris County, Kansas, where he was a railway section foreman and a farmer. Their descendants, for the next two generations, generally remained in Kansas, several of them moving to Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas, where your researcher, the great-grandson of Addaline Curtis, was born.

CURTIS FAMILY

Addaline "Addie" T. Curtis

Researcher: Thomas F. Hahn swiftwater@lenapedelawarehistory.net

Addaline Curtis's Signature in 1929 at Age 78

Addaline "Addie" T. Curtis was born on 22 April 1851 at Cannonsville, Delaware County, New York. (The birth date is from her "Declaration for Remarried Widow's Pension on 25 January 1929. She also said in that document that she was born in Deposit, but she may have said that as it being the nearest larger town.) Cannonsville is now under a lake as part of a large reservoir. Her name is also in the records as Adeline, Adelaide, Addeline. Her nickname was "Addie." It is not known what "T." stands for. The only other recent person in her family with a name beginning with T was her sister, Theresa Curtis. A photograph of Addie as a young woman shows her to be an attractive, dark-haired person.

Adeline T. Curtis as a Young Woman about Age Fifteen or Sixteen. This may have been taken at her marriage to Orson Owen in New York when she was 15. The image we were using was replaced was revised on 25 March 2005 on receipt of a better copy from Floyd Dewitt dewitts@midtel.net . The back of that image on the reverse says, "N. A. Beers, Photographers, Franklin, New York" Franklin is in Delaware County, South West of Oneonta, going towards Walton. The earlier original image is in the Hahn Collection, but the image from Floyd Dewitt is in better condition.)

We know nothing of Clarinda's childhood in New York except for the basic data on her parents, Nathan Curtis, Jr., and her, mother, Clarinda Hood, and her siblings, who were:

1. Caroline "Carrie" Curtis was born on 18 November 1848 in Delaware County, New York. She died on 7 April 1915 in Sanford, Broome County, New York, and was buried in the Pine Grove Cemetery. [Her obituary in the 15 April edition of an unknown news paper said, "The funeral was held at her daughter's home in Sanford Sunday. Burial in Pine Grove Cemetery" It is not clear whether the cemetery was at Sanford or the Pine Grove Cemetery at Deposit. They may be one and the same. A daughter mentioned was Mrs. J. A. Gregory of Sanford.] Carrie married Sherman Watrous.

2. Dwight (Dewit) M. Royal Curtis was born about 1850 at Tompkins, Delaware County, New York and was buried in the Walton Town Cemetery. Dwight married Zeliatte (Zeliatte) Houck (Hawk) on 30 September 1874 at Hancock, Delaware County, New York.

3. Munroe "Munzo" Curtis was born in 1853 in Delaware County, New York and was christened on 16 March 1856 at the Baptist Church at Deposit, Delaware County, New York.

4. Sarah Curtis was born 1854/1855.

5. Theresa Curtis

On 26 February 1867, at Deposit, Broome County, New York, Addaline Curtis married Orson Anderson Owen (whom see in the Owen Family History). Orson was born on 1 September 1842 in Chardon, Geauga County, Ohio. He was a Civil War Veteran. Orson (of Gulf Summit) and Addie were married at the Sherwood House in Deposit, Broome County, New York according to an item in a Deposit newspaper. About 1868, Addie and Orson moved to Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa. Their daughter, Elizabeth, was born in Michigan about 1868; it appears that she was born during their move to Iowa. Little is known of their life in Bremer County. In the 1880 census there, Orson was a laborer and Addie was "keeping house.

Addaline "Addie" Curtis. The date and place where the photographs were taken is not known. Guessing at Addie's age, The child in the photograph on the right may be Addie's first daughter, Elizabeth, who was born about 1868 in Michigan (Census 1870, Waverly, Washington Township, Bremer County, Iowa) or her second daughter, Margaret, who was born at Waverly in 1872.) We do not know where or when this photograph was taken. (Provided by Winnifred and Floyd de Witt).

About 1871, Orson and Addie and their daughter Margaret and perhaps their daughter Elizabeth moved to the Solomon River Valley in Dickinson County, Kansas. [Elizabeth may have died before the enumeration of the 1875 census; if so we don't know when.] It is not known why they went there; Orson did not receive Bounty Land as a result of his Civil War enlistment. It may have been his intent to homestead there, but so far, no record of his "homesteading" or of having or farming land in the Solomon River Valley has been found. In 1939, his daughter, Maggie Owen, had this to say of her early life.

> When I was 1 year old [about 1871] my parents moved to Kansas from Iowa where I was born. My father hired a man to bring us as they were moving out here. There were five families in all moving at that time in moving wagons drawn by oxen. It took six weeks to make the trip. We landed in the Solomon > [River] Valley and lived for a time in a sod house with [a] ground [dirt] floor and when it rained the only dry place was under the table. Our table was home made and our chairs were nail kegs and boxes. It was hard living for a time. Finally my father got a job on the [railway] section. As time wore on he was made section foreman, and that was his work for a good many years. Then he moved to Solomon City, still held his job.

Adaline T. Curtis as a Mature Woman in Parkerville, Kansas (Thomas Hahn Collection)

It is not known when Addie and Orson moved to Parkerville, Parker Township, Morris County, Kansas. They are there in the 1880 census with their children Maggie, Mary, and Jackson. Their daughter Margaret "Maggie" said that it was about 1878-1880.

> When I was between 8 & 9 we were moved to Parkerville [Morris County], Kansas. For 4 years he [Orson Owen] was a section foreman, then he took over a job as a grain buyer for a man by the name of Joe Drake. When I was 13 years old my father bought a farm 3 1/2 miles from Parkerville. There was a large family of us, twelve in all. Never was there more than 4 at a time as sickness and death took from our loved ones. I had 5 brothers and 7 sisters. I never had a brother live to be 5 years old. (Reminiscence of Margaret "Maggie Owen in 1939)

The farm mentioned by Maggie was on an 80-acre farm. They also had a 40-acre tract nearby. Having the 1885 census would be helpful here to fill in this portion of Addie's life, especially since the 1890 census is not available. [I am working on researching the Morris County newspapers and hope to fill in some of this gap one of these days. Editor] In the 1895 census for Parker Township, Maggie and Mary are living with their parents. Jackson having died earlier. In the 1900 census, Clara and Martha are living with Orson and Addie, Maggie and Mary having married in the interim.

From the 1900 and 1905 census, it is difficult to ascertain whether Addie and Orson were still living on their farm in Parker Township or whether they will living in town Parkerville. I will re-examine those census and the deed research that has been done to see if I can reconstruct where they were living in that period. Being not later than 1898, Orson was in poor health according to his correspondence to and from the Pension Office in Washington until his death on 26 April 1908. Accordingly, he would have found it difficult to do the work that is required on a farm. In the 1910 Census Addie was living in Parkerville with their daughter, Martha Owen. On 13 February 1913, Addie sent a change of address, signing her name as Addaline O.[wen] Varner, from 118 South Mission Street in Council Grove to 612 West Hockaday Street in Council Grove. Why she was there and whether she lived in her own place or nor, is not known. These may be the addresses of sisters of other relatives with whom she lived. As noted, it is odd that the name was Varner when she didn't married Richard Varner until 1916.

Addie Owen 52, of Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas, married second, Richard E. Varner 55, of Parkerville, on 9 August 1916 at Emporia, Lyon County, Kansas, Certificate No. 67316 recorded p. 351 of Marriage Record E of Lyon County. [Their names were given as Addie Owen and R. E. Varner on the certificate.] This in spite of a letter on 13 February 1913 where her name was given as she signed her name as Addaline O. Varner. Richard Varner's previous wife was Abigail Dye. Richard Varner is in the 1900 census for Parker Township, Parkerville, with his own home free of mortgage, was born in Ohio, his father born in Pennsylvania, and his mother born in Ohio. Richard Varner was a cabinet make who owned his own shop in Parkersville. He died in 1929. Addie probably inherited his house and property. In a document No.1247 dated 14 January 1929, B-411 -- probably having to do with her Civil War Widow's Pension Claim -- , it says, "Owned lots 1, 2, 3, 13, 14 Parkersville, 1 Jersey cow, 32 chickens, and 3 boxes of bees. Son: Joseph [Varner's son]. Addie may have Addie and Richard Varner lived in this house. So far, I have not researched the sale of Addie's real estate.

I am trying to reconstruct where Addie lived after the death of Richard Varner. She is still in Parkerville in the 1930 Census, but that census is the last one that we can search. In 1930, Adie would have been about 67 years old. If her health was good at that time, she might have lived there several more years. We know that she had sold her house by at least 1940, because on 3 May 194, she wrote in a letter to the Pension Office that she had moved from 417 South Market at Emporia, Kansas, where she was living with with her sister, Mrs. Mary Akey, to Dwight, Kansas, where she was probably staying with her sdaughter, Martha Brown.

According to her grand-daughter, Helen Torgeson in a letter of 1979, Addie was probably buried at Parkerville, but Thomas and Chris Hahn found no grave marker at the Parkerville Cemetery. In Volume II of the Parkerville Cemetery, Adeline is listed under the Varner name as Adeline Varner 3/3/44, 92 yr."

Obituary of Addaline (Curtis) (Owen) Varner

Obituary-Varner

Addaline Curtis was born April 22, 1851, in New York State. She was married to Orson A. Owen Feb. 26, 1867; to this union were born 12 children. 5 of whom preceded her in death. He four surviving daughters are Mrs. Margaret Torgeson, Topeka; Mrs. Mary Acker;, Emporia; Mrs. Clara Reed, Junction City, and Mrs. Martha Brown, Dwight. She departed this life March 3, 1944, at the age of 92 years. 11 months, and 3 days at the home of Mrs. Nels Brooks in Council Grove, who had cared for her several months.

To her great grandson, Thomas Hahn, she appeared to be a gentle, kind person. She lived most of her adult life at Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas. Her great-grandson Lawrence Brown (deceased) said, "I knew my grandmother Adeline in 30's and early 40's when she was retired and living in Council Grove, Kansas. I remember her as being a very serene and lovely person and she treated me wonderfully. We were very good friends."

Memories of Addaline (Curtis) Owen Varner (Florence Torgeson Letter to Nat Hahn July, perhaps 1978)

I dont know whether you will get much information from Martha as I wrote two years ago when you were making out some papers and asked about her sisters age or something and she said she didnt know. And you asked about my grandmother Owens, about anything I could tell you and cant think of anything. While she lived to be an old lady, she never told us stories of her life and I cant remember my mother telling anything. When I was young and visited them had a good time. Martha Florence's mother's sister] and I are the same age. She let us do most anything in way of play. They lived 6 miles from us and I would go down to visit them on the train. We girls would play AUTHORS in the evening and we would fix up all kinds of concoctions and put in little patty pans and put in oven or on top of the stove and play house that way. Gladys told me last night that she remembered the day Grandpa [Owen] died, he was found in the barn dead. He had diabetes but I dont remember that, or that he had been sick. Grandma and Martha used to come see us on the train. I think that grandpa worked on the [railway] section. After Grandma became a widow one or two summers I went down to a carnival and we fell for a fellow that took up tickets. He didnt know it but we went home and talked about him. I was probably 13 years old but I do remember their yard there were glorious morning glories growing around the well, and apple trees,, one in particular that had such good eating apples they were called sweet apples and were just that and the inside was so white, they were called pound sweets as they were very large. [An Internet search brings up the statement, "Pound Sweet apple is an old variety that has been a favorite for years. Fruits are large, delightfully sweet. Amber to golden yellow when fully ripe and russeted. Very best baked or canned. Also know as Pumpkin Sweet it originated in 1800's in the apple orchards of S. Lyman of Manchester, Connecticut."]
The house was small, and two rooms upstairs which was steep, but dont remember the furniture or anything about the house but them kitchen, had a cook stove and table, etc. Mother told me that a few days after grandma was married her mother came to see her and grandma was cutting out baby clothes from her wedding dress and her mother said, "Addie are you in the Family Way" and he reply was "Isnt every one after they get married" but Grandma wasnt so soon, as she didnt have a baby for a year or more.

Mae was the one that loved her grandma. She was 10 yrs older than I so could appreciate her and she used to talk about her a lot but cant remember what. I never hear Martha mention her uncles or aunts, they no doubt lived back east and in those days traveling was nil almost.

THE DEFRIES FAMILY/DEFOREST FAMILY

The Descendancy of Melchior De Forest, born 1450, the first known De Forest of this Line

AUDLEY PAUL DEFRIES MARTHA FRANCES DEFRIES

This brief descendancy takes us from Melchior De Forest, Generation XIV, down to Generation I, Martha "Mattie" Frances Defries , daughter of Audley Paul Defries and Mary Jane Grinter. It is not intended to be a definitive history of the Defries/Deforest family. The emphasis is on the Family of Audley Paul Defries and Mary Jane Grinter and their descendants, principally those of Martha "Mattie" (Defries) Hahn, the grandmother of the editor.

One of the sources of the later generations, beginning with James Defreese, is Jeanne Brookes Gart, James Defrees and His Descendants (Knoxville, 1992), LDS Family History Library Reference 929.273/D362dg.

Members of the Defries family had their origins in Early Europe, participated in the Crusades, relocated in the early 1600s from France to The Netherlands (Holland), and emigrated from there to New York where they were the original Dutch/French Huguenot founders and inhabitants of New Amsterdam (now New York City) beginning in 1624. The ancestors of Martha "Mattie" Frances Defries, the grandmother of editor Thomas Swiftwater Hahn, migrated to Virginia in the very early years of the 1800s, then to Kentucky, and to Tennessee, before going to Wyandotte County, Kansas about 1860. Mattie Defries is the last of that particular line to bear the name of Defries. Naturally, many members of the family stayed in the states where they lived, while others went to states other than Kansas. In addition, beginning with their lives in New York, some of the families changed their names from De Forest to Defreest, Defries, Defreese, Defriese, and other variations. Because there are discrepancies in the data, particularly in the earlier generations, readers should use the information with caution and understand, like so much of history, that this is a "work in progress." Additionally, there are at present undoubtedly errors in typing, syntax, spelling, and logical order, most of which I will try to correct. I am also making an attempt to connect the pertinent data with the correct sources. I would appreciate hearing from family members, or others, about corrections or of additions to the body of data presented. Editor

Several sources were used in the preparation of this history. They are all good and serve different purposes and provide sometimes duplicating, yet at other times different -- and sometimes conflicting data. More sources will be added. For the present they are:

1. "DeFries Family -- Descendants of Gilles DeForest"

The Email address of the author is: Burrows@watervalley.net This source is a straightforward Defries Descendancy from Generation No. 1 of Gilles DeForest born about 1466 -- probably in Avesnes, France -- down to Generation No. 11 of Asher Defrees born about 1770 in New York. Beginning with Generation No. 10 with the children of Joseph Deforest and Mary Hutton -- Asher Defrees's grandparents -- the author's primary interest thereafter is with John Defrees -- the brother of James Defrees, who was Asher's father.

2. "Ancestors of Asher Defrees" - As with the above source, this is a straight-forward ancestry of the Defries Family beginning with Asher Defrees and going back to Gilles DeForest. It provides some additional data and differs slightly from Source No. 1 in a few instances. Robert Williams, Jr., 390 Boyer Road, Grants Pass, Oregon 97526 provided this item on 6 November 1999 to the Church of Latter Day Saints Pedigree Resource File. The data is contained in CD No. 6 of the set prepared and copyrighted by Intellectual Reserve, Inc. in 1999.

3. "Genealogy of the DeFries of Wyandotte County, Kansas" - This typescript was prepared by Mrs. Delores Potter of Kansas City, Kansas, in 1979. It is the principal source for the Defries Family beginning with Asher Defries and descending six generations, that is, including the grandchildren of Martha "Mattie" Defries. It may be difficult to find. One copy is at the Wyandotte County Historical Museum in Bonner Springs, Kansas. It is also available at the the Church of Latter Day Saints Family History Library at Salt Lake City, Utah. The Reference Number at the LDS Linraryis US/CAN922,273/D362p. This monograph concentrates on the descendants of Nathan F. DeFries, 1829 - 1900; his brother, Audley Paul DeFries, 1832 - 1882; and their cousin, James Lafaett DeFries, 1831 - 1906

4. A more general source on the Defries Family is Jeanne Brooks Bart, James Defrees and His Descendants. (Knoxville, Tennessee:1992). The LDS FHL Reference Number is 922.273/ D362dg. [The information in this entry will be expanded. We hear that there soon may be a new edition of this monograph. Editor]

5. "Defreest Family History" Web Site http://www.defreest.com/familyhistory.html contains information on the earlier generations of the De Forest Family, and then on the variation of the family called "Defreest."

6. Much of the data was taken from various Federal Census's and some from the Kansas State Census's

7. [Some data can be found in "The Kirby Notes," but I can't find my copy or further information on the source at present. Editor.]

The family name originated with the Village of Forest in the Canton of Landrecies near Avesnes, France. The first record of the de Forest Family was published in 1660 by Jean le Carpentier in his History of Cambresis in which he mentions Hubert de Forest, a Chevalier of the First Crusade in 1096. Between 1111 and 1120, Gerard de Forest witnessed a gift made by the Countess of Flanders and the Duchess of Lorraine in St. Amanden-Pevele. In 1171, Hugues de Forest and his brother Gilles made a gift of land to the Abbey of Marchiennes. A little later, in 1180, the Chevalier Ansel de Forest of Cambresis is mentioned as having sold "church tenths." Records of 1221 mention Gautier de Forest as Provost of Quesnoy and Bailli of Ghent. Seven years later, in 1228, Walter de Forest is mentioned in records of 1233. In 1383 to 1384 the records of the Count of Hainaut speak of purchasing two pigs from Jehan de Forest at a feast held in honor of St. Jehan in Quesnoy. There are two other references to Jehan de Forest during the same period. In 1408, Thomas de Forest was taxed in the domain of Forest and in 1436 there is mention of a freehold held by the Abbey and acquired from Thomas de Forest. In 1466, Pierre de Forest is mentioned connection with several houses, fields, and lands. In 1491, there is mention of Gilles, Gaspard and Melchoir de Forest. (Defreest Family History Web Site

Following is a brief descendancy of the Deforest Line from the same source.

GENERATION XIV - Melchoir de Forest, the son of Gaspard de Forest was born in 1450. Melchoir was born in 1472. Their is a conflict of the birth dates to be checked. Editor] (The data in this paragraph were from "Defreest Family History" except where noted otherwise) His mother is not known. He was a Jure d'Avesnes in 1517, a Sheriff or Alderman in Avesnes, Hainaut County in 1517 and in 1519. Melchoir was considered to be a wealthy man. He was a large land holder. [However, other sources, including "The DeFries Family - Descendants of Gilles DeForest," say that this ancestor was Giles DeForest, who was probably a brother of Melchoir.] "Melchior" is spelled "Melchoir" in some sources. This source says that Gilles Deforest was born about 1466 and married an unknown woman. "Ancestors of Asher Defrees" says that the son of Gilles was the Melchior De Forest who was born about 1486, and was of of Avesnes, Hainaut, France. He was buried on 4 June 1530 at Avesnes, Hainaut, France. [Source?] Melchior married Jacquelin Bronchin, who born about 1490, and was of Avesnes, France. She died in Avesnes, France. The source for this item cannot be found, and so it may be in error. In any event, in conflicts with the evidence that Jacqueline Bronchin is given as the spouse of both Melchior I and Melchior II. So far, it appears that Gilles De Forest was probably the first ancestor in this Descendancy.

GENERATION XIII - Melchoir de Forest, son of Melchoir de Forest I, was born in 1497. (From "Defreest Family History" except where noted otherwise.) His birth was about 1510 in Avesnes, Hainaut, France according to http://www.thegenealogyattic.com/tgf/dutch/d0000/g0000038.html.) He was Jure d'Avesnes in 1526 and 1527.) He married on 4 April 1533, at Avesnes, Hainaut, France, Jacquelin Bronchin. Melchoir was a brother of "Maistre Jehan de Forest, pretre" and "notaire apostalique" (acte du Mai, 1541), Chaplain de St. Pierre de Louvain en 1562." Melchoir was considered a wealthy man. He owned land and a house on the Marche (border) which he gave to his daughter, Marguerite de Forest Levacq; a house at Guersignies, which he sold on 3 October 1545 and a house at Avesnalles-St Denis, a small field of land, as well as annuities and other property. He lived in the Sottiere, a land bordering on the Brotherhood of St. Jean.
The children of Melchior DeForest and Jacqueline Bronchin ("DeFries Family - Descendants of Gilles DeForest"):
+1. Melchior DeForest III (See his entry in the generation just below.)
2. Marguerite DeForest, born about 1510, in Avesnes, Hainaut, Spanish Netherlands
3. Jenne DeForest, born about 1514, in Avesnes, Hainaut, Franc. She married Nicholas Thiebaut in September 1539.

GENERATION XII - Melchior de Forest III, son of Melchior De Forest II, was born in 1521. (From the "Defreest Family History" except where noted otherwise.) He married in 1541, Catherine du Fosset. Melchoir was a member of the Brotherhood of St. Nicholas in 1543 and in 1562 he was Sheriff of Avesnes. The Genealogy Attic source above, says that he was Alderman

1563 - 1564 and that in 1569 he resided at Guersignities, France, and that in 1571 he bought land as a merchant in Avesnes. However, "Ancestors of Asher Defrees" says that Melchior was born about 1511, at or was from Avesnes, Hainaut, France, and that he married on 4 April 1533, in Avesnes, Catherine du Fosset, and that he died in 1571 in Avesnes, She was born in 1510 in Mons, Belgium. Catherine was the daughter of Antoine du Fosset and Isabel Restau. ("Defries Family - Descendants of Gilles DeForest"). (The Genealogy Attic source above says that in January 1572, Catherine assigned income to children and that she died in 1579.)
The children of Melchior de Forest and Catherine du Fosset ("DeFries Family - Descendants of Gilles DeForest"):
+1. Jean De Forest was born 1543 in Avesnes, Hainaut, France. (See his entry in the generation just below.)
2. Balthazar de Forest, was born about 1534, in Avesnes, Hainaut, France.
3. Gilles de Forest, was born about 1537 in Avesnes, Hainaut, France.
4. Antoine de Forest, was born about 1539 in Avesnes, Hainaut, France.
5. Melchior Forest, was born about 1541 in Avesnes, Hainaut, France.
6. Jaspard de Forest was born about 1545 in Avesnes, Hainaut, France.
7. Jacqueline de Forest was born about 15747 in Avesnes, Hainaut, France.
8. Franchoise de Forest was born about 1550 in Avesnes, Hainaut, France.

GENERATION XI - Jean de Forest, son of Melchoir de Forest III, was born in 1543. (From the "Defreest Family History" except where noted otherwise.) He was born at Avesnes, Hainaut, France according to "Ancestors of Asher Defrees"). He married Anne Maillard. Jean was married on 5 June 1570 in Avesnes, Flanders, Netherlands. (According to the "Defreest Family History" and the "Ancestors of Asher Defrees" The Genealogy Attic source says they were married in 1575. Jean's brother Gilles was a prominent Canon of the Catholic Church. Jean left Avesnes, at the time of the Edict of Nantes, and moved to Sedan. (Source?) According to another source, he died in 1606 in Vosmeer near Bergen op Zoom, Noord-Brabant [North Brabant], Netherlands. He married on 5 June 1570, in Avesnes, Flanders, France, Ann Maillard. She was born about 1551, was of Felleries, Hainaut, France, died 21 April 1640 in Amsterdam, North Holland, Netherlands, and was buried 21 April 1640 in Amsterdam, Noord, Netherlands. Ann was the daughter of Michael Maillard and Marguerite Raux. He was born 1520-1530, was of Felleries, Hainaut, France, and died 1582 in Fellurus, France. She was born about 1529. The Genealogy Attic source says: He was born Catholic, but came under Protestant influences for woolen interests. He moved to Holland where he died in 1606. Anne died at Amsterdam on 20 April 1640. The area of Sedan was homeland of the Walloons -- descendants of the Volcae, Celtic tribe, which was conquered by Caesar and who adopted Catholicism about 496. A part of Spanish Empire in 1482, they were persecuted by Spanish. By 1559, the Huguenots were made up primarily of the wealthy and nobility. After the wars, Jean led members of family to Holland. In March 1603, Jean joined the church at Leyden from Berghen Op Zoon [sic]. In Nov. 1604, he joined the Church of Amsterdam.
The children of Jean DeForest and Anne Maillard according to "The Ancestors of Asher Defrees:
+1. Jesse de Forest was born about 1576 in Avesnes, Hainaut, France. (See his entry in the generation just below.)
2. Melchior de Forest was born about 1572 in Avesnes, Hainaut, France.

She died on 12 December 1626 in Vredendal, Harlem, New York, Rachel married on 12 December 1626 in Leiden, Zuid, Holland, Jean/Johannes Mousnier de la Montague. He was born in 1595 in Leiden, South Holland, Netherlands. "The Defries Family" for the last sentence)
8. Anne de Forest was born 1611 in Montcornet, Picardy, France.
9. Nicaise de Forest was born in 1613 in Montcornet, Picardy, France. ("Ancestors of Asher Defrees")
10. Jesse de Forest was born 1 March 1614/1615 in Leyden, Zuid, Netherlands and died in 1639. He died young according to "Ancestors of Asher Defrees."
11. Israel de Forest was born 7 October 1617 in Leyden, Zuid, Netherlands. He died young according to "Ancestors of Asher Defrees."
12. Philippe de Forest was born 13 September 1620 in Leyden, Zuid, Netherlands.

In 1621, the Walloons and the Huguenots of Leyden, Holland planned to follow the Puritans to America (then called the West Indies). Jesse de Forest was acclaimed the leader and spokesman for the band when the exiles approached the British Ambassador at The Hague regarding their settling in Virginia. It was Jesse's desire to establish a colony in the New World, so that the Walloons could practice their Reformed Religion without persecution. He then sought permission from the Dutch to establish a colony in what is now New York City. He was granted permission, He assembled approximately 60 families of French-speaking Walloons and Dutch for the settlement in New Amsterdam, New Netherlands. The first permanent settlers arrived in

New Amsterdam in May 1624. There is a monument in Battery Park, New York City, called the Walloon Settlers Memorial. That monument was given to the City of New York by the people of France in honor of Jesse's inspiration in founding New York City. The memorial reads, "PRESENTED TO THE CITY OF NEW YORK BY THE CONSEIL PROVINCIAL DU HAINAUT IN MEMORY OF THE WALLOON SETTLERS WHO CAME OVER TO AMERICA IN THE NIEU NEDERLAND UNDER THE INSPIRATION OF JESSE DE FOREST OF AVESNES THEN COUNTY OF HAINAUT OF ONE OF THE XVII PROVINCE." There is also a monument in Jesse's honor in Avesnes, France, the College Jesse de Forest, and Jesse de Forest Avenue. ("The Defries Family")

GENERATION IX - Isaac De Forest, son of Jesse Deforest and Marie du Cloux, was born in Leyden, Holland on 17 July 1616. (From "Defreest Family History" except where noted otherwise.) He arrived from Leyden, Holland, on 5 March 1637. Isaac made the voyage aboard the Ship Rensselaerwyck. This ship was jointly owned by Isaac's uncle, Gerard DeForest and Killian Van Rensselaer. It was Isaac who founded the DeForest family in the United States. Isaac married Sara du Trieux on 9 June 1641. Sara was one of the first born children in the New Amsterdam Colony in 1624. Isaac and Sara had fourteen children. Of the fourteen, four sons were responsible for the four main branches of the DeForest Family and the various spelling found today in the United States. Isaac established himself as a "free merchant." He was a tobacco planter for a number of years. Isaac bought and sold beaver skins, as well as land. He lent money and was a large-scale brewer. Isaac became one of the Nine Men in 1952.The purpose of this board of men was to give opinions on matters submitted by the Director and Council. A few years later, Isaac became a Schepen. In 1644, when the English took control of New Amsterdam, they took Isaac prisoner, but he was quickly released. Isaac died on 25 July 1674. He was probably buried in the Old Grave Yard of the Dutch Reformed Church. [Some of the data in this paragraph was a part of the data Kevin DeFreest of Randolph, New Jersey, provided in the submission -- and acceptance -- of Isaac DeForest in "America's First Families Ancestor Roll of Honor." "The Defries Family - Descendants of Gilles DeForest," says Isaac was born on 10 July 1616 and died in 1674 in New Amsterdam, New York. It also says that he married Sara du Trieux on 9 June 1641 in New Amsterdam, New York and that she was the daughter of Phillip du Trieux and Susanna du Chesne.
The children of Isaac DeForest and Sara du Trieux, as stated in "Ancestors of Asher DeFrees" :

10. Susana DeForest was born on 5 February 1698/1699 in New Amsterdam, New York and died on 5 October 1705. ("Defries Family - Descendants of Gilles DeForest"
The descendancy in this source ends with Isaac De Forest because the author was primarily interested in the branch of the family of Isaac's brother, Philip DeForest, who was born on 28 July 1652 in New Amsterdam. Philip eventually settled in Beverwyck, New York, present Albany. It was there that he name of that branch of the family became DeFreest, the common spelling of the DeForest name in the Albany area of New York State.]

GENERATION VII - Johannes Deforest, son of Isaac DeForest and Lysbeth van der Spiegel, was born 10 March 1683/1684 in New Amsterdam, New York. He died on 30 July 1757. Johannes married Catherine Van Ravenstein on 23 June 1705 in New York, New York. She was the daughter of Nicholas Ravenstein and Maritje Van Rollegom.
The children of Isaac DeForest and Catherine Van Ravenstein :
1. Isaac DeForest died in 1800. He married Marie Brokaw in Adamsville, Somerset, New Jersey.
2. Marijtie DeForest.
3. Nicholas DeForest. He married Maria Barker on 17 October 1736 in New York, New York.

10. Gerradus DeForest married Sarah Hardenbroek on 13 May 1744 in New York, New York.
11. Maria DeForest married Gerrit Waldron [on 21 October 1744 in Harlem, New York.
12. Jacobus DeForest.
13. Gerrit DeForest.
14. Elizabeth DeForest Gerrit.
15. Tobias DeForest.

+16. Joseph DeFrees was born 1711 in New York, New York. He married Mary Catherine Hutton. ("Ancestors of Asher DeFrees") [Of interest is the fact that this source names Joseph as "DeFrees," rather than "DeForest" as given in "Defries Family - Descendants of Gilles DeForest" . This source gives the children pretty much as the source used above, except that it has two Gerradus DeForests and two Jacobus DeForests.] Anthony Defrees, Their son, Anthony Defrees, said that his mother, Mary Catherine, was the daughter of John Strangeways Hutton and the first wife of John, but there is no other evidence to date substantiating this information. (Anthony Defrees, ""The Defrees Family History," 1864.)

The family line of Martha Francis Defries seems to have changed from DeForest (and variations) to DeFrees (and variations). This line generally changed from Defrees and DeFrees to Defries.

GENERATION VI Joseph Defrees [DeForest], son of Johannes Deforest and Catherine van Ravenstein, was born in 1711 in New York, New York. He married Mary Catherine Hutton, daughter of John Strangeways Hutton and Catherine Cheesman. She was born in 1715 in New York, New York. John Strangeways Hutton was a very interesting person. The following article was published by the University of Phoenix Inline from The Windham Herald (aka The Phoenix), issue of Saturday, 22 September 1792:

> John Strangeways Hutton was born about 1684 in Scotland. He married first, before 1715, at New York City, Kings County, New York, Catherine Cheeseman. She was born about 1688, possibly in New York, and died before 1735 in Philadelphia, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania. John married second, in 1735, at Philadelphia, Ann Van Lear. She was born in Philadelphia in 1716 and died on 14 November 1788 in Philadelphia. John died 23 December 1792, at Philadelphia, and was buried there.
> From the (Philad.) Daily Advertiser. Mr. Claypoole, believing that the following particular of Mr. John Strangeways Hutton, now living in this city, in the 109th year of his age, may interest the public, they are communicated, with his consent, by your humble servant, C.[harles[W.[ilson] Peale. Philadelphia, Sept. 3, 1792. After having a few days since taken Mr. Hutton's portrait from life, which is to be preserved in my Museum, the following particulars respecting the old gentleman were collected from his children and others of his acquaintance. That he was born in the city of New York, in 1684; was bound an apprentice to a sea-faring man, who out him to school in New York to learn navigation; at which time he became intimate with a boy who worked at the white-smiths trade, with whom he amused himself in acquiring the use of the hammer; from whence he obtained a facility in working at plate work in the silver-smith's business. He followed a sea faring life for 30 years. and then commenced the silver-smith's trade, without having served by apprenticeship to it; yet, in Philadelphia, he has been esteemed as one of the best workmen at hollow work, in that line of business; and there are still pieces of his work in this city much esteemed. He made a tumbler in silver when he was 94 years old. Through the course of a long and hazardous life, in various climes, he was always plain and temperate in his eating and drinking; and avoided spiritous liquors, except once when he was a lieutenant in a privateer, which sailed from Barbadoes in Queen Anne's wars on a cruise on the Spanish main, he, with 50 or 60 men made a descent on a village; in pillaging of which most of his men, became intoxicated. The Spaniards took advantage of their situation, and got between them and the sea, and killed every man of his party, except himself & one other, who they made prisoners; from which state he attempted on escape, by cutting out a sloop, but was detected and again put into confinement.

He married his first wife in New-York, whose maiden-name was Catherine Cheeseman, by whom he had 8 children, 25 grand children, 23 great grand children, and 3 great great grand children. At the age of 51 he married his second wife, in Philadelphia; her maiden-name was Ann Vanlear, 19 years old when he married her; he had 17 children, 41 grand children, and 15 great grand children. His second wife died in Philadelphia, 14th November, 1788, aged 72 years and a half. He never had a headache; and often said that he thought himself in his prime of life, when he was at the age of 60 years. He was always fond of fishing and fowling; and until his 81st year, he used to carry in his hunting excursions, a heavy English musket. He was ever a quiet, temperate, and hard working man. He can see, hear and walk about, and has a good appetite, with no complaints whatever, except mere weakness of old age. In the early part of his life he was on two scouts against the Indians; he used to tell that in one of those excursions, they went out in the night, how they lifted up their feet high in stepping to prevent a noise amongst the leaves; that they took an Indian woman prisoner, who led them to where the Indians lay; that they fired on and killed the most of the Indians before they could get to their arms, and only a few escaped. That the Indians came in and made a peace, before this scouting party returned.

He knew the noted pirate Teach, called Blackbeard; that an act of oblivion had passed, which permitted al, pirates to return to their allegiance; that Blackbeard then came to Barbadoes, where he saw him; this was a short time before that pirate made his last cruize, and was killed in Carolina. His grandfather, by his mother's side, Mr. Arthur Strangeways, died at Boston, sitting in his chair, when at the age of 101 years. His father, Mr. John Hutton, was born at Bournesdures, in Scotland, where, it is said, there are many of the family now living.

The children of Joseph Defrees and Mary Catherine Hutton :
+1. James Defrees was born in 1737 in New York, New York. He died in August 1827 in Sumner County, Tennessee. Joseph married first about 1765 an unknown woman. He married second, on 2 December 1777, in Goshen, Orange County, New York, Sophina Sevier Risley. See his entry, just below.
2. John Defrees was born about 1739 in New York, New York. He died in December 1790 in Rutherford, North Carolina. He married an unknown woman about 1772. Just appears in the 1810 Census for Rockbridge County, Virginia, as John Defries, with the following data: 2 males under 10, 2 males 16 and under 26, 1 male 45 and up, 1 female under 10, 2 females 10 and under 16, 1 female 16 and under 26, 1 female over 45. He is only one property away from Joseph Defries. (Proquest/Heritage Quest Internet, Series 252, Roll 70, p. 773)
3. Joseph Hutton Defrees was born about 1753 in New York, New York.
According to the American Revolution Soldiers Index:

> He moved to Trenton, New Jersey at the age of 12 [presumably with his parents], then to Philadelphia, and finally in 1811, to Miami County, Ohio. He died in August 1826 in Piqua, Ohio and was buried in the Johnson Cemetery north of Piqua. [The burial data are in conflict with the source a source below that states that he was buried in Philadelphia. Perhaps we can sort that out. Editor] He was a private from Pennsylvania, fought through all of the Revolution, and was a ship's carpenter on a privateer.

John was buried in August 1826 in the Old Swedes Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Anthony Defrees, son of Joseph Hutton Defrees, said that his father served in the American Revolution in Pennsylvania and then went to Rockbridge County, Virginia, where his brother, James Defrees, lived. (Anthony Defrees, "The Defrees Family History," 1864.) Joseph married Mary Start on 10 September 1777 in the Old Swedes Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Mary. She was born in 1755 and was from Liverpool, Lancashire, England. Mary died in 1829 in Miami County, Ohio and was buried in 1829 in Piqua, Miami County, Ohio. There are two entries for Joseph Defries in the 1810 Census for Rockbridge County, Virginia. They will be sorted out later. The "Jos. Defries" entry shows 1 male under 10, 1 male 16 and under 26, 1 male over 45, 1 female under 10, 2 females 10 and under 16, 1 female 16 and under 26, 1 female over 45. (Proquest/Heritage Quest Internet, Series M252, Roll 70, p. 787) The entry for "Joseph Defries" shows 3 male 16 and under 26, 2 males 16 and under 45, 1 female under 10, 1 female 16 and under 26, and possibly 4 "all other persons." (ProQuest/Heritage Quest Internet, Series M252, Roll 70, p. 773)
4. ? Defrees was born about 1754 in New York, New York. ("Ancestors of Asher DeFrees")

GENERATION V - James Defrees was born about 1837 or 1838. He was the son of Joseph Defrees and Mary Catherine Hutton. The first record that indicates his age is the 1800 census for Surry County, North Carolina, where his age was given as 45 years or older. Accordingly, his birth year would have been 1755 or earlier. His nephew, Anthony Defrees, son of Jacob Defrees, said that James was about 15 years older than his father, John Defrees. Since Jacob was born about 1753, then James's birth would have been about 1738. Anthony also said that James lived to be about 90, which would be close to a birth year of 1738. He may have been born in New York, New York. It was Anthony's opinion that he was from New York City. James died in August 1827 in Sumner County, Tennessee. James married first, about 1765 an unknown woman. Jeanne Brooks Gart discusses and rejects the marriage of this James Defries and Mary Creiger in Trinity Church in New York City on 27 April 1755 as this James Defries, but the possibility remains nevertheless. He married second, on 2 December 1777, in Goshen, Orange County, New York, Sevier Rise/Sophina Sevier Risley ["Sophie Ricely"], at the Goshen Presbyterian Church. She was born about 1755 in Rhinebeck, Dutchess County, New York. Thus, she would have been about age 20 when they married. Sophie was the daughter of Johann Jacob Reuschtle and Susanna Treber. ("Ancestors of Asher DeFrees") (James Defrees and His Descendants, p. 2*)* James Defrees served for three days in 1778 as a "Drum Major" and and eight days in 1779 as a "Drummer" in McLaury's Regiment, New York Militia of Ulster County in the Revolutionary War. (Gart, Appendix A.) He also served in Braddock's War. James was in Ulster County in the Hanover Precinct in 1779, where he was taxed as the owner of 100 acres of land. James was in Rockbridge County, Virginia by 10 August 1780 when he bought 100 acres of land on the South River, which was described as being on the "corner of Borden's Great Tract. Benjamin Borden went to the Shenandoah River Valley about 1732. He was a land agent of Lord Fairfax and a large land owner in his own right, The so-called "Borden Tract" included 100,000 acres of land when fully settled by one hundred settlers. (George West Diehl, The Brick Church on Timber Ridge, Virginia Book Co., Berryville, VA, 1975, p. 34, cited by Gart in James Defrees and His Descendants, p. 6) See the latter citation (Gart, pp. 6-7) for a further discussion of the James Defrees deeds in Rockbridge County for the next several years. In 1791, James was exempt from paying taxes because he was a constable. (Rockbridge County Order Book, 1787-1794, 1 April 1788, 7 July 1789. Virginia State Archives) So far but we haven't found him in the 1790 Census in Rockbridge County, Virginia, even though it is fairly well established that they were living there. While still living in Rockbridge County, James and his son, William Defrees, bought property in Surry County, North Carolina.

The James Defrees Family probably went to Surrey County, North Carolina by 1800, as the Federal Census for Surry County shows him there as James DeFreece with the following entry: 1 male under 10, 2 males 10-16, 2 male 16-26, 1 male over 45, 4 females under 10, 2 females 16-26, 1 female 16-26. (National Archives & Records Administration, Microfilm M32, Roll 32) On 19 May 1789, James bought 250 acres for 200 pounds on the south side of Forbis's Creek, presently in Yadkin County. (Surry County, North Carolina Deed Book H: pp. 14-15) James made other land purchases: in 1792 on the south side of the Yadkin River; in 1800 150 acres on Grassy Creek; in 1801 116 1/2 acres at the mouth of Meadow Branch of Mitchell's River in present Surry County; and, in 1807, 100 acres on Mitchell's River, his last land transaction in Surry County. (These transactions and sales and taxes paid are contained in Gart, James Defrees and His Descendants," pp. 9-10) Some of the land owned by James Defrees was in present Yadkin County and some in the southwestern corner of present Surry County, both in North Carolina, just northeast of the town of Elkin. (Gart, p. 10) It appears that James left Surry County around before 1811 a land agent was appointed in 1811 and 1812 to sell acres of land in that county. To date we have been unable to locate James and his family in the 1810 Federal Census, but they probably went to Sumner County, Tennessee. James was in Capt. Lauderdale's Company in the 1816 tax list for Sumner County, Tennessee. This lists shows him as owning 137 acres of land on Otter Fork of Beldsoe's Creek and having one black slave. (Sumner County Tax Books, R332, p. 1147). On 3 March 1817 James bought 141 1/2 acres of land, at apparently at the same location (Sumner County, Tennessee, Deed Book 8, p. 105). On the tax list for 1817, he is not shown as owning a slave. James Defrees was in the *1820 Federal Census for Gallatin, Summer County Tennessee. The census, probably enumerated on 11 June, shows James Defrees with the following entry: 1 male 16-18, 2 males 16-26, 1 male 26-45, 1 male over 45, 1 female 26-45, 1 female over 45. (Series M33, Roll 124, p. 175 from ProQuest/Heritage Quest Online) Sophie died before 1840 in Sumner County, Tennessee. In the period 1818 through 1822 he was taxed for 140 acres of land.

"The Defrees Family History" by Anthony DeFries [son of James's brother, John]. 1864, as cited in Appendix B,. Gart, 1992, James Defrees and His Descendant's, p. 127, contains information on James Defrees.

> His brother James sold his farm in Virginia about three years after our father left [for Ohio, that is, about 1811] and went to North Carolina and settled, I think, in Guildford Co. where he lived for many years and then sold out and went to Tennessee, and lived to about the age of 90 years. His descendants are scattered to and fro in the states of Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Alabama [and beyond]. When James was a boy of thirteen or fourteen years old, he enlisted in the English army then preparing to make war on the French in Canada, generally known as Braddock's War, in which the English made the conquest of Canada. Uncle James being too young and unable to carry a musket, was attached to the band of music and made a drummer. He served until the end of the war, was discharged, and afterwards getting married and settled in Virginia as mentioned before. [This account, that speculates on his being with the English Army, varies from that cited above where he served the Continental Army. Editor. His Pay Roll slips show clearly that he was in the New York Militia for a periods in in 1778 and 1779. I suppose it is possible that he served with the English earlier. Editor]

James Defrees probably died in the summer of 1827 in Sumner County, Tennessee. That is also what the LDS Ancestral File says, but that information may be based on the fact that his will was written on 26 July 1820, according to Sumner County record book R91, Book 2, pp. 73-74. That record is available at the Tennessee State Library and Archives at Nashville. That will may be inserted on this page later, but it was summarized by Gart, James Defrees and His Descendants, on p. 11:

> He left to his "beloved wife Sophi Defrees all my land where I now live for her natural life, as well as all stock, crops, farm utensils, and household furniture except as may be otherwise disposed of in the will." He then mentioned the following children: Ashon [Asher], to receive $40 from the sale of property which can best be spared; Elizabeth, the wife of Charles Frady, to receive $1.75; James, to receive a decent support from the estate for his natural life; Rebecca, to receive a decent support of food and raiment during the time she remains single, and a feather bed and furniture to her and her heirs forever; John, to receive $1,75; Hannah, wife of > David Hart, $1.75; David, $1.75; Moses, to receive $40 from the sale of property which can best be spared; Nancy, the wife of Edward Williams, $1.75; Polly, the wife of David Stovall, $1.75; Ricely, to receive the parcel of land on which Edward Williams now lives...; Joseph, the balance of the tract which "I now live on;" all of the property to be divided between Ricely and Joseph on the death of his wife Sophi; Sophie Defrees and friend, William Austin, were appointed executors. It was witnessed by William Smith and James Morris and entered in the Sumner County Court August term 1827.

The date of Sophie's death is not known. She appears to be the female between 80 and 90 years of age living with her son Ricely in the 1840 census. Because she has not been found in the 1850 census, it is probable that she died before that year. (NARA Microfilm 432, Roll 897)

It should be pointed out that some sources lump all of James's children under his probable second wife, Sophina Sevier Ricely/Risley. [Better source documentation is needed for this entry. Editor]
The children of James Defrees and his unknown spouse were:
+1. Asher Defrees
2. James Defrees
3. Rebecca Defrees ("Ancestors of Asher DeFrees")

However, Jeanne Gart (James Defrees and His Descendants, p. 2-3), describes the children of James Defries and his unknown spouse as:
1. William Defrees was born about 1767 in New York. He was on the Rockbridge County, Virginia tax list in 1787 with James being responsible for his tax, and in 1788. In 1789, William bought property in Surry County, North Carolina, but gave his residence as Rockbridge County, Virginia. [Need primary source from the missing source cited. Editor]
2. Mary Defrees was born about 1769. She married on 2 February 1789, in Rockbridge County, Virginia, Henry Hardy. Anthony Defrees, nephew of James Defries, said that Henry Hardy was born in England and that Henry was the half-brother of his mother, Mary Start, the wife of Joseph Hutton Defrees, brother of James Defrees. The Hardys are said to have moved to North Carolina when James Defrees and his family did and that Mary died soon thereafter, leaving two children. (Anthony DeFrees, "The DeFrees Family," 1864). [Check 1810 census for Henry Hardy and family. Editor]
+3. Asher Defrees was born about 1770. See details of his life in the next generation below.
4. Elizabeth "Nancy: Defrees was named in her father's will as "the wife of Ephraim Frady. She is probably the same person who married, in Surry County, North Carolina, [on] 7 August 1810, Ephraim Frady, with her name being given as Nancy Defrees." It appears that Elizabeth died before 1830.(Gart, p. 3) [Primary sources needed. Editor]
5. James Defrees was born 1770-1780, He is named in James's Defrees's will. Gart mentions that she found no legal document or tax list with containing his name. (Gart, ibid)

The children of James Defrees and Sophina Sevier Risley:
1. John C. Defrees
2. Elizabeth Defrees
3. David Defries

4. Moses Defries
5. Hannah Defries
6. Nancy Ann Defrees
7. Polly Defries
8. Joseph Defrees
9. Risley Defrees

("Ancestors of Asher DeFrees" Data for those children can be found in this source.)

Gart describes the children of James Defrees and Sophina Ricely:

1. Rebecca Defrees was born about 1777, but possibly later. She did not marry. (Gart, James Defrees and His Descendants, pp. 3-4)
2. John Defrees was born 1780-1783. (Gart, p. 3)
3. Hannah Defrees was married to David Hart at the time of James Defrees's will in 1820. (Gart, p. 4) [Need copy of James's will. Editor]
4. David Defrees was born about 1784. (Gart, ibid)
5. Moses Defrees was born 9 March 1787. (Gart, ibid)
6. Nancy Defrees was born about 1795. (Gart, ibid)
7. Polly Defrees was born about 1796. (Gart, ibid)
8. Ricely Defrees was born 28 May 1800. (Gart, ibid)
9. Joseph Defrees was born about 1801. (Gart, ibid)

The children of James Defrees and his unknown spouse according to "Defries Family - Descendants of Gilles DeForest" :

1. William Defrees [the family name used by this source] was born about 1767 in New York.
2. Mary Defrees was born about 1769 in New York. She died before 1827 in Rowan County, North Carolina [Check state]. Mary married Henry Hardy on 2 February 1789 in Rockbridge County, Virginia.

+3. Asher Defrees was born about 1770 in New York. He died about 1847 in Barren County, Kentucky. Asher married Elizabeth Paul on 18 August 1796 in Rockbridge County, Virginia.

4. Elizabeth Defrees was born about 1772 in North Carolina and died before 1830 in Surrey County, North Carolina.
5. James Defrees was born between 1774 and 1784 in Rockbridge County, Virginia and died in August 1827.

The children of James Defrees and Sophina Risley from this source:

1. John Defrees
2. David Defrees
3. Moses Defrees
4. Hannah Defrees
5. Nancy Ann Defrees
6. Polly Defrees
7. Risley Defrees

GENERATION IV - Asher Defrees was born about 1770/1779 in New York. He was the son of James Defreese and an unknown woman. As noted, some sources lump all of James's children, including Asher, sometime erroneously listed as "Ashon," to the marriage with Sophina Sevier

Ricely/Risley. One unknown source says that Asher was the first child of that marriage. He married on 18 August 1796 at the New Providence Church in Rockbridge County, Virginia, Elizabeth Paul. She born about 1772. Elizabeth was from Botetourt County, Virginia. Elizabeth died before 1840 in Kentucky. She was the daughter of Captain Audley Paul and Jane Lynn Matthews. Asher died about 1847 in Barren County, Kentucky. Morton, History of Rockbridge County, Virginia, p. 269, says:

> Captain Audley Paul was a son of Hugh Paul a Presbyterian minister who migrated from County Armagh, Ulster, to Chester County, Pennsylvania. He was a very useful officer and was in military service nearly all the time from 1754 until the close of the Revolution. He led his company several times against the Indians. He was under Washington in the battle known as Braddock's Defeat, and he endured the hardships of the Big Sandy Expedition. His son relates in 1839 that his father received no compensation for these services. His brother John be came a Roman Catholic priest in Maryland. An unknown source says that Audley Paul married on 20 June 1755, in Augusta County, Virginia, Jane Lynn Matthews. She was born in 1734 or 1735 and died after 6 September 1778, but before 6 December 1802 in Botetourt County, Virginia.

There is an interpretive sign for the fort of Audley Paul near the intersection of Virginia Route 610 (Plank Road) and I-81 near exit A48. It reads:

> Near here stood the stockade of Capt. Audley Paul, noted Colonial Frontier Soldier. He served in the Sandy Creek expedition against the Shawnees, 1756, at the Battle of Point Pleasant, 1774, and in repelling Indian raids. In 1761, the fort was crowded with settlers families seeking protection against the marauding Shawnees.

An Asher Defrees was on jury duty on 14 July 1807 in Knox County, Tennessee. Asher is in the 1830 Barren County, Kentucky census (National Archives and Records Administration Microfilm 19, Roll 33 and in the 1840 census for Barren County (NARA, Microfilm 704, Roll 103), but he is not in the 1850 census there. (Microfilm 432, Roll 191) Asher died about 1847 in Barren County, Kentucky.

The children of Asher Defrees and Elizabeth Paul, according to Potter, "Genealogy of the DeFries Family, "p. 34:

1. Elizabeth "Betsy" DeFries. Kentucky Marriage Records of 1802 - 1840 list her as having married Abijah Morris, son of Samuel Morris, on 17 August 1821. According to an unknown source, Betsy was born in Tennessee and married on 17 August 1821, in Adair County, Kentucky.

+2. William T. Defries, father of Audley Paul Defries, was born in Tennessee in 1805. Potter says that he was possibly the son of Asher Defries. See his entry in the generation just below.

3. James Defries was born about 1812 in Tennessee. [Source?] He married Nancy Evans on 27 October 1830, but he died a year later in October 1831, at age 26, when his son, James Lafaett DeFries, was only three months old. James's His brother, William T. Defries, was the administrator of his estate. The child of Jame3s Defries and Nancy Evans was:

1. James Lafaett Defries. [Potter says that he was possibly a son of James DeFries, but it appears that he was, in fact, his son.] He was born July 1831, in Barren County, Kentucky. He married Rebecca Jane Mann in 1854. Their children:

1. Bailey Bennett Defries was born in October 1855 in Harrisonville, Cass County, Missouri. He went with his parents to Wyandotte County, Kansas about 1866 when he was eleven years old. Later, Bailey was a farmer at that place. At age 85 he was fatally injured when he was struck by a car at Muncie, Wyandotte County, while crossing a street. Bailey married Martha Vanmeter. Their daughter Iva operated the Muncie Post Office. "Uncle Bailey," as he was known, would carry the large mail bag over his shoulder down to the train depot in Muncie and hang it on a overhanging-hook for a passing train to pick up. Their children were:

1. Charles E. DeFries was born on 5 December 1883 in Edwardsville, Wyandotte County, Kansas. He married Selma Ida Ramsden. She was born on 30 June 1890 in Kansas City, Missouri. 7. A son was born in March 1918. He died at birth as noted above.

4. Archibald P. DeFries was born in Tennessee in 1810. According to an unidentified source he married on 8 August 1830, Emily Kelly, the daughter of Giles Kelly. She was born in 1812 in Kentucky. They had moved to Kentucky by at least 1842, as all their children were born in Kentucky. According to the census of 1850, he was farming in Barren County, Kentucky. According to the 1860 Census, Archibald P. DeFries (then age 50 years) was living in the town of Austin, Cass County, Missouri, with his sons Sidney DeFries, age 14, and Joseph DeFries, age 12. His occupation was listed as a stone mason. Evidently his wife Emily had died as she does not appear in the census with Archibald. There is no record of this family living in Wyandotte County, Kansas. Potter says that he was possibly the son of Asher DeFries.] Their children in the 1860 census were:

1. Sandford A. DeFries was born in 1842.
2. Sidney A. DeFries was born in 1847.
3. Joseph E. C. DeFries was born in 1849.

According to the 1860 census records, Archibald P. Defries (at 50 years of age), was living in the town of Austin, Case County, Missouri, with sons Sidney (age 14) and Joseph (age 12). His occupation was listed as stone mason. Evidently, his wife Emily had died. There is no record of this family ever living in Wyandotte County, Kansas. James L. Defries, later in 1871, named one of his sons Archibald Paul.

GENERATION III - William T. Defries , a son of Asher Defrees, was the father of Audley Paul Defries. William was born in Tennessee in 1805. He married Jane____, whose family name is not known. An unidentified known source says they were married in 1825. She was born in Virginia in 1800. The William T. Defries's moved to Kentucky by at least 1829, as all their children were born in Kentucky. According to the *Census of 1850, they were farming in Barren County, Kentucky.

The children of William T. Defries and Jane _____:

1. John F. Defries was born in 1826. He married Polly Ann Skerlock on 16 September 1847. Their children who were living with Polly in Wyandotte County, Kansas, according to the 1870 census:

1. Jemima DeFries was born in 1849.

6. Lilly DeFries was born in 1868.

2. Nathan F. Defries was born in October 1829 in Barren County, Kentucky. His wife was Martha J. _____ . She was born in 1841. They were married in Kentucky and their first two children were born there. They went to Wyandotte County, Kansas, about 1870, as their last child was born in Kansas. Nathan died in 1900 and Mary died in 1903. They are buried in the Stony Point Cemetery. [Located at 78th and Speaker Road, Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas] The children of Nathan and Martha:

1. Henrietta Defries, born 1863, Kentucky, married Reams. She was buried in the [data missing]

1. Lou Reams was buried at Gardner, Kansas. His child was Chester Reams.

2. Roy Reams died in Montana. He had no children.

3. Beulah Reams was buried at Lawrence, Kansas. Her children were Faye, Dorothy, and Lester.

4. Myrtle Reams lived in California.

5. Harvey Reams, a bachelor, was buried at the Gardner, Kansas Cemetery.

2. Edward "Eddie" B. Defries was born in Kentucky in 1870. He went to Kansas with his parents and his sister, Henrietta. He married first, Ida Grinter, who was born 1866. She died at the age of 32 when her daughters were ages two and three. She was buried at the Stony Point Cemetery in Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. (See her entry in the Moses Grinter Biography.) Their children:

1. Artie B. DeFries, was born on 28 July 1897. He married L. T. Wickard. They had no children.

2. Mabel Marie DeFries was born on 10 December 1898. She married A. Douglas. They had no children.

Edward married second, Pearl Tallman. They moved to Seattle, Washington. where he later died and was buried. The child of Edward and Ida was:

1. Alden Defries lived in California. He had no children.

3. Benjamin "Ben" W. Defries was born in Kansas in Wyandotte County in 1871. He married Frances "Fannie" Bell Grinter. She was a sister of Ida Grinter, his brother Edward's wife. She was born in 1881 and died in 1970. (See her entry under Moses Grinter in the Biographies.) Benjamin died in 1938. Both he and Ida are buried in the Stony Point Cemetery in Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. Their child was:

1. Verna M. DeFries was born in 1912. She married Orville Glendening. They had no children. (Potter, "Defries Genealogy," pp. 35-36)

+3. Audley Paul Defries was born in 1832 in Barren County, Kentucky. He married Mary Jane Grinter at present Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. Audley Paul died at in Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. See his entry below.

4. William A. Defries was born in 1836.
5. James M. Defries was born in 1838.
6. Madison T. Defries was born in 1844. (Potter, "Defries Genealogy," pp. 34, 36)

GENERATION II - Audley Paul Defries was the father of Martha "Mattie" Frances Defries, who married Christian "Chris" Hahn. Audley Paul was the son of Nathan F. Defries and Jane (family name unknown) Defries. Audley Paul was born in 1832 in Barren County, Kentucky. He died on 27 July 1882 and was buried in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery in present Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. See his complete entry at Audley Paul Defries Family.

Kansas Delaware Tribe Of Indians Memorial

In Loving Memory of Martha " Mattie"
Frances (Defries) Hahn

Martha "Mattie" Frances (Defries) Hahn was the daughter of Audley Paul Defries and Mary Jane Grinter. She was born on 10 December 1867 on her mother's Delaware Allotment just up the road from her parent's home, the Grinter Place, in Wyandotte County in present Kansas City, Kansas. Her mother, Mary Jane Grinter, was the daughter of Kansas Delaware Annie Marshall and Moses Read Grinter. Her father was the son of William T. Defries and Jane, family name not known. Mattie was the granddaughter of Wilaquenaho and the trader, William Marshall. Mattie Christian Frederick Hahn, of Butler County, Pennsylvania on 3 November 1886. Mattie and Chris later lived in White City, Morris County and Topeka, Shawnee County. She was a gentle woman, loved by all. Mattie died on 27 August 1950. She and Chris are buried in the Mount Hope Cemetery in Topeka.

[There is an error in the memorial. Mattie Defries was the great grand-daughter of Betsy Wilaquenaho and William Marshall, not the grand-daughter. Editor She told her grandson, Thomas Hahn, that she missed getting her allotment of Delaware land of the Kansas Delaware Reserve because the Treaty with the United States was 4 July 1867 and she was born on 10 December 1867, five months later. She also said that she received her name on the steps of the Capitol in Topeka when her mother, Mary Jane Grinter, received her allotment.]

(Kansas Delaware) Martha "Mattie" Defries was born on 10 December 1866 on a farm at Muncie (mail address), Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas. She was the daughter of Mary Jane Grinter and Audley Paul Defries. The area in which they lived was called "Stony Point." It was just off Grinter Road, now 78th Avenue, in present Kansas City, Kansas. She was born on the Delaware Allotment of her mother. The farm was approximately a mile north of the home (now called Grinter Farm or Grinter Place) of her mother, Mary Jane Grinter and of her grandparents, Anna Marshall and Moses Read Grinter. Martha went by the name of "Mattie" All her life. She told her grandson, Thomas Swiftwater Hahn, that her mother, named her a month after her birth, on 14 January 1868, on the steps of the Capitol in Topeka where Mary Jane received her allotment of Delaware land. Mary Jane Grinter was born on 3 May 1843 on the Kansas Delaware Reserve and died on 10 July 1908 at Muncie, Wyandotte County, Kansas. Audley Paul was born in 1830 in Barren County, Kentucky. He died on 10 July 1908 in Muncie. For the genealogy of her Defries Family see The Defries Family Page. Mary Jane and Audley Paul were buried in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery near their home. Mattie married on 3 November 1886, Christian "Chris" Frederick Hahn. He was born on 31 March 1864, in St. Clair County, Michigan. He died on 3 July 1934 at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. His parents were John George Hahn who was born in Stuttgart, Württemberg, Germany and Mary Ann Ellenberger, who was born in Pennsylvania. Mattie and Chris first lived on a five-acre tract of land in Wyandotte County that was a part of Mary Jane Grinter's Indian Allotment. Chris ran a general store not far from their house. He was also a Trustee of the Stony Point School. About 1915 they moved to White City, Morris County, Kansas, where Chris again operated a general store. They might have lived for a short time near Parsons, Labette County, Kansas prior to the move to White City. About 1921 they moved to Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas on 629 West 17th. Avenue, adjacent to the Kansas Free Fair Grounds. Chris worked as a carpenter until his death in 1934.

Some of the information on Mattie Defries can be found in Jeanne Brooks Gart, James Defrees and His Descendants (1992), located at the Church of Latter Day Saints, Family History Library (LDS/FHL) US/CAN 929.273/d362 and also on in Delores Potter, Genealogy of the Defries Family of Wyandotte County, Kansas, also located at the LDS/ FHL under US/CAN 929.273/d362P. She is listed on Microfilm No. 5 of the John G. Pratt Papers as a minor. Her mother. Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries and her grandmother, Annie (Marshall) Grinter, are also listed. Their names also appear in Appendix 10 of C. A. Weslager, The Delaware Indians: A History. Rutgers University Press: New Brunswick, NJ, 1972. Mattie is in the 1880 Census for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas on p. 75 at age age two years. Her father, Audley [Paul] Defries was 38, her mother was 36, Polly (a niece of either Mary Jane or Audley) was 13, her brother William Defries 7, and her sister Ann. E.[lizabeth] Defries was 5. All the children were born in Kansas. In the 1875 Census for Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas, located at the Wyandotte County Museum near Bonner Springs, Roll 20, Martha F. Defries is listed at age 6 along with her father A.[udley} P.[aul] Defries, age 44; her mother Mary Jane Defries at 32, William Defries at 13, Elizabeth Defries at 9, and Moses R.[ead] Defries at 4. In the 1880 Census for Enumeration District 195, District One, Wyandotte County, Kansas, A. P. Defries is 49, Mary Jane Defries is __, William Defries is 17, Anne E. Defries is __. Mattie Defries is 12, Moses Defries is 8, Elva A., Defries is 17. It is assumed that Mattie attended the Stony Point School, first established by her grandparents, Moses Grinter and Anna Marshal. With her family, she attended the Grinter Chapel Methodist Church just south of their property. The land for the chapel and cemetery was donated to the Methodist Church South by her Grinter grandparents. Mattie should be in the 1885 Census for Wyandotte County with her parents. This census has not yet been researched.

She and Christian "Chris" Frederick Hahn were probably married in November 1886, because the Office of Probate Judge of Wyandotte County on 3 November 1886 issued a Marriage License to Christian F. Hahn, age 23 and Mattie Defries, age 18 but they did not return it to be recorded. The Wyandotte Gazette reported: Mr. C.[hristian] F.[rederick] Hahn and Miss Mattie [Martha Frances] Defries were married at the residence of the bride's mother [Mary Jane nee Grinter Defries, Nov. 3rd, Elder W. F. Wait officiating. [Mattie's father, Audley Paul Defries, had died two years previously, on 27 July 1882. Chris was the son of a German Reformed Lutheran minister, but they later attended the Methodist Church. The request for a marriage license is the first record that we have found for Chris Hahn in Kansas. Chris Hahn was born on 31 March 1864 in St. Clair County, Michigan and he died on 3 July 1934 in Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. His father, John G. Hahn, was born in Württemberg, Germany but later emigrated to Pennsylvania. His mother was Mary Ann Ellenberger of Pennsylvania. He was Lutheran minister who served in Indiana, Ohio, and Michigan, and Pennsylvania. Mary Ann may have died in Butler County, Pennsylvania as she was there in the 1880 Federal Census. John G. Hahn died at Bay City, Bay County, Michigan. Not long after they were married, the Wyandotte Gazette reported on 2 January 1888 that, "

It is not clear where they lived when then first married, but not long after they were married Mattie and Chris lived on a five-acre tract of land in Wyandotte County that was a part of Mary Jane Grinter's Delaware Indian Allotment. Mrs. Hahn who has been lying sick for some time is recovering." Because their "first" child was born on 21 December, one wonders if the sickness could have been associated with the birth of an earlier child who did not survive? Christian Hahn was a storekeeper and Clerk of the Stony Point School. About two years after they married, her mother, Mary Jane Defries, sold to Mattie for $1.00 five acres of land in 17-11-24. This is in DIRECT (Deeds), 12 October 1888. Grantor: Defries, Mary J. Grantee: Mattie Hahn. Warranty Deed. Volume 115, page 79. Remarks: 6730. (It is unclear what those numbers mean.) The land is described in Deed Book 115, p. 79, Wyandotte County, Kansas, Clerk (Register of Deeds) as commencing at the SE corner of the SE 1/4 of Section 17 in Township 11 South of Range 24 east, thence N 24 rods, thence W 40 rods, thence South 20 rod, thence East 40 rods. Five acres. One would think that this was where she and Chris lived at that time or soon thereafter. The Hahns had about eighty acres of land within the former Delaware Reserve, so it is likely that he was also a part-time farmer and is listed in the 1915 census as such.

Christian and Mattie had many real estate transactions, but they mostly dealt with the same tract of land, Section 21, Township 11, Range 24 in the NW and NE quarters. According to his son, Walter Hahn--as told to his son Thomas F. Hahn-- they lived on the west side of present-day 78th Street. This may have been the five acres in Section 17, Township 24, Range 24 that Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries gave to Mattie on 12 September 1888. According to Marguerite Hahn (daughter-in-law of Paul N. Hahn) in 1995, they lived on the east side of 78th Street, at the intersection of 78th and____, next to the general store that Christian Hahn operated. Deed data shows that they did have land on the latter site. That property bordered the former Wyandotte Reserve. Marguerite also said that later owners were Mumford and Tiner, and that her husband, Vernon Hahn, was born [November 1907] in that house, that is, his father, Paul N. Hahn, son of John G. Hahn and Mary Ann (Ellenberger) lived there at that time. The Christian Hahns may have lived at both locations. Mattie's mother, Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries, owned a quarter-section of land (80 acres) in the Delaware Reservation that had been allotted to her in 1867 under the 1866 Treaty between the Delaware and the United States). Although Christian was the son of a Lutheran minister, he does not seemed to have followed that religion after his move to Kansas. Mattie's parents, Audley Paul Defries and Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries, were Methodists. They were buried in the Grinter Chapel Methodist Church Cemetery at the intersection of Schwartz Road and 78th Avenue (also known as Grinter Road), in Stony Point. Land for the church had been donated by her grandparents, Moses Read Grinter and Anna "Annie" (Marshall) Grinter. This church was only a short distance down the road from the Christian Hahns and was undoubtedly where they attended church services. Later in life they attended the Methodist Church, but did not seem to be active in church affairs.

Thomas F. Hahn cursorily searched the difficult-to-use old tax records for Wyandotte County, Kansas at the Wyandotte County Historical Museum at Bonner Springs, but he found no tax records for Christian or Mattie Hahn. So far, we have not found the census for Wyandotte County, Kansas. In the 1905 Census for Wyandotte County, Kansas, Christian Hahn is listed as being a farmer. Additionally, he is known to have had a small general store not far from their house. Mattie and Chris Hahn and their family should be in the 1900 Census for Wyandotte County. That census will be researched. They are in the 1910 Census for Wyandotte County, Kansas: Christian F. Hahn age 47, Mattie Hahn age 42, Louise Hahn age 17, Edward O.[scar) Hahn age 11, Where is Walter Hahn about age 14? (LDS FHL Film 1370356 080 0204 0210).In the 1*900 Census for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas, Enumeration District 173*, beginning at line 18, LDS Family History Library Film 1243961, Mattie Hahn is 31, Myrtle M. Hahn is 7, Mary L. Hahn is __, Walter Hahn is __, Edward Hahn is __. and Christian Hahn's brother, Paul; (born Pennsylvania) is __. [Ages to be added when found.] In the *1905 Census for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas, located at the Wyandotte County Museum, volume 478, section 3, page 26, dwelling 166, family 169, are Chris Hahn at 41, Mrs. M. F. Hahn at 37, Mertel at 15, Louise Hahn at 12, Walter Hahn at 9, Edward Hahn at 6, Margarette Hahn at 3, and Ed Defries.

The Chris Hahn Family moved from Wyandotte County, Kansas City to a farm near Thayer, in Shiloh Township, Neosho County Kansas, in probably 1912, although a note on the back of a photograph of the Christian Hahn family, apparently taken in Kansas City, says that the photo was taken in 1910 "before the Hahn's moved to Thayer [Shiloh Township, Neosho County]. On 15 November 1911, "C. F. Hahn" purchased 360 acres in the South 1/2 of Section 16, Township 30 South, Range 18 East. The deed shows that he still lived in Wyandotte County at that time. It is possible that they timed the move from Wyandotte County to Neosho County to coincide with the school year. Their daughter, Margaret Frances (Hahn) Walter, told her daughter, Donna Jean "D. J." (Walter) Reineke, "My dad thought living on a farm would be a wonderful place to raise a family and they left the store and moved to the farm in Thayer, Kansas." Eunice Marcelle "Becky" Beckman, the daughter of Christian and Mattie Hahn's daughter, Marie Louise "Lou" (Hahn) Beckman, related that she (Louise) said that she kept house in Parsons, Labette County, Kansas so that her brothers Walter Hahn and Edward "Ed" Hahn could go to high school there. Louise was a seamstress, so it seems likely that she probably did that while living in Parsons. She would have been about twenty to twenty-three years of age during the Hahn's stay in Neosho County. Walter told his son, Thomas F. Hahn, that he went to High School one day in Kansas City, Kansas--from Muncie--but he was so intimidated by the experience that he did not go back. This does not mean that he didn't go to high school in Thayer, but he never mentioned that he did. Their farm was about fifteen miles from Parsons, too far to commute each day, so the story seems likely to be true. Their nearest town was Thayer, fix or six miles away. It is thought that they went to church there and probably had friends the the area from their church affiliation. Donna Jean Walter Reineke told Thomas F. Hahn that her mother, Margaret, said that Myrtle [her sister Myrtle May (Hahn) McCollister] was married [and probably living in Kansas City] and that Louise was busy working other places [that is, in Parsons, Kansas], that they really had very hard times, and that Margaret was missing the goodies from the store in Kansas City. The farm may have been devoted to the growing of corn or other crops, as it is now. In 2002, the farm was leased to a man who grew corn and soy beans, but who didn't there, nor has there been anyone living there for some time. That is now a common practice in the area. Thomas F. Hahn and Christopher "Chris" Frederick Hahn in June 2002 confirmed the location of the Hahn farm by deed research and in an on site visit where they visited with the present absentee tenant farmer. They discovered that the farm house was gone, as was the barn, the latter replaced by a more recent barn. Thomas F. Hahn has a photo of several men building a silo. His father, Walter, MAY have told him that the photo was taken on this farm. One outbuilding, sort of a workshop, seems to have survived. The lessee of the farm told Thomas F. Hahn that the house and barn had been demolished forty or more years previously. There is a photo of the house which is in the Thomas F. Hahn's Personal Ancestral File entry for the Christian F. Hahn Family. The house sits back about 1,000 feet of Ford Road, which road borders the farm on the east side. Big Creek--much smaller than the name suggests--runs through the property in the western and southwestern portion of the property. The place where the old house and old barn sat, and the road to the property can be seen in a 1986 aerial photo found at www.mapquest.com for the Parsons, Kansas area. There are more recent buildings on the property, now abandoned and dilapidated. The road on the South side of the Farm is 40th Road or Street, the former designation used on a 1987 Neosho County Property Valuation Map and the latter on a map on a modern road map. There is a pond on the property which may be the same one where Walter Hahn told his son, Thomas F. Hahn, that he shot two geese with one shot. The farm of the family Leslie "Les" F. Beckman, spouse of Christian Hahn's daughter, Louise, is one section to the south and one section to the east, at the southwest corner of the intersection of probably Gray Road and 30th Road/Street. It does not appear that any other members of the Hahn family were in that area of the state 1912 - 1915.

From the farm near Thayer, the Hahn Family seems to have moved to White City, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas, probably in 1915. Christian and Mattie sold the Neosho County property in December 1915, two months before their mortgage became due. In White City, they lived across the railroad tracks on the west side of town. Thomas F. Hahn has a photo of the house as it appeared in the 1970s. Christian Hahn ran a general store in White City. In the 1915 census for White City, Rolling Prairie Township, he is enumerated as a "merchant." Accordingly, it seems likely that they moved to White City some months before they sold the farm in Neosho County. The enumeration date of the 1915 census would be helpful to have in that it would provide the "latest" date by which they were in White City. Christian's son, "Walter Hahn," and his daughter, "Louise Hahn," are listed as clerks in the store in the 1915 census. Grandson Thomas F. Hahn has a candy jar from the store. When the Hahn's sold the store to the Torgeson's--family members of Walter Hahn's wife, Florence Vivian (Torgeson) Hahn. Louise Hahn stayed on as a clerk and is listed in the 1920 census as a department store clerk. Daughter Margaret (Hahn) Walter said that she was so glad when her dad decided to move to Topeka and he do carpenter work and when times were much better.

Mattie Defries Hahn at probably at Her Home in White City, Morris County, Kansas.
The Hahn's lived here from about 1915 until about 1920. It appears that Mattie's daughter, Myrtle Hahn, sent this photo to her brother, Walt Hahn in France, during World War. On the back of the photo she wrote, "The new coal & kindling shed set south of driveway and the one who burns the said fuel. Mama said she has the sun grins - her hair isn't as white as it looks in the picture however. (Hahn Collection)

In the 1920 Census for Rolling Prairie Township [White City] , Morris County, Kansas, volume 33, Enumeration District 99, Sheet 6, Line 65; Christian F. Hahn, age 56, is listed as a house carpenter, so it is likely that that is what he did after selling the store in White

City. Mattie Hahn was age 52, Louise Hahn age 27, Walter Hahn age 24, Edward O. Hahn age 21, and Margaret Hahn age 18.census. In this census, Christian Hahn is listed as a carpenter, Walter Hahn a garage mechanic and Edward Hahn a bank clerk LDS FHL Film 1825261, occupations they pursued after they moved to Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas the same year for the boys and by the following year for the parents. Christian and Mattie Hahn probably moved from White City to Topeka probably to be near their children who had moved there.

It appears that Christian and Mattie Hahn moved directly to West Euclid Avenue (later changed to West 17th Avenue), on the south side of the street. They lived until there until his death in 1933 and her death in 1952. In Topeka, Christian worked as a contractor building houses. The 1930 Census lists the occupation of "Christian F. Hahn" as being a house carpenter. He built a house for each of his sons, Walter and Edward, and for his daughter Louise and her spouse Leslie Beckman, with their help. In his death certificate, Mattie reported that he had been a carpenter for twenty-five years, that is, since about 1909. So, it appears that while he was a farmer and a store owner, he also supplemented his income by carpentry. Chris and Mattie's home was as a meeting place for the family members living in Topeka. Three of their children lived within a few blocks of the parents, and the other two lived about a mile and two miles away. Walter Hahn's parents in-law, Thomas "Tom" and Margaret "Maggie" Torgeson lived just three blocks away at 912 West Euclid Avenue. Both families were friends in White City and continued that friendship while in Topeka. Like the Hahns, the Torgesons had moved to Topeka to be near their children. Walter Hahn's wife, Florence Vivian (Torgeson) Hahn in 1977 wrote to her son, Thomas F. Hahn, saying: "It was so nice for us to have our relatives living here [in Topeka] and raising our families together. Les [Leslie Beckman] and Louise [Hahn] were married in December, then Myrtle [Myrtle May (Hahn" McCollister) moved here the next year and Ed [Edward Hahn and his wife [Ida] Marie (Jenkins) Hahn soon after that so that we were quite a family. The Hahns were wonderful people, good folks and loved their children and we were all very happy. Then my folks came two or three years after we did. Dad was still in the Post Office two or three years after I was married. We had such fun on picnics and going to the Fair with our kids and we were all poor together. Dad [Christian Hahn] had a Model T car the year they came to Topeka and they came here only a few months after we were married. That first fall we were the only ones and them here in Topeka and we had such good times. We would go for a ride Sunday afternoons with Louise, Margaret [Margarhetta "Margaret" Frances Hahn] and Grandma and Grandpa Hahn and we would get lost in the country and finally get back on the road to town. We would stop at their house for a little Sunday evening snack." At one time the Euclid Avenue street car line went by the elder Hahn and Torgeson houses and later a bus route did the same. The rear of the Hahn property joined the Kansas Free Fair grounds. At the time of the annual fair in the first part of September, the Hahn house was a center of activity for local and out-of-town family members. Both Chris and Mattie had numerous relatives from the Kansas City area and some of them were frequent visitors. From the 1930 census we see that Elen Speerschneider lived with the Hahns while she was a clerk in a Topeka bank. That would have been a typical gesture of the Hahns, that is, to extend a helping hand to a friend or relative. The children of Christian and Mattie often were at their house on Sunday evenings. Often someone went out for ice cream at Baughman's Ice Cream Plant. When that happened Christian Hahn, ever the retail merchant, broke out a fresh box of saltine crackers to go with the ice cream. Their daughter Margaret, and her daughter, Donna Jean Walter, lived with the Hahns from the early 1940s until about 1963. During the war years of the 1940s, the upstairs rooms were sometimes let out to a renter. After Mattie's death on 27 August 1950, Margaret owned the house and she and Donna Jean, continued to live in the house. Donna Jean lived there until her marriage to Robert "Bob" Reineke on 23 January 1954. Margaret lived there until sometime after her marriage to Fred Hottle on 22 November 1963. The house is no longer there, the houses on the south side of the street in that block having been demolished for the present-day Kansas Exposition, or whatever it is called, as was the house where the Edward Hahn family lived a few houses west at 709 West Euclid Avenue. Christian Hahn's grand daughter, Donna Jean (Walter) Reineke, in an email of 18 January 2003 to Thomas F. Hahn, said of their grandmother, Mattie: "My mother told me she and Grandma Hahn quilted a Flower Pot quilt together and Grandpa Hahn cut out the pattern pieces for them. It is the quilt with the pink potted three-flower pattern... I agree grandma was not very interested in housekeeping, but she was into quilting and spent many hours with this hobby. It is so nice that she quilted with her daughters and especially interesting that Grandpa Hahn helped them by cutting out their quilt patterns. This tells us he did a lot to be close to his family.

Mattie (Defries) Hahn at Topeka, Kansas (Hahn Collection)

The grandchildren loved to go "Grandma Hahn's" house, as Mattie was a particularly indulging grandmother. She allowed the children to jump on the bed in the spare bedroom and to play the old Victrola records incessantly. Mattie appeared to her grandson, Thomas F. Hahn, to be a quiet-natured, soft-hearted person, who reflected her Native American background. When he stayed with her she she let him choose what he wanted to eat, which was usually pork chops and canned Royal Ann cherries. The Hahns had a pantry adjacent to the kitchen which was always looked into for possibilities. She also appeared to her grandson to be a rather casual cook and housekeeper, which may have accounted for part of her indulgence in letting the grandchildren do things that many other grand children couldn't. Unfortunately, the same grandson does not remember either of his grandparents talking much about their parents or their childhoods or earlier life, but that may have been because he was more interested in doing other "more interesting" things. We always had good times at family gatherings at her house. Mattie and Chris lived next to the Kansas State Free Fairgrounds on West 17th Avenue (earlier Euclid Avenue) in Topeka so that their home was a gathering place at fair time the 1st week in September. The old house is now gone and a part of the expanded fair grounds. She told her grandson, Thomas F. Hahn, that she had once been engaged to a wrestler at the University of Kansas who broke his neck while wrestling. Her daughter Margaret (and her daughter Donna Jean) lived in the house on West 17th in later years, prior to and after her death. Her son, Walter F. Hahn, a kind man, visited her often in her later years and particularly so in the period before her death.

Mattie Hahn had a long, difficult bout with bout with cancer of the uterus. As was typical of the day, she stayed at home throughout the illness, being cared for by family, and finally a woman hired to care for her during the week. Her grand-daughter, Donna (Walter) Reineke, who lived there in the house with her mother, Margaret (Hahn) Walter), recalled in an e-mail to her cousin, Tom Hahn that, the minister from Trinity church came every Saturday morning to visit for 10 minutes or so with Grandma Hahn. She sat in the platform rocker by the front window and watched for him. My mother stayed with grandma on Saturday and Sundays while the hired lady [Lottie] went home to Maple Hill. The Doctor also made house calls and came often. I remember he was giving her a placebo and she thought he was really helping her. The visit was doing her the most good and probably was not too costly as the doc and minister both had their route and wkly routine."

Mattie Hahn was buried in the Hahn Family plot in next to her spouse Christian Frederick Hahn at the Mount Hope Cemetery in Topeka. Her marker says Mattie DeFries 1861-1950.

Their children were:
1. (Kansas Delaware) Myrtle May Hahn was born 21 December 1889 at Muncie, Wyandotte County, Kansas. Myrtle married Gerald "Mac" T. McCollister. JOHN GRINTER

THE EMIGRANT FROM ENGLAND, THE FIRST KNOWN GRINTER IN AMERICA

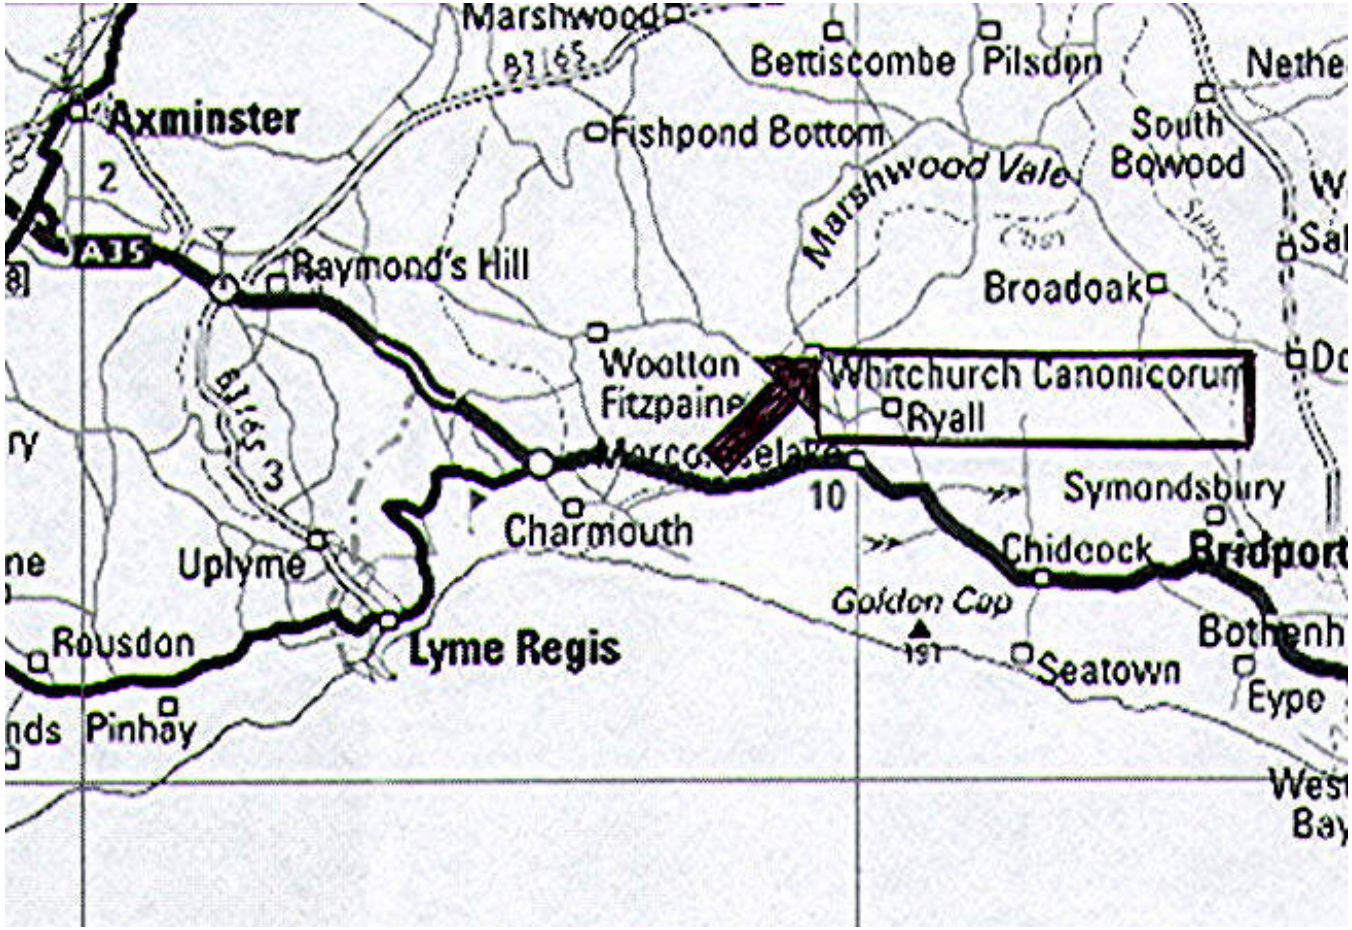
This entry needs editing. There is some duplication of the data. It is rambles on and it does not read well and it will be revised soon. One of our priorities for research is to find the deed records for John Grinter and his son, Francis Grinter. We suspect that the former, and perhaps the latter, would gave been located in the area of the Smith Cemetery, some 13 miles north of Russellville, Logan County, Kentucky. Logan County was formed in 1792. The name Grinter is sometimes found as "Gunter." Editor

All male descendants of John Grinter, the Revolutionary War Soldier, are eligible to become members of the Sons of the American Revolution. The proof of descent has been made down to Moses Read Grinter, so that part of the work has been done for you. You need to prove your descent from Moses Grinter through birth certificates, census records, wills, etc. to be eligible. Female descendants of John Grinter are eligible to become members of the Daughters of the Revolution. More home work would be necessary, however. as the linkage is not as recent.

John Grinter was born probably in June 1755 in Whitchurch Canonicorum, Dorsetshire, England. He married Elizabeth Hill on 24 February 1786 in Prince Edward County, Virginia. Scroll down down to see the entry for Elizabeth Hill and a partial Descendancy of their Descendants below this description of John Grinter's life. John Grinter died on 27 May 1831 at age 76 years in Logan County, Kentucky and was buried in the Smith Cemetery, Logan County. (Logan County Genealogical Society, Logan County, Kentucky Cemeteries, "Smith Cemetery", p. 247.)

This is the church that the Grinter's probably attended in Whitchurch Canonicorum

As mentioned. Elizabeth Hill and John Grinter GRINTER married on 24 February 1786in Prince Edward County. Elizabeth was born in 1756 in Prince Edward County, Virginia. There is a Marriage License for John Grinter and Elizabeth Hill on file at the Prince Edward Circuit Court, Virginia provided by Grinter Researcher Martha Brown. It says:



> Know all men by these presents that we John Grinter & John Hill [Elizabeth Hill's father] are held and firmly Bound unto the Commonwealth of Virginia in 50 pounds Current Money. To the which payment well and truly to be made we bind Ourselves our heirs Executors & Administrators Jointly & Severally firmly by these presents sealed with our seal the sixth [? The word is hard to read] Day of Feby. 1786 Whereas there is a Marriage Shortly intended to be solemnized Between the above Bound John Grinter & Elizabeth Hill Daughter of John Hill. The Condition of this > present Obligation is such that if there be no lawfull cause to [?object] it the same then this Obligation to be void or else to remain in full force. Sealed and Delivered John Hill (Seal)

Barney Thompson, The Thompson Family of Prince Edward County, VA [etc] (1995), p.137 said: "This Elizabeth Hill probably belonged to the family whose member John Hill, Jr. married Thomas Thompson's daughter Elizabeth Thompson and and whose member Davis Hill married Carter Thompson's daughter Nancy Hill. The Hill family lived in southwestern Prince Edward County and northeastern Charlotte County. They tended to have large families and to give their sons common names such as Robert, Thomas, John, and William. There are two facts which make research on this family difficult. "There is a voluminous Hill file among the genealogical papers of Dr. Joseph D. Eggleston at the Virginia Historical Society. Despite its size the file was not very useful to this researcher [Barney Thompson] in determining the exact relationships between all the Hills in Prince Edward and Charlotte counties." Elizabeth died on 17 August 1830 and was buried in Old Smith's Graveyard @ age 74 next to her spouse, John Grinter. (Logan County Genealogical Society, Logan County, Kentucky Cemeteries, "Smith Cemetery" p. 247: Elizabeth Grinter, consort of John Grinter, 17 Aug 1830, aged 74 yrs) In spite of their age, the grave stones are fairly legible and are if fairly good condition. In the Smith Cemetery burial records showing an Elizabeth Hill who was born in 1779 and who died on 10 April 1867 at about 86 years of age. (Logan County Genealogical Society, Logan County, Kentucky Cemeteries, "Grinter Cemetery", p. 88.)

There are varying accounts as to the birth, parents, and early life of John Grinter. Barney Thompson in The Thompson Family of Prince Edward County, Virginia...(1995), pp. 137-138, said: "Dr. Linton Elias Grinter, who died after serving as the dean of the graduate school of the University of Florida, compiled the following information on the life of his ancestor":

> John Grinter was born in the year 1755. He landed in America an infant and orphan, his father and mother having died at sea. It is not known from what country they came. Some say Germany and some say from Scotland or Wales. He was placed on the door step of one of the houses of the colony of Jamestown, Virginia. In some manner his name was understood to be Grunter or Gunter. At later dates two men came to the young man and told him, 'Your name is Grinter, not Gunter. We came over with you in the ship and we know what your name is.' Young John grew to manhood in the Jamestown colony and when the war of the Revolution came on, he joined the Colonial Army.

In a letter dated 19 November 1982, Wanda Weeks (a John Grinter, Francis Grinter, Moses Read Grinter Descendant from Norman, Oklahoma, now deceased) wrote to Thomas Hahn (also a John Grinter, Francis Grinter, Moses Read Grinter Descendant), that that Moses Grinter was known to have said that his grandfather (John Grinter) came from Whit Church in England. The source of that remark remains elusive, but it may have been been handed down through the family. Grinter Family Researcher. Roger Grinter, of Marlowe on Thames, England, told Thomas Hahn in an email 27 November 2002 that Wanda Weeks told him that she had seen a Kansas City [probably Kansas], newspaper interview in which Moses Grinter said that his grandfather was born in Whit Church, England. Obviously. we would like to have a look at that interview. It is probably only coincidental that Moses Grinter and his wife, Annie (Marshall) Grinter were members and supporters of the White Church in what is now Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas, but it is possible that there is a connection. Roger Grinter also said that John Grinter also had a brother who migrated with him. Family history says that John Grinter was born at sea in 1755 on the way from England to the Colony of Virginia. This seems unlikely as he was supposed to have been two years old when he landed in America. The same tradition says that his parents died on the voyage, but that John and a sister Betty Grinter survived them. The captain of the ship supposedly placed young John with a family in Jamestown, so it is likely that he spent his earlier years there. Because it is probable that he was two years old when he was "dumped" in Jamestown, his own words, he was probably born in England, and not at sea. Research continues on the origin of his family, but it is quite possible that his parents were from Whitchurch Canonicorum in Dorsetshire, England, and so would John have been as well. [To date, no documented sources for the above data have been found to make the connection between England and America.] The best we have so far are such references as "accounts say," "the authorities say, etc." It appears that we are missing same of the data done by earlier researchers. Wanda Weeks found parish records in Whitchurch Canonicorum, Dorset that suggest that the Grinters came from there. Thomas Hahn and Nathalie Hahn later went to Whitchurch Canonicorum to research the parish records, but the records had been transferred to the County Record Office at Dorchester, Dorset. They later went to Dorchester to research the parish records for Whitchurch Canonicorum. The early parish records were on sheepskin, were written in Latin, and were very difficult to read. We found one of two possibilities, based on the 1755 birth. for John Grinter, but they could not definitely identify the parents of John Grinter, nor could we make the connection between England and Virginia. There have also been unsubstantiated suggestions that the Grinters came from France or Germany, and those places of origin seem unlikely.

When Tom and Nathalie Hahn first went to Whitchurch Canonicorum, Dorset, they walked from where they were dropped off the highway by the bus driver two or three miles into Whitchurch Canonicorum. The road was so old and rutted from usage for hundreds of years that it had sunk several feet; the surrounding views could hardly be seen because of the roadside hedges. It was exciting to walk the same road that Tom's ancestors had tread three hundred years previously. This image hardly conveys the beautiful scenery of the Dorset countryside.

The following are extractions were made by Roger Grinter from LDS microfilm records for the Parish Records for Whitchurch C. 1700-1830. He notes that a large amount of pages were missing due to damage, possibly dampness. Those may the records that Wanda Weeks viewed that are no longer available. These are the Grinters that may be associated with John Grinter's Family:

Ron Grinter pointed out that "If some children have two baptism dates this is because if the child was ill and the priest baptised them at home, as you could not be buried in the church grounds unless baptised [in the church]. If the child recovered. it was baptised again in the church; if the dates are more than six months apart, the first child had died.

There is no obvious connection to our John Grinter in this entry. It is possible that he had another name in England or in fact was born at sea, as has been said. For data on later Grinter's in England and any questions regarding this entry, write to: Ron Grinter: RonGrinter@aol.com

Herewith are the results of the search of the Whitchurch Canonicorum Parish Registers by Nathalie and Tom Hahn at the Dorchester Record Office, Dorset, England in the mid-1980s. They may differ slightly from those received from Ron Grinter above. We will study the two lists and reconcile them where possible.

It appears that John Grinter may have spent only his very early boyhood in Jamestown. The Fredericksville Parish Deeds contains a John Thomson, Master Wheelwright, who apprenticed a John Gunter [a common spelling error for Grinter] beginning 3 March 1763 in Albemarle County, Virginia. Harold B. Gill, Jr., Apprentices of Virginia 1623 (Salt Lake City, Utah, no date, p. 105 says:

> Grunter, John Master: Thomson, John Beginning date: 08/18/1759, Sex: male (Source King George County Orders 1751-1765, p. 856) This same John Thomson appears later in John's life as well. In an affidavit made before a justice of the peace in Butler County, Kentucky, his son, Robert Thompson stated that John Grinter was living with my father as an apprentice at the time of his enlistment [cited earlier in the document as the summer of 1877 with the implication that it was in Prince Edward County, Virginia] and did not return home for upward of four years." It is said elsewhere as well that lived in Virginia in Prince Edward County during the Revolutionary War, but that he "settled" in Campbell County, Virginia. It is not clear as to whether he was supposed to have settled there during or after the war. [The specific sources for the above data need to be added.]

Barney Thompson, a researcher of the Thompson Family, comments on the about statements that I have made about John Thompson as follows:

I think that the John Thom(p)son who appears later in John's life was not from Albemarle County, Virginia, but from Prince Edward County, Virginia. The Robert Thompson who "stated that John Grinter was living with my father as an apprentice at the time of his enlistment" was most likely the son of John Thompson, a blacksmith in Prince Edward County. Here is an excerpt regarding this family, the generations of which were

1. Rev. John Thomson
2. Abraham Thompson
3. John Thompson, blacksmith
4. Robert Thompson

The following is from: http://genforum.genealogy.com/thomson/messages/1202.html

4) ABRAHAM THOMSON 9c. 1718 – post 1772; son of John Thomson) married ----------; lived in Prince Edward County, where he was defendant in a suit instituted by the executors of the estate of Samuel Ewing. Although the record is not completely clear, it seems that Samuel Ewing had mortgaged his property to Abraham Thompson for 250 pounds, due to be paid 15 November 1766. Apparently when no payment was made within a reasonable time after the due date, the mortgages took possession, and the suit was begun by the executors to recover the property. Among the loose papers of the Courthouse at Farmville are some that pertain to this suit. One reads, "We of the jury find for the def(endan)t … (Signed) Jehu H. Walton, foreman.: Another says, "I give up all my right and title of the within bond and the land it shall recover or damages, to my son John Thomson as witness my hand 23d day of January 1770…. (Signed) Abm. Thompson". On 14 April 1770, George Ewing, Alexander and Rachel Ewing, William and Jane Ewing, John and Elenor Caldwell, James and Margaret Ewing and Ann Ewing conveyed to John Thompson, smith, and Abraham Thompson the 395 acre tract "whereon Samuel Ewing did live", being on the north fork of Fort Creek. The witnesses were Samuel and Andrew Wallace, Joseph Parks and John Caldwell. (3 Prince Edward Deeds 488). On 22 March 1772 there was recorded the deed whereby Abraham transferred to John Thomson, his son, his equity in the above=mentioned property. (5 Prince Edward Deeds 36). .... In his will, dated 26 March 1793, proved in court 15 June 1795, John Thompson left to his sons Robert and Roger "all the lands in the tract on which I now live"

This is probably the Thompson family that John Grinter apprenticed to. The time frame is more likely than the Albemarle County, Virginia John Thomson. John Grinter was an elder at Caney Fork Presbyterian Church in Logan County, KY, a church whose charter trustees was made up of former Prince Edward County residents.

Perhaps most significantly, John Grinter's name appears in the "Petition for Religious Liberty" that was circulated in the Buffalo Community of Prince Edward County in 1776. Not only is his name on the list, it is sandwiched between a group of Thompson's which includes "John Thompson, blacksmith." Naturally, John Grinter would have enlisted about the time of this petition, or as you website states, "Robert Thompson stated that John Grinter was living with my father as an apprentice at the time of his enlistment."

This signatures of John Grinter and the Thompson's appear together probably because John was physically a member of John Thompson, blacksmith, household or at Thompson's premises when the signatures were collected. Of course, John Grinter may have apprenticed in Albemarle County to a John Thomson; but the Robert Thompson who makes the statement about John Grinter working as an apprentice for his father was probably from Prince Edward County. [This ends the pertinent comments of Barney Thompson. If anyone has further informatoion on this, contact me, your editor, or Barney Thompson bthompson@indy.rr.com

John Grinter joined the Colonial Army as a private in the 12th Virginia Regiment of Foot. His pay records show that he was at the following places: March-March 1778, 12th Virginia Regiment, Valley Forge, Pennsylvania; June 1778, Paramus, New Jersey; July 1778, 4th Virginia Regiment, White Plains, New York; September 1778, 8th Virginia Regiment, Camp Robinson Farm; 19 December-14 January 1779, Camp Middle Brook; 11 June 1779, Smith's Grove; July 1779, 8th Virginia Regiment, Ramepoe; 12 May 1789. John was taken prisoner at Charleston, South Carolina, on 12 May 1780 for fifteen months. In about August 1781 he was exchanged as a prisoner-of-war at Williamsburg, Virginia. It is said that he was badly wounded at the Battle of Brandywine. It is said that he lay on the battlefield all night with a spear in his hip. He was discharged in Virginia on 25 July 1781 as a sergeant, a date conflicting with his release as a prisoner-of-war. It is also said that John was taken prisoner at the Battle of Yorktown, Virginia. [Research in this area continues. Editor]

Thompson in The Thompson Family of Prince Edward County, Virginia, p. 139 says:

On November 18, 1788 John Grinter purchased 244 acres of land in Prince Edward County. The land was located on Fort Creek and was previously owned by James Park, who was a previous owner of Thomas Thompson's land. In the deed John was described as 'of Charlotte'. He probably lived in a section of Charlotte County which was near the Cub Creek Presbyterian Church. This church served many of the same Scots-Irish families whose relatives attended Buffalo Presbyterian Church, of which John [Grinter] was a member in 1776 when "The petition for Religious Liberty" was circulated.

The following information contributed by descendant Martha Brown from an article entitled "History Sketch of Buffalo Creek," describes the Buffalo Community in which John Grinter lived:

> . . . John Thomson and Joan Caldwell led a colony [in the 1780s] led a colony of their fellow-Presbyterians from Pennsylvania to settle in the region that became the Cub Creek and Buffalo communities. . . They were not English, but strictly Scotch [Irish] the same blood that has made Presbyterianism prevalent today in the Valley of Virginia. . . In the main, the records of Buffalo reveal a predominantly Scotch type noted for three things: they were land owners, having respect for property rights and financial obligations; they were possessed of a zeal for orthodoxy in both theology and church polity; their besetting sin was liquor.

Although John Grinter was probably born English it appears that his new life in America was greatly influenced by John Thomson and his fellow Scotch-Irish neighbors. John's descendants later married persons from this same community.

John Grinter moved to Kentucky along with other members of his community, as documented in the article "The History Sketch of Buffalo Creek:

> The following notation from the Buffaloe Presbyterian Church Sessional Record, 1804-1871, was dated October, 1806; it proves that John was a member just before he moved to Kentucky. "John Caldwell, his wife and two daughters, John Grinter, his wife and daughter, and Joseph Bigger were dismissed from Buffaloe congregation to move to Tennessee and Kentucky." [p. 27] John first appeared on a Logan County [Kentucky] tax list in June 1807. [In 1807 John Grinter was granted 219 acres of land on Muddy Creek in Logan County by deed of Willis Hargrove. (Deed Book B-64, Logan County (Kentuc) Court House] In Kentucky, he was an elder of Caney Fork Presbyterian Church ... Nearly all of the congregation's early members were John's neighbors from Prince Edward County. These included Moses Read [his son Francis Grinter's father-in-law] and Thomas Thompson." Revolutionary War Land Warrant No. 4174 shows that he was in Logan County in 1829 and on 13 July 1829 in Butler County, at which time he transferred to land to his son John [Grinter].

According to V. D. White, Genealogical Abstracts of Revolutionary War Pension Files, vol. 2, p. 145, the same Bounty Land Warrant 4174 was surveyed in November 1800 for 300 acres on the Scioto River and it says that John Grinter's [the elder's] will of 1 September 1808 in Logan County names John R. Grinter. According to the same source, he applied for a pension 2 March 1829 and gave his residence as being in Logan County. Revolutionary War Claim [Pension] No. 20904 indicates that he received eight dollars a month from that claim. In Marie Taylor Clark, Ohio Lands South of the Indian Boundary Line, p. 40, the name John Grinter appears. On p. 79 there is a John Gunter, Quantity & Rate 2-10 [possibly a tax of 2 pounds and 10 shillings], Water Course: Ohio River, Acres sold: 1, Purchased: Ebenezer Wheeler, entered for John Gunter.

Both Wanda Weeks and her husband, Clarence, and Nathalie and Tom Hahn visited Russellville on separate trips in attempt to find or corroborate the Grinter data. It appeared that the house of Samuel Grinter -- Moses Grinter's uncle-- after which Moses Grinter patterned his house in Kansas, burned down many years ago. Grinter Researcher Martha Brown has tracked down many valuable Grinter Records. We are grateful for her services.

Where did John Grinter in Logan County? Deed research is difficult because Logan County was not formed until 1792. It has been thought that he and his family lived in the vicinity of the Smith's Cemetery, 13 miles north of Russellville, where John and Elizabeth and others are buried. It is not certain, but it does not appear that John Grinter received Bounty Land in Logan County. In 1807 there is an Indenture on page 64 of Deed Book B, Logan County, dated 3 April 1807 wherein "Willis Hargrove , one part, and John Gunter, other part, $600 pd, 219 acres on Big Muddy Creek. Signed also by Jane Hargrove, wife of Willis. Wit: Geo Berry, Hugh Porter, jr, David Porter." (Logan County, Kentucky, Deed Abstracts 1792-1813, FHL 976.976/R28m, p.62*)*This may give us a clue as to where his property was. [Te be researched further. Need to find the exact location of this property as this may have been where they lived.)

John Grinter may have been involved in local affairs and politics, as he was listed twice as an Appraiser in the settlement of estates in 1812. (Logan County Genealogical Society, Abstracts of Wills & Settlements Logan County, Kentucky, 1795-1838. Russellville, KY, n. d., p. 15)

John Grinter is listed in the 1820 U.S. Census for Russelville, Logan County, p. 038. The John H. Grinter in the 1830 U.S. Census at Russellville, p. 082, farmer, with a wife and a small grandchild, is probably his son, John H. Grinter.

According to The Thompson Family of Prince Edward County, Virginia, p. 139, John Grinter died 27 May 1831 and both he and his wife were buried in the Smith Cemetery [sometimes referred to as the Smith's Old Cemetery] located in the northeast corner of Logan County, near the Butler County line. The same source says that the Grinter homestead was five miles west of Russellville, on the road leading toward Elkton.

There was an Inventory of John Grinter's his will in Book E, p. 36. It was dated 10 June 1831. The Cmr. [Commissioner?] was Samuel Thompson, the Administrator Jon. W. There are many stories about John Grinter in his post Revolutionary War Days. James H. Lawler, a John Grinter Descendant, contributed the following story:

He made upwards of 20 trips back to Virginia, several with intention of finding out who his parents were and where they came from. For example, one time returning to Kentucky, he stayed at an inn on the Cumberland trail up in the Blue Ridge pass area. The next morning very early (unusually early, before first light- to get a head start on the day) he and son who was traveling with him left even without breakfast, and about 4-5 miles up the road (one hour) they were set upon by what looked like two Indians. John and son were crack shots, and quick to respond, much quicker than the "Indians" had anticipated, and both of the attackers were shot dead. Only then did they examine them closely and find they were white men with painted faces and Indian clothing.

They returned to Inn to report the incident, and the innkeepers wife burst out crying and wailing in grief, that they had just killed her husband and son. It turned out they had plotted to rob them the same way that they had robbed numerous others in the past few years.... get up middle of night, get just far enough up trail so as not to call attention to the fact that all victims had all stayed at the inn, and they used the inn to spot those with money. This all came out as it was examined 20-20 hindsight.

John lost a full day looking up the local Sheriff and getting his part in it cleared up, left with thanks of locals as that particular nuisance has been a problem for about 4 years, and neither they nor the local tribes (who were also indignant over the accusations), could not seem to catch the rogue Indians who were doing it.

John always traveled light with some gold but little "pack", he walked and carried a "Pennsylvania" rifle, as he could out walk a horse, -- 50 miles a day-- where the horse could do at best about 40 miles, -required watering, currying, and other attention that cut into travel time, and could not maintain even that 40 miles a day without a grazing day or two; for the required 3 weeks at a time as John could. Thus Logan County, KY to Tidewater Virginia (about 1000 miles-- by the rough roads of that time-- 900 miles per Rand McNally today) was a three week / 20-21 day journey depending on how much lay over John took with friends on the way, and he did it one particularly urgent/rushed trip in only 18 days. [Other stories will be added. To be continued.]

In the Logan County Historical Society there is an item in the John Grinter Papers, p. 3 entitled, "Grinter History." It is cited herein in its entirety:

JOHN GRINTER I. Was born in the year 1755. He landed in America as an infant and an orphan, his mother and father having died at sea. He was placed on the door-step of one of the houses in the Colony at Jamestown, Virginia. In some manner, his name was understood to be "Grunter." At a later date, two men came to the young lad and told him, "Your name is not 'Grunter,' but 'Grinter.' We came over in the ship with you and know what your name is. Young Grinter grew to manhood in the Jamestown Colony, and when the war of the Revolution came on, he joined the Colonial Army. He was wounded in battle (believed to be the Battle of Brandywine), lying all night on the battle-field with a British spear in his hip. He was cared for later, recovered from his wound, and served his time of enlistment in the army.

He later moved to Kentucky, and would often go back to Virginia, making the trip on horseback. One such trip was made with James P. Grinter, his son. Their route lay through what was called "the wilderness," where people were frequently robbed. They stopped one night at a little cabin on a hillside., to stay all night. The old man was rather sullen, would not talk much. About dark a young man dropped in, and then another and another, all three carrying guns. Mr. Grinter and his son became alarmed, thinking that they would be robbed, and agreed to watch and wait. one sleeping at a time. After supper, one old man took his pipe and set out before the door, and began to smoke and talk. He related how he and three other men carried a cannon to the top of a hill to play on the British. Mr. Grinter said, "I was one of them." They immediately embraced each other, weeping like children. Mr. Grinter and his son were no longer afraid of being robbed. The young men who had come in and set up their guns were sons of their host, who had been out hunting.

On another of these trips on horseback, Mr. Grinter was going in company with several others. They stopped and stayed all night at a tavern. Next morning they noticed that their flint-lock guns had been tampered with. The powder had been taken out of the pan. They primed their guns again and pursued their journey. When they had gone some miles from the tavern a big negro stepped out in the road and demanded their money. They shot him and returned to the tavern and told what they had done. The landlady threw up her hands and said, "Oh, that was my husband." He had blackened himself and had gone ahead to rob them.

It was said that on one occasion a magistrate who had been a Tory, attempted to hold court in the vicinity where Mr. Grinter was a resident. Mr. Grinter stopped the proceedings saying, "No Tory can hold [court as long as I am around, or words to that effect]. The actual wording of the end of the incident is missing.]

An account of his life in Logan County, Kentucky, is contained in the article by George Blakey of Logan County, (Number Thirty-Five, pp. 85-86. "Men Whom I Remember")

It is a noticeable fact that in the early settlement of Logan county, the numerous springs of pure cool water and running streams watering the fertile valleys abounding in timber, attracted a large proportion of those early pioneers to make their homes in North Logan; and having taken a brief review of those on Black Lick Creek, my mind turns to that other beautiful stream only a few miles distant, known as Gasper River, near to which there loved, in the long ago, several old men whom I, and all others who knew them, love to remember, prominent among them were Elijah Mansfield, David and Benjamin Sawyer, John Grinter, Samuel Hutchinson, and others.

Mr. Grinter was a much older man, having emigrated from Virginia with his young family soon after the close of the Revolutionary War, in which he took an active part. He was a man of great industry, and while in his old age his sons and grand-sons would have cultivated his farm for him, yet he from choice was ever at his post, believing as he did, that it was no discredit to a man or woman to be seen working. His sons, John, Robert, James, Frank, and Samuel, having been trained up to habits of industry and economy, adhered to this early training, accumulated each a handsome competency and dying each at an old age, leaving their children handsome property in addition to an untarnished reputation and while none of them have been aspirants to office, it has been conceded that they were men of far more than ordinary capacity, men from whom many in official stations might have taken lessons of wisdom. These men were proverbial for their kindness of heart, beloved by all who how to appreciate their true merit.

This old house was on the west side of State Route 79 about 12 miles north of Russellville and about a mile from the Smith Cemetery containing in the graves of John Grinter and Elizabeth Hill. It was the only old house visible from the road in the vicinity of the cemetery. It may have been similar to the type of house that the Grinter's had. (The photo was taken by Tom Hahn in April 2003)

All his sons -- except Francis who is listed elsewhere in Russellville, Logan County -- and his married daughter's spouses are listed as his neighbors. John Grinter One male over 45 [before 1775], one female over 45 [before 1775], one person engaged in agriculture.

In his will in Book E, page 20 in the Logan County Probate Records, written on 22 September 1827, John Grinter left to his son, Samuel, his house and land. He left $1.00 each to his sons John W., Francis, Robert, and James and to his daughters Jane Young, Betsy Young, Peggy Crewdson, and Sally Smith he left each an equal part of the balance of his property. (Abstract of Wills and Settlements, Logan County, Kentucky. Family History Library 976.976/P28a). In Book E, p.36, is an Inventory of his estate dated 10 June 1831, Samuel Thompson Commissioner [?]; Jno. W. Simmons, Administrator; and, Samuel Grinter [Executor?] (Ibid, p.119) There is a Settlement of his Estate in Book E., pp. 109-111, dated 1 August 1832, Commissioner [?] Spencer Curd; Administrator M.B. Morton; and, Executor [?] Samuel Grinter. (Ibid, p.122)

There are two cemeteries in Logan County, Kentucky, that contain two or more generations of the Grinter and collateral families: THE GRINTER CEMETERY WEST OF RUSSELLVILLE, LOGAN COUNTY, KENTUCKY is described as being four miles west of Russellville on the north side of old US 68 about sixty yards in from the road on private land. It is described as being at the old Dry Fork Church. (Paper in the Logan County Historical Society) Many Grinters and collateral families are buried here.
THE SMITH CEMETERY NORTH OF RUSSELLVILLE, LOGAN COUNTY, KENTUCKY - The Smith Cemetery is on State Route 79 near the Logan and Butler county lines. It appears to be a short distance southwest of Pauline. John Grinter and Elizabeth Hill Grinter are buried here and some of their sons and daughters and perhaps other family members. We have not yet found the place where their son, Francis, was buried.

The Smith Cemetery is a typical country one in a pleasant setting with very large oak trees. John Grinter and Elizabeth's Hill's grave monuments can be seen in the middle, background, with bordering road on the south boundary. One wonders if there was a church at one time at or near the intersection of the road to the left. Tom Hahn took the photo in April 2003.

The Grave Markers for John Grinter (right) and Elizabeth (Hill) Grinter (left) in the Smith Cemetery. Elizabeth's marker reads: "In memory of Elizabeth Consort of John Grinter who departed this life Aug, the 17th, 1830. Aged 71 Years." That is, she was born about 1859, but an item on John Grinter and his family in the Logan County

[Kentucky] Historical Society, has her birth year as 1856. John's birth marker says: "In Memory of John Grinter who departed this life May the 27th, 1831, Aged 76 Years." That is, he was born about 1755. The document in the Logan County Historical Society calls this cemetery the "old Smith's Grave Yard." (Photo by Tom Hahn in 2003)

(7) Elizabeth "Bettie" C. Grinter, was born on 23 March 1833, in Logan County, Kentucky, died 24 November 1923, and was buried in the East End Cemetery 5 miles west of Russelville, near Elkton, at Cadiz, Trigg County, Kentucky. Location to be refined. She did not marry. The following is from her obituary on 24 November 1923 in the Cadiz Record:

> Miss Grinter was a native of Logan County, Ky., and was a daughter of Samuel Grinter, in his day a prominent citizen of that county. She was the sixth child of a family of nine, and was born at what is still known as the old Grinter homestead five miles west of Russellville, on the road leading toward Elkton, on the 25th of March, 1832. The big brick Grinter mansion is still one of the landmarks of the county. [This is the house after which Moses Grinter patterned his house in Wyandotte County, Kansas.] The mother died about 1871, and for five years she and the father composed the household as far as the immediate family was concerned. Miss Grinter was a woman of strong character, and aided materially in the affairs of the home and the transactions of the large plantation. After the death of the father in 1876, she came to Cadiz and ever since had been home with her sister, Mrs. Addie Gunn, in this city, and went to the home of Mrs. Gunn several years ago when Mrs. Gunn was rendered almost helpless by a fall. She has always lived a quiet, simple life, taking a great interest in home affairs and delighted always in her flower beds and things that made home bright and cheerful. [About] fifteen or twenty years ago she regularly every year made a visit back to Logan County to visit friends of her earlier life and to Kansas to visit a couple of brothers, who had been residents of that state. Her last visit to Kansas was a number of years ago, and she and Mrs. Gunn made the trip Those who were intimately associated with her remember the many noble traits and her devotion to her household and those she loved.

(8) Robert V. Grinter, born 6 January 1835, Logan County, Kentucky, was christened in 1836, and died on 25 May 1875, of Trigg County, Kentucky. (Logan County Genealogical Society, Logan County, Kentucky. Cemeteries, "Smith Cemetery", p. 88: Robert V. Grinter, b. Jan. 6, 1797, d. May 25, 1876. His tombstone says he was in the 8th KY Cavalry, U.S. Army.

(9) James Grinter, was born in 1836, in Logan County, Kentucky.

(10) Martha "Addie" Grinter, was born on 11 April 1837, in Logan County, Kentucky, died 17 June 1929, Cadiz, Trigg County, Kentucky, and married on 19 May 1856 in Logan County, Wesley Gunn.

(11) Adeline Grinter, was born in1838, in Logan County, Kentucky.

(12) Daniel W. Grinter, was born on 6 April 1840, died 6 January 1903, Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas, was in Company A, 9th Regiment, Confederate Army, was possibly buried in Russelville, Logan County, Kentucky. [To be checked-Editor], and married 6 January 1867 in Logan County, Ora Etta H. Davis.

8. JAMES P. GRINTER was from Logan County, Kentucky, was born on 10 September 1799. He married first on 3 August 1818 in Logan County, Elizabeth Crewdson (Records in the Court House in Logan County) Louis B. Linton in "Grinter Papers," Logan County Historical Society, p. 6. James Grinter and Samuel Grinter, probably his brother, on 20 July 1819 paid an Indenture of $500 on 106 acres of land in Logan County. (Joyce Martin Murray, abstractor, Logan County, Kentucky Deed Abstracts 1813-1819: Abstracts of Deed Books Volumes D. E. F. G, p. 133*).* He was buried in the Grinter Cemetery four miles west of Russellville on the north side of US 68. (Logan County Genealogical Society, Logan County, Kentucky. Cemeteries, "Grinter Cemetery," p. 88: James R. Grinter, b. Sept. 10, 1799, d. Dec. 20, 1869)

ELIZABETH CREWDSON, spouse of James P. Grinter, was a sister of Lucy (Crewdson) Linton. She died on 20 December 1869.

The tombstone reads, "ELIZABETH CREWDSON, wife of James P. Grinter born --97 [portion below the ground an not visible in the photograph] 1819. It appears that she was buried here in 1819 and that James P. Grinter moved elsewhere and was later buried in 1869 in the Grinter Cemetery where his second wife, Sarah, was buried.

James P. Grinter married second on 1 November 1820 in Logan County, SARAH M. J. HILL. Sarah was from Prince Edward County, Virginia. Sarah was born on 30 September 1800, died on 19 June 1881 in Logan County, Kentucky, and was buried in the Grinter Cemetery in Logan County. GRINTER, Sarah, wife of J. P. Grinter, b. Sept. 30, 1800, d. June 19, 1881 (Logan County Genealogical Society, Logan County, Kentucky. Cemeteries, "Grinter Cemetery," p. 88:

James P. Hill and Sarah Hill's children were:

(1) Sallie Grinter, was born about 1821, in Logan County, Kentucky, married first _____ Gordon and second James Smith. Marriages to be checked.]

(2) Elizabeth "Lizzie" S. Grinter, was born in 1823, in Logan County, Kentucky, died 18 April 1886, was buried in the Grinter Cemetery, Logan County, and married 3 April 1886 in Logan County, her cousin, Samuel A. Grinter,

(3) Nancy "Nannie" W. Grinter, was born on 14 January 1826, Logan County, Kentucky, unmarried, died 18 April 1886, Logan County, and was buried in the Grinter Cemetery, Logan Co. (Logan County Genealogical Society, Logan County, Kentucky. Cemeteries, "Grinter Cemetery," p. 88: Nancy W. Grinter, b. Jan. 14, 1826, d. April 18, 1886) She was in the 1880 Logan County census in House No. 327/329.

(4) Thomas A. Grinter was born 7 August 1828, in Logan County, Kentucky, died 17 May 1878, Logan County, buried in the Grinter Cemetery, Logan County. (Logan County Genealogical Society, Logan County, Kentucky Cemeteries, "Smith Cemetery", p. 88: Thomas A. Grinter, b. Aug. 7, 1828, d. May 17, 1878)

(6) John J. Grinter was born in 1837, Logan County, Kentucky, was in the 1880 census for Logan County, House No. 327/329.

(7) Susan Grinter, was born 1in 1838, Logan County, Kentucky and married _____Chastain.

(8) Catherine O. Grinter, born 1840, Logan County, Kentucky, unmarried, in 1880 census in Logan County,. in House No. 327/329.

Louis B. Linton in "Grinter Papers," Logan County Historical Society, p. 6, has this listing of the children of James P. Grinter and Sarah M. Hill. Because it differs somewhat from the above listing, it is included here until family researchers sort it our:

(1) Katherine "Kate" C. Grinter married first, P. L. Morehead, on 1 June 1887. She married second, _____Shelton.

(2) Sarah "Sallie" Grinter married William Wayne Gordon. They appear to have had five children.

(3) John Grinter. No known descendants.

(4) Mary Sue Grinter, married first, John Chastain, married second, Henry Davis

(5) David P. Grinter. His children Myron H. Grinter and Cora Grinter Stevenson.

(6) Nancy Grinter (His note: "Could this be the Nancy E. Grinter who married Thomas Crewdson on 30 November 1841?"

(7) Elizabeth "Lizzie" C. Grinter married Samuel A. Grinter, son of John Hill Grinter and Nancy Crewdson. Their children: 1. Mollie Grinter, single 2. Emma Grinter 3. Cornelia (Nelia) Grinter, married Thomas W. Grinter, son of J. W. Grinter. 4. Nannie Grinter, married Theodore (Theo) Grinter, son of J. W. Grinter. Their children were: Phil Grinter, Ernest Grinter, and Annie Grinter.

9. SARAH "SALLIE" GRINTER was born in 1803 in Prince Edward County, Virginia, died in January 1856 in Logan County Kentucky, married on 16 February 1818 JAMES A. SMITH. [Where were they married?] He was born 1770/1774 in Virginia, from Logan County, Kentucky, and died in February or March 1838, in Northern Logan County. She lived just off the road from Russellville to Morgantown.

They had eight children:

(1) William Western Smith was born on 14 June 1821, Logan County, Kentucky, died 24 September 1881, Logan County, married 20 April 1850 Catherine M. Grinter.

THE GRINTER FAMILY

FRANCIS GRINTER - Son of the immigrant John Grinter from England

Francis "Frank" Grinter was born in March 1787 in Prince Edward County, Virginia. He died in 1864 in Logan County, Kentucky. [Need source documentation.] It would be interesting to know why he was given the name Francis. We have no proof of the place of his death or his place of burial, though the latter may have been in the Smith Cemetery located 13 miles north of Russellville, Logan County or in the Grinter Cemetery, located four miles west of Russellville on the north side of US 68, in Logan County. His name does not appear in the listing of burials for either cemetery. Cemetery. (Logan County Genealogical Society, Logan County, Kentucky. Cemeteries, "Smith Cemetery," p. 247 or "Grinter Cemetery," pp. 7-8. Francis married Susannah "Susan" Read on 16 April 1808 in Russellville, Logan County, (Logan County Court House Records) [Other dates of 11 May 1808/21 March 1813 have also been cited. The latter date is probably incorrect as they had two or three children by that date. The court house source needs to be checked.]

SUSANNAH "SUSAN" READ was the daughter of Moses Read and Rachel Porter. She was born on 16 April 1808 in ether Prince Edward County, Virginia or in Logan County, Kentucky. Her parents married about 1775-1783 in Prince Edward County. Susannah died in May 1841 in Butler County, Kentucky, and was buried in the Caney Fork Cemetery in Butler County. Susannah's mother, Rachel Porter, was born about 1752-1760 in Prince Edward County, Virginia. See the entry for Susannah Read and her ancestors in the Read Family History. See the history of her ancestors in the Porter Section of the Read Family History.

So far we have not found where Francis Grinter lived in Logan County or Butler County. We are attempting to find the location through deed research. Francis Grinter was involved in a suit filed on 3 June 1833 in Logan County over the ownership of land. (Logan County Genealogical Society, Abstracts of Wills & Settlements Logan County, Kentucky, 1795-1838. Russellville, Logan County, no date Settlement on 7 January 1815. (Ibid., p. 27) On 2 April 1819, Francis Grinter was a witness in an Indenture case. (Ibid., p. 144) Francis was called "Frank." It is said in family notes that he may have lived on the Delaware Reservation in present Wyandotte County, Kansas from 1845 until 1856, after which he remained in Kentucky the rest of his life, but we have found no evidence of that. He is in the 1850 US Census in Russellville, Logan County, Kentucky. He was also in the 1870 census there.

The children of Francis Grinter and Susannah Read were:
1. Moses Read Grinter was born on 12 March 1809, near Russellville, Logan County, Kentucky. He married about 1838 on the Kansas Delaware Reserve. Kansas Delaware Anna "Annie" Marshall (whom see in Biographies Anna Marshall). He died on 12 June 1878 and was buried in the Grinter Chapel in Muncie (present Kansas City), Wyandotte County, Kansas. (See Moses Read Grinter and his children above.)
2. Bettie Grinter, born about 1811 (based on 1850 Logan County, Kentucky census), married ca. 5 March 1833 _____ Hardway.
3. Rachel Porter Grinter, born about 1813 in Logan, Kentucky (based on 1850 Logan County Census), married on 5 March 1833 in Logan County, Robert A. Moore.] She died in Butler County, Kentucky. Robert A. Moore was born about 1810-1811, Butler County, Kentucky. He was the son of James L. and Obedience Elam. Their children:
   (1) James Francis Moore, born on 24 August 1836, Logan County, Kentucky, died 22 January 1916, Logan County, married first on 8 February 1870, Mary Forgy and second Margaret Ann Porter. Their son, James Francis Moore, was born on 8 February 1870 in Butler County, Kentucky. He married on 8 February 1870, Margaret _____ .
   (2) Granville M. Moore, born in 1839, Butler County, Kentucky, married Martha Ann Watkins.
   (3) Mary Ellen Moore, born in 1842, Butler County, Kentucky.
   (4) Catherine Jane Moore, born in 1844, Butler County, Kentucky.
   (5) Susan Porter Moore, born on 11 March 1845, Butler County, Kentucky, died on 4 April 1926, Butler County, Kentucky, married James David Watkins.

(6) Lu Anna Moore was born in on 24 August 1853 in Butler County, Kentucky and died on 24 March 1944 in Logan County, Kentucky

4. Mary Belle "Pollie/"Polly" Grinter was born about 1817 (based on the age 33 in the 1850 Logan County, Kentucky Census) in Logan County, Kentucky and married in Logan County, on 19 September 1836 Wiley or William Watkins. He was born in 1812 in Logan County. They lived on and had eight children born on their farm near Auburn, Logan County.

(1) Mary B. Watkins was born in 1817 and married in December 1856 in Logan County, Kentucky, Dewitt Turner.

(2) David Chapman Watkins was born in 1839. He married on 18 November 1875 in Logan County, Kentucky, Sarah Walker.

(3) Martha Watkins was born in 1837 and married on 6 November 1895 in Logan County, Kentucky, M. P. N. Patterson.

(4) John W. Watkins was born in 1845 and married on 3 October 1896, in Logan County, Kentucky, Emma Brewer.

5. John Read Grinter was born on 13 August 1823 in Logan County, Kentucky. He died there on 5 February 1897 and was buried at the Smith Cemetery in Logan County. He married on 19 October 1849 at Russellville, Logan County, Sarah Young of Tennessee, daughter of Henry and Debra Young. (Logan County Historical Society Grinter Papers, p. 5) John Read may have gone to the Delaware Reservation in present Wyandotte County, Kansas, but returned to Kentucky if he did. That he went to Kansas is supported by the data in the 1860 US Kansas Territorial Census for Wyandotte County, Wyandotte, Township, which places him there (Dwelling 356, Family rated two dwellings from his brother, William Grinter (Dwelling 357, House 407). He is listed as a farmer at age 35, with real estate valued at $500, personal property valued at $3,000, and born [erroneously] in Ohio--as are Moses and John.

6. Jane Grinter was born in 1825 (based on her age at 25 in the 1850 Logan County Census) in Logan County, Kentucky, married _____ Sharon.

7. James C. Grinter was born on 23 January 1828 [James H. Lawler Family Records say 23 January 1829] at Russellville, Logan County, Kentucky and he died 26 July 1893 at Perry, Jefferson County, Kansas. He married Kansas Delaware Rosanna Marshall (whom see in Biographies. An interior view of their home in Perry, Kansas, is also in that entry.) on 15 February 1850 on the Kansas Delaware Reserve (present Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. She was the sister of Anna "Annie" Marshall, the wife of Moses Read Grinter. He has not yet been found in the 1860 US Kansas Territorial Census as have his brothers, Moses Read Grinter, John Grinter, and William Grinter. James and Rosanna were buried in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery in Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas.

James C. Grinter (History of Kansas)

The following is from Kansas and Kansans, pp.2517-2518:

> James C. Grinter, who was one of the first white settlers in Kansas, came to this territory in 1849. For many years he was a resident of Wyandotte {County] and his later years were spent in Jefferson County, near Perry. . . James C. Grinter was born in Logan County, Kentucky, January 3, 1828. His father, Francis Grinter, was born in Virginia, son of a soldier of the Revolutionary War and of Scotch-Irish ancestry [not necessarily]. Francis Grinter was an early settler in Logan County, Kentucky, and a farmer and a slave owner there. In 1854 he also came out to Kansas but only remained a few years, and going back to Kentucky, died in that state in 1864. [We have seen no other proof of his having been in Kansas.] His wife was Susan Reed, a native of Virginia and whose father was a soldier in the Revolution. Francis Grinter and wife had four sons, named John, William H., Moses, and James, and their daughters included Jane, Kate, and Polly. Moses Grinter came West to locate a ferry across the Kansas River on the military road between Fort Leavenworth and Fort Scott, arriving in January 1831. Fr many years he was the only white man in Wyandotte County. He married a woman of the Delaware tribe of Indians.

James C. Grinter attended one of the old log cabin schools of Kentucky, and as a youth became intimately acquainted with Henry Clay and other noted Kentuckians of that day. At the age of seventeen he became salesman for a firm, one of the pioneer traveling men of that day, and went by horseback, representing his firm over a large part of the South, including Tennessee, Missouri and Mississippi. On October 8, 1849, he left Kentucky on horseback, crossing the Mississippi at St. Louis, the Missouri at what later became Kansas City, and took charge of the ferry across the Kansas River about two miles west of the village of Muncie, in Wyandotte County. He had charge of the ferry about five years.

While there he met and married Rosanna Marshall, who was born at Springfield, Missouri. Her father, William Marshall, was a prominent and wealthy trader among the Delaware Indians. He was of English ascent and he married a member of the Delaware. [There is no proof that William Marshal, or his father, Henry Marshall, were English, but then it is likely that he was.] Rosanna Marshal was reared in Kansas and was educated in the historic Shawnee Methodist Mision. After his marriage James Grinter engaged in farming in Wyandotte County taking up a homestead and becoming owner of about five hundred acres nine miles west of Kansas City. He was a pioneer in raising fancy live stock. He was a participant and and witness of many of the daring scenes in early Kansas history. In 1864 he was a member of the Kansas Militia that too part in the battle near Kansas City and drove off General Price.

In November, 1887, he sold his Wyandotte County far, and the following April moved to Perry in Jefferson County, where he engaged in the mercantile business as a member of the firm J. C./ Grinter and Company. He continued as a merchant until failing health caused him to retire. At Perry he erected what was then the finest residence in the village, at a cost of three thousand dollars, then a great sum to put into a house. He also acquired five hundred acres of farm land and gave each of his children a start in life. During the season of 1888 his hare of the corn grown on his ground aggregated nine thousand bushels.

James C. Grinter always remained a democrat in politics and attended many conventions of his party. For twenty years he was a member of his local school board, was an active Methodist, and one of the builders of the church at Perry and for ten years prominent in church circles as class leader, steward, trustee and Sunday school superintendent. While living in Wyandotte County he was the chief contributor of the Grinter's Chapel, named in his honor, and in the same community is located the Grinter Cemetery. For many years a schoolhouse and a post office bore his name. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

A brief account should now be given of the children and descendants of this Kansas pioneer. His children were all born in Kansas and were educated in the home community of Wyandotte County. The daughter Julie married Matthew Cook, by who she had several children, and she died as Mrs. Conlin and is buried at Grinter's Chapel in Wyandotte County.

Etta, who was educated in the public schools and Kansas University, has spent her life in Wyandotte and Jefferson counties. She married Frank P. Simmons, from Kentucky, who died at Perry, Kansas. Mrs. Simmons has no children.

Marie Grinter married James F. Timmons, and died at Edwardsville, Kansas, he children being Mrs. Rose Hays, James, M., Mrs. Dorothy Pulling, Sanford, Ida and Catherine.

Sarah F. Grinter, who has always lined in Wyandotte and Jefferson counties, married James David, a farmer, and their children are Mrs. Etta Fowler, Mrs. Clara Maude, Emery and James.

Mollie B. Grinter married James _____, now deceased, and lives at Perry.

James M. Grinter, a farmer in Jefferson County, was born in the old Muncie locality, married Lou Bowling and has two children, William and Josephine.

Elizabeth S. Grinter became the wife of Charles E. Betts. She was educated in local schools and Palmer's Academy in Kansas City. Her husband came from Ohio to Kansas in childhood and for seventeen years was clerk of the District Court of Wyandotte County. He died in February, 1909. Mrs. Betts for two years was employed in the Bureau of Printing and Engraving at Washington. Her daughter, Sybil D., for eight years was an artist employed at the Bureau of Etymology in the Department of Agriculture. Sibyl married James McDonald, of Cape May, New Jersey, but her first husband was Eugene Segman, and by that union her children are: Eugenia Betts, Gloria Margaret, Walter Dandy and Patricia.

Flora G. Grinter married James M. Martin. of Kansas City, Kansas, and now a resident of Excelsior Springs, Missouri, her children being Mrs. Clara Prather, Miss Gertrude and James M.

Lorenzo D. Grinter, the second of the two sons of James C. Grinter, the pioneer, died at Perry, Kansas.

Suzanne Grinter, who graduated from Christian College at Lexington, Missouri and for many years has been a capable voice teacher, married John Schulze, and she is now head of the department of voice in Asbury College at Wiltmore, Kentucky.

The children of the daughter Julia, who married Matthew Cook, are Mrs. Sarah Jamison, Mrs. Etta Watkins, Thomas Cook and James M. Cook, the latter secretary to the chief-of-police of Kansas City, Kansas.

8. Mary Margaret Grinter was born in 1831 in Logan County, Kentucky. She married ca. 1840 in Logan County, Kentucky, _____ Lemon/Lemons.
9. William "Will" Grinter was born about 1825. He married Susan Morrow. They had no children. (Logan County Historical Society, Grinter Papers, p. 5). Lawler Family Records say that he was born 1833 in Logan County, Kentucky, was of the Delaware Indian Reservation, was married about 1840 in Logan County, Kentucky, died in Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas, and was buried there in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery.] He was enumerated in the 1860 US Kansas Territorial Census for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County on 26 July 1860 at Dwelling 357, Family 407, next to his brother, John Grinter, at Dwelling 356, family 406, and two dwelling from his brother, Moses Read Grinter, at Dwelling 355, family 405. William was listed as a farmer, age 33 [1827], with real estate valued at $200 and personal property valued at $2,000. He was erroneously listed as having been born in Ohio.

MOSES READ GRINTER

Moses Read Grinter (Hahn Collection)

[I have just about finished entering the information that we have on Moses Read Grinter. It needs more work, however, to make it an easily read narrative. I will undertake that task as time permits. Editor]

According to his gravestone, Moses Read Grinter was born on 12 March 1809, probably near Russelville, Logan County, Kentucky. Moses was the son of Frances Grinter, who was born in March 1787 in Prince Edward County, Virginia, died in 1864 in Logan County, Kentucky, and was buried in Smith's Cemetery near Russelville. Moses died at age 71 on 12 June 1878 in Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. He was buried there in June 1878 in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery, on land which he and his wife, Kansas Delaware Anna "Annie" Marshall Grinter, donated to the Methodist Church South in 1877. His father, Frances Grinter, married Susannah "Susan" Read on 16

April 1808 in Russellville. Susannah Read was born 1786 in Prince Edward County, Virginia, the daughter of Moses Read, who was born 1746/1750 in Scotland and who died in 1815 in Butler County, Kentucky. Her mother, Rachel Porter, was born 1752/1760 and died after 1815 in Butler County, Kentucky. Francis Grinter's father, John Grinter, was born in June 1755, probably at or near Whitchurch Canonicorum, Dorset, England. His parents are said to have died at sea between Dorset, England and Jamestown, Virginia. John was a Revolutionary War veteran of four years. He was in many campaigns and was a prisoner in a British warship. John left the army as a sergeant. He died 27 May 1831 in Logan Co., KY and was buried there in Smith's Cemetery. John married Elizabeth Hill on 24 Feb. 1786 in Prince Edward County, Virginia Elizabeth was born in 1756 in Virginia, the daughter of John Hill, possibly of Prince Edwards County, Virginia. Her mother is not known, but the name Venable is given in one undocumented Family Group Record as the family name of Elizabeth's mother. Elizabeth Hill died on 17 August 1830 and was also buried in Smith's Cemetery. Details of Moses' father Francis Grinter and his grandfather John Grinter and their families are included later in this entry. An annotated listing of his children and a partial descendancy list of some of them is at the end of the narrative.

We know little of Moses Grinter's childhood and youth in Kentucky where he grew up with his brothers and sisters Bettie (married Hardway), Rachel Porter (married Robert A. Moore, Mary Belle "Polly" (married Wiley Watkins), John Read, Jane (married Sharon), James C. (married Rosanna Marshall), Margaret married Lemons, and William. Data on these siblings, his parents, Francis Grinter and Susannah Read, and his grandparents, John Grinter and Elizabeth Hill, presented elsewhere in the Grinter Family pages.

The man standing at the rear to the right is known to be Moses Read Grinter from other images, the man next to him has been identified as his brother, John Grinter, the man seated has been described as his brother, James Grinter, and the woman has been identified as Rosanna nee Marshall Grinter, the wife of James Grinter. Because Moses Grinter died in 1878, the photograph would have been taken sometime before then. His brother William was also in Wyandotte County. Why isn't he in the image and why was Rosanna in the image and not the other Grinter wives? From the collection of Thomas Swiftwater Hahn swiftwater@lenapedelawarehistory.net and also Martin Weeks martinweeks@cox.net . An original of this photograph, viewed by Linda Grinter Rodgers (deceased 2003) , had an identification of these four persons on the back, as indicated above. There has been a suggestion, also, that the woman is a sister of Moses Read Grinter.

Much is being said about Moses Grinter because he played such a central part in the lives of the Delaware as a trader and ferry operator. His place of business and residence were the center of activity of the Delaware residence in Kansas. Being married to a Delaware woman, he was also a part of their social and family activities. There are many secondary sources referring to Moses Grinter. To date, no primary source has been found in which there is documentary evidence of where he was born, where he lived as a youth in Kentucky, why and when he left there, when he arrived at Cantonment Leavenworth, in present Kansas, what his status was there, when he began operating a ferry, where he lived prior to his marriage with Anna Marshall, and where they lived in the early years of their marriage. However, we can piece together a reasonable story of his life even though we do not have the details. In this biography, we will try to distinguish that data which is based on documentary evidence, that which is best on secondary sources, and that which is based on hearsay, and let the reader come to his/her own conclusions. As a start, one should perhaps see what Barry has to say in The Beginning of the West, perhaps the most complete work on the West. Unfortunately, as noted in the Bibliography Section, Barry lists all of her sources, but places all of them at the end of an entry, so that one cannot distinguish one piece of data with one end note. Perhaps some scholar in the future will provide that service. Here is what Barry has to say about Moses Grinter:

In January [1831], it is said that Moses R. Grinter (a Kentuckian, aged 21) began operating a Kansas river ferry, from a site on the north bank within the Delaware reserve. This was three to four miles above, and across the river from, the Chouteau's trading post and the newly-founded Shawnee Methodist Mission, in what is now Wyandotte township, Wyandotte county, on the N. W. 1/4 of Sec. 23, T. 11, R. 24 E.... For lack of tangible evidence, the date and circumstances of the founding of Grinter's ferry cannot be stated with certainty. According to one account young Grinter arrived in present Kansas in 1828, as a soldier at Cantonment Leavenworth; another says he came from Bardstown, Kentucky in 1831. Both versions say he was "appointed" by the government in January, 1831, to run a ferry. This suggests an arrangement between Canton Leavenworth officials and the Delawares for travel through the Indians' lands, and transportation across the Kansas River. The first records located for this ferry consist of two items in James Kennedy's May, 1833, list of expenditures in conducting Kickapoo immigrants to their reserve above Fort Leavenworth: "Moses R. Grinter, for ferriage of Indians, four wagons and baggage, across the Kansas River [the amount of $38.75]" and "Moses Grinter for ferriage of 5 wagons and teams across the Kansas river [the amount of] $9.25." In a July 22, 1833, letter, the Rev. Isaac McCoy, wrote of a cholera threat which "so alarmed the Delawares, that they removed their ferry boat to prevent travelers from crossing to them." In a July 29, 1833, letter, The Rev. W. D Smith mentioned that there was, on the Kansas River, about 12 miles from the Missouri and two miles from a Shawnee village, "a tolerably good ferry, at which the mail crosses every week going and returning between the Shawnee agency and the Cantonment Leavenworth. Subsequent development of the military road from Fort Leavenworth to Fort Scott in the early 1840s brought in creased use of Grinter's ferry (sometimes referred to as Delaware crossing, later as the military crossing, still later, as Secondine crossing). Also a good many immigrants to Oregon and California crossed the Kansas by way of this ferry in the 1840s and early 1850s. Accounts say that James C. Grinter (a younger brother of Moses) assisted as ferryman from late 1849 to about 1855. Grinter as aged 61, a native of Kentucky.

GRINTER HOUSE by Charles Goslin

There is a good discussion of this and other ferries in the area by Rodney Staab in "Grinter Place State Historic Site: The Analytical/ Academic Version of the Interpretive Manual, 1977." His discussion goes beyond the scope of this biography for those interested in the subject. Staab was the Curator at the Grinter Place for several years. Staab takes a view differing from Barry's on Moses Grinter's role as a ferryman. Staab points out that there is a plaque erected by the Daughters of the American Revolution placed at the entrance of the Grinter Place in Kansas City, Kansas, stating that Moses Grinter had been "... sent here by the government in 1831 to establish the first ferry on the Kansas River." However, Staab states there is no proof that a Kansas River Ferry began operating in that year. He considers that the ferry came later than 1831, under federal legislation enacted 1836 for the establishment of a military road through that area. One of the provisions of the legislation provided that U. S. troops could be used to provide part of the labor required for such roads. Another provision was that the federal government would first attempt to obtain the permission of Indians over whose land the road would pass. (U. S. Statutes at Large, vol. 5, p. 50 and Kansas Historical Quarterly, vol. 11, p. 117, cited in Barry, The Beginning of the West, p. 311.) A document of 21 October 1836 contains the signatures of Delaware, Shawnee, Wea, and Piankashaw leaders who authorized the federal government to build a "Western Road" and to build military forts thereon. (Fort Leavenworth Indian Agency Correspondence, National Archives Microcopy 234, Roll 300, frames 964 and 966-967, cited in Staab, "Grinter Place Historic Site," p. 3-1.) The road, later known as "the Fort Leavenworth - Fort Gibson Military Road," was surveyed in the Fall of 1837. (Barry, p. 332) Staab says that, "The assumption that Grinter had been sent by the government in 1831 to establish a ferry here thus collapses... [and that] no historian has even found any form of government authorization for Moses Grinter to establish any kind of ferry, anywhere." (Staab, "Grinter Place." p. 3-2.) Conversely, of course, a ferry could have been established and operated by Grinter without government authorization. That seems likely, however, and it seems more likely that Moses Grinter operated a Kansas River Ferry, but that the documentary evidence simply has not been discovered. A ferry across the Kansas River has been variously known as "The Delaware Crossing," "The Military Crossing," "Grinter's Ferry," and in the 1860s as the "Secondine Ferry." It was used by the Delaware , it carried the military road that ran from Fort Leavenworth to Fort Scott (and beyond), and it was used by thousands of emigrants on their way to Oregon and California. James Grinter, brother of Moses, was also involved in the running of the ferry from about 1849 to 1855. Concerning the ferrying of Kickapoo, Staab speculates that Grinter could have been a conductor or a transportation agent instead of a ferryman at the time of their crossing the Kansas River in 1833. Staab, ibid.) So far I have been unable to find the date at which Moses Grinter ceased operating his ferry.

Moses Grinter's gravestone says that he was born on 12 December 1809. Anna, his wife, was living at the time of his death in 1878, so it is reasonable that she would have known his birth data. Henry Clay Kirby in His "Grinter-Kirby Family History Family" says that Moses was born in 1807, that he may have been a resident of Bardstown, Nelson County, Kentucky, and that he died at the age of 71. According to family history, that is individual ancestry books, his parents lived in Russellville, Logan County, Kentucky, but the first evidence we can find for their presence there at the present time is in the 1850 U. S. Census.

The Delaware Tribe began arriving in the Kansas Delaware Reserve from Southwest Missouri about 1830. Moses Grinter was an important factor in the everyday life of the Delaware in Kansas until his death in 1878. In possibly January 1836, Moses married Anna (Annie) Marshall, the daughter of William H. Marshall and Elizabeth (Betsy) Wilaquenaho), a Delaware. (See Anna Marshall and Betsy Wilaquenaho in Biographies. Staab*, Grinter Place*, p. 3-2) states that the date of 1831 for their marriage is incorrect. Indeed, Anna would have been only eleven to twelve years old at the time if that were so. Staab also points out that there is a hand-written statement signed by Moses Grinter that the marriage took place in 1839. In the "Grinter Papers," p. 5, at the Logan County Historical Society, it states that the marriage was in 1838. Anna was born 8 Jan. 1820 in Miami Co., Ohio and died 28 June 1905 in Kansas City, Delaware Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas, and is buried there next to her spouse, Moses Grinter. William was an Indian trader who migrated with the tribe from Ohio to Southwest Missouri. It is not known where he was born, but he died and was probably buried in Greene County, Missouri, near Springfield. He may have been in Kansas for a short time. His father, Henry Marshall, was a Revolutionary War Veteran, was probably born in Pennsylvania about 1752 and died and was buried in Miami, County, Ohio 14 July 1837. His mother, Mary Marshall -- family name not known, who was probably born in 1764 born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, died 10 January 1844 in Miami County, Ohio, and was buried in the Rose Hill Cemetery at Troy, Miami County, Ohio. It is possible that Henry Marshall is buried there as well.

Moses Grinter is credited as being the first white settler of Wyandotte County. One of the things for which he was well known was the operation of a trading post. There had been a post, a branch of the American Fur Company, that had been built under the supervision of the Choteau brothers, but probably operated by Cyprien Chouteau on the south bank of the Kansas River, equidistant between the Shawnee and the Delaware. It was in operation from from 1828 to 1853. Moses Grinter purchased that post in 1855 and sold merchandise there until 1 December 1860. A Delaware, Joseph Besaillon, was Grinter's business partner until 7 January 1858. His name also appears as Bizayon, Bezion, Besyion, Bissiah, etc. As of 21 May 1856, Grinter still owed the American Fur Company $844.63. He paid off $500.00 of the debt on 21 June 1856, but he still owed them $344.63 at the end of the year. (Staab, Grinter Place, pp. 4-13, 4-15; the document dissolving the partnership is in the John Pratt Papers, microfilm edition, Roll 5, frame 938.) In a letter from Delaware Chief Ketchum and also signed by Delaware leaders James Ketchum, Howard Ketchum, Charles Journeycake, Tashoway, Little Beaver, and Isaac Journeycake on 2 March 1856 to Richard Cummins that addressed several subjects. Of interest here are the remarks concerning traders. Ketchum said, "... about a year ago the department refused to grant licenses to traders. This pleased us. It was just what we all wanted to hear, for we are satisfied, after long experience, that traders are a disadvantage to our people. Though our hopes in this matter so far have been disappointed, the trade still goes on. So soon as the old trader, Mr. Findlay, found that he could not trade any longer, right on the end of the payment, just before the payment commenced, Mr. F. sells out his goods to Moses R. Grinter, a white man who has moved amongst us, and a Delaware man as his partner. This did not meet our views at all, but the agent said they had a right top trade. But it is all a humbug and fraud...We hope that you will put a stop to all trading in our country, for we do not want any trader in our country at all. .." (Staab, Grinter Place, pp. 4-15 and 4-16. [But need primary source data...] In spite of Captain Ketchum's protest in March 1956, there does not seem to have been a boycott of Moses Grinter's store. When all the licensed traders were driven out of the Delaware Country by the order of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs W. W. Moneypenny, Moses Grinter purchased a stock of goods and commenced trading at the request of the Delaware chiefs and head men. Moses ran his trading post from 20 April 1855 until at least 24 October 1860. He was known as a "gentle and honorable man...[who] lent large sums of money to his Delaware friends. His generosity is evident from the fact that he was owed $14,134.13 at the closing of his books, a large sum of money at the time. Moses Grinter also ran the first post office in Kansas. [Need source for the above.] There is also the question of the location of the trading post.] After 1861 and before the relocation to Indian Territory in 1867-1868, traders without a license or permission may have traded with the Delaware. It is not clear as to what Grinter's position was in this period. Was he an active trader then or not? In any event, it appears likely from the five-year period from 1855 to 1860, Grinter's customers paid about half of their bills, leaving Grinter with the job of trying to get the government to pay the other half of the bills. (Staab, Grinter Place, p. 4-17) Moses Grinter voted pro-slavery in an 1855 territorial election. (34 Cong., 1 sess., H. R. Report No. 200, "Report of the Special Committee Appointed to Investigate the Troubles in Kansas.... (Washington: Cornelius Wendell, 1856), p. 413. Grinter (cited as Mr. Gunter--a common error) was preceded by J. Finly (James Findlay, first postmaster of Wyandotte County) and J. Mundy (Isaac Mundy), blacksmith to the Delaware, buried at White Church Cemetery, both of whom also voted pro-slavery.) In spite of the sentiment, Moses Grinter's son, William H. H. Grinter, enlisted and served honorably in a Kansas (free state) volunteer cavalry regiment. (Goodspeed, p. 300.)

It has been suggested that Moses (and later Anna) may have lived in some place other than near the Kansas River where Moses operated the ferry prior to 1857, when they built their permanent home there. For example, one might come to the conclusion that they lived in the vicinity of White Church, several miles to the northwest, because five of their children were buried there. It is likely that the Grinters were members of that church and that is probably the reason the burials of some of their children there. In any event a stained-glass window contains the names of Moses and Anna Grinter. (Staab, Grinter Place, p. 6-1) It seems unlikely, however, that they would have lived far from the ferry because of his need to be there at all times. The History of Wyandotte County...., p. 54, says, "He located near where the station of Secondine afterward stood, in 1831, and lived there up to the time of his death, June 12,1878." In 1929, their daughter, Mrs. Henry C. Kirby, that is Martha Vashtie nee Grinter Kirby, said that for "a quarter of a century" the Grinters lived in a pioneer house near the trading post, just above the ferry, until the completion of their new house. (Kansas City Kansan, 27 December 1929). The old house burned down at some point. The trading post was probably located just across the road of the house built in 1857. Parts of it remained until mid-20th century. By at least 1895, the Henry C. Kirby's were living in the Grinter House. The 1895 Kansas Census shows Henry, age 37, born in Mississippi, his occupation a minister; his wife Martha [Vashtie] age 3, born in Kansas; and their children Hendrick age 4, Charles age 2, born in Missouri; William [Henry Harrison], age four months, born in Kansas; and, Mrs. Annie Grinter, age 75, born in Ohio, were living together. [Need census data.] Rodney Staab says that the Henry C. Kirby's were living in Missouri as recently as 1893. (Staab, Grinter Place, p. 6-10. The Goodspeed History of Wyandotte County, states that Martha V[ashtie] was "a resident of Nebraska, City, Nebraska. [Need citation.] The 1895 Kansas Agricultural Census for Wyandotte County, shows the Grinter Farm in his name. The Grinter House, located on present 78th Ave near the intersection with K-32, is now a property of the State of Kansas known at "The Grinter Place." It is one of the oldest farm houses in Kansas, is open to the public without charge, and is well worth a visit.

The following is from Wyandotte County and Kansas City, Kansas, Historical and Biographical (Chicago: Goodspeed Publishing Co.), pp. 168-169:

> The first permanent settler in the territory now comprising Wyandotte County was Moses Grinter, who, in 1831, located on the north side of the Kansas River, in Section 21, Town 11 south, Range 23 [p. 169] east, and lived there until his death, June 14, 1878. He was sent to this point by the Govt--to establish and maintain a ferry across the river on the old Fort Scott and Leavenworth military road. He was for many years a lonely white resident among the Indians.

In 1857, Moses and Anna began the building of their brick house house on the Kansas River. The house is said to have been patterned after a house in Kentucky. The brick were made of clay dug on the property and baked in a kiln there. The basic frame work was of native walnut and the finish work was taken from Fort Leavenworth by ox team. The house was completed in two years. It was the showpiece of the area and remains one of the oldest houses in Kansas, now a property known as The Grinter Place, owned, maintained, operated by the State of Kansas. The house is located on 78th Street, a mile west of the old site of Muncie which was on the Wyandot-Delaware Reservations line. Lots 7 and 8 of the southwest quarter of Section 21, Township 11, Range 24, containing 78.40 acres, were patented to Annie on 19 November 1868 by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. The transaction was recorded in Washington, D. C. on 2 March 1869. It is recorded in Vol. 72, pp. 353-354. of the Register of Deeds Office, Wyandotte County Court House. (Staab, Grinter Place, p. 6-3).On 8 November 1861, Betsy Marshall, Anna's mother, was allotted lots 5 and 6 of Section 21, Township 11, Range 24. It is likely that Anne inherited that property on the death of her mother. (John G. Pratt Papers, microfilm edition, Roll 9, frame 270). It is not clear what the status of Moses Grinter's land ownership was prior to the government allotment to Annie.

In the 1855 Kansas Territorial Census, 16th Election District, Wyandotte County, Moses is listed at age 40 as a laborer born in Kentucky. In the 1860 Kansas Territorial Census, Wyandotte, Moses is listed as a Merchant with $1,000 in real estate and worth $1,500 at age 51, born Ohio [an error]. He was enumerated on 26 July 1860 at Dwelling 355, Family 405. In the 1865 Kansas, Wyandotte Township, Family No. 5, he is listed as a farmer with spouse Anna, age 50 born Indiana and William 28, born Kansas. Moses land is listed at a value of $3,500 and his personal worth $1,500. In the 1875 Census for Kansas, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte, County, Moses Grinter is listed as 66, born Kentucky, with spouse Anna 55 born Ohio, Mattie 17 [actually 27], Rose Marshall 25, Polly 17, and Cunningham 11. Rose and Polly were Anna's son, John Marshall's, daughters). In the 1875 census, the Grinters had 280 acres fenced, 210 acres not fenced, 1,000 rods of rail fencing, 680 rods of board fencing, wages paid $300, acreage in corn 75, winter wheat 112, blue-grass 2430, evaluation of farm $3,500. The farm is actually listed in the name of William Henry Harrison Grinter, Moses' and Anna's son.

Moses Grinter was active in many of the affairs of Wyandotte County. He apparently interceded on the behalf of other persons. For example, during the probate of William Gillis Estate in 1870, he arranged for or provided an interpreter during the trial.

> We, Judge Hicks, myself [apparently attorney Charles Rucker and Grinter sent for Jack McLean [an interpreter] - sent Moses Grinter - Moses Grinter was there in our interest to get witnesses for us. He lives on Kaw River 5 or 6 miles from Kansas City, I think Judge Hicks proposed Grinter. (William Gillis Probate Papers)

Moses and Anna were active in the Methodist Episcopal Church. At one time church services were held in the their home to which Moses called nearby people to church by using a conch horn. In 1877 the Grinters gave 1.56 acres of land for a Methodist church and cemetery on the road north of their house on present 78th Street in Section 10, Township 11, Range 24. The church is called the Grinter Chapel and is an active Methodist church today, with many of the Grinters and their family buried in the cemetery there.

GRINTER BORN MAR. 12, 1809 DIED June 12, 1878. The inscription for his wife. Annie, is on the other side of the monument. This cemetery is on land donated by Moses and Annie in the 1860s. Moses Read Grinter and Anna (Marshall) Grinter had ten children:

1. Francis Catherine or Katherine Grinter was born on 26 December 1839, at White Church on the Delaware Reserve (present Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas). She was on the List of the 26 Delaware Who Elected to Remain in Kansas under the 1862 Allotment

Number 78. Francis Catherine married on 7 February 1856 John Carter Grinter, the son of Samuel Grinter. Samuel Grinter was the son of John Grinter. John C. Grinter was born (according to his grave marker) on 28 January 1828. He was the first cousin of Moses Read Grinter and the first cousin once removed of Francis Catherine Grinter. John C. Grinter died on 17 September 1898. Francis Catherine died on 9 April 1908 in Wyandotte County. She was buried in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery at Kansas City, in Wyandotte County. The following item was from Barney Thomson:

> Mrs. Frances Catherine GRINTER, 69 years old, the widow of John C. GRINTER, died last night on the old GRINTER farm, two miles north of Edwardsville, in Wyandotte county, Kansas. It had always been her home. Mrs. GRINTER and her husband, John C. GRINTER, who died several years ago, were cousins. Five children survive them.
>
> Mrs. GRINTER was one of the first white children born in Wyandotte county. Her father was Moses GRINTER, the first white settler in Wyandotte county, who went to live among the Indians on the old Delaware reservation in 1838. His wife, Anna Marshall GRINTER, whom he married in 1836, was member of the Delaware tribe.--Thursday's Kansas City Star.
>
> Funeral services for Mrs. GRINTER were held at the GRINTER chapel one mile northeast of Muncie, Kan., and were largely attended. Mrs. J.C. GRINTER, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. GRINTER, J. W. COLLEY and Miss Linnie COLLEY attended the funeral from Perry.

The children of John Carter Grinter and Francis Catherine Grinter, using his ancestry, that is through his father, Samuel Grinter, and his grandfather, John Grinter, are:

i. Mary Elizabeth Grinter (John Carter[3] Grinter, Samuel[2], John[1]) was born 9 February 1857 in Logan County, Kentucky. She married on 20 May 1875 Robert Taylor Mooney. He was born at Rutherford, North Carolina on 24 October 1846. They had six children:

Mattie Francis died in early infancy), Ora Etta, Anna Emily, Bertha Elizabeth, John Clay, and Ella Florence. History of Wyandotte County, pp. 734-735) [5]

(1) Bertha Elizabeth Grinter (Mary Elizabeth[4] Grinter, John Carter[3], Samuel[2], John[1])[See the entry below for an extensive descendancy of Bertha Elizabeth Grinter.

ii. John W. Grinter
iii. Mannie H. Grinter
iv. Edward E. Grinter
v. John W. Grinter

2. William Henry Harrison Grinter was born on 1 November 1841 on the Delaware Reserve (present Kansas. During the Civil War he served in the 15th Kansas Cavalry, Company E. He never married. William H. H. Grinter was killed in a hunting accident in Ozark County, Missouri on 10 December 1887 and was buried on 13 December 1987 in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery in Kansas City, Kansas. The 1880 U. S. Census for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas shows him as a farmer, unmarried, at age 38, born in Kansas. With him in the household are his mother, Anna (Marshall) Grinter, age 60, keeping house, born Indiana; his brother Cunningham Grinter, farmer, age 16 born Kentucky; and, his sister, Martha (Grinter) Allen, keeping house, age 22, born Kansas. (LDS Census Extract, FHL Film 1254400, National Archives Film T9-0400, p. 420A) They are all living in the home of Moses Read Grinter and Anna (Marshall) Grinter, now called The Grinter Place. Publishing Co., 1890), p. 300: William H. H. mustered September, 1863, as first sergeant promoted first lieutenant October 10, 1863; mustered out with regiment October 10, 1865.

There is a lengthy account in the 16 December 1887 edition of the Wyandotte Gazette of the shooting death of and the burial and memorial service for W. H. H. Grinter.

3. Mary Jane Grinter was born on 3 May 1841/1843 on the Delaware Reserve (present Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas). She was the daughter of Anna (nee Marshall) Grinter (No. 127 on the List of Delaware Who Elected to Remain in Kansas) and Moses Read Grinter. Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries married on 3 April 1858 or 1859 in Johnson County, Kansas, Audley Paul Defries. He was born in 1830 in Barren County, Kentucky and died on 27 July 1882 at Muncie. In the 1880 Census, Mary Jane Defries is listed at age 37 as keeping house, her father born in Kentucky, and her mother born in Arkansas. [It should be noted that her mother was supposedly born in Ohio, but in the 1880 census she is also reported to have been born in Indiana.] Her spouse, Audley Paul (erroneously listed as "S. P. Defries") at age 49, was occupied as a farmer born in Kentucky, and his parents were born in Kentucky. Mary Jane died on 10 July 1908, and was buried in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery, Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries was declared a Citizen of the United States in the United States District Court on 14 January 1868. The children of Mary Jane Grinter and Audley Paul Defries were:

Child 1. William Asher Defries, No. 894 on the 1862 Allotment List, was born on 30 June 1861 and died in March 1920. He married in 1885 Mariah Catherine Thomas. She was born on 23 November 1863 and died on 10 December 1866. In the 1880 Census at age 17, he was occupied in farming.

Child 2. Annie Elizabeth Defries was born on 1 December 1854 and died in April 1940. She married in March, 1888 Eric Oscar Newman. He was born on 1 December 1854 and died on 18 December 1926. In the 1880 Census, she was age 15 and occupied in house work.

Child 3. Martha Frances Defries was born on 10 December 1866 at Muncie and died on 27 August 1950 at home at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. She married on 3 November 1886, probably in Wyandotte County, Kansas, Christian Frederick Hahn. He was born on 31 March 1864 in Swan Creek, St. Clair County, Michigan and he died on 3 July 1934 at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. They are both buried in the Mt. Hope Cemetery in Topeka. In the 1880 Census, Martha Frances know as "Mattie" (even on her grave marker) was 12 and occupied in house work. Martha "Mattie" Defries is the maternal grandmother of Researcher Thomas Swiftwater Hahn: swiftwater@lenapedelawarehistory.net .

Child 4. Moses Reed Defries was born on 1 June 1871, in Muncie, Wyandotte County, Kansas. He did not marry. In the 1880 Census, Moses was age 8.

Child 5. Eva Marie Defries was born on 7 May 1873, at Muncie, and married Frank Snyder. In the 1880 Census, Eva May [Marie] was age 1.

(Census data were from the LDS Census Extract for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas, FHL Film 1254400, National Archives Film T9-0400, p. 420A.)

4. Victoria B. Grinter was born on 26 June 1848. She died in infancy.
5. Florence D. Grinter was born on 11 July 185. She died on 24 October 1857.
6. Prudence Grinter was born on 26 June 1854. She died in infancy.
7. Martha Vashtie Grinter born on 16 or 26 July 1857. She married first in 1876, W. D. Allen, and married second, on 30 October 188, Henry Clay Kirby. He was born 31 August 1856 and died 30 January 1939. They lived for many years in the "Grinter House."

Obituary of Reverend Henry C. Grinter - Former Circuit Rider Dies at 81 in His Home at Muncie

The Rev. Henry Clay Kirby, 81 years old, for many years an active minister of the Methodist Episcopal church South, died last night at his home in Muncie, Kas. Mr. Grinter was a graduate of Vanderbilt university. In 1887 he went to Muncie. He married Miss Martha V. Grinter, a daughter of Moses Grinter, a Wyandotte County pioneer. The Kirby home has been the scene annually of the Reunion of the Grinter descendants. Mr. Kirby was a circuit rider in the 80's, traveling on horseback much of the time. He preached at Ravenswood, Edgerton, and Grandview in Missouri; Nebraska City, Neb., and White Church and Edwardsville in Kansas. It was while preaching in 1888 at the Grinter chapel that he met his wife, who was the youngest daughter of Mr. Grinter. Although he retired from active service in 1902 he was often called upon to preach in the Muncie vicinity and to conduct baptisms, weddings and funerals. He was a member of the Delaware Masonic lodge. Mrs. Kirby died several years ago. Surviving Mr. Kirby are two daughters. Miss Mattie J. Kirby and Miss Annie T. Kirby of the home and thee sons. W. H. Kirby, C. G. Kirby and W. C. Kirby, all of Muncie, and a sister, Mrs. Jennie Hornsby, Forest City, Ark. (Submitted by Jane Zolotor)

There are undocumented stories about Jesse James and the James Gang and Cam Grinter in particular, and the Grinter Family in general. Of interest is the fact that the James's came from Logan County, Kentucky, the home county of Moses Read Grinter and James Grinter, so it is possible that there is a connection. Let us know if you have anything on this subject that has some basis in fact. Contact descendant Martin Weeks martinweeks@cox.net

MARY JANE GRINTER

Queries and additions for this page should be sent to researcher
thahn@lenapedelawarehistory.net

Mary Jane Grinter (married Defries) - She was born on 3 May 1841/1843 on the Delaware Reserve (present Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas). Mary Jane was the daughter of Kansas Delaware Anna Marshall (No. 127 on the List of Delaware Who Elected to Remain in Kansas) and Moses Read Grinter, the Indian Trader and the first white settler of present Kansas City, Kansas. Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries married on 3 April 1858 in Johnson County, Kansas, Audley Paul Defries. He was born in 1830 in Barren County, Kentucky and died on 27 July 1882 at Muncie, and was buried there in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery.

In the 1880 Census, Mary Jane Defries is listed at age 37 as keeping house, her father born in Kentucky, and her mother born in Arkansas. [It should be noted that her mother was supposedly born in Ohio, but in the 1880 census she is also reported to have been born in Indiana.] Her spouse, Audley Paul (erroneously listed as "S. P. Defries") at age 49, was occupied as a farmer born in Kentucky, and his parents were born in Kentucky.

In the 1885 Census for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas, Mary Jane is shown as a widow with the following children: Line 25. Mrs. Mary Defries, age 44, widow, born KS, farmer. Line 26. Wm. A, age 21, born KS. Line 27. Mattie F., age 18, born KS Line 28. Moses R., age 14, born KS Line 29. Evie M., age 8, born KS (LDS Microfilm No. 976088)

In the 1895 Agricultural Census for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas. Mary Jane is shown as a widow farming her 120 acres, with the assistance of her son, Moses Read Defries, who is listed as a farmer. The farm was still an actively producing one, with nearly three-quarters of it being cultivated:

Line 11. M. J. Defries. 120 acres, 89 acres under cultivation, 120 acres under fence. Number of rods of fences: 80 rail, 200 hedge, 160 wire. Farm value $6,000, farm implements $120. 8 acres corn, 14 acres oats, and 4 acres Irish potatoes. 150 bushels of corn on hand and 50 bushels of wheat. 12 acres of clover. Value of garden products sold $5, poultry and eggs $20. 50 pounds of butter made. Livestock: 9 horses, 2 milch cows, and 3 swine. Value of animals slaughtered $30. Bearing trees: 60 apple, 10 peach, 3 plum, and 20 cherry. Trees not bearing: 125 apple, 50 plum. Soft fruit: 1/4 acre raspberries 1 acre black berries, and vineyard 1 acre. 2 dogs. (LDS Microfilm No. 57046)

Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries Grave marker in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery, Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. Her spouse, Audley Paul Defies has a separate, upright monument just to the right of this one, but who is Audley Edward DeFries who has the same birth and death data as Audley Paul? (Tom Hahn took this photo in September 1994.)

The children of Mary Jane Grinter and Audley Paul Defries were:
1. William Asher Defries, No. 894 on the 1862 Allotment List, was born on 30 June 1861 and died in March 1920. He married in 1885 Mariah Catherine Thomas. She was born on 23 November 1863 and died on 10 December 1866. In the 1880 Census at age 17, he was occupied in farming.

2. Annie Elizabeth Defries was born on 1 December 1854 at Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas and died in April 1940. She married in March, 1888 Eric Oscar Newman. He was born on 1 December 1854 and died on 18 December 1926. In the 1880 Census, she was age 15 and occupied in house work.

3. Martha "Mattie" Frances Defries (whom see) was born on 10 December 1866 at Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas, and died on 27 August 1950 at home at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. She married on 3 November 1886, probably in Wyandotte County, Kansas, Christian Frederick Hahn. He was born on 31 March 1864 in Swan Creek, St. Clair County, Michigan and he died on 3 July 1934 at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. They are both buried in the Mt. Hope Cemetery in Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. Martha "Mattie" Defries is the maternal grandmother of Researcher Thomas Swiftwater Hahn:

4. Moses Reed Defries was born on 1 June 1871, in Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas. He did not marry. In the 1880 Census, Moses was age 8.

5. Eva "Evie" Marie Defries was born on 7 May 1873, at Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas, and married Frank Snyder. In the 1880 Census, Eva May [Marie] was age 1.
(Census data were from the LDS Census Extract for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas, FHL Film 1254400, National Archives Film T9-0400, p. 420A.)

This photograph was taken in 1904, at which time Mary Jane Defries was about 61 years old. It was scanned from a copy of the original. I do not know where the original photograph is. The house is thought to be Mary Jane's on a 120-acre farm in Muncie, Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas. Her spouse, Audley Paul Defries had died some 20 years previously. A note on the back of the copy of the image says that the young man holding the horse was Marion Defries, her grandson. He was killed in 1908 by a gunshot wound in 1908 at age sixteen while climbing through a fence. Standing next to the tree on the left is William Asher Defries, a son of Mary Jane Grinter, the father of Marion. Another note on the back says that the four children on the back of the horse are "cousins, perhaps grandchildren of Mary Jane?" (Hahn Collection)

The image above was sent to Eve Harris who showed it to her father Tracy Defries, son of Asher DeFries. She said in an undated letter to Tom Hahn:

> Tracy looked at your picture. The house belongs top Tracy's Grandmother, Mary Jane Grinter. He could not see Wm. Asher very well. . . . He does not know who the children are -- maybe Ethyl Thomas. Tracy said Wm Asher promised to give Marion a horse if he, Marion, would come and lived with Wm. Asher. Marion received the horse and a 410 shotgun from Wm. Asher, his dad. Mary Jane's house was located 1/4 mile south & 1/4 mile west from Stoney Point. Tracy has a similar picture, probably taken at the same time, it shows only the horse & Marion. no kids, Mary Jane, or Asher.

Above are the The five children of Mary Jane (Grinter) and Audley Paul Defries, and their spouses. From left to right: Eva "Tuck" Defries with her husband, Paul Snyder; Annie Elizabeth "Liz" Defries with her husband, Oscar Newman; Moses Reed Defries, unmarried; Martha Francis "Mattie" Defries, with her husband, Christian Frederick "Chris" Hahn, and William Asher Defries. John George Hahn, ca. 1880-1887 (Photo to be improved. Editor)

The back of the photo reads: A. C. Hammerly Photographer, Millerstown, Butler Co., Penna. P. O. Address, Barnhart's Mills, PA. Because John G. Hahn was at that place in the 1880 census, he was at least 62 years old in this photograph. His died in Bay City, Bay County, Michigan in 1887. Because we do not know when he went to Bay City, this photograph could have been taken after 1880 and before 1887, between the ages of about 62 to 69. Thomas Hahn has the original image.

Chronology:
1788 There may be a John G. Hahn age 92 in the 1880 census for Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. Check this again. So far I can't find him.

1883 Possible death year of Mary Ann Ellenberger
1885 Son Christian Frederick married in Wyandotte County, Kansas to Martha Frances Defries
1887 Death year of John G. Hahn at Bay City, Bay County, Michigan.

John George Hahn was born at Stuttgart, Württemberg, Bavaria, Germany about 1818. (Edward O. Hahn Notes and 1870 Census which see below) He was probably known earlier as Johan(n). Nothing is known of his family, his childhood, or his education. We do not know when he emigrated to the United States or whether or not he emigrated with his parents and/or other family members, or for what reason. In Immigrates to America,

1600-1800s Immigration Records, p.238 from Genealogy.com, there is an entry for a John G. Hahn, age 13, male, from Germany to the USA and "Date of Arrive" as 30Sep32q. The first record we have found for the John G. Hahn we know as "ours" in the United States was in 1848-1849, when he began a term as a Reformed German Evangelical Lutheran minister at the St. Paul's Lutheran Evangelical Church in Millerstown Borough (Chicora), Donegal Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania.. ("Millerstown Borough," Chapter 43, History of Butler County Pennsylvania, 1895, p. 15)

This view of the Town of Chicora was taken from the Hemphill Cemetery in 2001. The church to the left in the background is the German Lutheran Church with which John Hahn was associated and the church on the right in the English German Church. John Hahn's daughter, Christene (Dieter) Hahn was buried in this cemetery and it is possible that John's spouse, Mary Ann Ellenberger was buried there as well. (The photo was provided by Vonda Moore.)

On 15 November 1850, John applied for United States citizenship. In 1851, he married Mary Ann Ellenberger, who was born on 12 January 1829 at Sherrett, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. We cannot find him in the 1850 Federal Census for Pennsylvania, possibly because he was not a citizen of the United States. In 1853, John finished his term as a the minister of the pastor of the St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church in Millerstown Borough (Chicora), Donegal Township, Butler County Pennsylvania. On 16 April 1853, his daughter Margaret/Margarhetta Hahn was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. Although it is assumed that John and Mary Ann lived in Butler County, where he preached, his spouse, Mary Ann, may have returned home Sherrett in Armstrong County to have her daughter, Margaret/Margarhetta. John was naturalized in Butler County on what appears to be 13 October 1853. It is not known where -- or if -- he preached next. His son, Paul Nicholas Hahn, said that there were fourteen children in the family, that he was the last of the fourteen children, and that eleven of the children lived to maturity. We do not know the names of the children that died early. Paul said that the children were born in Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, and Pennsylvania, places where John Hahn had preached. Daughter Matilda Hahn was born in Pennsylvania in 1855. Daughter Bertha Hahn was born on 13 October 1857 at Melan, Ripley County, Indiana. Daughter Emma M. Hahn was born on 11 August 1858 at Sandusky, Ohio. Daughter Christene Christiana [?] Hahn was born on 17 May 1861 at Sandusky, Ohio. On 31 March 1864, son Christian "Chris" Frederick Hahn was born at Swan Creek (now Anchorville), St. Clair County, Michigan. On 5 June 1866, daughter Mary Louise Hahn was born at Swan Creek (now Anchorville), St. Clair County, Michigan. On 4 March 1868, son John G. Hahn was born at Swan Creek (now Anchorville), St. Clair County, Michigan. On 1 August 1869, Edward G. Hahn was born at Roseville, Erin Township, Macomb County, Michigan (a part of Detroit). The communities of Swan Creek and Roseville were some thirty miles apart. The John G. Hahn Family appears in the 1870 Census at Roseville, Warren Township, Macomb County, Michigan.

Census: 1850, US, Pennsylvania, Butler County, Fairview Township, LDS Film 0200610, National Archives Microcopy 432, Roll 760, but could not find Hahn. Daughter Margherita Hahn was born in 1853 in Armstrong County. Searched Donegal Township and Fairview Township in Butler County and Sugar Creek Township in Armstrong County with no success. Where is John G. Hahn? Perhaps as an emigrant alien he was not enumerated?

Census: 1860, US, Ohio, Sandusky: Daughter Emma M. Hahn was born in Sandusky, Ohio in 1858 and daughter Christene Christiana Hahn was born there in 1861, so it seemed likely that the Hahn's would be there in the 1860 census. However, I could not find them there or anywhere in the 1860 census. Although there is a chance I missed something, there is the possibility that they were somehow missed in this census. A search of Sandusky might be productive if anyone has the time. Otherwise, I will have to wait until some service indexes the 1860 Federal Census.

Census: 1870 Roseville Post Office, Warren Township, Macomb County, Michigan. Heritage Quest Online Images. NAR Film Series M593, Roll 688, p. 117. Enumeration date, 2 Jue 1870. George C. Lamb, Ass't Marshall. Number stamped at top 117. Page No. 5 also listed on the census sheet. His neighbors were mostly farmers. p. 5, Dwelling 35, Family 35. A George Siferlin family next door, Dwelling 36, Family 36, was also from Bavaria.
Line 3. Hahn, George J. Age 52 [1818]. Male. White. Minister of the Gospel. Personal property $100. Born Wurtemberg [Württemberg]. Father foreign born. Mother foreign born. Male over 21. [Note that he is listed with the first name of "George," which is helpful in identifying other records.
Line 4. Hahn, Mary Ann. Age 41 [1829]. Female. White. Keeping House. Born Pennsylvania. Father foreign born. [Actually born Pennsylvania]
Line 5. Hahn, Margarett. Age 16 [1854]. Female. White. At Home. Born Pennsylvania. Father foreign born.
Line 6. Hahn, Matilda. Age 15 [1855]. Female. White. At Home. Born Pennsylvania. Father foreign born.
Line 7. Hahn, Bertha. Age 13 [1857]. Female. White. At Home. Born Indiana. Attended school within the year. Father foreign born.
Line 8. Hahn, Emma. Age 11 [1859]. Female. White. Born Ohio. Attended school within the year. Father foreign born.
Line 9. Hahn, Christina. Age 9 [1861]. Female. White. At Home. Born Ohio. Father foreign born. [Note that may have been called "Christiana," full name being Christene Christiana.]
Line 10. Hahn, Christian. Age 7 [1863]. Male. White. At Home. Born Michigan. Father foreign born.
Line 11. Hahn, Loisa. Age 5 [1868]. Female. White. At Home. Born Michigan. Father foreign born. Her name was possibly changed from "Licusa" or "Lienza."
Line 12. Hahn, John. Age 2. White. At Home. Born Michigan. Father foreign born.
Line 13. Hahn, Edward. 10/12 [1869]. Born in August. Male. White. At Home. Born Michigan. Father foreign born.

It is not known when the family moved to Peachville (present Buena Vista), Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where his son, Paul N. Hahn, was born on 16

September 1876. It is not known how long the Hahns were at Peachville, but they appear at "Barnhart's Mill" Post Office, Fairview [Donegal] Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania in the 1880 census for that place. Barnhart's Mills Post Office is shown on an 1874 map of Butler County as a part of Millerstown in Donegal Township. In an 1895 map of Butler County, what was Barnhart's Mill/s is a part of Millerstown/Chicora Post Office. In contemporary maps, the Barnhart's Mill/s is in Chicora. In any event, Peachville and Barnhart's Mill are only a few miles apart. It is likely that the two places are simply described differently and in fact they are one and the same place. The site of their farm has not yet been located. Significantly, this is the area where John G. Hahn began preaching in 1848/1849 (until 1853). It appears that this was considered his "home base" and that is why he returned there. It is also the area where many of Mary Ann Ellenberger's family lived. For example, Enos Ellenberger, Mary Ann's brother--and his family, lived next door in 1880. John G. Hahn was probably a part-time farmer in the years that he preached. His occupation in the 1880 census was that of a farmer and his homes were in farming communities. The children of Reverend John G. Hahn must have been influenced greatly by the fact that he was a Lutheran minister. His son, Christian Hahn told his children that his parents were very strict in their observance of their religion.

According to Descendant Stan Hahn, great-grandson of John George Hahn, he died at Bay City, Michigan in 1887. We do not know why he was in Bay City, but perhaps he was living with one of his children. The only child who appears to have lived in Michigan was Matilda Hahn, married to Frank Lee. It is not known where Mary Ann Ellenberger died or where. She might have been buried in the Fair Cemetery with her parents, John Ellenberger and her mother Elizabeth Fair, in presently unmarked graves or she might have been buried in the Hemphill Cemetery, Chicora, Butler County, Pennsylvania. where their daughter Christene (Hahn) Dieter is buried. It appears that Christene was the only one of the children who remained in Pennsylvania. A key to the burial place may be wherever Enos Ellenberger is buried as he was living next to them in the 1880 census.

Census: 1880, US, Pennsylvania, Butler County, Fairview Township, Barnhart's Mill. LDS Film 1255109, NAR Film T9-1109, p. 43. Enumerated 18 June 1880, Dwelling 419.

John G. Hahn's neighbor in the 1880 census at Dwelling 418, was Enos Ellenberger age 39, Mary Ann Ellenberger's younger brother. In addition to the Heritage Quest Online image, there is an LDS Film 1255109, vol. 19, 177-754, enumeration date 18 June 1880, p. 43, Dwelling 419 that is suppose to be a John G. Hahn entry. I have a note that says there is a John G. Hahn on "line 17" that has a John G. Hahn age 92, in which case he would have been born about 1788. Is there such an entry? If so, could this be his father? An uncle? Line 17 in this entry is also the line that says than John G. Hahn is age 62, so the age 92 seems unlikely.

The children of John George Hahn and Mary Ann Ellenberger were:
[In the John G. Hahn Family Photo Album referred to below and owned by descendant Dorothy (Wheat) Stockdale of Edina, Minnesota, most of the undated images were described by Paul Nicholas Hahn, son of John G. Hahn. 9. Edward G. Hahn was born on 1 August 1869, at Roseville, Erin Township, Macomb County, Michigan (a part of Detroit). The communities of Swan Creek and Roseville were some thirty miles apart. He was identified as Edward as a Lutheran Minister and as Ed and Helena in the John G. Hahn Family Album.

10. Augustus 'Gus" Christophorus Hahn was born on 27 May 1872 at Roseville Post Office, Erin Township, Macomb County, Michigan. His nickname was "Gus." Gus's sister-in-law, Mattie Hahn, spouse of his brother, Chris Hahn, Christian F. Hahn told Thomas F. Hahn (Chris Hahn's grandson) in the 1930s that Gus Hahn lived with them. She said she sewed marbles in his pants so he wouldn't wear them out at the knees. It is possible that the story was about his brother, Paul, but it is possible likely that both Gus and Paul lived with the Chris Hahn family. Gus would have been about 14 and Paul about 10 when they married in 1886. Gus died in 1964 at about age ninety. Gus married Amelia "Nellie" Scott. She was born in Germany. Their children were:

a. Ralph Hahn

b. Edith Hahn was born on 27 May 1907. She married George Ragman. Their son was Larry.

GENERAL

Thomas "Tom" Frederick Hahn is the son of Walter "Walt" Frederick Hahn and Florence Vivian Torgeson. He was born on 6 November 1926 in Topeka, Topeka Township, Shawnee County, Kansas. (City of Topeka, Kansas, Kansas Department of Health, Certificate of Birth, Kansas Board of Health Registration No. 2148:

> Thomas Frederick Hahn born 5 Nov 1926 father Walter Frederick Hahn and mother Florence V. Torgeson. Time of birth 12:02 a.m. 6 Nov. 1926 [but shows on records as 5 November, which is his legal birth date] at the St. Francis Hospital on West Sixth [Avenue], Topeka, KS ["on a snowy Saturday," [so said his mother].)

Topeka was a nice place to grow up. The capital of Kansas, it was probably around 75,00 population when I was growing up there. Almost everything to be had or needed and yet easy to get around in buy foot or bus of by bicycle.

Paraphrased from a Topeka newspaper:

> The town was founded on 5 December 1854, when nine men met in a crude log cabin just south of the Kansas River and debated on whether to build a fort of a town. They were businessmen from the East who had a common goal: to found a new town on the Kansas River. Kansas Indians owned the land that is now the site of Topeka to the year 1825, when they ceded all their lands to the United States. That year the site was given to the Shawnee Indians, who had become a menace to settlers in the Ohio Valley. [With good cause since that was their land, after all.] In 1854, the land once again passed into the public domain. a move that made the founding of Topeka possible. The Indian villages noted by te founders prior to their historic meeting were a common site near early-day Topeka. In 1850 a settlement of some 1,000 persons existed at Topeka. [To be added to.]

He was christened at:

The Trinity M. E. [Methodist Episcopal] Church March 26 1927, Minister Rev. E. T. Rice, Friends present Mr. and Mrs. McAllister [his paternal aunt, Myrtle Mae (Hahn) McCollister, and her husband, Gerald "Mac" McAllister]; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Torgeson [his maternal grandfather, Thomas Torgeson (Torgei Torgeison), and his maternal grandmother, Margaret "Maggie" Louise Owen Torgeson, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hahn [his paternal grandfather, Christian "Chris" Hahn and his paternal grandmother, Martha "Mattie" Frances (Defries)], Mr. and Mrs. L. [Leslie] F. [his paternal aunt Mary Louis "Lou" Hahn and her husband, Leslie], Mr. and Mrs. E. O. [Edward Oscar] Hahn [his paternal uncle and his wife, Ida Marie Jenkins], Mr. and Mrs. L. "Lonnie" Hiefner [friends of his parents].

Tom's mother stated that he was christened, along with his cousins Barbara Ann Hahn, Dorothy Nadine McAllister, and Martha Mae Beckman, in March 1927. (Baby Book of Thomas F. Hahn) He was named Thomas after maternal grandfather, Thomas Torgeson, and his maternal great-grandfather, Thomas Torgeson (Taral Torgeison). Frederick--after paternal grandfather, Christian Frederick Hahn, and his father, Walter Frederick Hahn.

Encyclopedia.com has this to say about Topeka, Kansas:

City (1990 pop. 119,883) [about twice the size of when Tom Hahn was growing up there], state capitol and seat of Shawnee co., Kans., on the Kansas River, incorporated 1857. In a rich agricultural region, it is an important shipping point for cattle and wheat and a wholesaling, marketing, and processing center for farm products. There are insurance businesses, printing and publishing firms, grain mills, meatpacking houses, and plants that make tires and rubber products, shoes, and cellophane. A ferry was established there in 1842 on the Oregon Trail. The city was laid out in 1854 by Free State Settlers from Lawrence and New England and was founded as the center for C. K. Holliday's projected railroad (the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe.) A short-lived Free State constitution was framed in the city in 1855. Topeka was selected state capital when Kansas was admitted to the Union in 1861. It is the seat of Washburn Univ. of Topeka. A city of broad, tree-shaded streets, Topeka has the museum and library of the state historical society, the Mulvane Art Museum. the state library, a notable Episcopal cathedral, and a park system that includes a beautiful rose garden. The capitol is designed after the one in Washington, D.C. During the 20th cent/ Topeka was an important city for psychiatric research and therapy; the world famous Menninger Clinic, a treatments center for mental illness, was there from 1919 to 2003. Forbes Air Force Base is nearby. Columbia Encyclopedia, Sixth Edition, Copyright (c) 2004.

Tommy Hahn, at About Age 2 (Hahn Collection)

Thomas "Tommy" Hahn grew up in Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas in a nice neighborhood with good neighbors at 1120 (now Southwest) High Avenue in a type of a house known as a "bungalow." The design was probably from a Sears & Roebuck/Montgomery Wards, or similar, catalog. The house was built by his grandfather, Christian "Chris" Frederick Hahn, a carpenter and a house contractor, with the help of Tommy's father, Walt Hahn.

For about a year "Tommy" lived with his parents in Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri, where his father worked in the Post Office. The Walter Hahn's lived about a mile-and-a-half from their respective parents on West Seventeenth Avenue (earlier known as Euclid Avenue) and -- in general -- various brothers and sisters. The Hahn and Torgeson Families in Topeka were close and each a part of the others daily life.

Letters sent at age 5 by Tommy Hahn to his parents, Florence and Walter Hahn, when they were in Atlantic City, New Jersey, at a Letter Carriers Convention in 1932. They took advantage of the trip to see other parts of the country going from, and back to, Topeka, Kansas. During this time, Tommy spent one week at his Aunt Louise's (Hahn) Beckman, one week at his Aunt Marie's (Jenkins) Hahn, and one week at his Aunt Myrtle's (Hahn) McCollister. This second letter was written was he was at his Aunt Myrtle's. The printing isn't great, but on the other hand, he would not enroll in Kindergarten for another five months.

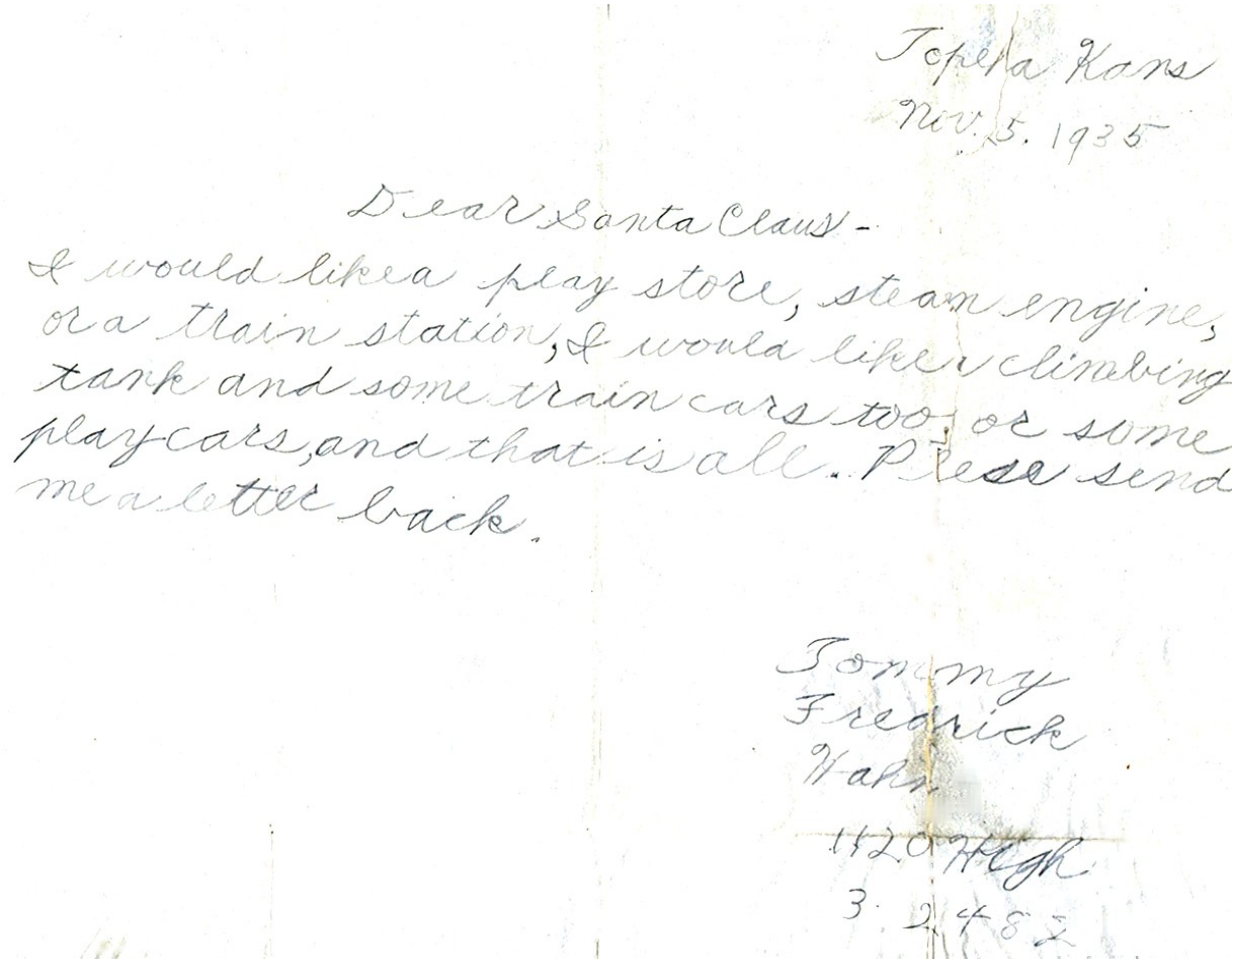
SANTA CLAUS LAND.

XMAS I934.



Tommy Boy:

I received your nice letter the other day. I am terribly busy now, it is getting so near xmas. I will try to get your toys ready. Maybe you will not get everything but I will remember the store and play money. I must remember your cousins too for I remember you have several. I know you have been a good boy, Tommy. Mind your Ma and Pa and Toodle De Doo until Xmas eve.

Tommy Hahn on his back steps in Topeka. The photo was probably taken in 1936 because of the Landon-for-President campaign buttons on his cap. His Uncle, Ed Hahn, worked in the campaign for Landon, so the "Sunflower" campaign buttons were readily available to the family. Little did Tommy know that about seven years later he would be a co-speaker at a Kiwanis or Rotary luncheon after he (Tommy) returned from being Superintendent of State Police at Boys State at Wichita, Kansas. (Walter Hahn Photo)

Children's Park 1936 (Hahn Collection) Children's Park was about six block's from the 1100 Block on High where we lived. At that time, several of the Topeka Parks had nice swimming pools such as this one. It looks like a neighborhood gathering at the pool with Mary Ella and Wilma Higgs in the rear, and front, left-to-right, Tommy Hahn, Jimmy Speck [who died young of pneumonia], Mary Taggart?, Dale Higgs, and Nancy Taggart?

The park system in Topeka was wonderful, partially due to programs like the Works Progress Administration. About five blocks to the west was Washburn Park where I played tennis and we kids generally messed about the little creek and the small shelter house. The bank of the creek was a source of fishing worms, a hard-to-find commodity in the dry summers of the 1930s. To the north east about eight blocks was Children's Park, with a nice pool and picnic tables. The largest and best park in Topeka was Gage Park. We were so fortunate to have it. The Shelter House was partially enclosed, commodious, and a wonderful place for family, church, and group picnics. The zoo was a later addition and was a very nice facility for a city the size of Topeka.

There was a nice, small lake with rental boats and a bandstand for evening concerts. In the late 40s an other little lake, West Lake, was added. It was used for fishing and ice-skating. Ample softball fields provided much entertainment for group and church leagues. Our Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church had a team. Our family attended many of the could be rented for family or group picnics. The Rose Garden and other gardens were also memorable. The greatest attraction by far was the SWIMMING POOL. It was the best municipal pool that I ever encountered. In the photograph above are two of my cousins, Becky Beckman and Marty Beckman and I lounging at the side of the pool and my father, Walt Hahn, in the water to our right., In the background can be seen the great slide that was a challenge to the young swimmer. There was also a great water wheel in the middle of the pool. Alas, the pool is gone, but not the wonderful memories.

Thomas Hahn's Native American name is Strong Swiftwater (Minneluzahan: Lakota. Kschippeheleu: Lenape - Delaware). Vernal Cross (deceased), medicine man of the Pine Ridge Lakota Sioux in the Fall of 1981, bestowed the Lakota name. He gave three English versions from three Lakota dialects. Strong Swift Water, one of the three, was chosen after consultation with Kansas Delaware Chief, Wanda Weeks, in 1981. In an 30 October 1981 letter to Thomas Hahn she said, "They [the Delaware], have a word for Strong Swift Water (KSCHIP-PE-HE-LEU). I like Strong Swift Water." Among his nicknames are: Tom, Tommy, Tommy Boy by his cousins, Thomas (or Tommy) Titmouse, the Little Admiral, Swift. He was known in the Republic of China as Han (or Han Yin), Da Fu (Mandarin) and "Tiger Hahn."

News Item in Topeka Newspaper c 1941 - Take Purse and Money

Mrs. Leonard Goff, 410 Gratton Street, was relieved of a purse containing seventy-five cents, a car key and a house key while waiting for a bus at Sixth and Branner Streets. Tom Hahn of 1120 High Avenue, saw two youths run and gave chase. He chased one youth two blocks and caught him. Bu the boy caught was the wrong one. The boy with the purse got away. A couple of interesting points: The among of money carried carried in that day and no fear of being shot or stabbed by the robbers and is ofyten the case today. I was easier being a "hero" in the "good old days."

Scouting

One of my interests as a boy was scouting. I never advanced very far in their scheme of things, but I had a lot of fun at it. One of the nicer parts was the camping. Here is a post card to my folks postmarked "Jun 17 1940" while I was at Camp Shawnee at Lake Shawnee near Topeka:

Dear Mom & Pop

I have been having a lot of fun. When you come out bring me something good [to eat]. Roy [Menninger] and I have been sleeping [tenting] together. [Roy later became the head of the Menninger Clinic at Topeka.] I have been playing with a boy I like a lot name Ralph. [I believe that Ralph is the person in a photo at the Recruiting Station at Kansas City when we were embarking on our "Navy careers," see Military.] Charlie [Wright] has let me help him in the Canteen. [Charlie was later the Mayor of Topeka and a lifetime mentor.] I went canoeing this morning. Tom

And the young boy reminded me of time Chris was with us for 2 wks or so [when we were living in Silver Spring, Maryland], but I think he was eleven yrs old, and what I good time Dad & I had with him. Dad said to me, let him do anything he wants to, and Ill clean up the mess. He would stand in front of frig and the door open and eat peaches or piece of watermelon and juice dripping on floor, this was in evenings and Dad would go out and clean it up. He was so good and his grandpa took him fishing and on walks on his time off and on rainy days. He and I made puppets . I am not good at that sort of thing but we played with them. W took him on picnics, one day Jenay went with us on a big picnic some organization, cant recall now, and all the cokes and soft drinks free, and he & Jenay drank so many. And he fooled around with the little shed back of garage and go out there a lot to read and when he got ready to go back home, at airport he said he wished I could go back with him. He was timid but I always loved him very much because of that and he always said "he would take care of me when I got old." (Florence Hahn Letter to Tom Hahn February 1094)

THE HONEYWELL FAMILY,

OWL, Sarah Lakepeshequa

Sarah "Sally" (Owl) Honeywell, ca. 1900 (Park Studio, Kansas City, Kansas. Provided by Betty Jane Ryan)

Sarah "Sally" (Owl) Honeywell. (Provided by Flora Jane Wilson)

Sarah "Sally" Owl's Lenape name was Lakepeshequa. She was also known as Tahapeshequa, perhaps an error in someone mistaking the T for an L, and Lahepehshequah, and Lehepehshequah. She commonly went by the name of "Sally. Sally was born in 1833. Sally was the oldest daughter of Shingomezia, a Miami Indian, also known as George Owl and Aupheeheliqua, a Delaware. The name Shingomezia in Miami means "Owl." Aupheeheliqua was the daughter of Aukeelenqua or Echelangonaockwe, also known as Nancy Ketchum. The latter's parents were Ahkeechelunguaqua, a sister of Captain Patterson (also known as Mehshayquowha) and Twehullahlah Ketchum -- translated as He could run and catch a Deer). It is said that Sally Owl's family went to Kansas during the Miami removal of 1845/1846 and first went to the Miami Reserve south of Shawnee Mission, in present Miami County. Sally married William Honeywell, a white man from New York, who was born about 1815. He was an assistant at the Shawnee Methodist Mission. After their marriage, William Honeywell remained on the Miami Reserve for a few years then went to the Delaware Reserve, thereby gaining property via the patents granted to his wife, Sally Owl, and her children. He was a well-known trader, stockman, and farmer, one of the first white settlers in Kansas. William Honeywell died 23 June 1880, at 65 years, and was buried in a cemetery at Hutton Road and 99th Avenue in Kansas City, Kansas. Two of his children are buried there, as well. (Kansas Cemeteries, 978.11/V3f F LDS Family History Library) Four of their children attended the Delaware Methodist mission school run by John Pratt. Sally was one of the Delaware who elected to remain in Kansas in 1866 under 1862 Allotment No. 111. She was listed at age 36, with her children No. 112 Eli M. Honeywell, age 12 also known as Masakkah; No. 113 Susan T. Honeywell, age 9, also known as Ohpemukwa; No. 114 William Honeywell, age 5; and John Honeywell, age 3. She died in December 1910 and was probably buried in the Prairie Cemetery near Piper, Leavenworth County, Kansas. (See Prairie Cemetery in the Cemetery Page which includes a possible cemetery marker for her and for William Honeywell.) The name was sometimes given as Hunneywell as it was in a brief visit to their home in the article, "Life Among the Delawares ."

According to Betty Jane Ryan (Bejryan@aol.com) , these are the children of Lakepeshaqua/Sally Owl and William Honeywell, as taken from a "Memorandum of Births and Deaths" in the family Bible. Ada Honeywell-Miles prepared the Memorandum. Betty Jane Ryan, a descendant, believes that Ada Honeywell prepared the Memorandum because Sally Owl could not read or write English, speaking Lenape exclusively:

1. Ann Elizabeth Honeywell. Born 25 Dec. 1852, died 3 April 3 1853.
2. Eley Moore Honeywell [born] Aug. 16 1854. Died Nov. 7 1892. Indian name Masakkah. An Ely Honeywell was in attendance at the Baptist Mission School on the Delaware Reservation on 31 December 1867. (Weslager, The Delaware Indians: A History, Appendix 8.)
3. Susan Frances Honeywell. [born] Dec. 13, 1857. Died 1923. Indian name

Opemukqua.

4. William H. Honeywell [born] June 28 1862 [?]. 1880. Indian name Pungishshenwa. A Willie Honeywell was in attendance at the Baptist Mission School on the Delaware Reservation on 31 December 1867. (Ibid.)

This photograph of William Honeywell was provided by Flora Jane Wilson

A news item in the Dewey (Oklahoma) Sentinel on 16 December 1910 said, "Mrs. Sarah Hunnewell well known to the Delaware Indians in this section of the country died at the home of her son in Kansas City, Kansas, last Thursday evening. She was noted for her many virtuous and womanly traits. She reared a large family all of whom have become successful in life and made useful citizens. Mrs. William Dodge, of Nowata [Oklahoma]

There is an obituary for her in Ruby Cranor, Some Old Delaware Obituaries, p. 38:

> Mrs. Sarah Hunnewell, well known to the Delaware Indian in this section of the country, died at the home of her son in Kansas City, Kansas, last Tuesday evening. Mrs. Hunnewell was formerly a member of the Delaware Tribe of Indians who now live in this section and who formerly occupied a large reservation in Wyandotte and Leavenworth counties in Kansas. In 1868 when the Delawares sold their ;ands there they were given a choice of reserving their lands and monies or coming to the Cherokee Nation, and Mrs. Hunnewell chose the former together with other members of her family. She was noted for her many virtues and womanly traits. She reared a large family all of whom have become successful in life and made useful citizens. Mrs. William Dodge, of Nowata was the only member that came to the Cherokee Nation and became a member of the Cherokee tribe. Dewey Sentinel, December 15, 1910.

Readers should be aware that this article is a research work in progress. As I have stated elsewhere in this site, our emphasis is as much about research as it is about "recorded" history. The latter is seldom stable in any event, as new data are discovered. The Marshall Family is a difficult one to research. Your editor seems to be the only one working on Henry Marshall. A few others, chiefly Vickie Wilkins bvw77808@yahoo.com and Martin Weeks martinweeks@cox.net and a couple of others, are the only ones seemingly active in working on the history of Henry's son, William, and his wife and children. We would appreciate any contributions from the data that you might have. I have not finished entering what I have on Henry Marshall as I am now concentrating on his son, William Marshall. MARSHALL FAMILY

HENRY MARSHALL

Henry Marshall was born in 1752 (American Revolution Soldiers Index; the Daughters of the American Revolution, Miami County, Ohio. The latter source says that his birth was in Berks or Bucks County, Pennsylvania. We don't know who his parents were or from where his ancestors came. There are suggestions of origins in England, France, and Germany, but no linkage has been found. [We continue to try to find a connection to a Dietrich [Didier] Marsshal who went from Rotterdam through Cowes, Holland to Philadelphia on 16 September 1736 in the Ship Princess Augusta. Dietrich married Margaret ___. His will lists children John, Deitrich, Jacob, David, Mary, Catherine, and Sarah. The son John may have had a son Henry. This family was in Berks County, Pennsylvania.] A Didier Marchal, born in Cumru Township, near Fritztown, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania died in 1784 had a son John born in Bern Township, Berks County, Pennsylvania. We are trying to place a Henry and an Elizabeth Marschall in this family.] Nothing seems to be available about the youth and the early life of Henry Marshall. The first time we really find anything about him are several references to his presence in Stanton Township, Miami County, Ohio when he was in his fifties. (History of Miami County, Ohio, 1909, p. 105. His life there was a part of early Ohio history. Bear in mind that the State of Ohio was formed from the Old Northwest Territory in 1787 and that Miami County was formed from Montgomery County in 1807. Henry Marshall went to Piqua in Miami County, Ohio about 1807 where he was an early settler of that place.

> Marshall, Henry (Miami Co.) Fr, Pa. Br, 752. D July 14, 1837. Came to Piqua about 1807. For infor.[mation] Piqua Chapter [DAR] Daughters of the American Revolution in Ohio, The Official Roster of the Soldiers of the American Revolution in the State of Ohio, p. 247)

The American Revolution Soldiers Index says that he went from Pennsylvania to Kentucky and from there to Miami County, Ohio in 1808. According to another source , he went from Kentucky to Miami County, Ohio in 1808 and lived there until he was eighty years old. (The History of Miami County, Ohio (Chicago: W. H. Beers Co., 1880, p. 387). There may be records on him in Kentucky that we have not yet found.

Henry Marshall was in the American Revolution, but we know little about his service. Assuming that the entry is for the subject, Henry Marshall, the American Genealogical Biographical Index (AGBI) lists his birth year as 175? That record shows him as having served from Pennsylvania. (AGBI Pennsylvania Revolutionary War Records, vol. 5, series 5, citied by Ancestry.com) "His war record is not known, but he is shown in DAR Roster 1, and in the 1880 History of Miami County Ohio. (American Revolution Soldiers of Miami County Ohio) An alternate title in the reference is "Miami County Soldiers Who Fought in America's War of Revolution." The State Library of Ohio provided an abstract of a document compiled by The Daughters of the American Revolution of Ohio that lists: Marshall, Henry (Miami County) Fr Pa. Br. 1752. D. July 14, 1837. Came to Piqua about 1807. For information, Piqua Chap. (The Official Roster of the Soldiers of the American Revolution Buried in the State of Ohio, p.249). Because it appears that he served in the Revolution from Pennsylvania, he may have gone to Kentucky after that event, perhaps after having received bounty land there.

Henry Marshall probably received (a) land grant(s) for his service in the Revolutionary War. The Pennsylvania Archives show three entries for "Henry Marshal." There is no proof that any one is "our" Henry Marshall., but here are some possibilities:

> Marshal, Henry. Rank: Pvt. County: Cumberland. Unit: 6th Bn 6th Co. Class: 3rd. Time of service: Order of Council, July 14, 1778. Company or Commander: Capt Saml Patten. The Kentucky Land Grants lists three Henry Marshall's with grants in Kentucky, any of which, or all, could be the subject Henry Marshall.

> Marshall, Henry, 400 acres, Book 11, Page 251, Date Survey 2-25-1985, Military. [No watercourse] (The Kentucky Land Grants, Volume 1, Part 1, Chapter III Old Kentucky Grants (1790-1856), The Counties of Kentucky), p. 206)

There are several land transactions for "Henry Marshall" in Miami County and elsewhere in Ohio, but to date I cannot attribute any of them to the subject Henry Marshall. (LDS Family History Library Film No, 0363339, Microcopy Roll 33, volume 2) There are other Marshall there. Could any of them have been his father or his uncles or brothers? I have a note, but not the source, that "Frank M. Sterrett wrote a 1917 history and states in argumentation that "William Marshall, not Henry, entered the N. W. Quarter of Sect. 22 on 21 April 1806 . . ."" Henry Marshall does not appear to be in the *1810 Federal Census for Miami County, Ohio, nor have we isolated him in the 1790 and 1800 Censuses in other places. The first census in which Henry Marshall appears is the 1820 Federal Census for Piqua, Miami County, Ohio; under his name were five persons: a male 10-16 [born 1804-1810], one male 16-26 [1794-1804], one male over 45 [probably Henry, born not later than 1775], one female 16-26 [born 1794-1804], and one female over 45 [probably his spouse, Mary, except that she was born not later than 1775. Editor.] All were listed as free whites. Three of them were engaged in agriculture. (Ancestry.com Online Images, Roll M19_136, and/or Image 93, Roll M33_94, Abstracts from the Microfilm, by Joseph H. Bosserman, Covington), Miami County, Ohio Genealogical Researcher) This is the first time there is a reference to a probable spouse, later is identified as Mary. Little is known of Mary. She was born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, in 1764. (Daughters of the American Revolution, Miami County, Ohio (State Library of Ohio, Research Service) Henry was in Staunton Township, Miami County, Ohio according to the 1827 Ohio State Census for that year. (Abstract from the Microfilm by Joseph H. Bosserman, Covington, Miami County, Ohio for Miami County, Ohio Genealogical Research. It only says "M624 [Soundex] Marshall, Henry. Staunton Twp." [Is this census available and if so, is there further data on Henry or Mary Marshall in it?] In the 1830 Federal Census for Staunton Township, Miami County, Ohio, Henry Marshall was listed with one male 10 to 15 [a grand son? born 1810-1815], one male 70 to 80 [Henry Marshall born 1750-1760], one female 70 to 80 [Mary Marshall born 1750-1760]. (Ancestry.com Online Images, Roll M19_136)

In 1835, Henry and Mary Marshall, of Miami County, Ohio, were involved, along with several of their daughters and their husbands, in the contesting of their son William Marshall's estate in Green County, Missouri. On 10 April 1835 Henry and Mary gave their power of attorney to L. R. Brownell of Miami County, Ohio. (Clerk Miami County Wills & Estate, [data missing], p. 121) An 1837 document provides the parental relationship between Henry and Mary Marshall and their son William, and identifies the parents and siblings of William that were involved in the heir ship case against the estate of William Marshall. Those persons were: [To be provided] (Green County, Missouri, Land and Property Settlements document dated 22 March 1837)

For several years I have kept a will for an Elizabeth Marshall of Miami County, Ohio. I couldn't place her, but kept it because there were so few Marshall's in Miami County, Ohio in the early 1800s. In preparing this article, I re-examined each item that we had in hand. In doing so, I unsuccessfully attempted to find that Elizabeth was the same person as Mary Marshall, Henry's spouse. In any event, for future reference, herewith is a transcript of Elizabeth Marshall's will.

> Will of Elizabeth Marshall of Troy, Miami County, Ohio, aged and infirm and in bad bodily health. 1. Debts to be paid by daughter Sarah. 2. To dau Sarah NW Qtr Sec 33 in Township five and Range 6 east. Also the undivided half of ___ [one word unreadable] Lot No. 64 in the Town of Troy. Also 1/2 of my personal property, with all my monies in hand or may be owing to me. 3. To son-in-law William Barber, the other undivided half of it [lot?] No. 64 in Troy or its proceeds in trust for my grand-daughter Martha Venamon or Vinamon [spelling?] and her heirs. If Martha deceases without heirs then to grand-daughter Elizabeth Dye. Also to son-in-law William Barber in trust 1/2 of personal property to grand-daughter Martha Vinamon. Alexander McCullough named Executor Signed 18th day of Feby 1834. John T. Tallis [?] - Hugh McCorkle 17 Apr 1834 all appeared as behalf of deceased. J. C. Telford (Clerk Miami County Wills & Estates, [data missing] p. 123.)

I have come to the conclusion that Elizabeth Marshal is not the same as Mary Marshall, the spouse of Henry Marshall. Elizabeth died in 1834 whereas Mary died in 1844. Moreover. in the 1830 census for Staunton Township, Miami County, Ohio, Henry was listed with a female of the right age to be Mary, whereas Elizabeth Marshal was in the 1830 census as a family head age 80-90 [1740-1750], with two younger females, one age 10-15 [1815-1820] and one age 30-40 [1790-1800, possibly a daughter and a grand-daughter? (Ancestry.com Image 23, Roll M14_136, p. 10) Because Elizabeth lived in and probably died in Troy, as probably did Mary and Henry Marshall, and because there are no other Marshalls there at the time, there is a strong possibility that she was related to them, possibly as a sister or a sister-in-law. There is an Elizabeth Marshal in the *1820 Census in Troy, Miami County, Ohio, _____ 33, Roll 94, p. 70 t*hat has an Elizabeth Marshall as head of a family with 1 male under10, 1 male 26-45, and 1 male over 45 , that is, born before 1775. [There is some doubt about this census entry. Should be checked . Editor] Is it a coincidence that Elizabeth Marshall names William Barber as her son-in-law in her will in 1834 and that William Barber is the spouse of his Henry's daughter Margaret (that is, his son-in-law) as revealed when Henry named Margaret as his "issue" in 1832?

A listing of the possible children of Henry and Mary Marshall contains the following persons, in no particular order as to age, because no birth data or ages have yet been determined. Further census research in the 1850 census might assist in that task:

Ann Marshall - A sister named, with her spouse, John Garvey, both of Miami County, Ohio, in the contesting of William Marshall's Estate. (William Marshall Probate Papers; Greene County, Missouri Recorder of Deed's Record Book "A", 10 May 1835, p. 18. Ann was also listed an an "issue" of Henry Marshall. She married on 10 February 1815, in Miami County, Ohio, John Gary or Garcy]. (Daughters of the American Revolution entry for Henry Marshall. Name given as Garcy in the source) [Need more data about the source. Editor] There is a John Garvey in the 1840 Census for Piqua, Miami County, Ohio. Next below him in the census is a Wm. M. Garvey, who appears to be his father. (Ancestry.com Image 7 of 18: M704-415, P. 343, Image 9.

Rachel Marshall - A sister named, with her spouse Clark Bates, both of Miami County, Ohio, in the contesting of William Marshall's Estate. (William Marshall Probate Papers; Greene County, Missouri Recorder of Deed's Record Book "A", 28 May 1835, p. 16). Rachel Marshall married John Nelvic in 1829 (*Miami County, Ohio Marriage Records, p. 88) Did she marry Clark Bates later? He does not appear to be in the 1840 Census for Miami County, Ohio.

Rosanah/Rosanna Marshall - A sister named, with her spouse Wm. F. Baskelow, both of Miami County, Ohio, in the contesting of William Marshall's Estate. (William Marshall Probate Papers, named Rosanah; Greene County, Missouri Recorder of Deed's Record Book "A", 10 April 1835) He does not appear to be in the 1840 Census for Miami County, Ohio.

Mary Marshall - A sister named, with her spouse, James Hughes, in the contesting of William Marshall's Estate. (William Marshall Probate Papers; Greene County, Missouri Recorder of Deed's Record Book "A", 10 April 1835) She may have also been called "Polly." Polly Mary Marshall married James Hughs in 1821, in Miami County, Ohio. (Miami County, Ohio Marriage Records, Book A & B, 299, p. 162) There was also a Polly Marshall who married Jas. Venamen in 1812 (Miami County, Ohio Marriage Records. Book A & B 257, p. 72)

Samuel Marshall - A brother involved in the contesting of William Marshall's Estate (William Marshall Probate Papers). A Samuel Marshall was also married in Miami County, Ohio, in 1829, to Jane C. Russell (Miami County, Ohio Marriage Records, p. 131 A Samuel Marshall married on 10 August 1817 in Franklin County, Ohio, Nancy Howard. (Marjorie Smith, Ed., Ohio Marriages (Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., 1986, p. 201 [?]). There is no proof that the two Samuel Marshall's are the same person. A Samuel Marshall is shown to be deceased in Book G 192 2726n an index of "deceased. There is no Samuel Morris in Miami County, Ohio in the 1840 Census. There are six Samuel Morris's elsewhere in Ohio.

James Marshall - William Marshall's Estate Papers cite an un-named brother "on The Red River." Is this James? A James Marshall married Marg. [Margaret] Hardesty (Miami County, Ohio Marriage Records, Book A & B, 2 November 1809), Book A & B 250, p. 48) A James Marshall was listed as an "issue" of Henry Marshall. That source says that he married Margaret Hardesty on 20 February 1817. (Daughters of the American Revolution entry for Henry Marshall; (Miami County, Ohio Marriage Records, Book A & B,) A James B. Marshall is in the William Marshall Probate File, so "B" may be his middle initial.

Margaret Marshall - A sister named as an issue of Henry Marshall, but she was not named in the William Marshall Probate Papers, possibly because she had died by this time? She married, on 2 November 1809, in Miami County, Ohio, William Barbee [spelling?], jr. (Daughters of the American Revolution entry for Henry Marshall. There are both Barbee's and Barber's in Miami County.) There is no William Barber in the 1840 Census for Miami County, Ohio.

Bear in mind that one or more of Henry's children may not have been named in the contest of William Marshall's estate because they were deceased by 1835. Other names of persons named Marshall married in Miami County prior to the deaths of Henry and Mary Marshall and thereby possible grandchildren, as they have not appeared elsewhere for identification are:

Thomas C. Marshall - He married in 1828, in Miami County, Ohio, Lucinda McKelvic [?] (Miami County, Ohio Marriage Records), p. 67)

Nancy Marshall - She married in 1829 in Miami County, Ohio, Lewis Hulsill (Miami County, Ohio, Marriage Records, p. 101) [Becky Patsellis becky@shelbyvillagedesign.cm reports that an Isaac Marshall from Wells County, Indiana is the brother of Nancy Marshall and that her married name was Hutsell. Thus far, we have not found a connection between this group of Marshalls and those listed under Henry Marshall above.]

Edw. Marshall - He married in 1835, in Miami County, Ohio, Julia Orbison. (Miami County, Ohio Marriage Records, p. 101)

It seems interesting that the children of Henry Marshall named in the contesting of the will of his son, William Marshal are, in the order named: Rachel (Marshall) Bates, Anne (Marshall) Garvey, Mary (Marshall) Hughes, Rosanah (Marshall) Baskelow, and Jane (Marshall) Riddle, and Samuel Marshall. The children named as "issue" of Henry Marshall in 1832 in the order named are: Ann (Marshall) Garcy, James Marshall married Margaret (Marshall) Hardesty, and, Margaret (Marshall) Barbee. Anne (Marshall) Garvey is the only common name. Though the spouses seem to be Gary and Garcy, they could be the same person. The only person named by Elizabeth Marshal was her daughter Sarah, with a Margaret Hardesty implied as a daughter as the probable spouse, William Barber. Are these two different families?

Mary Marshall, spouse of Henry Marshall, was not be found in the 1840 Census in Troy, where she was buried, nor in Miami County, nor in Ohio. Because the 1840 census contains only the names of the heads of a household, it is likely that she was living with someone else. Her son, Samuel Marshall would be a possible candidate, but there is no Samuel Marshall located in that census in Miami County. There are six Samuel Marshall's listed for Ohio, but none in adjacent counties. The next step was to try to find her daughters in that census to see if there is a female over 80 years of age. A search for their spouse's names in Miami County, Ohio, revealed only John Garvey, with spouse Mary Marshall. There was no female old enough to be Mary, though Ann is probably there. So, we still do not know with whom Mary lived and where she died on on 10 January 1844 in Miami County, Ohio. (Ohio's Wills and Estates to 1850: An Index); Daughters of the American Revolution, Miami County, Ohio, Research Services, State Library of Ohio, Reference No. GEN F 497/M6 S64x) Her will was probated on 19 April 1845 (Miami County Probate Court Index 1807-1850. Estate: Case Number 1388, Probate Court Book C, p. 0715) I also have an unsubstantiated note that says that she died in 1841 @80, which would make her born in 1761.

Henry Marshall's will was drawn on 28 December 1832 in Miami County, Ohio. Children listed as "issue" were, in the order named: Ann married John Garcy 2/10/1815; James married Margaret Hardesty 2/20/1815; Margaret married William Barber 2/10/1817. (Daughters of the American Revolution, Miami County, Ohio) Henry Marshall died on 14 July 1837 (Ibid.) His will was probated in Miami County, Ohio in the Court of Common Pleas on 17 August 1837. His wife, Mary Marshall, was the executrix, the witnesses were William McCampbell and Uriah Blue, and the clerk Thomas J. D. Smith. (Miami County Probate Court Index 1807 - 1900: Marshall, Henry. Estate. Case Number 0838, Probate Court Book B, p. 0356 O) It was probated on 19 May 1837. It confirmed that Henry "bequested" all to his wife, Mary. (Ohio Wills and Marriages, LDS FHL Film No. 0550192, p. 263, No. 0238, viewed at the LDS Family History Center, Winchester, Virginia on 19 November 1996). The original Will Books A and B for Miami County have been copied into a single volume, The Probate Records of Miami County [Ohio], p. 18. "Marshall, Henry, p. 160. Dated Dec. 28, 1832. Rec. Aug. 19, 1837. Wife Mary Ex.[ecutrix] Mary Marshall. Wit.[nesses] William McCampbell, Uriah Blue, Thomas J. D. Smith Clerk." Another reference to Henry Marshall's will is Ohio Wills and Estates to 1850: an Index, p. 234 : Henry Marshall, Will Book 1837, Miami Co. wba4, p. 217, c838. There are Miami County, Ohio Probate Papers showing a Henry Marshall as deceased in Book B 46 1524 and B 165 1745. These have not been looked up.

Henry Marshall was buried in Ohio. (Patricia Law Hatcher, Abstract of Graves of Revolutionary Patriots, the Daughters of the American Revolution, volume 3, p. 50, Serial: 11912, volume 4. In an abstract provided by the State Library of Ohio, Henry Marshall of The Daughters of he American Revolution of Miami County was listed as follows:

> Marshall, Henry: born 1752: died 7/14.1837: will book, page 160: drawn 12/28/1832: proved 8/17/1837: buried ?? (could be buried in Rose Hill: wife's name Mary, born 1864 Bucks County: died 1/10/1844: buried Rose Hill Cemetery. War Record: [Nothing entered] The cemetery's location is "STAUNTON TOWNSHIP - TIE R10 & 11N. ROSE HILL. NW 1/ S18. LDS (Latter Day Saints) Family History Library Reference No. Reference 977.1 v340)

Henry may have been buried in the Rose Hill Cemetery north of Troy Miami County, Ohio, as that is where his wife, Mary, was buried.

Curiously, there is a Henry Marshall in Wyandotte County, Kansas in the ____ Census, No. 593, Roll 443a at age 35, born Pennsylvania for whom we cannot account. (Researcher: Thomas Swiftwater Hahn)

THE MARSHALL FAMILY

William Marshall's Signature in 1826 (Missouri Historical Society)

His children: Anna Marshall, John Marshall, Mary Ann Marshall, Rosanna Marshall

WILLIAM H. MARSHALL was the son of Henry and Mary Marshall. William's place and date of birth are not known. The middle initial "H" of his name appears a couple of times, and it seems to stand for "Henry, the first name of his father." For example, he is called W. H. Marshall in a letter of 14 April 1858. (Letter of M. M. McCaalin, Osage River Agency, K. T. [Kansas Territory], dated 14 April 1858. He was [also] known in Missouri and Arkansas as "John" or "Old John." (Susan [name to be added] letter to Thomas Hahn on 21 October 1996) His parents appear to have gone from Pennsylvania to Kentucky to Ohio some time after the American Revolution. Because they went to Ohio about 1807, which would have been some time after William's birth, based on his life experience, William was probably born in Pennsylvania or Kentucky. Unfortunately, nothing is known of his boyhood and his early life. His spouse, Wilaquenaho (with various spellings), a Lenape-Delaware, was probably born about 1797. Her English first name was Elizabeth, but she was called "Betsy" and perhaps "Liza." The date of their "marriage" or "arrangement" is not known, but it appears that their first daughter, Anna

Marshall, was born in 1820 in Ohio, so they may have been married sometime before that year.

It is known what land William Marshall owned. Being a trader and an entrepreneur, it is likely that he may have owned land in more than one state. There are land records in Ohio pertaining to William Marshall's, but none can be specifically attributed to the subject William/John Marshall. Frank M. Sterrett wrote a 1917 history [The History of Miami County] in which he states that "William Marshall, not Henry, entered the N. W. Quarter of Sect. 22 on 21 April 1806 . . Other lands that COULD apply to our William Marshal are:

10 July 1832. Marshall, William From the United States of America. Recorder's Book 26, page 547. Section 26, Township 08, Range 04. Newtown Township. It is described more fully in Bureau of Land Management Records: being the "West 1/4 SE" [West 1/4 of the Southeast Quarter], comprising 78.88 acres: (Bureau of Land Management-General Land Records. Land Patent Details, Accession/Serial No. OH0300__.112 Bureau of Land Management Serial #: OH NO S/N State: Ohio)

6 February 1837. Marshall, William to Pearson, Thomas. Recorder's Book 15, page 006. Section 26, Township 08, Range 4. Newton Township.

It may be of interest to plot these locations to show their relationship, one to the other, and to see if they match any other data in this family. The first three entries seem to be the most promising. The later ones in Newton Township, both in location and time, seem to be less likely candidates. There are no known reference to land owned by William Marshall in Missouri, or elsewhere, but it likely that he owned land there as well as in Arkansas and Texas. Curiously, there was a Land Patent issued to a William H. Marshall on 28 April 1895 for 160 acres, described as: 1 SW Section 11, Township 27-N, Range 10-W, 5th PM [Prime Meridian], Missouri, Howell County. It was signed by President Grover Cleveland. (Ibid , Accession/Serial #: MO4370__.313. Patentee Name William Marshall)

William Marshall was a partner of the Connor brothers, the latter of whose story is depicted in Thompson, Sons of the Wilderness: John and William Connor (Noblesville, IN:2nd ed, 1937, Conner Prairie Press). From Timothy Crumrin, Walking The Knife-Edged Path: The Life Of William Conner, "He [William Connor] and a partner, William Marshall, accrued profits not only from their regular trading, but from the extra income provided by land cession treaties." www.connerprairie.org/chfurn.html [More on that relationship should be researched. Editor]

CHILDREN: The "Grinter-Kirby Typescript" of 1957, p. 3, says that William Marshall had four children: 1. Polly Marshall [Mary Ann] married Henry Tiblo [Tiblow] on 8 April 1843. Her name was given as "Polly Marshall" and his name as "Henry Tiblow." (Shawnee Mission Stewarts Book of 1832-1867 provided by Vickie Wilkins). Their children were Eliza Tiblow and Sallie Tiblow.

2. Rosanna Marshall married James C. Grinter (brother of Moses Grinter)

3. Annie [Anna] Marshall married Moses Grinter

4. William Marshall, whose children John Marshall and Rose Marshall were raised by Moses Grinter and Annie (Marshall) Grinter. Rose died in her teens. John took reservation rights in Indian Territory (Oklahoma) in the 1870s, and he died there. Another listing (source not known) that Mary Ann Marshall "Polly,", John M. Marshall, and Sarah Ann Rankin. Lucinda Marshall is now considered to be a part of another family. Wanda Weeks (deceased) "Grandma Annie had one brother and he died, His name was John Marshall." Wanda mentions children that were named in the settlement of her estate. Unfortunately, we can find nothing regarding the estate of Betsy Wilaquenaho Marshall. For more complete information on the children, see the links at the top of the page. One of the official documents providing the names of the children of William Marshall is a letter in 1858 settling a claim that they had against William H. Marshall's Estate:

> Letter of M. McCaskin [spelling?]. Osage River Agency [Kansas Territory] 14 April 1858: The claim money [$6000] due the heads of W. H. Marshall is now ready for distribution ... The Power of Attorney ... must be signed by John Marshall, Ann [Marshall] Grinter, Mary Ann [Marshall] Tiblow, and Roseanna [Marshall] Grinter [children of William H. Marshall, with a question as to whether or not John was the son of William Marshall or the son of a possible William Marshall.] Granted, there could have been an additional child or children who might have died between their birth/s and the date of settlement in 1858.

It appears that William Marshall might have gone west to Missouri from Indiana with the same group of Delaware of which Mekinges, spouse of William Connor, Marshall's former business partner, was a part. (Charles N. Thompson, Sons of the Wilderness, John *and William Connor ((*Indianapolis: Indiana Historical Society, 1937, pp. 113-114)) According to a letter from Rodney Staab to Thomas F. Hahn on 27 October 1996, "From an account book kept by Menard & Valle [traders] from 1829 to 1831 regarding transactions among the White River [Missouri] Delawares, we find William Marshall and Joseph Weaver as two of the 24 whites dealing in some way with the Delawares."

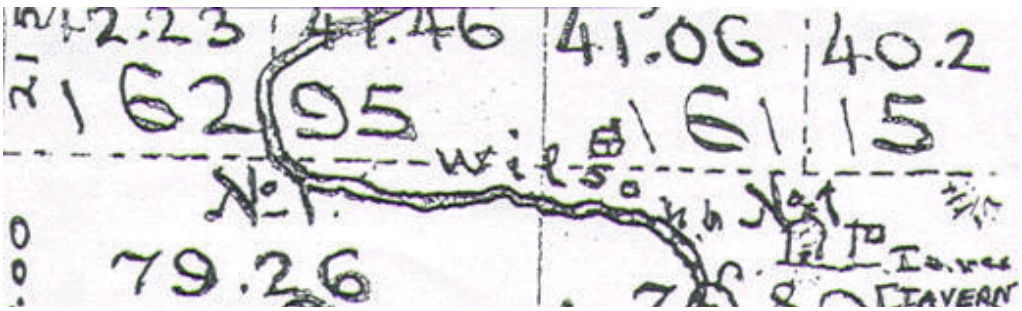
Indian Agent R. Graham, under the St. Louis Superintendency of Indian Affairs, granted William Marshall a license as a trader. [Source needed] At this time, the majority of the Delaware were in the vicinity of Springfield, present Greene County, Missouri.

Pierre Menard said of the Delaware on the White River:

> In a letter dated April, 1826, at Kaskaskia [on the Ohio River in Illinois], Pierre Menard wrote to Agent Richard Graham at St. Louis, giving the report of James Pool from the James Fork of the White River [Arkansas-Missouri] concerning the murder of several Delawares. Sixty or seventy Delawares were reported to be at either Anderson's or Nanundagum's Town and only three old men at Roastinger's Town about 300 yards from Marshall's on Finly . . .at a distance of about nine miles he can see the house of La-pa-ni-hile [eldest brother of Captain Ketchum] in flames. (Richard Graham Papers, Clark Collection, vol. 10, Missouri Historical Society, CDH, p. 147)

William H. Marshall had one of the first mills in present Greene County, Missouri on the James River at the mouth of Finley Creek. This may have been in later Wilson Township. There are several references to him and his mill, including the following.



> The first grist of corn was ground on a little wing-dam mill that Old John Marshall had on James, near the mouth of Finley Prior to mill building, corn had to be beaten in wooden mortars with a pestle, and these were used to some extent for a long time in preference to the little "one-horse" mills of the new county. (H & A, p. 153) [The full citation of this source will be provided when found]. William Marshall was known locally as "John Marshall" or "Old John Marshall.." For example, "Old John Marshall, who owned the famous mill at the mouth of Findley... (History of Greene County, p. 722) [Need full citation] and "The first mills were Pearson's, five miles east, and John Marshall's, near the Finley (Ibid., p. 726), This is confusing to researchers as there was another John Marshall in the area at the time.]

Mr. Miller too tells us that the first grist was ground at a little wing-dam mill, operated by John Marshall, on James River near the mouth of Finley. This man, Marshall by the way, was a "squaw man" living with the Indians until his death, just before they finally moved from the region. His mill was the same that Ingle had put up on the James, and had been bought by Wilson and moved to the lower location when Ingle was forced to vacate his claim. (F & T) [Looking for the full citation. Editor] In History of Greene County, p. 905, the authors says of the mill that ... many of the settlers considered Marshall's, down on the James, the best. (Ibid., p. 105)

A man by the name of Marshall also came with them [the Delaware Indians, being married to a squaw, with whom he lived until his death, which occurred about the time the Indians were leaving he, and his widow and orphans went to the Territory [in Kansas] with their dusky companions. Mr. Marshall had taken the old mill which had formerly been abandoned by Mr. Ingle, and removing it down the river to a point near the mouth of Finley Creek, where he commenced a plantation. (History of Greene County, p. 153. Marshall did not leave with the Delawares (October 1831), but went the following spring in 1832. Ibid., p. 722.) [So far we I have found no evidence that William "John" Marshall went to Kansas. Editor]

William Marshall apparently had a trading post at the James Fork of the White River. In a deposition presented at court about 14 July 1870, during the probate of the William Gillis Estate, John Sarcoxie was asked if he knew the names of any white traders among the Delawares at the James Fork of the White River. He replied, "One named Marshall, another named Gillis - that all I knew, eight names of them that was there." Unfortunately, when asked the year that the Delaware moved away from the James Fork of the White River, he couldn't say. (Gillis Probate, p. 232)

James Fork of the White River, Greene County, Missouri ca.1835, From an original survey of the area as contained on the cover and in the frontispiece of WILLIAM

MARSHALL: INDIAN TRADER OF DELAWARE TOWN, published in the Probate File of William Marshall by the Green County Archives & Records Center, 1126 Boonville, Springfield, MO 65803. The map and the map field notes are on microfiche at the Department of Natural Resources in Rolla, Missouri. The description of the map says:

> In section 12 was the Delaware Village also known as Delaware Town. The surveyor's field notes, made in 1835, stated that "The Old Indian Village lies . . . on the James Fork of White River. It is inhabited [in 1835?]after the exodus of the Delaware] of whites and is in Ruins a few dilapidated cabins only remain on the site. There are 3 other settlements & Cabins in this Section of the River." [This, in contrast] From the autumn of 1822 when R. I. Holcombe claimed about 500 Delawares moved into Southwest Missouri to the early 1830s. Delaware Town had been a thriving community. By 1835 it was abandoned.
> In section 1, although it is difficult to make out, is a structure marked "tavern." There is another building a little further northwest. From the field notes, the surveyor stated "William Dies & Mrs Wilsons Tavern Stand; is in the N. E. Quarter of Section 1. And also 3 other habited cabinns with cultivated fields." Wilsons Creek is west of the Tavern. Also through 1 ran the "old White river road" which was apparentlly an established road hence the designation of "old."

The Center for Archaeological Research at Southwest Missouri State University has conducted four archaeological field schools at Delaware Town and its environs. The Director, Neal Lopinot, PhD noted in an email to Thomas Hahn on 22 December 2004:

> As for William Marshall, our main source of information has been a copy of his probate records and miscellaneous documents... [We spent] a little time this past summer around the confluence of the James and Finley rivers, searching for evidence of Marshall’s trading post. However, we were unsuccessful in locating anything definitive, due in part to all of the development and land alteration that has occurred on most of the high terraces at the mouth of the Finley. We didn’t look for the grist mill, but I know almost precisely where it was located based on the 1835 General Land Office survey records, which contain a record of the mill’s location along with Yokum’s distillery and home (almost certainly Marshall’s trading post prior to his > death). The Yokums were in the area during the Delaware period and (I believe it was George) Yokum was noted in one letter dating to 1826 (as I recall) as selling peach brandy to the Delaware. The “Yokum Cemetery” is still intact there, but there are only two headstones. However, the cemetery is relatively large and there are are numerous unmarked depressions. I am not sure where Marshall was buried, but I suspect that he is there, perhaps along with other Delaware and/or slaves from that period.

In another email from another staff member provided to Thomas Hahn on 4 January 2005 more information of the investigation:

> We have been taking field schools to the James River for 4 years in search of the village, and have explored and documented other 1820s sites, such as the former location of the Wilson trading trading post. In 2003 we gained access to a filed that we thought had high potential. An we were right! We have thus far located a single house location and excavated a large, interior storage/trash pit. This pit was full of artifacts diagnostic of the 1820s and of the Lenape themselves. Among the artifacts are ceramic sherds typical of the 1820s -- gunflints. bullets and scraps, brass tinkle cones and possible arrow tips, glass beads, silver brooches, animal bones, and a few household items, like nails, glass and knife fragments.
> During the summer of 2004, the first week of the field school was spent searching for Marshall's trading post near the confluence of the Finley and James Rivers. We used Marshall's probate to try to locate his trading post and distillery. What we found were farms where the ground had been moved and moved and moved again during the 170 years, making the early historical period very difficult to detect. A bit of historic work on Marshall has been completed but additional research is in order before more fieldwork is done.

It is not known whether or not Delaware Indians could or did legally own black slaves, as did the Cherokee. It was certainly legal for their spouses to do so, as was the case of William Marshall, spouse of Delaware Wilaquenaho. Marshall's estate papers show that he owned five or six slaves at the time of his death. There is at least one incident where William Marshall may have acted outside the law regarding the ownership or possession of a slave. The full circumstances are not known, but the following was reported in the Arkansas Gazette on 17 October 1826:

> Cherokee Nation, Spadrie Bluff, Sept 28th, 1826. Whereas it has been represented to the undersigned. that sundry persons in Arkansas Territory, and others within the Cherokee Nation, have been endeavoring to purchase, traffic for, or procure under color of legal process, certain NEGRO SLAVES, the rightful property of the heirs and legatees of a Cherokee called CONEETOO, deceased; and whereas, the undersigned has been duly appointed Agent and Attorney in fact of said heirs, now this is to forewarn all persons, whatsoever, from purchasing, trafficing for, receiving, or procuring in any manner, or under any pretence, any of said negro slaves. They are now, or recently were with, or in possession of the following persons, to wit: With Tomas Graves* (a Cherokee) James, Teany, Silvey, and two children (names unknown)): with a Cherokee called John Leake, Anney and three children (names unknown): with the Widow Otter. (A Cherokee woman), Easter and two children (names unknown): with Major Jolly, principal chief of the Cherokees, one man Frank: with Samuel Hogg, (a Cherokee) one girl (name unknown); and with William Marshall, an Indian trader, near the Delaware Village, one man named Jacob. JOHN DREW, Agent and Attorney in fact for the heirs of Coneetoo, deceased. October 17, > 1826.

The Federal Government acknowledged the amount of money that was owed to William Marshall -- and to William Gillis--at the Castor Hill Treaty in on 26 October 1832:

> There shall be paid to the said Delawares on their lands, in merchandise suitable to their wants, at the St. Louis cost prices, after the ratification of this treaty, the sum of five thousand dollars. There shall also be paid them the further sum of twelve thousand dollars, to be placed, at the request of said Indians, in the hands of the Superintendent of Indian Affairs at St. Louis, to be by him applied to the payment of debts which the said Delawares have acknowledged to be due by their nation agreeably to a schedule presented in Council, and which sum they wish paid to Menard & Valle of St. Genevieve, for the benefit of William Gillis and William Marshall--The sum of one thousand dollars is also paid them in merchandise and cash, the receipt of which latter sum (of thousand dollars) is hereby acknowledged. (From the Castor Hill Treaty near St. Louis, Missouri).) [William Marshall's business > accounts are held in the Menard Collection at the Chicago Historical; Society; the Fort Leavenworth Indian Agency papers 1824-1836, National Archives Microfilm 234, Roll 300; Editor]

There are unsubstantiated reports that William Marshall went with or followed the mainstream of the Delaware Nation to its new home on the Kansas Delaware Reserve about 1830 and that he established a trading post for the Delaware near Grinter's Ferry in present Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas in 1833. The History of Greene County says, I believe, on page 905, that "Marshall did not leave with the Delawares, but went the following spring in 1832." [This reference needs to be checked.] This would have been a natural thing for him to do, that is, to follow his family and established a new trading post. However, there is no documentation to show that he did. This is about the time of his death, so perhaps ill health or other circumstances prevented that from happening. It is possible, of course, that he saw to it that his Delaware family reached their new destination, but that he did not stay. The below item received in August again indicates that William Marshall was in Kansas at some point of time.

> Rec^{d} Kansas river Augt. 3rd 1830 of William Marshall by the hand of Baptise Peoria 95^{lb} of good Shaved Deer Skins 25
> 10 –“ do Coon – do 25
> A?? Fur Company By Wm Myers Ent^{r} [Entered] D^{r} [December] Kansas 1830 f^{r} Menard &Valle

It is likely that William Marshall died in Greene County, Missouri as that is where his estate was settled. Likewise, we do not know where he was buried. but he he was possibly buried at Delaware Town where he had his trading post. The Center for Archaeological Research at the Southwest Missouri State University has been conducting investigations at Delaware Town. Its director. Dr. Neal Lopinot said in an Email to Tom Hahn on 22 December 2004:

> The Yokum Cemetery is still intact there [Delaware Town], but there are only two headstones. However, the cemetery is relatively large and there are numerous unmarked depressions. I am not sure where Marshall is buried, but I suspect that he is there, perhaps along with other Delaware and/or slaves from that period.

We would be particularly grateful if anyone has any information on this subject.

Rodney Staab, former curator of The Grinter Place at Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas in his unpublished manuscript, "Grinter Place Historic Site" says: It is unclear whether William Marshall ever actually traveled to Kansas, but my strong suspicion is that Marshall Creek--is named for the Marshall Family." He adds. "The Marshall Family tree is laid out in Goodspeed's 1890 History of Wyandotte County at pages 622-624." This needs to be verified.

> This note is out of context, but the "Grinter - Kirby Family History", 1857, p. 3 says: John Marshall & a sister Emily [Marshall] , came to the locale [present Wyandotte County, Kansas] at early date. Emily mar. a Sam Rodgers (a Shawnee Indian; a daughter of them mar. Richard McCamish.

WILLIAM MARSHALL'S ESTATE PAPERS

The date of William Marshall's death is not known, but from a reading of his Estate Papers, it appears to be not later than 11 March 1833, and probably not too much sooner. A search of Death Records of Missouri from Newspapers, 1808 - 1854, does not include a William Marshall or a John Marshall in our area of interest, nor does the 1830 Federal Census. [I have a note that says: "1834 Administration of Estate National Archives Microfilm 234, Roll 300, frames 201-203 Death." A look at that record might be revealing.] William Marshall died in testate. His estate was claimed by his parents and his sisters about 1835. Interestingly, the William Marshall Case was the first case in the history of the Greene County Court. The History of Greene County, p.159 *s*ays of the matter:

> The proceedings of the first county court may be thus summarized: Samuel Martin was appointed presiding justice for six months. Letters of administration were granted Joseph Weaver and John A. Langles [Langlois] on the estate of John [William? Or had "William" died and his son inherited his share?] Marshall, the wealthy old Indian trader, well known throughout Southwest Missouri in early days, and who had died sometime previously.

The papers relating to the Estate of William Marshall can be found in the National Archives in Microfilm 234, roll 300, frame 515. They have not not be researched by the editor. Among the more informative of Greene County, Missouri records are probate court files. A mainstay of genealogical research, they also provide a valuable record of early events of the county. Tow files are particularly interesting: those of William Marshall probate file (*#7365) and James Wilson probate file (#10269)We have received the Probate File of William Marshall additional from the Office of the County Clerk, Greene County Archives and Record Center, Springfield, Missouri and have begun entering some of it in this record. It will be some time before we get all the pertinent data transcribed. I do not intend transcribe the entire file. The persons who are in his account book have been listed because they are the ones who were present with him at the time. The goods in his account and his inventory have been included to show that types of items that were in use and in trade at that time. Some might find it interesting to compare those items with the items that were in Moses Read Grinter's Trading Post on the Kansas Delaware Reserve about 25 years later. Moses Read Grinter was the spouse of William's daughter, Anna Marshall. (See the introduction to the Papers just below and the listing of Henry Marshall's accounts following that. The material is entitled, William Marshall: Indian Trader of Delaware Town. Probate File with Name Index):

> Sections 1 and 12, township 27, range 23 of the original survey map of the area. (Map and field notes obtained from microfiche copies provided by the Missouri Department of Natural Resources in Rolla, Missouri. In section 12 was the Delaware Village also known as Delaware Town. [This town founded about 1800, was about ten miles southwest of Springfield, Missouri.] The surveyor's field notes, made in 1835, stated that "The Old Indian Village Delaware lies ... on the west bank of the James Fork of [the] White River. [The village was located about ten miles southwest of Springfield according to the History of Greene County, p. 721.] That history also said that, "The traders were respectably domiciled." (Ibid.) It is inhabited by one family only of whites and is in Ruins a few dilapidated cabins only remain on the site. There is 3 other settlements & cabins in this section of River." From the autumn of 1822, when R. I. Holcombe claimed about 500 Delawares moved in to Southwest Missouri to the early 1830s, Delaware Town had been a thriving community. By 1835 it was abandoned ... This is the first of a series of Greene County Archives and Records Reference Guides which will be available at the Archives and other places ...
> For Greene County the period from approximately 1820 to 1835 was quite unlike any settlement which followed. For some of that time the Delaware Indians had legal possession of the land and occasionally the Osage hunted the area. R. I. Holcombe in his History of Greene County 1883, reports that "after ...1785 [French Voyagers from Ste. Genevieve] made ... explorations ...

into this area." Holcombe surmises they came as far west as present day Barry or McDonald counties. Failing to find any "gold and silver" these men reported the presence of lead, and undoubtedly the fur-bearing animals which populated the region. From two of Greene County's probate records can be found important documentation for this period.

For example in 1833 the following notice appeared. "Public Sale at the Store house of Joseph Rountree ... the remaining property of Wm. Marshall dec'd." Another notice announces "There will be sold . . . at the Store House of Joseph Rountree ... Bear, Dear, Racoon, and Other skins, and other articles To Tidious [tedious] to mention." The sale was set for May 1, 1833. [This sale was also probably for the possessions of William Marshall, but one cannot be certain from the language used. Editor]

From William Marshall's probate inventory, which exists in a collection of papers sewn into a small booklet, there is a long listing of the types of goods the man sold. Besides the items one might expect to find Marshall had 15 Machanaw [Makinaw] Blankets. 2 paper Indian trenkets, 2 Tommachawks, 1 Indian Bridle, [1] lot of Bears oil viz [being] 212 [pounds], 4 Dr3ssed Deer Skins, 1 lot of Salt - 1527 [pounds], 28 Otter skins, 1 Lot of Bear Skins 122, 1 [lot] Shaved deerskins - 6297, 1 [lot] hare Red & Gray [skins] - 837, 1 [lot] Racoon Skins - 722 [in number]/ through was a reference to one lot of Wolf, panther cat, and muskrat skins numbering 17.

The administrators of Marshall's estate were Joseph Weaver and John A. Langlois. Weaver came to this area from Lincoln County, Tennessee in 1830. (Holcombe) In their inventory they reported that Marshall had six slaves; a December 15, 1835 document reports their sale. John A McCarrah bought Jem for $550, and John P. Campbell purchased Henry for $601, J. M. Shockley bought Paddy for $310 and Joseph F. Danforth got Charley for $466. Charley was a "Mulatter Man" according to the inventory. There is another reference to him being paid for "Packing skins" and also to "Friend's Boy [possibly the slave of Augustine or William Friend who settled here as early as 1818 according to [Holcombe] for work on skins."

These references to skins give some clue to the large involvement Marshall had in the fur trade. Marshall, James Wilson, and William Gillis also dealt in furs among settlements which included Delaware Town and Cow Skins [on Cowskin Creek]. [The part pertaining to the latter two has been omitted. Editor] Marshall's dealing with the Ste. Genevieve firm of Menard & Valle appear to have been on a much larger scale than Wilson's. According to the account sheet in the file Marshall owed the firm $5398.86 by 18 June, 1833. There was further debt of $2591.32 "for which he became responsible" making Marshall's account with Menard & Valle at $7990.18. An August 1, 1832 notation refers to "Sundry Sent per Indian Saunders." Apparently Indians were involved with the commercial as well as the trapping aspects of the business. William Marshall had credits to his account with the firm to offset his debt. On July 2, 1832, he had sent "Sundry Furs and Skins" totaling $1243,54, On November 6, 1832 credit for 27 Gallons bear oil valued at $23.62.

Obviously Marshall was conducting a large business considering the sparse settlement of the area. Among the items in his inventory were 6 pack saddles and 36 horses and mules. There is a receipt on July 13, 1833, for the "sum of forty one dollars and seven cents for Haling [hauling] a load of paltry from friends [August Friend, probably] on Cow Scin [Cowskin] to Joseph Rountree on James fork of White River." (Delaware Town was on the James fork of White River.) James Wilson had a trading post there as did Marshall. Another receipt of April 8, 1833, showed payment to the same man, Joseph Parten, for hauling 2348 lbs of paltry from "A. Friends on Cow Skin . . . James Rountree at $175ct per Hundred." There is another estate credit of March 1833 account to Wm. Friend & Son "To 32 ft of Berr Skins at 25 feet - 5.00" and one from 1832 to "Roher Burch - August 14 Credit By Skins & Wax 2.58.

The accounts Marshall carried included the names of Ames, Benjamin, Nathaniel, and Madame Kimlerlin [Kimberling] , Joseph Philibert (who with associates from St. Louis carried on a trade at Delaware Town) and William Gilliss. A note of October 6th. 1829, for the $4.50 states "I will pay Mr. Wm. Marshall four dollars & fifty Cents for the Turtle party Dels. for article taking of yours." It is signed :Wm. Gilliss for Am. Fur Company" . . . In the Marshall inventory is another notation which lists "One lot of Indian pledges consisting of Arm Bands [,] breast bands [,] broaches [,] leggins & c & c valued at $2.00. Apparently, Marshall held these items as collateral for credit accounts.

Joseph Weaver and John A. Langlois, as administrators of Marshall's estate, attempted to settle accounts with Menard & Valle. There is a receipt of December 1, 1833, for $5000.00 received by Pierre Menard "surviving Partner of the firm of Menard & Valle" and witnessed by "Joseph Weaver and John A. Langlois . . . September 29, 1834 . . ." was received by Pierre Menard and witnessed Felix Valle and J. N. Amoureux; (The Chouteau, Amoureux, and Valle families were prominent in Ste. Genevieve.) From the sale of Marshall's slaves $736.25 was sent to :Menard & Valle for Value Received St. Genevieve 8 July 1833.

According to Holcombe, James Wilson, William Gillis, and William Marshall all had "Squaw" wives. Weaver and Langlois stated to the Greene County Court that William Marshall had "died intestate so far as they knew . . [and that] they believed the said deceased [had] . . . one Brother living on Red River . . . father and mother . . . living in Ohio, and one or two sisters." The two administrators agreed to "pay over according to law all assets which shall come into their hands." The conclusion drawn from the Marshall administrators statements was that William Marshall had no children. That was not the case.

In a sworn statement Thomas B. Wright said that "dec'd. Acknowledged Said Children to be his Heirs & . . . that he feared that his Children would be cheated of his property . . . Meaning the Children then & there with him begat of his wife Priscilla . . ." Nathaniel Kimberling's deposition, also sworn on march 11, 1833, states he was "acquainted With Wm. Marshall for and about two years and heard him . . . say . . .if it was not for his children he would not work any more but the[y] were being unfortunate half I[n]dians . . ." George Yocum, who swore to have known Marshall for 9 or 10 years reported that Marshall had made the following observations "apparently in much concern viz -that he was . . . [concerned] his children meaning those begat of his wife Priscilla [Note!] would be wronged out of their inheritance of his property in the present unsettled Situation of his affairs . . . " Concerned over the legal status of his wife and children ,Marshall was afraid they would not receive any of his estate. [This is the first time that we have seen "Priscilla" named as a spouse of William Marshall. Is she the same as Elizabeth

"Betsy" Wilaquenaho?]

As previously mentioned, there were sales of Marshall's goods at the storehouse of Joseph Rountree. Another probate notice dated 27 March 1833 announced " . . . there will be sold at the House of William Marshall, Deceased, on the 18 of Aprile next . . . Horses Cattle . . . Kitchen furniture [and] one improvement at the Late Residence of . . . Marshall [at the mouth of the Finley according to Holcombe] . . . and one improvement at Old Delaware Town." From these sales, after settling with Menard & Valle, and various other claims such as "James Kimberling for the year 1832 . . . [for] for cutting out flaw in gunbarrel" and to "Joseph B. Murray ten dollars for "feading and takeing care of a stock of Indian cattle . . . Sept 10, 1835," the administrators were able to turn to the claims of the "legal" heirs.

Through the County court William Marshall's father, mother and others petitioned for shares in his estate. It appears that in spite of the depositions given by various of Marshall's associates as to his wishes. Marshall's wife Priscilla [that is, Betsy Wilaquenaho?] and her children were excluded from inheritance. There was no receipt of a widow's dower; perhaps there had been no marriage recognized as legal. Whatever the case, Marshall's other relatives received the estate. Loring R. Brownell. acting as "attorney in fact for the . . . named Heirs, received $2676.78 "being the amount ordered to be [distributed to] . . . the legal Heirs of the said William Marshall . . . and in full of all the heirs . . . except Samuel B. Marshall." Samuel B. Marshall signed for $32,13 "in part" of his share on 24 November 1835, and for $00 in "full" for the remainder.

To date we do not know the full outcome of the probate of William H. Marshall regarding his Indian children. It appears from the document cited below, that they received a part of his estate, albeit some twenty-three years later.

Friend Robinson: I would [appreciate it] if you would see Henry Tiblow [spouse of William Marshall's daughter, Mary Ann Marshall], and inform him the claim money due the heads of W. H. Marshall is now ready for distribution. It will be necessary for Henry Tiblow to assure [?] an Power of Attorney for the other heads and bring it over himself, and I will pay the amount over to him to receive. The Power of Attorney authorizing him to receive the money must be signed by John Marshall, Ann [Marshall] Grinter, Mary Ann Tiblow and Rosanna [Marshall] Grinter [spouse of Moses Read Grinter]. This paper will be attached to a [portion not included] signed by Henry Tiblow and forwarded to Washington with the original claim [not found] and it will also be authorized by Mr. Tiblow to keep my voucher which is necessary in processing [the] amount. I had cleared up my amount [portion not included] to close of last quarter (mar 31st) preparatory to turning over the office to my successor but he has not arrived as yet, but $6000 of claim money has been credited to my account. [portion not included].

William's estate was divided evenly between his parents and his sisters and brother Samuel Marshall. [William Marshall Estate Papers) It appears that his Delaware children on the Kansas Delaware Reserve also received $6,000 from the estate of their father or from another settlement of William Marshall's account. The following is a copy of a letter that was sent to Mr. B. F. Robinson, the U. S. Indian Agent for the Delaware at the time:

Osage River Agency, K. T. [Kansas Territory] April 14, 1858.
Friend Robinson: I would be glad if you would see Henry Tiblow, and inform him the claim money due the heads of W. H. Marshall is now ready for distribution. It will be necessary for Henry Tiblow to secure a Power of Attorney from the other heads and bring it over himself, and I will pay the amount over to him. The Power of Attorney authorizing him to receive the money must be signed by John Marshall, Ann Grinter, Mary Ann Tiblow [Henry Tiblow's wife], and Roseanna Grinter. [All of these persons were the children of William Marshall, although, there is a question regarding the relationship of John, who may have been son William's son.] This paper will be attached [portion not included in the copy] signed by Henry Tiblow and forwarded to Washington with the original claim, and it will authorize Mr.

> Tiblow to keep my vouchers which is necessary in processing my account. I had closed up my account [portion not included in the copy] to the close of last quarter (March 31st) preparatory to turning over the office to my successor, but he has not arrived as yet, but $6,000 of claim money has been credited to my account. [Portion not included or not relevant. Very respectively, Maxwell. Mc Caslin (Pratt Papers, Index 142, Roll 5) [The $6,000 mentioned was probably the amount to be paid to the Marshall children.] Unfortunately I have been unable to find "the original claim" mentioned. That document might provide some useful information. [Why doesn't this document include his son, William Marshall? The lack of inclusion of Lucinda Marshall helps to confirm that she was not William Marshall's daughter. Editor]

It appears that William Marshall's estate was also probated in Miami County, Ohio. In any event, there is a William Marshall there whose estate was probated on 21 April 1845. (Miami County Probate Court Index 1807-1850: Case No. 0779, Probate Court Book B, p. 0176) There is a reference regarding William Marshall's that may not have been researched: National Archives Microcopy 234, Roll 300, frame 515 (Fort Leavenworth Indian Agency, 1824 - 1836, the pertinent portion dated about January 1834)

There is considerable conflict between what is attributed to William Marshall and Wilaquenaho's son, William or John Marshall. Our desire is that one day all this will be sorted out. It might have been better not to have included the "data" on this person/ persons. My position is that we need to lay out what we have in the hope that there will be those who having corroborating or negating information that will assist with this family. As stated elsewhere, the Lenape-Delaware History web site is an ongoing, historical research site. Those of you who introduce the data on this and other pages into your family data bases and histories without weighing what the data are, do so at your own peril. This web site is not an encyclopedia of Lenape-Delaware History. It is, rather, a reflection of what we know about ourselves and what others say about us. Editor Tom Swiftwater Hahn swiftwater@lenapedelawarehistory.net

John Marshall was the son of Betsy Wilaquenaho and William H. Marshall (whom see). Descendants Wanda Weeks/ Annie Stephens (both deceased) that he was born in 1825 in Ohio. He may have died 1861-1862.They also said that a son William was born in 1828 in Ohio. According to Jack Douglas Large, "The Delawares of Idaho," M. A. thesis, University of Idaho, 1987) in Rodney Staab, Grinter Place, pp. 6-8, John married Lucinda "Lucy" Llewellyn or Flewellyn whose mother was Rebecca Lucas. According to the 1862 Delaware Census, which lists her age as 35, Lucinda would have been born about 1827. Staab notes that Rebecca Lucas, alias Memchow, was No. 929 on the 1862 "census" at age 60, that is, born c1802, while Lucinda Marshall was No. 928. "In other words, Rebecca and Lucinda were more or less living side by side. (Staab, Grinter Place, pp. 6-8). [So far I can't locate those numbers in that census, but will check further. Editor] (Louise Faye Smith-Arellano, Delaware Trails: Some Tribal Records, p. 104). However, this may be the wrong Lucinda. He may have had a son Charles born about 1845.

CONFLICT: We have conflicting information for the wife of John Marshall. According to Ruby Cranor, John Marshall married Sarah E. Ketchum (1827-1861). She was the daughter of Lusittahoquah (1817-1881) and William Riley Ketchum. Her siblings were Nancy Ketchum (1849-1880), Joel Ketchum (1852-1872), Caroline Ketchum (died 1854), Absolom Ketchum (died 1856), and Henry Clay Ketchum (died 1859). According to this source, their children were Charles Ketchum (died 1845), Rosanna Marshall (died 1850), and William (Washer) Marshall (1853-1899, who married Susan Whiteturkey/Lizzy James. The children for the latter and wives were Ida Mary Marshall (died 1879, who married Frederick Metzner/D. N. Broadbent), Andy Marshall (died 1886), Sam Marshall (1890-1890), (James J. Marshall (died 1892), and Jane Ann Marshall (1894-1928), who married Charley Longtail/Tyler Adams). "Kik Tha We Nund" the Delaware Chief William Anderson and His Descendants, p. 180). One family record says that he married a Connor.

Another family record supports the John Marshall/Sarah E. Ketchum marriage. It notes that John Marshall, the son of Betsy Wilaquenaho (whom see), died by 1962. This record says that Sarah E. Ketchum died before 1862, leaving five orphans who were:

1. Rosanna Marshall, born 1850, died young, raised by Anna (Marshall) Grinter.
2. William Washer Marshall, born 1852, died 13 February 1899, was in the household of James Connor in 1862, and married 1 Susan Whiteturkey (Toantoxqua), born c1853, died 1899. They had a daughter Ida Mary Metzner. born 1879, died 1885, and was buried in the buried Bezion Cemetery. William Washer Marshall married second Lizzy Secondine (Waladohhee/Wilatia), born 1864, was the daughter of Jane and Thomas Secondine. Lizzy died in 1922 and was buried in the Bezion Cemetery. Their children were: Charley Marshall, born 1885, died 1885, buried Bezion Cemetery; Andrew "Andy" Marshall, born 1886; Sam Marshall, born 1890, died 1890, born Bezion Cemetery; James J. Marshall, born 1892; Jane Ann "Annie" Marshall, born 1894, married William Tyler Adams; and, Maggie Marshall, born 1896.
3. Anna Marshall, born 1854, died Kansas, and was in the household of Rosanna Grinter.
4. John Marshall, [Jr.], born 1857, and raised by Anna (Marshall) Grinter, died 13 February 1899
5. Mary A. "Polly" Marshall, born 1859, died 26 Feb. 1895, raised by Mary Jane [Grinter] Defries, married 1 Joseph Brown, born 1866, son Joseph Brown, born 1881; married 2 Edson D. Washington, son George W. Washington born 1890. (Much of the above data was provided by Vickie Wilkins .[To be continued.]

(We are trying to sort this out. As I have said before, this is a historical research site, and we are as interested in ongoing research as well as the finished product. If you have something to offer on this or other subjects we are working on, we would appreciate hearing about it. Editor Tom Hahn.

The children of the John Marshall and Lucinda Llewellyn/Flewellyn version, according to Staab, Grinter Place, pp. 6-7 were:
1. Rosanna Marshall, born 8 June 1849. [Source?] She is No. 131 on the Allotment of Delaware Lands in Kansas Under the Treaty of May 1860 as Rosana Marshall, No. 235 on the 1862 Delaware Census, allotment E/2 SE/4, Section 20, Township South 20, Range East 24, 80 acres. (Smith-Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 30) She is on the 15 February 1862 Delaware Census No. 235, 15 December 1862 Allotment No. 13, age 12, under her aunt (her mother's sister), Annie [Marshall] Grinter. (Smith-Arellano, Delaware Trails p. 98.)
2. William H. Marshall, born c1855. [Source?]
3. John Marshall, Jr., born 20 Feb. 1854. [Source?] A John Marshall is listed on the Allotment of Delaware Lands in Kansas under the Treaty of May 1860 , No. 132, No. 236 on 1862 Census Roll, W/2 SE/4 Section 20, Township 11, Range East 24, 80 acres. (Smith-Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 30). In the 15 Feb. 1862 Delaware Census, he is shown as Roll No. 237, Allotment No. 132, an orphan, age 9, living with Anne Grinter. (Ibid, p. 98)
4. Annie Marshall born c1855. [Source?] In 1862, Annie, age 8, was living with Rosanna Grinter. [Staab says that Annie was living with Rosanna Grinter who was the sister of Annie and John, but it is more likely that she would have been living with the Rosanna Grinter who was the elder John's sister.] In the Allotment of Delaware Lands in Kansas Under the Treaty of May 1860, there is a Annie Marshall, No. 43, 1862 Delaware Census Roll No. 245, listed as "dead", with allotment of Lots 5 and 6 in SE/4, Section 36, Township 11, South 11, Range East 23, 77.60 acres. (Smith-Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 27.)
5. Polly Marshall, born c1859. Polly, who was two or three years old in 1862, lived that year in the household of Mary Jane (Grinter) Defries (whom see). Mary Jane was the daughter of Anna Marshall. She married Audley Paul Defries in Johnson County, present Kansas, 3 April 1859.
6. Mary Frances Marshall. The mother of Otelia E. F. Creech, the mother of Arthur Creech, whose nephew Clyde Creek and whose daughter Charlotte C. Simmons provided much of the family data. (Large, "Delawares in Idaho, pp. 61-62 cited in Staab, "Grinter Place," p. 6-8. Large identified William, Lucinda, and Mary Frances as being on the 1867 Pratt Roll.)

[We are trying to distinguish between Lucinda Llewellyn (the alleged wife of John Marshall) and Lucinda Marshall, a daughter of Betsy Wi-la-que-na-ho and William Marshall. Editor] Lucinda, the mother of five children, was listed as living alone in 1862. Which Lucinda is she? Staab summarizes the status of John Marshall's children as follows:

> To summarize the above, the circa 1860 break-up of the John and Lucinda Marshall family left the five children scattered among four households. One of those households was that of Moses [and Annie] Grinter. As late as 1875, two of the five were still living in Kansas with their aunt Annie Grinter. William H. Marshall, the second-born of the five, is recorded by Richard Adams as living in Indian Territory by 1874. (Richard C. Adams Papers, Vol. 7, p. 213, now in the Kenneth Spencer Research Collection, University of Kansas). cited in Staab, Grinter Place, 6-10) The fate of the other two as of 1874-1875 is unknown. None of the five became a U. S. citizen in 1867. It may be that a sixth sibling became the progenitor of the Idaho Delaware" (Staab, Grinter Place, 6-10). The same could be said for the children, except for the sixth, Mary Frances Marshall whether or not the spouse of William Marshall was Lucinda Llewellyn or Sarah E. Ketchum.

Staab also comments that the author Large, may have mistakenly "Lucinda," living with her son William, as living with a husband of that name, and that Lucinda between 1862 and 1867 bore another daughter, whom she named Mary Frances Marshall. Staab notes further, Partially corroborating this is the February 1867 Delaware payroll....which identifies the adult Lucinda Marshall #310, and the minor child William Marshall as #399 . No one else was recording as living with either Lucinda or William, and no other Marshalls (or Grinters for that matter) are listed on that payroll. (Staab, Grinter Place, 6-7, 6-8. Staab commented regarding the whereabouts of John Marshall: I have heard from a Delaware historian/genealogist that this John Marshall did not actually die, but left for Idaho. At this distance one can only surmise the circumstances behind the arrangements visible in the census data. Most of these family facts are from the 1862 census of Delawares contained in Pratt's papers, the 1890 Goodspeed account of the Marshall Family, [and] the Grinter family Bible (for the birth dates of Rosanna and John Jr.).... It should be added that James Connor's maternal grandfather was a Ketchum, and that Annie Grinter's mother's maiden name was also Ketchum. Thus all five children were in the homes of relatives." (Ibid, 6-9)

That John Marshall, the son of Betsy Wilaquenaho and William Marshall lived on the Delaware Reserve in present Kansas is substantiated by several sources: He is probably the male between 10 and 40 on the Roll or Census of the Delaware Tribe of Indians within the Fort Leavenworth Agency for the Year 1842. (Smith-Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 3.) On the Delaware Payroll of 18 April 1857, No. 208 there is a listing for a John Marshall: 1 man, 1 woman, and 6 children, total 6, paid $460.00. (Ibid, p. 14) So, we know that he was married to or living with some woman in that year. A John Marshall No. 183 is listed on the 1 Jan. 1858 Delaware Payroll, again: 1 man, 1 woman, six children, total 6, paid $760.00. (Ibid, p. 22.) A letter of 14 April 1858 to M. McGaskins [name may not be spelled correctly]] from the Osage River Agency said that he was due money from the U. S. Government as a "head" of William H. Marshall, but that does not mean that he was physically there on the Delaware Reserve to receive the money. [Need the other "heads" and source.] One family record says, "Marshall, John 1/2 [blood] on 1858 roll only," implying that he does not show up on later records. That John was a half-blood would fit his situation with and a Delaware mother and a white father.

It appears that John Marshall the elder is not on the allotments for some reason. One has to be careful to try to differentiate between the elder and younger John Marshalls. John Marshall does not appear in Moses R. Grinter's Trading Posts Records 1855-1860. (Smith-Arellano, Delaware Trails, pp. 75-87. However, if he had a Lenape name, we might not associate it with his English name. A Lucinda Marshall is listed separately in the Allotment of Delaware Lands in Kansas Under the Treaty of May 1860 as No. 928, with No. 472 on the 1862 Roll. Her allotment was part of E/2 NE/4 Section 17, Township South 11, Range East 24, 80 acres. She appears alone on the Delaware Census of 15 February 1862 with Census No. 472 and the 12-15-1862 Allotment No. 928, at age 35. However, it appears that we cannot account for the whereabouts of John Marshall the elder from about 1858. [But again, which Lucinda is this?]

The following entries are for a John Marshall, but it is likely that they are for the younger. A pamphlet, perhaps published between 1894 and 1908, about the Delaware who went from Kansas to Indian Territory (present Oklahoma) includes a John Marshall, "living." [Source?] The Register of Delaware Residing in the Cherokee Nation on 4 Aug.1898 in Smith Arellano, Delaware Trails. p. 359, lists No. 401 John Marshall "living" at age 41, with 18 cultivated acres, 10 acres enclosed, and 60 acres not enclosed, with a value $400. The "Index to Delaware Cherokees in The Index to Final Rolls of Cherokees by Blood, Citizens and Freedmen of the Five Civilized Tribes Cherokees 4 March 1907 in Smith Arellano, Delaware Trails, . p.-- lists John Marshall on p. 515 with Delaware Roll No 193; and Smith, Delaware Trails, p. 524, lists No. 194 John Marshall age 45 3/4 blood, Census Card No 181. [Something may be wrong with the blood quantum.] Mary Leiter, a descendant of Wi-la-que-na-ho, said, "Betsy" [Wilaquenaho) (Ketchum?) Marshall may have came into Oklahoma to live with John Marshall, but it is non known whether this was her son or another blood relative. I believe it was the son who married Lucy Conner since most of the Conner's moved in to Oklahoma and lived in the Bartlesville area."

John Marshall, Jr., Willaquenaho's grandson, went to Indian Territory on 30 May 1875. He lived in the CooWeeScooWee District, with a post office address of Nowata, Indian Territory, apparently the spring before Willaquenaho died. (Vickie Wilkins)

MARY ANN MARSHALL

MARSHALL, Mary Ann (married Tiblow) - Mary Ann Marshall, also known as "Polly" or "Pollyanna", was born in 1823 in Missouri, the daughter of Betsy Wilaquenaho, 1862 Allotment No. 70 (whom see under WILAQUENAHO, Betsy) and William H. Marshall. Mary Ann married Henry Tiblow, a promoter of Bonner Springs, Wyandotte County, Kansas. He was born on 9 February 1818 and died on 16 December 1881 and was buried in the Armstrong-Secondine Cemetery in Nowata, Oklahoma. Mary Ann Marshall had No. 117 of the Allotment of Delaware Lands in Kansas Under the Treaty of May 1860, with 1862 Delaware Census Roll No. 781. age 30. Her allotment was in E/2 NW/4, Section 30, Township South 11, Range East 24, 80 acres. She is No. 4 on the list of those to retain their tribal relations in 1867. (Fay Louise Smith Arellano, transcriber. Delaware Trails: Some Tribal Records 1842-1907, "Delaware Indians Who Have Elected to Retain Their Tribal Relations At the Delaware Agency, Kansas, February 1867 , p. 189). Mary Ann had Dawes Commission 1898 No. 32201 and the Delaware-Cherokee 1904 Census No. 10402. She was listed in the Register of Delaware Living in the Cherokee Nation on 4 August 1898, under Betsy Marshall, No. 967, dead, as Mary Marshall, age 76. It appears that in her later years Mary Ann moved in with her daughter, Francis O. Tiblow Brown at probably Big Cabin, Oklahoma. Mary died_____ and was buried in the Big Cabin Cemetery. The grave marker is inscribed "Mary A. TIBLOW." It is a "concrete three-part monument. TIBLOW on middle; a closed ___ atop: ""Asleep in Jesus"" Open gates & stars over name. Footstone M. A. T." (*Tombstone Readings, "*Section #5, p. 155 ) Her daughter, Francis Tiblow-Brown, and other members of the latter's family were also buried in this cemetery. Mary Ann was listed on in the List of 26 Delaware Who Elected to Remain in Kansas under the 1862 Allotment Number No. 117 as Mary Ann Tiblow with the following children:

1. No. 118 Virginia A. Tiblow (Brown), age 19. 1862 Delaware Census No. 782, age 13. Allotment W/2 NW/4 Section 30, Township South 11, Range East 24, 80 acres. No. 5 on the list of Persons Who Chose to Retain Tribal Relations 1867. Her daughter Rosanna is No. 2 on that list.

2. No. 119 Mary Cummins Tiblow. 1862 Delaware Census No. 783, age 11. Allotment E/2 NW/4 Section 31, Township South 11, Range East 24, 80 acres. Married Andrew Stephenson/Stevenson/Stevens. She was No. 1 on the list of Persons who chose to remain in Kansas in 1867. (Smith Arellano, Delaware Trails, p. 189)
3. No. 120 Richard W. C. Tiblow, age 6. 1862 Delaware Census No. 784. Allotment W/2 SE/4, Township South 30, Township East 24, 80 acres. No. 6 on the list of Persons Who Chose to Retain Tribal relations 1867.
4. No. 121 Nathan S. Tiblow (dead). Listed as 8 months old in the 1862 Delaware Census. 1862 Delaware Census No. 786. Allotment W/2 SW/4 Section 30, Township South 11, Range East 24, 80 acres.
5. No. 276 Francis O. Tiblow (Brown), female, age 8. 1862 Delaware Census No. 785. Allotment W/2 NE/4. Allotment W/2 NE/4, Section 31, Township South 11, Range East 24, 80 acres. She married John A. Brown and had Dawes Commission No. 32212 and 1904 Census No. 10439. No. 7 on the list of Persons Who Chose to Retain Tribal Relations 1867. In the interview below in December 1903, she testified that she was 49 years old, born, that is, about 1852. At that time she also testified that she lived at Big Cabin.
6. Charles Tiblow, was born in 1863. He is No. 8 on the list to retain tribal relations 1867.
7. Nancy Jane Tiblow was born in 1865. She is No 9 on the list to retain tribal relations.
Her son Richard W. C. Tiblow No. 118 died before the Dawes and 1904 Census numbers were assigned. Mary Ann Tiblow No. 117 is the mother of Mary (Tiblow) Stevenson, 1862 Allotment No. 119. whom see under TIBLOW, Mary. ROSANNA MARSHALL

James C. Grinter (Provided by Martin Weeks from William E. Connelley, History of the State of Kansas, 1928, vol. 5, pp. 2528-2519)

Rosanna Marshall was the daughter of Betsy Wilaquenaho and William H. Marshall. She was born on 28 February 1832, probably near present Springfield, Greene County, Missouri. However, the 1880 Census for Wyandotte Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas says that Rosanna was born in Kansas, but it does not say where her mother was born. (Latter Day Saints Census Extracts, Family History Library Film 1254400, National Archives Film T9-0400, p. 427C). Rosanna married 15 February 1850 in present Wyandotte County, Kansas. James C. Grinter, the brother of Moses Read Grinter. Moses Grinter married her sister, Anna Marshall. (all of the above whom see). James C. Grinter was born 23 Jan. 1829 in Logan County, Kentucky, died 26 July 1893 at Perry, Jefferson County Kansas, and was buried in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery, Kansas City, Wyandotte County, Kansas. Rosanna was one of the adult Delaware who elected to remain in Kansas in 1866 under the Treaty of May 1860. Rosanna had 1862 Allotment No. 36. and Delaware Census of 1862 No. 238. Her allotment in present Wyandotte County, Kansas, was W/2 NW/4, Section 29, Township 11 South, Range 24 East, 80 acres. Her children's allotments, also in present Wyandotte County, Kansas, cited below, are given after hers in the source. (Smith-Arellano, Delaware Trails: Some Tribal Records 1842-1907, p. 27) In the Allotments No. 888 Betsy Shawnee in the Allotments was given Section W/2 NE/4 of Section 20 in Township 11 (p. 57) which she transferred by sale to Rosanna Grinter (p. 66). (Ibid.) Rosanna died 2 Jan. 1916 and is buried in the Grinter Chapel Cemetery, Kansas City, Delaware Township, Wyandotte County, Kansas. (See below a photo of her in

Article from the Perry [Kansas] Mirror Jan. 6, 1916 regarding her death:

> Mrs. J. C. Grinter Lived in This Part of Kansas 81 Years
>
> Mrs. J. C. Grinter, one of the earliest citizens of eastern Kansas, died at her home in this city last Sunday evening about ten o'clock, death resulting directly from an attack of bronchial pneumonia, to which her advanced age made her an easy victim. She was sick only a few days, and to many people this news of her death preceded knowledge of her illness.
>
> Mrs. Grinter, whose maiden name was Rosanna Marshall, was born at Springfield, Mo., came to this section of Kansas 81 years ago, when a child of two years, and had witnessed the development of come to this area of virgin, almost uninhabited area to its present high stage of development. She was of Indian extraction, the blood of an Indian chieftain coursing in her veins. Her first home in Kansas was on the Delaware reservation in Wyandotte County, near Muncie, which neighborhood was her home until 38 years ago, when she moved with her husband and family to Perry and had ever since made this her home. Her husband died in 1893, but eight children survive, namely: J. M. Grinter of Perry; Mrs. Etta Simmons, Perry; Mrs. Flora Martin, Excelsior Springs, Mo.; Mrs. J. W. Colley, Perry; Mrs. Elizabeth Betts, Kansas City, Kans.; Mrs. James David, Menoken; Mrs. Susanna Schultz, Perry; and Mrs. B. E., Wilson Williamstown. A large number of children and great grandchildren survive her. The last few years f her life were spent in the care of her daughter, Mrs. Simmons, who made her home with her mother.
>
> Mr. Grinter and his brother, Moses, were the first white men to take up claims in Wyandotte county, and Moses married a sister of Mrs. Grinter, the marriage being the first to be entered on the records of that county. Another of her sisters married Henry Tiblow, a Delaware chief who was the founder of the town ofBonner Springs. She was a member of the southern Methodist Church.
>
> The body was taken this morning to Muncie for burialto be buried in the Grinter cemetery surrounding Grinter chapel beside her husband. The funeral service was at the chapel immediately after arrival there. A large number of relatives made the trip from here to be a part of the obsequies.

Personal Ancestral File

We do not know the European origin of the Owen Family. It is a common Welsh name, but it is not uncommon in England. The first Owen -- possibly Benjamin Owen -- that we can identify in our branch of the family, was probably from Dutchess County, in (eastern) New York, but there is a possibility that the first two generations were in (western) Connecticut. {By our branch, I mean the branch of the Owen Family that relates to this site, Lenape-Delaware History. From there, they moved to Delaware and Broome County (Palmer Owen and his son, Benjamin Owen, and their families; the two counties abut one another. From there, many of the family moved to Iowa after the Civil War and appear in the 1870 census in Iowa in Bremer County in northeastern Iowa, and to nearby counties (including the Benjamin Owen and Orson Owen Families.) From there, Orson Owen moved to Kansas, first to the Solomon River Valley in Dickinson County, and then to Parker Township/Parkerville in Morris County. His daughter, Margaret "Maggie" Owen moved to nearby White City in Morris County when she married, and then to Topeka, Shawnee, Kansas; the name in our Owen Line died out on her death. Your editor, Thomas Swiftwater Hahn, is her grandson. Of course, in each generation, there were those who stayed in their "Home" territory and who moved elsewhere.

First Generation

1. Margaret "Maggie" Louise Owen was born on 13 September 1870 in Waverly, Bremer County, Iowa. She died on 29 October 1952 at Newton, Harvey County, Kansas and was buried in November 1952 in the White City Cemetery, Rolling Prairie, Morris County, Kansas.

Margaret married Torgei Torgieson (Thomas "Tom" Torgeson) son of Tarald Torgieson (Thomas Torgeson) and Torbjorg Jonsdatter (Matilda Johnson) on 29 April 1886 at Council Grove, Morris County, Kansas. Torgei was born on 29 September 1857 near Bygland, East Agder, Norway. He died on 30 March 1939 at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. Thomas was buried on 2 April 1939 in the White City Cemetery, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas.

Second Generation

2. Orson Anderson Owen was born on 1 September 1842 at Chardon, Geauga County, Ohio. He married Addaline "Addie" T. Curtis on 26 February 1867 at Deposit, Broome, County, New York. Orson Anderson Owen died on 26 April 1908 at Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas and was buried in the Parkerville Cemetery.

3. Addaline "Addie" T. Curtis was born on 22 April 1851 at Cannonsville, Delaware County, New York. She died on 3 March 1944 at Council Grove, Morris County, Kansas and was buried on 6 March 1944 in the Parkerville Cemetery, Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas.

Third Generation

4. Benjamin "Ben" D. or T. Owen. Benjamin was born on 18 January 1812 in Delaware County, New York. He died on 18 December 1902 in Garden Township, Madrid, Boone County, Iowa and was buried in December 1902 in the Fairview Cemetery, Douglas Township, Madrid, Boone County, Iowa. He married Sarah "Sary" Ann Hulce on 20 Nov 1833 at probably Deposit, Broome County or Delaware County, New York. [The town is in two counties.]

Benjamin Owen 1812-1902

5. Sarah "Sary" Ann Hulce was born on 31 July 1814 at Deposit, Broome County, New York. She died on 11 August 1901 in Garden Township, Boone County, Iowa and was buried in August 1901 in the Fairview Cemetery, Douglas Township, Madrid, Boone County, Iowa.

6. Nathan "Nat" Arthur Curtis was born on 22 December 1822/1823. He married Clarinda Hood on 16 November 1845 in New York. Nathan died on 25 December 1862 and was buried in the Bennettsville Cemetery, Chenango County, New York.

7. Clarinda Hood was born on 18 September 1826 at Masonville, Delaware County, New York. She died on 21 October 1906 in Broome County, New York and was buried in October 1906 in the McClure Cemetery at McClure, Broome County.

Fourth Generation

8. Reverend Palmer Owen was born about 1789/1790 in Dutchess County, New York or in Connecticut. He married Catherine "Kate"_____. Palmer died on 23 January 1864 at Sanford, Broome County, New York and was buried in January 1864 in the Methodist Church Cemetery at Sanford.

9. Catherine "Kate" _____ was born about 1789/1790 in Westchester County, New York. She died on 16 December 1866 at Sanford, Broome County, New York and was buried in December 1866 in the Methodist Church Cemetery, at Sanford.

10. Samuel H. Hulce was born on 10 April 1777 in the Presbyterian Church at Goshen, Orange County, New York. He was christened on 20 July 1777 at Goshen. Samuel married Sarah "Sally" Plummer on 11 February 1802/1803 in New York. Samuel died on 10 October 1853 at Deposit, Broome County, New York and was buried before 10 October 1853 in the Pine Grove Cemetery at Deposit.

11. Sarah "Sally" Plummer was born on 13 June 1780 at Egg Harbor, Atlantic County, New Jersey. She died on 27 April 1859 at Deposit, Broome County, New York and was buried in the Pine Grove Cemetery at Deposit.

12. Nathan Curtis was born on 12 June 1787 in Chesterfield, Hampshire County, Massachusetts. He married Zoe Cudworth on 27 November 1810 at Scituate, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. Nathan died on 4 March 1864 and was buried in March 1864 in the Bennettsville Cemetery at Chenango County, New York.

13. Zoe Cudworth was born on 26 May 1790 at Scituate, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. She was christened on 14 August 1796 at Scituate, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. Zoe died on 13 March 1882 in possibly Nanticoke, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania and was buried there.

14. John Warren Hood was born on 11 May 1802 in Delaware County, New York and was christened on 11 May 1803 in the Reformed Dutch Church at Shawangunk, Ulster County, New York. John married Jerusha Lewis about 1825 in possibly Delaware County, New York. He died after 1875 at Tompkins, Delaware County, New York.

15. Jerusha Lewis was born about 1803 in Delaware County, New York.

Fifth Generation
16. Benjamin Owen (possibly).

20. John Hulce was born in 1754 in Precinct of Wallkill, Ulster County, New York. He married Abigail Williams in 1773/1774 at Goshen, Orange County, New York. John died on 15 December 1811 at Deposit, Broome County, New York.

John Hulce was probably buried in the Revolutionary Way Cemetery at Deposit, Delaware County, New York because he was a veteran of that war and that is where his spouse, Abigail (Williams) Hulce was buried. This is a small, well kept cemetery. (Photo by Tom Hahn c2002)

21. Abigail Williams was born on 17 March 1756 at Groton, New London, Connecticut. She died on 29 May 1803 in Deposit, Delaware County, New York and was buried in 1803 in the Revolutionary War Cemetery at Deposit.

Her grave marker reads "ABIGAIL HULCE died MAY 19, 1802 [?] Aged 48 yrs (Photo by Tom Hahn c2002)

24. Luther Curtis was born on 9 April 1749 at Scituate, Plymouth County, Massachusetts and was christened there on 9 April 1749. Luther married Rebecca Bisbee on 20 May 1773 at Chesterfield, Hampshire County, Massachusetts. He died on 7 April 1830.

25. Rebecca Bisbee was born on 16 March 1753 at Scituate, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. She died on 7 February 1843.

26. John Cudworth was born about 1748/1750 at Scituate, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. He married Elizabeth Clapp on 7 September 1772 at probably Scituate. John died on at Scituate16 February 1827 .

27. Elizabeth Clapp was christened on 27 July 1756 at Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts. She died on 19 June 1841 at Scituate, Plymouth County, Massachusetts.

28. Abraham Hood was born on 10 August 1775 at New Paltz, Ulster County, New York and was christened on 12 March 1775 at New Paltz. Abraham married Rachel Viele on 10 July 1796 at Shawangunk, Ulster County, New York. He died in 1840/1850 in Delaware County, New York.

29. Rachel Viele was born on 9 October 1780 at New Hackensack, New York. She was christened on 19 November 1780 at New Hackensack. Rachel died after 1825.

30. Henricus "Henry" Lewis was born on 28 October 1770 at Shawanguk, Ulster County, New York. He married Mercy Holloway about 1798 in Holland. Henry died on 21 January 1856 at East Branch, Delaware County, New York and was buried in the Old East Branch Cemetery at that place.
31. Mercy Holloway was born in 1782 in Dutchess County, New York. She died on 30 November 1855 at East Branch, Delaware County, New York and was buried in the Old East Branch Cemetery there.

BENJAMIN OWENS ELDER

Researchers: Swiftwater Hahn swiftwater@lenapedelawarehistory.net
Deanna Peterson jpete711@aol.com

Is there anyone else out there who can contribute to the research on this family?

This family probably came from Wales, or England, but no connection has yet been found to the country of origin.

BENJAMIN OWEN Elder, father of Palmer Owen?

Because his son, Palmer Owen, was born about 1789/1790, his father [Benjamin?] would probably not have been born much later than 1770. His other sons possibly included Lewis Owen, Jonathan (John) Owen, and James Owens. The name Solomon Owen seemed earlier to be a candidate for the father of Benjamin Owen. But, the Major Solomon Owen who was born on 3 January 1771 and who died on 7 April 1858 could have been a brother to the possible Benjamin Owen. So, there is the remote possibility that the elder Benjamin Owen had a brother Solomon Owen; accordingly, his data is listed below.

Census Records:

Census 1790 Windham County, Connecticut: Benjamin Owen 2 white males under 16;2 white males 16 and over; 4 white females

Census Index 1800 New York*, p.1074 (LDS Family History Library 974.7)*
There are entries for many Owen Families.
CENSUS 1800 US New York: There is a Benjamin Owen in Wallkill, Orange County, New York. Ancestry.com , p.344 or 334. No. of Family:

Census 1810 US New York. There is a Benjamin Owen in Onondaga County #026 32010-12.
Line 20. Lewis Owens: Males 1 (26-45); Females 1 under 10, 1 (16-26)
Line 21. Benjamin Owens: Males 1 (16-26), 1 (45 and over); Females 1 (16-26), 2 (45 and over) Assuming one female 45 and over was Benjamin Owen's spouse, then who is the second female over 45?) Was this his mother? Or her mother?

[Line 20. Lewis Owens [possible brother]: Males 1 (26-45); Females 1 under 10, 1 (16-26)]
*[Line 21. Benjamin Owens [Possible father of Palmer]: Males 1 (16-26), 1 (45 and over); Females 1 (16-26), 2 (45 and over) Assuming one female 45 and over was Benjamin Owen's spouse, then who is the second female over 45?) Was this have been his mother? Or her mother?]
Line 22. Palmer Owens. Males 1 (16-26); Females 1 (16-26). This is the first time that Palmer Owen was enumerated as a head of household. From this census it appears possible that Palmer and Lewis were Benjamin Owen's sons.

Census 1855 New York , Broome County, Sandford. James L. Owens, age

56 [1809], born Orange County. Mary Owens, age 56, wife. Mary A Owens, age 24 [1841], daughter born Ohio. Harriet A. Owens, age 23 [1842], daughter, born Ohio. Ann H. Owens, age 20, daughter born New Jersey. Alfred nephew, born New Jersey. It appears that James L. Owens could be a son of the earlier Benjamin Owens -- the possible father of Palmer Owens. In an attempt to find out, I went to the 1850 census for Broome County, but James L. Owen was not there. A search of the state of New York revealed that he was in 1850 Deerpark, Orange County, New York Census in the enumeration of 26 September, p.556 (606), Line 37, Dwelling 58 Family 59 as James L. Owen, age 41, laborer, born New York. Line 38 Mary Owen [his wife]. age 41, born in New York. Almeda Owen, age 11, born in Ohio, attended school. Harriet Owen, age 9, born in Ohio. Anne A. Owen, age 5, born in New Jersey, Samuel Owen, age 2, born in New York. The fact that two of his children were born in Ohio (1839 and 1841) was of interest because his grand-nephew, Orson Owen, who was the son of the younger Benjamin Owen who was the son of born of Palmer Owen, James L. Owen's possible brother, was born in Ohio in 1840. The point being, that Orson was the only one of the family born in Ohio and no reason could be found for his parents, Benjamin and Sarah (Hulce) Owens being in in Ohio. Having Owen relatives there suggests the possibility that Benjamin and Sarah could have been been visiting or living with them or some other member of the Owen Family at the time. However, I have as yet to find their location in the 1840 census.

Census 1860 New York , Broome County, Sandford, p.606 (556), MyFamily.com/Ancestry.com image 8/96 researched 18 April 2005, Line 37, Dwelling 58 Family 59, James L.[?] Owens, age 51 [1809], farmer, real estate worth $2,000, personal property worth 700, was born in New York. Line 20 [His wife,] Mary Owens, age 51, was born in New York. [His daughter], Mary Owens, at age 19, was a teacher, and was born in New York. Harriet Owens, at age 18, was born in New York and Ann Owens, at age 18[?], was born in New York. This family was the next neighbor to James Graves and his wife, Clarissa Graves, the daughter of Palmer Owen. Palmer had a son James Reuben Owen, but he was born on 30 April 1829, approximately one generation earlier. [James being a possible son of the earlier Benjamin Owen.]

Miscellaneous Data

In the "The Town of Hancock," History of Delaware County (1880) there is a mention of a Benjamin Owen: 1785 . . . Benjamin Owen has a fish-weir below the forks at Schehawken, and he has caught quantities of bass in his weir.

The Day Books of Dr. French mention Major Owen on page 1840.

In looking for a Benjamin Owen in Ohio, to explain the birth of his son, Orson's birth there in 1840, there is a census entry for Concord, Lake County of a Benjamin Owen age 15-20 with 1 female under 5 and 1 female 15-20. (Ancestry.com Online Image 1 o 10, Microfilm Roll 407.

Plittershagen and Freudenberg can be seen at the upper left. I will try to come up with a better image. Editor

To my knowledge, the principal researchers, in the United States, of the Stahlschmidt Family in Germany and first Stahlschmidt's to the United States are Douglas S. Rogers and Arthur Weaner, authors of Excerpts [of the] German

Church Registers of Plittershagen, Freudenberg and Seigen as Pertains to the Surname Stahlschmidt Ancestors and Families of the Emigrant John Georg Stahlsmit Ship Edinburgh - Philadelphia 1753. Their work in progress of a three-volume set of research on the family. The first volume was published in 1997. The principal researchers of the Jacob Stahlschmidt, the first of his branch of the Stahlschmidt's to come to America. and his family and the next generation of descendants is Vonda Moore. Another valuable researcher is Jim Haggerty. I am grateful for all their diligent research and assistance. Editor

Our branch of the Stahlschmidt came from an area of German known earlier as the Nassu Territories, in an area known as Nassu-Siegen. The principal town was the Village of Plittershagen and some of the church activities took place at the larger, nearby town of Freudenberg. Plittershagen was settled in the year 1048. In 1696 it had 13 houses and two steel hammer mills [?] [Stählhammer] E. (Hans-Jurgen Klappert, Siegfried Meyer, Rudolf Alt, Freudenberg Lebendige Verganhenheit, p.4) The first Stahlschmidt, Johan George Stahlschmidt, with his wife Anna Maria Margaretha (Reinschmidt) Stahlschmidt, and three children, left Plittershagen for America from the Port of Rotterdam and arrived at Philadelphia on or about 2 October 1753, at which time. (Pennsylvania German Pioneers, a publication of the Pennsylvania German Society, 1934. Volume 1, p.576) The first Stahlschmidt of "our" branch of the family, Jacob Stahlschmidt, may have been a Jacob Schmidt [contraction of Stahlschmidt, who arrived at Philadelphia in the Fall of 1770. (Pennsylvania German Pioneers, p.30) Both men appear to have arrived at the Port of Philadelphia and to have taken up residence in the Tulpehocken locale of Lancaster/Berks/Dauphin Counties, Pennsylvania. They were second cousins who shared the same paternal grandfather. Johan Georg Stahlschmidt may have gone there as there is evidence of others of the name Stahlschmidt at Tulpehocken. Johan George Stahlschmidt and his wife Anna Maria appear in the Church Records in Tulpehocken, Lancaster County, by 1754. (John T. Humphrey, Pennsylvania Births in Lebanon County) In any event, the first Jacob Stahlschmidt in the historical records in America, the second cousin of the first Stahlschmidt -- Johan George Stahlschmidt -- was in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania [that section to become Lebanon County in 1813] by 26 May 1771, when he was the sponsor at a baptism. Evidently, Jacob Stahlschmidt went to the area where he had relatives, albeit a second cousin. [They had in common the same paternal grandfather.]

According the Steinseifer's genealogy, Johann Peter Stahlschmidt was baptized on 24 April 1712 at Plittershagen. We do not know when or where he was born, but probably at Plittershagen. He died there in 18 October 1760 and was buried on 20 October 1760. His parents were Johann Georg Stahlschmidt and Anna Margaret Halm, of Plittershagen. Johan Peter Stahlschmidt married at Freudenberg on 9 December 1737 Anna Catharina Waffenschmidt. She was born on 13 September 1711 at Plittershagen. Anna died on 11 June 1762 at Plittershagen. She was buried at Freudenberg. Her parents were (Johan) Henrich Waffenschmidt and (Anna) Catharine Halm. Their children were:

1. Stephan Stahlschmidt was born on 27 June 1738 at Plittershagen and was baptized on 29 June 1738 at Plittershagen. The Godfather was Stephan Stahlschmidt, son of Johan Georg [Stahlschmidt], Plittershagen. He died on 3 November 1740.
2. Anna Elisabeth Stahlschmidt was born at Plittershagen on 30 October 1739 and was baptized at Plittershagen on 8 November 1739. Godmother Anna Elisabeth Waffenschmid, daughter of Henrich [Waffenschmid], Kirchenältester [Church Elder?], Plittershagen. She married at Oberfischbach 24 August 1773 (prokl. [proclaimed?] Fr. [Freudenberg [?]) Johannes Langenbach, Wwr. [?], Niedendorf. It appears that she went to America as she is not in the Church Records. [Pastor B. Steinseifer wrote a 28-page Stahlschmidt Genealogy based on the Church Records of Plittershagen and Freudenberg, Germany. Doug Rogers stahlhammer.dsr@verizon.net , who provided an extract of this genealogy, says that the author said, "When there was no death recorded, then that individual went to America."
3. Gütha Stahlschmidt was born at Plittershagen on 25 December 1741 and was baptized at Plittershagen on 31 December 1741. Godmother Gütha Noehe, daughter of Johan Phillip [Noehe], Plittershagen. She married (at Freudenberg) on 18 July 1765 Hans Stephan Wissel, son of Johannes [Wissel], Plittershagen. It appears that she went to America as she was not in the Church Records.

4. Jacob Stahlschmidt* was born at Plittershagen on 25 January 1743 and was baptized at Plittershagen on 2 March 1743. Godfather Jacob Dilthey, son of Peter Dilthey, Plittershagen. He went to The United States. (Freudenberg Church Record, p.133) See his expanded entry, below.

5. Henrich Stahlschmidt was born at Plittershagen on 5 March 1745 and was baptized at Plittershagen on 14 March 1745. Godfather: Henrich Waffenschmidt, Plittershagen. His mother's brother. He married (at Freudenberg) on 21 February 1769 Anna Christina Henrich, daughter of Johann Ebert [Henrich] Caan.

6. Johannes Stahlschmidt was born at Plittershagen on 5 March 1747 and was baptized at Plittershagen on 12 March 1747.
P.[athe] [Godfather: Johannes Benner. He died at Plittershagen on 19 April 1747 and was buried at Freudenberg on 20 April 1747.

7. Anna Maria Stahlschmidt was born at Plittershagen on 29 March 1748 and was baptized at Plittershagen on 12 March 1748. Godmother: Anna Maria Waffenschmidt. Daughter of Henrich Waffenschmidt, Kirchenältester, Plittershagen. She married at Freudenberg on 15 April 1785 Henry Kraft, son of Johan Henrich [Kraft], Freudenberg. The fact that her death was not recorded in the Church Records indicates that she went to America.

Third Generation

12. Johann Georg Stahlschmidt was born in 1678. He was christened on 2 May 1678. Johann Georg was a judge. He married Anna Magareta Halm. Johan Georg died at Plittershagen and was buried at Freudenberg on 28 September 1691.
13. Anna Magareta Halm.
14. (Johann) Henrich Waffenschmidt was born in of Plittershagen, Nassu-Siegen, Germany. He married (Anna) Catharina Halm.
15. (Anna) Catharina Halm was born in of Plittershagen, Nassu-Siegen, Germany.

Fourth Generation

28. Johan Weigant Stahlschmidt was born in 1654 and was christened on 16 May 1654. He married Maria Muller. John Weigant [apparently commonly called "Weigant" must have moved shortly after the birth of his second child to Plittershagen, as he appears as godfather on 26 May 1656 of a person described as Johann Georg Stahlschmidt von Plittershagen. He died in 1691.
29. Anna Maria Muller .
Their children, all born at Plittershagen, were:

1. Johann Stahlschmidt was born on 9 February 1662.
2. Anna Maria Stahlschmidt was born on 5 August 1664.
3. Anna Margaretha Stahlschmidt was born on 76 March 1667.
4. Tillmann Stahlschmidt was born on 18 February 1670. He married at Herborn on 29 September 1694, Anna Catharina Nies. She was the daughter of Franciscus Nies. She was probably born at Herborn as was her brother, Philip Nies. Anna Catharina was buried at Laasphe on 6 November 1701 at the age of 27 years. Tillman married second Anna

Christina Hildebrandt, the daughter of Hermann Hildebrandt of Herborn. She was buried on 15 January 1705 at Laasphe. Tillmann married third Anna Maria, the daughter of Moritz Moeller and Anna Martha.

5. Arnold Stahlschmidt was born on 4 October 1672 and was buried on 27 December 1684.

6. Margaretha Stahlschmidt was christened on 20 June 1675.

* 7. Johann Georg Stahlschmidt was christened on 2 May 1678. He was a judge. Johann George died at Plittershagen and was buried at Freudenberg on 28 September 1691.

Fifth Generation

56. Johann Georg or George Stahlschmidt was born in 1629. He married Anna Catherina Cuntze. He died at Niederndorf in 1691 and was buried on 4 April 1652 at Oberfischbach.

58. Anna Catherina Cuntze.

Their children were:

1.* Weigandt Stahlschmidt* was christened on 16 May 1654.

2. Anna Maria Stahlschmidt was christened on 20 April 1656.

Sixth Generation

112. Anton/Antonius, or Thones Stahlschmidt married Hanna Zeitenbach. He died in Niederndorf, Germany. He was buried on 4 April 1652 in Ober Fischbach, Germany.

113. Hanna Zeitenbach was the daughter of Pastor Zeydenbach and his wife, Else, of Ober Fischbach. Pastor Zeydenbach died in December 1627at Niedertiefenbach (Hadamar).

Their children were:

1.* Johan Georg Stahlschmidt* was born in 1628 and died on 26 September 1691. He married on 16 June 1650 Anna Catharina, the daughter of Noelle (Arnold) and Catharina Cuntze of Niederheuslingen where he resided and where two children were born.

2. Heinrich Stahlschmidt was christened on 20 October 1638. He married on 26 July 1658 Anna Margareth. She was the daughter of Johannes Weissgerber of Niedendorf.

3. Johannes Stahlschmidt was born was christened on 1 September 1641. He married on 30 July 1661 Catharina Rauting. Her father was Hannes Rauting of Ferndorf, a judge of that city.

4. Hans Peter Stahlschmidt was christened on 17 July 1644. He married on 9 May 1666 Anna Catharina Beer. She was the daughter of Johannes Beer of Niederheuslingen.

5. Matthias Stahlschmidt was christened on 16 December 1647. He married on 28 January 1673 Margaretha Weber. She was the daughter of Matthias Weber of Siegen.

6. Catharina Stahlschmidt was christened on 16 December 1649 and was buried on 18 December 1653.

JACOB STAHLSCHMIDT

Credit for this section is almost entirely due to Vonda Moore of Chicora, Pennsylvania plus those who have helped her along the line. Though I haven't always quoted her, the research and the language are largely hers. If you have information that would help the research of this line or have questions about the research, please contact her at 178 Fairmont Road, Chicora, Pennsylvania 16025-3006. As always, I can be contacted at swiftwater@lenapedelawarehistory.net Vonda and I share the same ancestors in Michael Fair and Mary Barbara Steelsmith. They are Tom's third paternal great grandparents and Vonda's fourth maternal great grandparents.

Jacob Stahlschmidt was born around eleven o'clock in the evening on 25 November 1743 at Plittershagen, Nassu-Siegen, Germany. He was baptized on 3 February 1743 at Plittershagen. The Godfather at the baptism was Jacob Diltkey, son of Peter Diltkey. From the translation of the Freudenberg Church Record, p. 133: "1743 the 3rd of Febr[uary] on the same day, Johann Peter Stahlschmidt and Anna Catharin [Waffenschmidt] [of] Plittershagen married people, had a young son baptized, who was born the No. 4 [in line] 25th January in the evening around 11 o'clock: Godfather is Jacob Diltkey, Peter Diltkey of Plittershagen legitimate son, and the child was thus named Jacob." Jacob Diltkey, the son of Peter Diltkey, was named as the godfather at the baptism.

According to John T. Humphrey in 2006, Pennsylvania Births, p. 164 (ISBN 1-8876098-20-2) from the "Records of the Lutheran and Reformed Congregations in Hamilton Township, Jacob and Maria Sarah Stahlschmid had a son, Johannes, born on 14 March 1786 in Hamilton Township, Monroe County, Pennsylvania. Whether or not they actually lived in Monroe County is not presently known. Monroe County, formed in 1836, was situated north of Kittatinny Mountain where settlement had begun early in the eighteenth-century. Initially Monroe County was a part of Northampton County. (Jacob Steelsmith died in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, at the the age of 85 years in 1828.)

Based on her age of 93 at her death, his spouse, Sarah Steelsmith, was born about 1753. The tradition is that her last name was Wolf. However, under Early Germans of New Jersey, in the will of Lodoway/Loedowick/ Ludwig/Lewis) Cline at Greenwich, Sussex County (now Warren County), dated 11 July and probated 16 August 1796, a Sarah Steelsmith was listed as a daughter. Jacob and Sarah Steelsmith also named a son Ludwig/Lewis. It thus appears that her family name was Cline/Kline.

Based on her age of 93 at her death, his spouse, Sarah Steelsmith, was born about 1753. Jacob and Sarah Steelsmith also named a son Ludwig/Lewis. It thus appears that her family name was Cline/Kline.

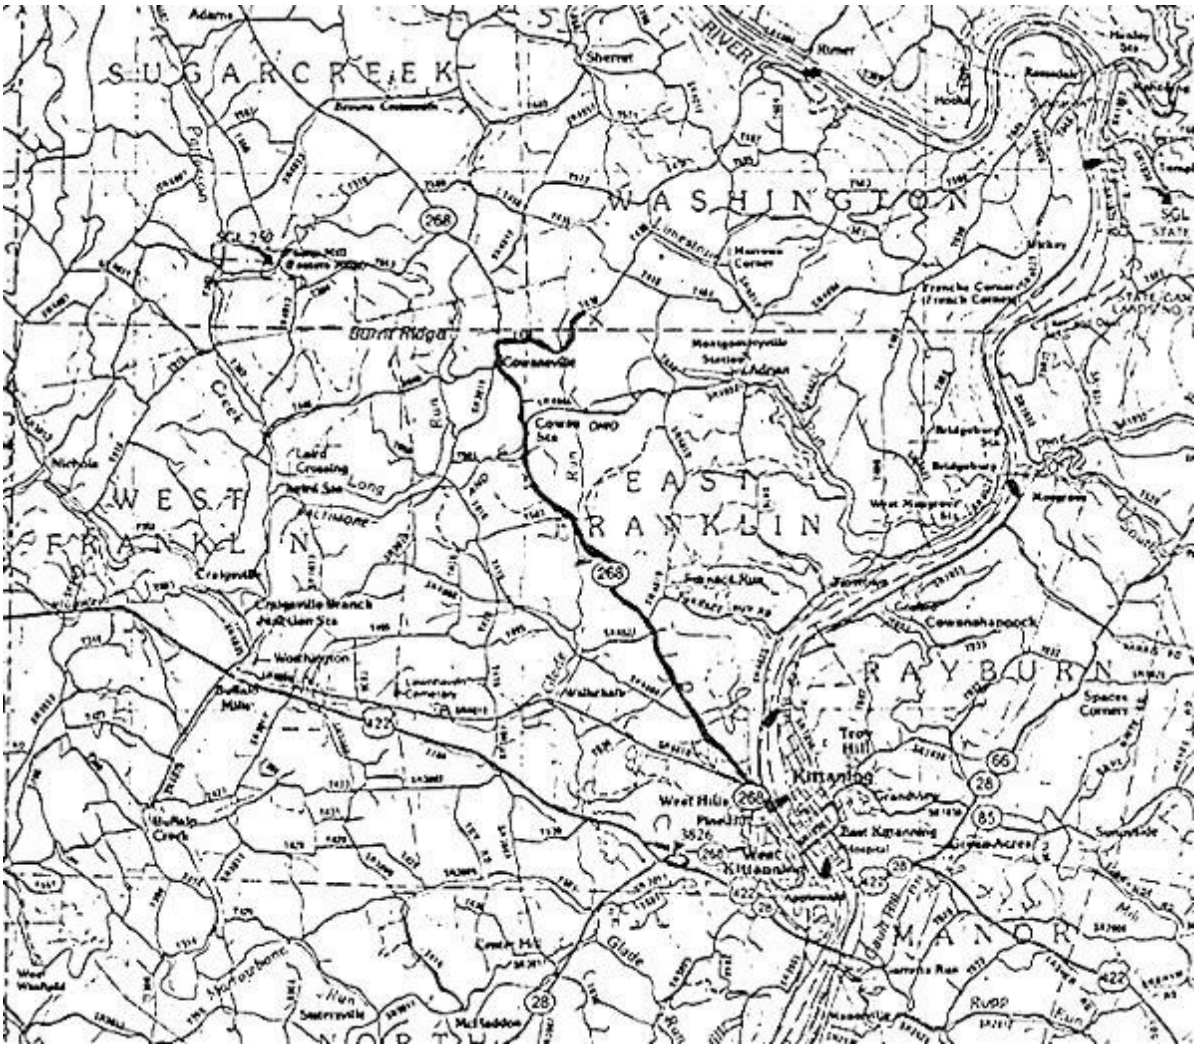
The name "Stahlschmidt" was changed "Steelsmith" sometime after the family came to the United States. We do not know when and to what port Jacob Stahlschmidt came to this country from Germany. His name does not appear in Strassburg/Hinkey's Pennsylvania German Pioneers among the ship arrivals. However, a possible candidate, as mention earlier, is Jacob Schmit, on page 730. It was common for names like Stahlschmidt to be shortened to names like Smid(t). For example, "Sarah, wife of Jacob S. Smith."The names adjacent to his in the passenger list are also from his area of Germany. The entry read:

> [List 281 C] At Messieurs Willing and Morris's Store, Philadelphia, the 1st of October, 1770. Present: Thomas Willing, Esquire. The Foreigners whose Names are hereunder written, imported in the ship Minerva, Thomas Arnott, Master, from Rotterdam but last from Cowes, did this day take and subscribe the usual; Qualifications. Consigned to Messieurs Willing & Norris: ... Jacob (J) Schmit.

Whether or not he is the same as Jacob Stahlschmidt is not known at this time. It does not matter greatly, as our Jacob Stahlschmidt appears as a sponsor in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania of Jacob Bene, the son of Jacob Bene and Anna Maria Bene on 26 May 1771. One source [which?] lists this Church Record as that of the Trinity Tulpehocken Church. John T. Humphrey's Pennsylvania Births of Lebanon County lists this church as the Tulpehocken Reformed Church in Jackson Township, Lebanon County, Pennsylvania.

In 1777-1792, Jacob Stahlschmidt was in New Jersey, according to baptismal; records. (Knowlton, Warren County, NJ Records of the First German and English of the Congregation, Volume 1918, pp.123 and 179 and Volume 1919, p.88) In 1786 and 1786 he was an overseer or a witness named in two wills in Hamilton Township, Northampton (now Monroe) County, Pennsylvania. That is, Jacob Steelsmith was an witness of the will of Simon Heller of Northampton County, Hamilton Township, now Monroe County, Pennsylvania. (Case 275, Northampton County, Pennsylvania Wills) He was also a witness of the will of Simon Heller Nicholas Gower in March of 1786 (Case 230, ibid.) We do not know the relationship of Jacob and these men. Because Hamilton Township was near the Pennsylvania/New Jersey border, Jacob Stahlschmidt was probably still living in New Jersey still living in New Jersey. His son, Johannes, was born in Hamilton County, Monroe, Pennsylvania in 1786, but we don't don't whether he lived in Pennsylvania for a short period of time or was just traveling back and forth from New Jersey, as it was only a short distance.

Jacob Stahlschmidt Lived at or near Knowlton, Knowlton Township, Warren County, New Jersey at One Time



Jacob Steelsmith was in Armstrong County by at least 1793. (The History of Armstrong County (1883," ... 399 acres and 146 perches, on which Joseph Steelsmith began an improvement in 1793, a settlement on 7 May 1796, which Ross, deputy surveyor, surveyed to him on on 9 July1801, and for which, called "Smith's Choice," the patent was granted to him on 3 September 1810). ("Washington Township," History of Armstrong County, p. 549) It appears Jacob Stahlschmidt and his wife, Sarah, lived in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania at one time. Vonda Moore said, "It appears that Sarah and the younger children stayed there -- probably in the Greensburg area -- from 1793 though the Spring of 1796. Jacob and sons would have been clearing land in the territory that became Armstrong County and traveling back and forth at various times."

In 1808, Jacob Stahlschmidt was the witness of the 1807 will of Elizabeth Fites (Taits) The will said that Elizabeth was the widow of Oely Faits/Titz (Will Book, Vol. 1, Page 4, Estate 12.) A deed where she was selling land to William Brown said that the land was a part of the tact of land Jacob Steelsmith now lives and that the said Jacob sold to Elizabeth Faits) adjoining Henry Heasley, Lewis Steelsmith and others) containing 70 acres. [The source of this deed is needed.] Jacob Steelsmith died in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, in 1828 at the age of 85, and he was buried in the Fair Cemetery in Washington Township of that county.

An item in the 26 July 1828 (Saturday) issue of Kittanning (Armstrong County) Gazette said of Jacob Steelsmith's death: "Died on Thurs. morn last [17 July?], Jacob Steelsmith of Sugar Creek Twp., age 90 yrs., one of the 1st settlers of Armstrong County." There is a discrepancy between Jacob Steelsmith's year of birth of 1743 according to the baptismal record and that of the this newspaper item; the latter would make his birth year 1838. Unfortunately, though the name and and date are barely legible on his grave marker, the age when he died is not. A reliable witness, who observed he marker years ago, said that that time that the inscription on the marker gave his age as 85 when he died in 1828.

The remains of Jacob Steelsmith's Grave Marker in the Fair Cemetery (Provided by Jim Haggerty)

Fair Cemetery, Washington Township, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania

Vonda Moore describes the cemetery as being is located on dirt-surfaced Pence Road, near Cowansville. Perhaps 1 /1/ to 2 1/2 miles up this road, there is another little road bearing off to the right. This is an area where there has been strip mining in recent years. The cemetery is now well taken care of and sits on a little knoll. It is difficult to see from the road. There is now a sign "Fair Cemetery, whereas earlier there was no sign. The cemetery seems to be located on part of the original grant to Jacob Steelsmith.

We do not know when or where Jacob married Sarah Cline[?]. She died in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania in 1743 [Source?] at age 93, that is, she was born around 1753. The Tradition in the Steelsmith and the related Families that Sarah's family name was Wolf. However, in Early Germans of New Jersey, the Will of Lodoway (Loedowick, Ludwig, or Lewis) Cline of Greenwich, Sussex (now Warren) County, dated 11 July 1796 and probably probated on 16 August 1796, lists a Sarah Steelsmith as a daughter. This is in the right time frame and in New Jersey, a state where it appears that members the Steelsmith Family lived at about that time. Therefore, it seems probable that her family name was Cline/ Kline. Her names appears variously as Maria, Mary or Sara/Sarah or the names combined in one way or another. Sara, Mary Sara/ Sarah Mary, but in Pennsylvania where she appeares later, the name/s used were Sara or Sarah.

Further Cline Family census research in New Jersey would be helpful.

This is the item on Lodoway Cline from The Early Germans of New Jersey: Their History, Churches, and Genealogy

> LODOWAY (Loedowick, Ludwig or Lewis) Cline, whose will, Greenwich, Sussex [now Warren Co., 11 July, prob.[ated] 16 Aug., 1796, names ch; LODOWAY, left 5 sons and 5 daughters, Lewis and Dr. Garner, of Harmony, John of Franklin, Michel, of Greenwich, Mrs. Christian Davidson and others; MICHEL rem. [oved] to Indiana; SARAH STEELSMITH; MARGARET DESMOND; ELIZABETH TEAL; MARY BURK, (Dec.[eased]) ELISABETH RITHER, (dec.)' CATHARINE TEAL, (dec.)

Sarah was buried in what is now known as the Fair Cemetery in Washington Township, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania.

This is all that remains of the grave marker of Sarah (Cline?) Steelsmith. Though barely legible, Vonda Moore says the marker says that he was the wife of Jacob S. Smith, rather than spelling our Steelsmith. She notes that this abbreviation was also used on a neighbor's land survey map. "(Photo provided by Vonda Moore)

These are thought to be the children of Jacob and Sarah Steelsmith, as provided by Researcher Vonda Moore. One wonders why there are birth records for the sons but not the daughters:

1. Catharina Stahlschmidt was born 1774-1776. Catherina Stahlschmidt was the sponsor, with Frederick Moyer, of one child of Johannes Leonard and his wife, Anna on 13 December 1795 in Westmoreland County [Pennsylvania].

(Volume II, Mt. Pleasant Church, Westmoreland County Church Records, translator Rev. Paul Ruff. This is the only reference that has been found for a Catharine Steelsmith, but it is assumed that she was the daughter of Jacob and Sarah Steelsmith since they were the only know Steelsmith Family in the area.

2. Ludwig (Lewis) Stahlschmidt was born on 23 December 1777 and was baptized on 22 February 1778 at Knowlton, Warren County, New Jersey (Records of the First German and English Congregation). He went with his family to present Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. He married Maria/Mary _____, possibly a neighbor. In 1808. Ludwig (Lewis) was the executor of the Will o7 1807 of Elizabeth Fites (Taits) in Armstrong County Witness: Jacob Stahlschmidt and David Helmn. (Will Book, Vol. 1, Page 4, Estate 12.) Lewis Steelsmith was in the War of 1812 in Capt. John Guthrie's Company, drafted from the 150th Regiment of the 15th Division of Pennsylvania Militia. (Pennsylvania Archives ((Second Series)), Vol. 12, pages 187-188.) Lewis Steelsmith was enumerated in the 1810 Federal Census in Sugar Creek Township, Armstrong County, 297; 1820 Census in Richland Township, Venango County, 012; 1830 Census in Beaver Township, Verango County, 050; and, 1840 Census in Elk Township, Venango County, 123. Lewis Steelsmith (Stahlschmidt) was in a list of Tax Payers in Richland Township, Venango County, in 1820, as well as a Jacob Steelsmith, who probably his son. Researcher Philip Haggerty told Vonda Moore in a letter that Lewis Steelsmith and his wife, Mary, attended the St. Paul's Church near Knox, Venango County, Pennsylvania, and they took communion there until 1842 when they longer appear in the church records. It should be noted that Beaver Township, Richland Township, and Knox, Pennsylvania became a part of Clarion County. It is said that a "Mr. Steelsmith" taught German and English school at the first school house, built in 1821, in Clarion County. [Because the source didn't say what year he taught, we can't be sure whether or not is was Lewis Steelsmith or a son. Philip Haggerty found Mary Steelsmith enumerated in the 1860 census in Farmington Township, Clarion County, with her daughter, Sarah Killen, the spouse of Robert Killen.

According to Haggerty, the children of Lewis and Mary/Maria Steelsmith were: Jacob. G. Steelsmith of Westmoreland County; Sarah and John Steelsmith of Clarion and Mercer Counties; and, Michael Steelsmith of Clarion and Mercer Counties. It appears that Ludwig and Maria, that is Lewis and Mary, had at least two other children: there were at least two other children: one was Elisabeth Stahlschmidt was born on 21 June 1804. (List of "Confirmands" at the Richland Congregation on 30 April 1825. Journal of Gabriel Adam Reichert. Reichert was a Lutheran Pastor in Indiana, Armstrong, and adjacent counties; the other was Catherina who married Johannes Diehl ("GEB June 156, 1824 GET Aug. 1, 1824.) The Church Records of Westmoreland County show a Johannes Stahlschmidt born on 15 January 1810 and baptized on 3 November 1811 with then parents as Ludwig Stahlschmidt and Maria. (Reverend Paul Miller Ruff, German Church Records of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, Volume 3. WB3378)

3. Elisabeth Stahlschmidt was born possibly about 1779 or 1781. The only record for her as a Stahlschmidt is that of a Elisabeth Stohlschmill, that is Stahlschmidt. In that record, a daughter, Franzina, was born to George Otterman and Elisabeth Stohlschmill [Stohlschmitt?] on 3 February 1797. (German Church Records of Westmoreland County, Western Pennsylvania, translated by Rev. Paul Miller Ruff. Rev. Ruff told Vonda More that the recorder unintentionally made the "a" look like an "o" and didn't cross the "tt's," so that they appeared to be "lls.") The name of the daughter, Francina, was probably after George Otterman's mother. George Otterman, born in 1776, was the son of Ludwig Otterman and Francina Otterman. It is not kown what happened to Elizabeth Stahlschmidt, but in October 1798 George Otterman then married Elizabeth Wegley. If Elizabeth was buried in the Fair Cemetery, no marker remains. It is thought that the daughter, Francina or "Franny, was raised" by the maternal grandparents, Jacob and Sarah Stahlschmidt, because there isn't a a child in the right age category in the 1800 censes for George Otterman whereas there is one for Jacob "Stillsmith." Francina "Franny" Otterman married Henry Reep and resided in Fairview/Parker Township of Butler County, Pennsylvania. Two of their daughters married Ellenbergers.

*4. Mary Barbara Steelsmith was born on 24 June 1780 in New Jersey and died in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania on 7 July 1870 at the age of 90 years and 13 days. (The birth date was calculated based on the inscription on her grave marker that she died 7 July 1870 at the age of 90 years and 13 days. The birthplace was given as New Jersey in the 1850 Federal Census) Mary B. Steelsmith married Michael Fair. Michael Fair was born 10 November 1775. (The birth date was calculated by the data in his grave marker that says that he died on 10 August 1860 at 84 years and 9 months. However, in a legal document filed by his grandsons, the death date was 10 August 1861) The fact of who were Michael Fair's parents has not been confirmed. Family history and the monograph Altman, Say, Cribbs, and Fair History says that Michael Fair was the son of Benen Jacob C. Fehr and Christina Beschlein of Bucks County, Pennsylvania. Other researchers say that Michael Fair was the son of John and Barbara Fair/Fahr/Fehr. That John Fehr died about 1808 in Berks County, Pennsylvania. Michael Fair was said to have gone to western Pennsylvania with the Steelsmith Family. Based on their ages, he and Mary Steelsmith may have met in Westmoreland County. They were probably married 1798/1799, as their first child, Sarah, was born in 1800. In the 1800 Census Index for Butler County, Pennsylvania, Michael Fair is listed on page 333 with one male 16-26, 1 female under 10, and 1 female 16-26. There is a John Fair, possibly his brother, also listed on page 33 with 1 male under 10, 1 male 16-26, and 1 female 16-26. In the 1803 Tax List of Butler County, Michael Fair and John Fair are both listed with 400 acres of land. The History of Butler County (1833), p. 275, refers to Michael Fair and John Fair being there early, lived on a farm of P. P. Bricker, but moved away.

Vonda Moore says: I have seen several lists of the children of Michael Fair and Mary B. Steelsmith, but the following have been documented. There were possibly others who died young:

1. Sarah Fair, born 1800, married Peter Fair, son of a John Fair born 1770.

*2. Elizabeth Fair was born in 1802. She died in 1891. John Ellenberger's family were early settlers in Armstrong County. Pennsylvania. John was the son of Charles/Carl Ellenberger and Elizabeth Detter. Charles/Carl went to Armstrong County with his mother, Barbara, and his stepfather, Leonard Trees. See the Ellenberger Family Family folder.

3. Johannes "John" Fair was born in April 1807 and baptized on 2 October 1808, the son of Michael Fehr, that is Fehr/Fair, and Maria. (Vol. II. German Church Records) John married in 1828 Mary Christman, the daughter of John Christman.

4. Isaac Fair was born in 1811. In 1832, he married first Catharin Staufer. Isaac married second, on 24 May 1874, Elizabeth Early, the daughter of Andrew Early and the widow of Mathia Wolfe.

5. Simon Fair was born on 28 June 1813. He married Catharin?

6. Eli Fair was born in 1818. He married Anna Christman in 1836. Eli was listed in the Pittsburgh Synod-Lutheran Church, and later in the Allegheny Synod. In the 1860s, he was listed as living in Stevenson County, Illinois.

5. Jacob Stahlschmidt was born on 27 August 1782. He was baptized on 19 September 1782 at Knowlton, Warren County, New Jersey. Witnesses were Jacob Dieder and his wife, Catharina. (Knowlton, Warren County, New Jersey Records of the First German and English congregation) Jacob married Susannah Williams, the daughter of Daniel Willems/Williams and his wife, Christina, of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania. Vonda Moore says that, "Histories and tradition say Daniel was the brother of Franzina (Willems) Otterman, the mother of George Otterman. After Daniel Williams died, Christina later married John Henry Rambaugh. Jacob Steelsmith (Jr.) and his wife, Susannah, remained in Westmoreland County. In 1805, Jacob was living in Westmoreland County, but purchased Lot 87 in Kittanning. No record shows that he lived in Kittanning, and the lot was sold to Michael Mechling in 1814. Both of these deeds were recorded in 1836. The German Church Records of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, by Reverend Paul Miller Ruff, include the following children of this couple:

1. Johannes Stahlschmidt was born on 11 August 1805 and was baptized on 15 September 1805. The Godparents were Johannes and Christina Rambach. (Volume 3, WB2534 Weber Reformed [Church])

2. Elisabeth Stahlschmidt was born on 5 March 1808 and was baptized on 22 May 1808. (Volume 3, WB2841)

3. Lea Stahlschmidt was born on 21 February 1810 and was baptized on 20 May 1810. (Volume 3, WB3129)

4. Susanne Stahlschmidt was born on 24 January 1812 and was baptized on 19 April 1812. (Volume 3, WB3438)

5. Anna Stahlschmidt was born on 1 February 1814 and was baptized on 19 April 1814. (Greensburg Lutheran [Church], Volume 4, GR1362)

6. Margaretha Stahlschmidt was born on 22 July 1815 and was baptized on 1 October 1815 (Reformed [Church], Volume 4. WB3785)

7. Christina Stahlschmidt was born or baptized on 5 May 1818. (Volume 4, 3786)

8. Maria Stahlschmidt was born or baptized on 22 July 1819. (Volume 4, 3787)

7. Johannes Stahlschmid was born on 14 March 1786. His birth record is in one of the Lutheran and Reformed Congregations in Hamilton Township, Monroe County, Pennsylvania. (Humphrey, Pennsylvania Births, p. 164. It is not clear what happened to Johannes. In the 180-0 Census for Jacob Steelsmith there were two males listed in the category between 10 and 16 years of age. Johannes would bin that category at about age 14. We don't know who the other male is. It is possible that Johannes died young or moved to another state.

8. Anna Lidia Steelsmith was born on 24 July 1788 and died on 9 August 1849 at 61 years, 14 days; the grave marker that was thought to be in the Fair cemetery is not [no longer?] there). She married Timothy L. Titus. He was born on 6 December 1790. Timothy was the son of John Titus and Jane Lenington. She was the daughter of Timothy Lenington. All were early settlers of Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. A daughter of Anna Lidia Steelsmith and her husband Timothy Titus was Jane Titus, born on 11 March 1817. Jane Titus married William Reep, son of Henry Reep and his wife, Fanny Otterman. Fanny is believed to be the daughter of Elisabeth Steelsmith who was probably the sister Anna Lidia Steelsmith. William B. Reep and his family went West in 1854. Of interest is a deed in the Armstrong County Kittanning Deed Book 6-pages 249 and 250: Deed of Timothy Titus & wife to Jenkin Reese dated 7th day of Apr. 1829, between Timothy and Anna and his wife of one part ... etc. Signed Timothy Titus. Anna x Titus Witness Joseph Shields Simon Steelsmith of Buffalo [Armstrong County]

8. Peter Stahlschmid, son of Jacob Stahlschmid and Maria, was born on 2 September (1792) and baptized on 29 October. Witnesses: Peter Shnider & Margaretha. Knowlton, Warren County, New Jersey, Records of the First German and English Congregation.

9. Simon Steelsmith was born on 15 June 1795 and was baptrized on 13 September 1796 . (Translator Paul Ruff, German Church Records Westmoreland County, [Pennsylvania] , Greensburg Lutheran Baptisms, Volume II): "109 Simon 15 June 1795 Jacob Stahlschmidt [and] Sara Sponsors Simon Drum [and] Susanna." Simon Drum was well known in Westmoreland County. Susanna Drum's maiden name was said to be Lauffer, daughter of Christian and his wife, Susanna Best. This is the only child of Jacob and Sara Steelsmith known to have been born in Western Pennsylvania. Sarah would have been about 42 when Simon was born. Simon Steelsmith married Esther John. Esther was the daughter of Martin John of York County, Pennsylvania and Esther Bowser. The latter was born in 1758 in Paradise Township, York County. Esther Bowser married Martin John. In 1798, he went the the area of Western Pennsylvania that became Armstrong County. Martin John was a Dunkard minister in Washington Township of Armstrong County. Supposedly, he spoke only Palatine German. According to Bowser family history, Esther John and Simon Steelsmith immediately after their marriage went to Indiana with her sister Christina and her husband, Peter Hensel. A daughter of Simon and Esther Steelsmith died in 1826. According to the Kittanning Gazette of (Wednesday): Died Sun. 1826 [2 August 1826] Catharine, age 2, daughter of Simon Steelsmith [of Buffalo Township]." Other children born to them in Armstrong County were B-740 Elisabeth born 15 August 1820' B-741 Martin John born 17 September 1825; B-742 Rahel born 20 August 1827 (Journal of Gabriel Adam Reichert, Lutheran Pastor to Indiana, Armstrong, and Adjacent Counties, Sugar Creek (Christmanns) June 25, 1818, Baptisms)

According to Smith's History of Armstrong County, East Franklin Township, John Titus, Jr. made an improvement May 1792 and a settlement in March 1796 . . . Titus sold 100 acres to Timothy Titus, Nov, 1826 . . . 82 acres and 8 perches to Simon Steelsmith, November 9 (1829) Steelsmith conveyed his parcel to Peter John June 19, 1830 for $300. Nothing further has been found on Simon Steelsmith after that date. Jacob Steelsmith, the father of Simon, died in July 1828. In reading the Deeds of Jacob, it appears that Jacob in August 1816 had given that portion of "Smith's Choice" to his son Simon for "natural love and maintenance." (The portion of 110 acres on which Jacob then lived.) Also, in April 1818, Jacob sold116 acres and 116 perches to Simon Steelsmith for $50. The latter then conveyed the same to Michael Fair on 24 November 1821 for $100.

Some place names in Norway are old names, some are modern ones, and some are variants. Editor

Tarald Torgeison (Thomas Torgeson) was born on 30 December 1828 in Dal, Ardal, Bygland, East Agder, Norway (Newspaper Setesdelen, Bygland, Norway, "Some Family History from Ardal Parish," Part 1," p. 7, published about 1985). His granddaughter, Mae (Torgeson) Christensen, said that he was born in Christiana [the old name for Oslo, but that may simply have been the place people were told as they would be familiar with the name. Actually, she may have meant Kristiansand (Christiansand), as that is the port city at the beginning of their fjord.]. Taral was christened on 26 January 1829 in Bygland. (Bygland

[Norway] Church Register 1816-1844, p. 60, Baptism Record. "Tarald. Parents: Torgeij Knudsen, Tore Taraldsdatter (on) Dahle." (From Genealogist Jan Kristiansen E-mail 7 July 2001 to Thomas Hahn.) Thomas married Torborg Jonsdatter (Matilda Johnson) on 26 February 1854 in Bygland:

> Married 26 February 1854: Bachelor and inderste Tarald Torjeison Hurverak, born and lives In Aardal parish, 24 years old, son of Torjei Knudsen Hurverak. The maiden Thorbjorg Johnsdatter Klep, place of birth: Hordnaes, 22 years old, daughter of John Nielson Klep. Best men: Salve Taraldsen Bakke and Torjus Skjellufsen Boe. (Bygland [Norway] Church Register, 1842-1858, p. 293.) [Genealogist's Note: "Inderste) is a term which is no longer in use in the Norwegian language. It described a person who did not own or rent land.

Another record, very difficult to read, which is probably a church marriage record, gives as Item 3 on 26 February 1854, more or less the following:

> Tarald Torjeisin [?] Ha[or o or u]verak [age 27] og [to?] Torbjor Johnsdatter [daughter] [of] Klep [age]22 [Witnesses?] Ole Torjeson [of] Boe [and] Torjei [Torjus?] [of] Skjellufsen Boe.

The farm names added to the persons; names are to be considered as their addresses and not as family names. Aardal=Ardal=sub-parish of Bygland parish. "Hordnaes"=Hornes=sub parish of Evje parish (all situated in Aust-Agder county, southernmost part of Norway). I do not find them mentioned in Bygland Bygland farm-and family history, in the sections dealing with Horverak and Klepp (modern spellings) farms. Bygland's sexton's register shows an "Ole Torjeisson Boe" as the best man instead of "Salve Taraldsen Bakke". Genealogist Jan Kristiansen E-mail to Thomas Hahn 7 July 2001.] The family [Tarald Torjeson and Torborg Johnsdatter] had lived as lodgers with Tarald's parents. "Tarald Torjeisen Hurverak, born and lives in Aardal Parish." [Hurverak [Farm], Aardal Sub parish, Bygland Parish, West Agder, Norway] (Family History Ardal). He and his spouse, according to Mae Torgeson, had eleven children. To of the children died in Norway. His spouse, Torborg Jonsdatter (Matilda Johnson) was born on 20 December 1931 in As, Horness, Eve, East Agder, Norway. She was christened on 26 December 1831 in Evje. Matilda died on 28 February 1908 in White City, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas and was buried on 2 March 1908 in the White City Cemetery. A descendant, Steve Torgeson, said that Taral was a logger in Norway.

The following article was written by Reider Vollen in the Norwegian newspaper Setesdoelen:

> In Setesdoelen 11 Oct. 1985 Riborg M. K. Knudsen [the genealogist hired by Steve Torgeson to work on the Torgeson Family] has an article where she asks if anyone had knowledge of living relatives of a couple, Tarald Tarjeison (Thomas Torgeson) and Torbjoerg Johnsdatter (Mathilda Johnson) who emigrated from Bygland in 1862. As nobody else seems to be willing to answer, I will give some information that I myself have collected. To give such an answer a proper documentation, it is necessary with quite a comprehensive account, but hopefully it will be interesting to many readers of Setesdoelen.

> The husband, Tarald Tarjeison, was born at Dal in Ardal parish 30 Dec. 1828. His parents were Tarjei Knutson and Tore Taraldsdatter. Tarjei was born at Sjeggedal in Evje, and christened in Evje church 2 March 1800. His parents were farmer Knut Jonson Sjeggestad and wife Birgit Skogdrivsdatter born Vanna. He (Tarjei) married in [the] Aardal church 20 March 1826 Torre Taraldsdatter Dale, christened 2 May 1802, [the] daughter of tenant farmer Tararldson and wife Aslaug Salvesdatter born Nordre Vasenden. Tarald and Aslaug used farms [in] several places, between [that is, among them] the Horverak, Dale, Bakke, and Froyrak. Tarjei and Torre lived at Klepp and Dale, but around 1855 they came as cottars to Horverak (probably Ystejordet) where Tore died 14 Sept. 1859 and Tarjei 1 Oct. 1963. They had in all 11 children, but of these 5 died young.
> 1. The eldest, Birgit Tarjeisdatter, was born at Klepp on 9 July 1827, and married on 24 November 1852 the cottar Halvor Jensen Kaddehagen in Lidi, who settled at the cottar's allotment Reise under [the] Bygland vicarage. They had 8 children and have great posterity both in Norway and America. These eight children were:
> a. Knut, born on 30 August 1851, married at Gjovdal on 22 November 1874 to Tarjer Hansdatter , Fjellsenden. Settled at Nygard under Askland in Gjovdal. Went to America in 1903. (See the Gjovdal-book p. 171 [which hasn't been been found].

b. Birgit, was born on 13 April 1854, and married at Gjovdal on 9 September 1876 to Eivind Olavson Oland. She moved to Bjornebo in Barbu.

c. Jens, was born on 23 June 1856, and died on 13 April 1857.

d. Tore, was born on 18 June 1858, and married Tor Bjorn Knudsen from Seljord. One of their grandchildren is Mrs. Thora Isaksen at Vennesla.

e. Jens, was born on 19 October 1861, and married at Amli on 19 November 1884 to Anne Gunhild Tellefsatter, Stangelia. He settled at Lindelandsplass in Holt.

f. Anne, was born on 18 August 1864, and was married on 17 March 1890 to Olav Halvorsen Nordbo in Bygland. She had many descendants, among other places at Sogne.

g. Sigrid, was born on 6 January 1867, and died unmarried at Hisoy.

h. Tarjei, was born on 20 June 1870. He emigrated to America on 16 June 1892 together with his father, who on 4 February 1888 had become a widower. Tarjei married in America Stine Hangard, a daughter of the well-known photographer Hangard. [His father] Halvor Jensen died at Bemidji, Minnesota in 1905.

*2. Tarjei and Tore's next child was Tarald [Thomas Torgeson] who went to America. (This fact is taken from my article in Setesdoelen. In addition to the two children mentioned in Setesdoelen (Tarjei = Thomas and Torborg = Matilda or Tiggie) there were two more)

a. Tarjei was born at Bo on 8 December 1854, and died at Horverak on 30 March 1856.

b. Tore, was born at Horverak, on 5 July 1856, and died there on 10 December 1856.

3. Aslaug Tarjeisdatter, was born at Dale 28 January 1832. She married in Ardal church to the cottar Tarjei Jensen Dale (Ap-ledokk). They had three children

a. Jens, was born at Horverak on 28 September 1856, and died at Bo on 26 September 1858

b. Mari, born at Dale on 14 February 1860, was unmarried, and died in 1941.

c. Tore, born at Dale on 15 October 1864, "but died some hours after birth." This family is mentioned in the Farm- and Family History for Bygland, where Auslaug erroneously is called Eivensdatter. Auslaug died 31 July 1875, while Tarjei died 23 March 1924.

4. Tone Tarjeisdater, was born at Dale on 28 January 1834. She married in Tovdal in 1857 the widower, Anon Larsson Roin ubder Ovre Ramse. They had 7 children, among them Tone who married Olavson Syrtveit in Evje (Tovdals book, p.299). It Setesdoelen we observe that Tone in 1914 was named Sortvedt (from Even Torgeson's death certificate). This, then is Syrtveit in Evje.

5. The next to grow up was Eivind (Eve/Evan) Tarjeison [Evan Torgeson], who born at Horverak on 3 October 1840. He got his emigration certificate to America on 6 May [year?] and was then unmarried.

6. Child no. 11 was Tarjer Tarjesdatter. (Turger, Torgun = Mrs. Thomas Nelson), born at Horverak on 7 August in 1847. She married in Tovdal on 19 April 1879 the cottar, Tomas Nereson (Nelson) Ytre Ramse. Tomas came from Hovstad in Greni, on 25 September 1848, son of Nere Osmundsoon Hovstad and wife Ase Tomasdatter, as born at Stoledalen in Iveland. Tomas and Tarjer emigrated to America on 18 May 1881.

From another article in the Norwegian newspaper Setesdoelen: "More Family History from Ardal":

Tarald Tarjeison's wife was Torbjorg Jonsdatter. She was born at As in Horness 20 December 1831. Both her parents came later to Ardal parish in Bygland where they died. Her father was Jon Nilsson from Steinsland in Hornnes, while her mother was Gunhild Reiersdatter from Moseid in Hornnes. Jon and Gunhild lived many places in Hornnes: Kjetsa, Faret, As, Moseid, Birkeland, and, from 1845, as tenant farmers at Klepp in Bygland, where they used half of Klepp. Jon was called there "John in the House." He died at Klepp 7 March 1853, while Gunhild died at Vasenden on 17 May 1886. Jon and Gunhild had 9 children, of which 1 was stillborn, all of them born at Hornnes. Of these I have closer knowledge of the following four:

1. The eldest, Mari Jonsdtr., was born at Kjetsa 1823. She married at Hornnes on 28 December 1848, Sveinung Frantsson Vasenden, born on 23 October 1824, son of Frants Wilhelm Andersson (who together with his family came from the farm Storsvea in Trysil, together with the parson Anker Bruun in 1798) and wife Ragnhild Knutsdatter, born Vassenden. Sveinung and Mari were farmers and lived at Vasenden, Senum, Vralsplass and finally once more at Vassenden. They had 10 children and great posterity. [The genealogist Riborg Knudsen commented on the term "farmer" by saying "must mean in contrast to most of the others who were tenants or cottars."] Among their sons were Frants and Bjorgulf Svenningsen, skippers on board "Dolen" and "Bjoren." See further the Bygland's book, among other, p. 446.

2. Nils Jonson, born at As in 1827. He married in Ardal church on 26 March 1854 Kjersti Tellefsdatter. Bo, born on 28 January 1834. Nils was [a] tenant farmer at Klepp and Horverak and from 1860 was owner of a part of Bo (no. 1) which he bought from his father-in-law. They had children:

a. Gunhild, born on 28 May 1859, married on 13 July 1874 the neighbour Sjelltr Torjusson Bo (no.2). They had two children: They son Torjus born on 13 January 1878, died of consumption 5 March 1879, while the daughter Mari Sjellufsdatter, was born on 22 January 1876, and was married on 2 November 1890 to Olav Torjusson Froyrak. Olav and Mari took over the one part of Froyrak, Of their 5 children 2 died as infants, while the remaining three have descendants.

b. Jon Nilsson was married on 21 February 1880 to Birgit Nilsdatter. Klepp. But exactly 1 month after the wedding, on 21 March 1880, Jon and Birgit were on their way home from church. A short way from home they went through the ice and were drowned. At the same time were drowned Jon's father Nils Jonsson Bo and Gunhild Sveinungsdtr. Vasenden, who was a daughter of Nils' sister. Birgit Nilsdatter), (the bride's) father, whose name was also Nils Jonsson (born at Aknes in Aseral on 6 January 1820, farmer at Klepp) was the only one in the party who was rescued. The tragedy, which caused great Attention, was referred to in an article in Kristiansand's Stiftavis (local newspaper) for Saturday 27 March 1880. (I should think that Thomas Torgeson and wife must have heard of this disaster, as Mathilda's eldest brother Nils and her nephew Jon Nilsson were among the victims. R. K. [genealogist Riborg Knudsen]. Jon Nilsson did not live to have children with Birgit Nilsdatter, but he had a son, Jon Jonsson, born on 23 February 1879, with Sigrid Anonsdatter. Tveita. Together with his mother, Jon Jonsson emigrated to Wisconsin on 1 June 1888. [The Genealogist R. Knuidsen notes that drowning took place in Ardalsfjorden, a part of the big lake Byglandsfjorden that lies outside Ardal.] not to be confused with two fjords on the West Coast by the same name.

*3. Torbjorg Jonsdatter [Matilda Johnson], married Tarald Tarjeison [Thomas Torgeson] Horverak and went to America in 1862. She was child No. 4.

4. The last of Jon Nilsson and Gunhild Reirsdtr's. children: of whom I have any knowledge is Reier Jonsson, born at Moseid on 1 June 1841. He was unmarried and lived as [a] workman at Bo. He died at Kristiansand hospital on 12 October 1974 and lies buried in the cathedral's cemetery. He had a daughter, Berthe, born at Bo on 12 October 1864, mother Siri Tellefsdtr.Bo, whose sister Kjersti Tellefsdatter was married to Nils Jonsson Bo (Mathilda and Reir's brother). But Berthe died at Nevesjord on 28 July 1871, so Reier Jonson had no descendants.

On 21 March 1862, Taral Torgeison applied for permission to left Bygland: "Married couple Tarald Torjeison, 33, and Thorbjorg Johnsdatter, 28, from Hurverak, with their two children Torjei, 4, and Thore, 2, to America." (Bygland [Norway] Church Register 1859-1873, p. 423, Exit Record.) Five months later, on 7 September, their daughter Julia Torgeson, was born at Janesville, Rock County, Wisconsin. It is not known from what port they departed Norway, at what port they arrived in the United States--or Canada, or by what means and how they went to Janesville. Because there were Torgeson's from Norway in Rock County in the 1870 census and the 1900 census, and probably other and in later censuses, one wonders if there other members of the Taral Torgeison who emigrated there. It is not know how long they lived in the Janesville area before they moved to the vicinity of Dodgeville, Iowa County. On 7 April 1868, in Rock County, Wisconsin, Thomas "Torgerson" submitted with the Clerk Circuit Court of Iowa County, his intent to become a citizen of the United States, renouncing "forever, and particularly to the King of Norway & Sweden." Because he signed his name with an x, he didn't necessarily say or verify that his name was Torgerson rather than Torgeson. The name variously appears as Ferguson, Tarjeison, Terguson, Thorguson, Torgenson, Torgurson, Torguson, or Turgeson in public records. He later signed his name as "Thomas Torgeson." His grave marker says Thomas S. Torgeson. The middle initial was not found elsewhere and we do not know what it stands for. In 1868, the Clerk of the District Court of Rock County certified in November 1869 that he [Thomas] had resided in the United States for more than the period of five years. It appears that they moved to Kansas about 1870, but we have as yet to find them in the 1870 Census for anywhere in the United States..

Bessie (Torgeson) Gillaspie, daughter of John Torgeson, Thomas Torgeson's

brother, in a telephone conversation with Thomas F. Hahn on 6 December 1998 said, "The Thomas Torgeson's [senior] first moved from Wisconsin to a farm near Parkerville, then homesteaded a farm 3-4 miles east of White City, then in later years they moved to a small house just north next door to her folks [John and Celia Torgeson]. Bessie's sister, Helen Torgeson, said that in 1869 or 1870, they emigrated first to Junction City, Geary County, Kansas. Two censuses say that they were "from Iowa." It is possible that they stopped off in Iowa, of course, but it also could be that they were referring to Iowa County, In Wisconsin. Their first appearance in public records in Kansas is in Thomas Torgeson's homestead papers in which he said that he moved into his house in April of 1872. In April 1873, Thomas Torgeson "of Morris County Kansas" applied for homestead as an "actual settler" of E 1/2 of NW 1/4 of Section No 32 in Township 14 S. of Range 7 E. containing 80 acres. On 14 February 1873, the Register of the Land Office at Salina, Kansas certified that the aforementioned application was for "surveyed lands of the class which the applicant is eligible." On 14 February a Homestead" document said: Receiver's Receipt, No. 14179. Application, No. 14179. Homestead. Receiver's Office, Salina, Kan. Feby 14 1873 Received of Thomas Torgeson, the sum of Fourteen dollars --- cents; being the amount of fee and compensation of Register and Receiver for the entry E 1/2 W 1/4 of Section 32 in Township 149 of Range 4 E under the acts of Congress approved May 20, 1862, and March 21, 1864, entitled: An act to secure homesteads to actual settlers on the public domain. $1414.11 [?] The homestead transaction on 30 April 1879, "Final Receiver's Receipt No. 4699 Application No. 14179 HOMESTEAD Receiver's Office Salina Kas. April 30 1879 Received of Thomas Torgeson the sum of four dollars and ---- cents, being the balance of payment required for the entry of E2 NW4 of Section 32 in Township 14 Range 7E containing 80 acres...[Notation at bottom] June 30, 1880 Vol. 10 Page 153-Mailed to H. S. Day Parkerville KS Apr. 21, 1881"On 25 April 1879, Thomas Torgeson was declared to be a citizen by the District Court of the 8th Judicial District of the State of Kansas, sitting in and for the County of Morris, 8th.

On 25 April, Thomas Torgeson filed the following "Homestead Proof" for his homestead entry for E 1/2 NW 1/4 of Section 2. Township 14, S. of Range 7 East, summarized here: Name Thomas Torgeson. 50 years of age [1929] Head of a family consisting of a wife and eight children. Naturalized Citizen of the United States. No coal, salines, or minerals on the land that he knew of. Post-office address Parkerville, Morris County, Kansas. No homestead entry except for No. 14179. Had not sold any interest in the homestead. No one else claimed the land. First settled the land on 14 February 1873. First established a residence on the land 14 February 1873. Declared that he moved onto the land on that date, that he lived there to the present time, that the residence was continuous, and that his family resided there in that period. Improvements included a "House built frame 1 story 14x24. frame Kitchen attached 10x14. Stone Stable 16x50. Well. corral. orchard of about 1 Acre. Between 45x50 acres broke. He said that the house was built in April 1872 and was worth about $500. That he cultivated 45x50 Acres of wheat, corn, oats, and other farm products. Thomas Torgeson and his family appear in the Census for Parker Township as farmers. [The data for this and other census are given below under Census Data.] The farm increased in size and complexity during the period. Probably all the sons were involved in the work of the farm until they left, one by one, to pursue their own lives in the surrounding area.

Little is known of their life on the farm in Parker Township. The following item from the Morris County Enterprise shows that they attended the Lutheran Church there: [To be added] [In describing an accident of their wagon, on their way to the Lutheran church]: Serious accident. On Tuesday forenoon while Mr. Ivan Torgeson and family and Mr. Nelson and family were on their way to the Lutheran church they met with a very painful accident. By some means the wagon was overturned and the occupants (eight in number) were thrown out. Mrs. Thomas Torgeson received a contusion of the spine, Ivan Torgeson had his right arm broken near the shoulder, Mrs. Nelson had her collar bone broken and her little girl had two ribs broken and was also injured internally. The rest were more or less injured, but not seriously. Dr. Martin was called and rendered the necessary medical assistance." [Ivan [Evan] Torgeson was the brother of Thomas Torgeson, Sr. and Matilda Torgeson, who was injured. Matilda Torgeson, who was injured, married Thomas Nelson. Evan apparently lived with and farmed with the Nelsons. The other persons involved in the accident were probably children of the Thomas Torgeson's." (p. 3, 12 September 1884, Kansas State Historical Society Research Center, Topeka, Kansas)

Although the 1895 census shows Thomas Torgeson with 160 acres of land, no land seemed to have been acquired other than his original homestead of forty acres. The original search covered covered volumes K (1877) through V (1888) A further search of the Morris County deed books might be fruitful. A deed record was found in the Grantee Index, of the Morris County Deed Book, on 2 November 1877 based on a sequence of deed books: " from Lewis McKenzie Warranty Deed Vol. K, p.263 Portion of SE 1/4 of Sec. 29 T 14 R=100 acres." Terguson, Thomas Jr. One would think that the "Jr." would be for his son, Thomas Torgeson. By 1900, the Torgesons gave up their farm and retired to White City, Rolling Prairie Township, Morris County, Kansas. In that year they appear in the White City Census. All the census data from 1775 to 1805 for the Thomas Torgeson Family are summarized at the end of this entry.

1. Tarjei Torgieson was born on 8 December 1854 at Horverak Farm, Norway, and may have remained in Norway.

2. Tore Torgiesdatter was born on 10 December 1856 at Horverak Farm, Norway, and may have remained in Norway.

From the White City Register:

On Friday night, February 28. 1908 the aged mother [Matilda Johnson], surrounded by all her children except Mrs. Strong, residing in California, passed away peacefully and with a calmness that was supreme. The aged father, too ill to be beside her, when told what had happened, gradually became weaker until Sunday morning at l0 o'clock, one hour prior to the time the funeral services were to be held for Mrs. Torgeson, he, too passed away, calmly and peacefully as had his loved companion, thirty-six hours before. [Saturday was on 29 February as this was a leap year.] On Monday morning [2 March] at l0 o'clock, funeral services were held at the Presbyterian Church and were conducted by Rev. Cramer, assisted by the other ministers of the city. No such remarkable coincidence had ever before happened in White City--that of two, an aged husband and wife, passing out of life together and being together borne to the cemetery and placed side by side in one grave. The event was the occasion of all business suspended in the city during the funeral hour. A great number were present to pay the last tribute of respect to those two who had finished the good fight.

According to his daughter-in-law, Margaret (Owen) Torgeson, Thomas crossed his arms over his chest and died willfully. Their grand-daughter Florence Torgeson Hahn told her son, Thomas Hahn. "I was eleven years old when they had the double funeral and what an ordeal for my dad to lose two parents at once. The grandparents were taught the English language by their children. My grandfather was an austere person. Not one you could warm up to." Florence also said that as young girls, she and her sisters took food that their mother prepared for the grandparents, but they were not comfortable with them as they didn't speak English. Florence said they stood around, around grandma gave each of them a stick of candy, and then left. The stone marker for Thomas Torgeson viewed in the White City Cemetery by Tom Hahn and Chris Hahn was in excellent condition on 26 June 1998: THOMAS TORGESON DIED 1 Mar 1908 79 yrs. He was buried next to his wife, Matilda.

Thomas Torgeson was buried in the White City Cemetery. His gravestone read THOMAS S. TORGESON 1 MAR 1908 AGED 76Y (White City Cemetery Tombstones.

Torgeson Family Reunion in an unknown Year and Place.

Some of the Sons and Daughters of Taral Torgeison (Thomas Torgeson) and Torborg Jonsdatter (Matilda Johnson). Even though we do not know the year or the place of this photograph of a Torgeson Reunion of the children of Taral Torgeison (Thomas Torgeson and Torbjord Jonsdatter (Matilda Johnson) from Florence Hahn's Scrap Book near the invitation to the 1935 reunion, the individuals look younger to me than those in the supposedly 1932 or 1933 reunion photograph just below. The persons are thought to be, right-to-left: Thomas Torgeson, Julia (Torgeson) Winters, John Torgeson, Newt Torgeson, Henry Torgeson, Will Torgeson, and, George Torgeson. Missing is Matilda "Tiggie" (Torgeson) Strong) of California. (From the Scrapbook of Florence Hahn)

[Unknown Year [but 1933 or after] at Junction City, Geary County, Kansas: The annual Torgeson reunion was held in Junction City Sunday. A certain young couple arrived very carefully carrying a baby basket and of course everyone want[ed] to see the baby for none of them even knew of the stork's arrival. Imagine the surprise when the baby proved to be a large doll. This started a dat of pleasure for all. At noon a big basket dinner was enjoyed. Those present were:
Mr. and Mrs. John Torgeson,
Miss Helen and Miss Bessie Torgeson [daughters of the John Torgeson's],
Mr. and Mrs. George Torgeson,
Mrs. Julia Winters and Mrs. Mary E. Scott, all of White City. [Was Mrs. Mary E. Scott the mother of Neressa Scott, wife of George Torgeson?]
Mr. Nute Torgeson of Kelso,
Mr, and Mrs. Henry Torgeson of Council Grove
Mr. and Mrs. Will Torg[e]son of Lawrence
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Torgeson,
Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Haun [Hahn] and son,
Mr. and Mrs. Jack Murphy [who were married on 1 July 1933], Miss Bernice Torgeson, all of Topeka.
The immediate family were all present except one sister, Mrs. [Matilda "Tiggie"] F. O. Strong of Ukiah,California. (From Florence Hahn's Scrap Book)

Unknown Year, but 1933 or after), and unknown Place: The annual reunion of the Torgeson Family was held Sunday in the park at Wamego [Kansas]. Those present were:

The place of meeting is not known, but probably in Topeka and possibly held because of the visit of Thomas and Margaret's son, Al Torgeson, and his wife, Sevena, from California. (From Florence (Torgeson) Hahn's Scrapbook. It is nice to have the handwriting of these people and some addresses.

Memories of the Taral Torgeison Family

In your letter was an article about the death of Christ written by a Dr priest about a heart condition was the cause and it reminded me about grandpa Torgeson [Thomas Torgeson, Sr./Taral Torjeison],. (my dad's parents) Grandma had a short illness, some kind of flu and was in bed for only a short time maybe three days and when Grandpa saw she wasn't going to get well he took to bed also and when Grandma died the doctor told Dad to hold off the funeral as Grandpa was not going to survive. The doctor said he could find no health problem with Grandpa, but he had no will to survive Grandma, in other words, a broken heart. but can see where [it] was for the best.

Grandpa was on the stern side and did not have anything to say to we kids but Grandma talked a little but they were not like the grandparents on mothers side. I had fun at Grandma Owens.

Mother would send us over to take food and we usually went in two's like the Latter Day Saints that go from door to door in airs, and we would stay a very short time and then grandma would go in the bedroom and bring us out a stick of candy. We could hear her open the dresser drawer and we would wait for the candy.

My minds picture of that old couple was like a commercial several years ago, a tall stern couple standing straight one with a hoe in one hand a one with a pitchfork [Grant Wood's "Gothic"]

My Dad belonged to the Pres[byterian] church and the minister would call on the old folks and one day I was there when he came and was embarrassed because Grand Ma was smoking a little clay pipe. (Letter from Florence Torgeson to Tom Hahn 1980)

Christmas Eve and Christmas 1940 [probably] at Christensen's Christmas Eve and all day Christmas. Tree in the basement. Bob and Mae (Torgeson) Christensen lived at Junction City, Geary County, Kansas.

This is probably Mae's handwriting. She always had things nice .(Hahn Collection)

Christmas Eve 1940 alone. Tom went to Beckman's Farm. Walt & I went to Uncle Gus's for dinner Christmas Day [The farm was the parents of Les Beckman who married Louise Hahn. Their daughters Marty and Becky would have gone as well. I loved going to this farm. It was located near Thayer, Neosho County, in southeastern Kansas. Unknown to me then and not until 2002, the Christian Hahn Farm was only two miles away, but no one ever mentioned that to me. Grandpa Beckman was a silent, rather dour sort of person, but his second wife, not the natural grandmother of the Beckman children, was very good to all the kids. At this time of the year, the upstairs bedroom was very COLD.] Gus Hahn, Walt's uncle, and his wife Nellie, lived in Kansas City, Missouri, over two hours away from Topeka at that time. My Diary Entry says," 24 December Tuesday: "I went doiwn to the farm with the Beckman's."]

2005 Christmas Card from Bernice (Torgeson) Taggart at Age 101. Keeping the flame going!

Dear Tom + Nat.

I got out today to the Beauty Shoppe - it wasn't so cold but the wind was so strong. Annette had to hold on to me -

Yesterday the Goodland High School furnished the dinner to all the Sr Citizens we could either go to the High School or have them bring our dinners home.

Larry and Frances just returned from Egypt last Saturday. They sure enjoyed their trip

We had a bad storm two weeks ago and we had on no lights or heat for about 3 hours.

We have quite a few vacant rooms - the nursing home is always filled - so many people fall and they need more help

I havent received the RR.

I miss the Baseball games.

May your holidays be merry and bright!

Love you
Bernice

Torgeson Girls Reunions

Out Goodland Way (From Florence Hahn's Nothing Book

Fall is the time that I like best
When we go to Goodland for a needed rest
What fun we have when dinner is over
Oh I can hardly wait until next October

Coconut cake is the piece de resistance
And is soon devoured by Bernice's resistance
The Taggarts are such friendly folks
When we plan to leave they coax and coax us to stay over.
But we must go while it is still October. (By Florence)

"The Diner"

The diner is a lovely place

When the waiter has a happy face,
The rails make a ringing sound
While we eat and laugh and clown

Two pheasants on a Sunday morn
Raced through the stacks of kaffir corn
Their days were numbered only a few Until they would be simmering in a savory stew. (Gladys)

Out to Goodland Kansas we went one day
Left our cares behind us
Just to have some fun and play.

All we did was to eat and talk
And we would get so full would take a walk,
We had breakfast in the diner, luncheon in the yard
And when everyone was sleeping, a stolen snack was not too hard.

We slept down in the basement, where was nice and cool
Where Jack Sprat's wife to us
Just acted like a fool.

Twas hard to say goodbye to folks who were so nice
But I will be glad to get back home and making Pappy's pies. (By Kate)

"Trip to Goodland"

Aboard the UP[Union Pacific] , the crowd was dull and drowsy
We thought the trip would be s long,
But never once felt lousy
The Goodland folks with open arms, all met us at the station.
The food we crowded under our belts would almost feed a nation.
The food the folks the country drives all make for future living
Lets try again another year to make it near Thanksgiving. (by Gladys)

Remember the night we heard our sins
The room got so quiet heard the dropping of pins
Then our virtues good and true were told
And we blew hot and then blew cold
Maybe we will profit by what we heard
Or maybe take wings like the flight of a bird.

Florence Vivian "Flo" Torgeson was born on 23 March 1897 at White City, Rolling Prairie Township, White City, Morris County, Kansas. (Extract from the White City (Kansas) REGISTER , a delayed Certificate of Birth based on the former, and her entry in the 1905 (March) Census for White City, Morris County, Kansas, vol. 300, sec. 1, p. 1) She was known as "Flo" only in her younger years. Florence was the daughter of Thomas "Tom"

Torgeson, known as "Torgei Torgeison" where he was born in Bygland, East-Agder, Norway on 29 September 1857. He died at Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas on 30 March 1939 and was buried in the White City Cemetery on 2 April 1939. Her mother was Margaret "Maggie" Louise Owen, who was born in Waverly, Bremer County, Iowa on 13 September 1870. She died at Newton, Harvey County, Kansas on 29 October 1952 and was buried in the White City Cemetery in November. The father of Maggie (Owen) Torgeson was Orson Anderson Owen. He was born on 1 September 1842 at Chardon, Geauga County, Ohio. He was in the Civil War Veteran from 31 January 1862 until 27 February 1865. On 26 February 1867 at Gulf Summit, Broome County, New York, he married Addaline "Addie" T. Curtis. She was born on 22 April 1851 at Cannonsville, Delaware County, New York died on 3 March 1944 at Emporia, Morris County, Kansas, and was buried in the Parkerville Cemetery in Morris County, Kansas. After the war, about 1868, Orson and Addie migrated from Sanford, Broome County, New York to Waverly, Washington Township, Bremer County, Kansas. About 1871 they went on a six-week journey, by oxcart, to the Solomon River Valley in Kansas, where they lived in a sod house. They then went to Solomon City, Dickinson County, Kansas, and, finally, about 1878/1879, they moved to Parkerville, Parker Township, Morris County, Kansas where he bought land in Township 15 in 1881 and 1887. Orson was a railway section hand and foreman and a farmer. He died at Parkerville on 26 April 1908, and was buried in the Parkerville Cemetery.

From the White City (Kansas) Register of 26 Friday, 26 March 1897: "Dr. Richards reports a daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Torgeson Tuesday evening."

Based on general knowledge of her son, Thomas "Tom Swiftwater) Frederick Hahn, Florence was born and raised in White City, Kansas. She graduated from the White City High School about 1915, and worked in the White City Post Office where her father was the Postmaster. Florence went to Topeka in 1920 to marry Walter "Walt" Frederick Hahn Hahn, whose family also lived in White City at the time. Her sister Bernice moved to Topeka and lived with Florence and Walter while going to business school there. Gladys moved to Topeka shortly thereafter. Her brother Floyd Torgeson and his wife Alice Kneith lived in Topeka most of their lives. Floyd next married Bessie _____, and they lived and probably died in Chanute, Kansas. Her brother, Al Torgeson, and his wife, Neva, lived in Napa, Napa County, California. Florence and Walter lived in various places in Topeka until they built a house about 1925/1926 at 1120 High Avenue. That house was about two miles from downtown Topeka. They lived there until Walter's death in 1966.

The Walter Hahns lived for about a year in 1928 in Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri, where Walter had a temporary job in the post office. They attended and were members of first the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church and then the University Methodist Church in Topeka. Because both parents and much of the Torgeson Family and all of the Hahn Family lived in Topeka, many of their social activities were with the family. For many years their parents (or the surviving widows) lived two blocks apart on West 17th Street. Other activities were centered on church friends, especially a group called the "Bonehead Club," that met in member's homes. Florence was a social person who liked to entertain. She was a member of several clubs, including a book club and a sewing club, and was a den mother. She enjoyed doing craft work included making framed jewelry pieces out of people's old costume jewelry.

In 1974, she moved to an apartment at 2101 High Ave in Topeka. In 1985, at age 88 she moved to Lowe Garden Apartments in Shepherdstown Jefferson, County, West Virginia to be near her son, Tom, and his wife, Nathalie.

For many years, both Florence and Walter had an association with the daughter of a church member, Jenay Weekly and her husband Gary, and their families and later with their daughters. In March 2006, Jenay wrote a letter to Florence's son, Tom, remembering some of the things about her and Walter, after Tom had sent her some letters that he had received from Florence. She said, They [the letters] are so precious and a reminder of some very special times in my life. I can picture her sitting in a chair and reading me YOUR letters to her! Whenever she visited you at the cabin [in Maine etc, she would write. Just seeing her handwriting again makes me smile. My daughters were lucky to have her as "Great-grandma." I always appreciated your sharing youyr mother with me and she enriched my life in so many ways. Here are some special memories I have:

Chewing a stick of "Blackjack: gum slipped to me by Grandpa in church while my parents both sang in the choir at Trinity [Methodist Episcopal] Church.

Learning how to cook with lessons on simple to make meals. I still have recipes in my box that grandma made for me! My girls now have copies.

Eating lunch once a week when I was in college on her beloved Spode "Cowslip" pattern china. I loved it so much I actually bought one plate at an antique store in that pattern which hangs on my wall today.

Eating homemade rolls pulled from a straw-pattern tin. I bought one of those at a sale too.

Playing with Grandma and the girls and Cabbage Patch dolls.

Enjoying her every Christmas Eve for dinner and presents.

In September 1991, at age 94, she moved to the Canterbury Nursing Facility in Shepherdstown. She celebrated her 100th Birthday there on Sunday 23 March 1994 with her son Tom Hahn, her grandson Chris Hahn, her great-grand-daughter Beverly Hahn. and her step-grandson Duane Torrey, her daughter-in-law, Nathalie Hahn, and friends.

Memories from Florence Hahn's Letters to her son, Tom Hahn

I have been thinking about 56 years ago today. What a good life we had together. We were married on the 5th [of Sep 1920]. Louise [Hahn] and Margaret [Hahn] [--Walter Hahn's sisters] went with Dad and I to the First Methodist Parsonage here [in Topeka, Kansas] at 11am and we went to Grandma Hahn's [Mattie Defries and Chris Hahn's] for our wedding dinner. The next day we went to Baldwin [Kansas] to Marie [Jenkins] and Ed's [Ed Hahn was Walter's younger brother's] wedding at Mrs. Jenkins's home. [Mrs. Jenkins had previously lived in White City, but she moved to Baldwin to give her daughter, Marie, a home while Marie attended Baker University. Mrs. Jenkins also took in students as boarders.] Avis [Marie's sister] and her new husband [Homer Sharp] of four months were there. I think about six o'clock we two couples went to Kansas City and we stayed at the same hotel. We went to a furniture store. We had a letter for a discount from the furniture man in White City, so we bought a dining table, buffet, and chairs and we didn't have money for anything else. We were there two nights. I had a new wedding suit which was a fall model and was a warm day and then a rain the first day in KC that ruined my wedding hat. It was so nice for us to have our relatives living here [in Topeka] and raising our families together. Les [Beckman] and Louise [Hahn] were married in December, then Myrtle [Walter's older sister] moved here the next year and Ed [Hahn] soon after that so that we were quite a family. The Hahns were wonderful people, good folks and loved their children and we were all very happy. Then my folks came two or three years after we did. Dad was still in the Post Office 2 or 3 yrs after I was married. We had such fun on picnics and going to the Fair with our kids and we were all poor together. Dad [Hahn had a Model T car the year they came to Topeka and they came here only a few months after we were married. That first fall we were the only ones and them here in Topeka and we had such good times. We would go for a ride Sunday afternoons with Louise, Margaret and Grandma and Grandpa Hahn and we would get lost in the country and finally get back on the road to town. We would stop at their house for a little Sunday evening snack. It seemed that it was a wonderful fall, everything new to us--the big Fair and we even had a guest or two that fall that came to the [Kansas Free] Fair. And Dad had a good time stocking up on apples, pears, etc and grapes. I didn't know much about what to do with them but did know some from home, but mostly my job at home was peeling the peaches and apples and grapes and mother did the rest. And so today all I've done is think about the good times and how beautiful that fall was. And to be in my own home with a furnace and running water and a toilet, I felt like a queen, but most of all I had a good man to look after me. (1977)

From a 1977 letter to her son Thomas Hahn:

The [wedding] day was a bright quite warm one as I had a new winter suit and a satin blouse. I don't remember whether there were any relatives there that day [at the wedding dinner]. I came to Topeka a few days before and stayed at the Hahns and I shopped for my clothes. The ones at the Hahn house went in the Ford [to Ed Hahn's wedding in Baldwin] and Dad and I went on an early train. At the wedding at Baldwin there were a few guests and Mrs. Jenkins had dinner for us. We got a few things at a yard sale in Topeka, a few days later--a wicker settee and chair. We did get a table with the dining room stuff, they called them library tables then, a long narrow table and it stuck out like a sore thumb in that almost bare room, but we were very happy and proud of what we had. I had bought things for my hope chest for two or three years so was well supplied with towels, sheets, etc and got a notice from the bank in W.[hite] C.[ity] a week after we were married I was overdrawn 67 cents. I never lived that down. Dad thought it was quite a joke and loved telling it. My wedding hat cost $18.50 and suit $75.00. Clothes were high then. The night before we were married the Hahns were playing the Victrola and the record was, "When you come to the end of a perfect day." It was so popular then and I got homesick and left the room and went to a bedroom and cried. Dad came in and I told him I was lonesome and wanted to go home to W. C. but in no time he had me in a different frame of mind, so fall has always been a beautiful time for me as that one was such a lovely one.

Florence and her four sisters were very close, as can be discerned from this article by Zula Bennington Greene-"Peggy of the Flint Hills," entitled "Five Sister," on Friday, 24 October 1958 in The Topeka Daily Capitol:

Let's not drift apart," the youngest of five sisters said six years ago when their mother, Mrs. Thomas Torgeson, died. They grew up in White City. They decided to meet once a year, in October, and drew to see who would have them first. It was Mrs. Jo White, 728 Arter. Each has in turn been hostess and this year they met again with Mrs. White. Another lives in Topeka, Mrs. Walter Hahn, 1120 High. The others are Mrs. Mary Christensen, Junction City, Mrs. Thomas Taggart, Goodland, and Mrs. Frank Schump, Clinton, Mo.

They don't ask people in or have coffee or go downtown. They let their hair down and talk, often far into the night. Husbands stay at home, and the "hostess: husband makes himself scarce during those three or four days. In between they keep in touch with a round robin letter that circulates each month.

Once they wrote down each other's faults, not mentioning names, and had them read by the hostess husband--"And we recognized ourselves." The visits are occasions of fun and frolic and games and gay surprises. "If you were hiding behind a curtain," one said, "you wouldn't know we were grown up." They gather up their white elephants and bring [them] for prizes. This year Mrs. White decided to have an auction, and every month each woman was asked to make something--place cards in January, an apron in February, a dish towel in March, a clothes pin doll in April, and included was` a story for a ten-year-old (most of them were grandmothers), something to eat, and a mystery package.

Mrs. White gave each $3.50 of play money to use in the auction of the things that they had made. Each also had a special project for herself. Mrs. Schump made a picket fence around her home. Mrs. Christensen made two lamp tables out of a dressing table, Mrs. Taggart learned to drive a car, Mrs. Hahn made a Christmas tablecloth and Mrs. White a doll's outfit. Since these visits started the five sisters feel they have leaned to know each other as they never had before and they look forward to them as the high point of the year. One of them [Mae] said, "A week ahead I get so excited I hurt."

Florence died 5 October 1998 at Shepherdstown Nursing Facility, Shepherdstown, Jefferson County, West Virginia. She was cremated at Smithsburg, Washington County, Maryland, and her ashes were buried in the same plot with her spouse, Walter Frederick Hahn, in the Mount Hope Cemetery, Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas. A small family memorial service was held at the cemetery in June 1999.

Obituary of Florence Vivian Hahn: Florence Vivian Torgeson Hahn of Shepherdstown WV and Topeka KS died Monday 5 October 1998 of natural causes at the age of [nearly] 101 in the Canterbury Nursing Facility Shepherdstown. She was born 23 March 1897 in White City Morris Co. KS. Her father, Thomas Torgeson) was born in Norway in 1857 and her mother Margaret Louise Owen was born in Waverly Bremer Co IA in 1870. Memories

There are things that you have written about this time that reminds me of the first time that I went to Winter Harbor [Maine]. I remember John H[hayes, Screenwriter for Hitchcock]. We had a picnic on the rocks and afterwards went to some folks place and stayed there a while and Betsy went over to Hay's and I can't remember the name of the folks where I went. It was in a very swanky neighborhood . Some one brought out lamb chops and cooked,. I had never cared for lamb and took the smallest one trying to like it and it was so good I wish that had taken a larger one. The kids had hamburgers. Can you remember the folks. You used to mention Hays in your letters, his literary career. [Butterfield 8, Peyton Place, Rear Window, The Birds, Butterfield 8, etc.] You and Nathalie have been visiting more than usual haven't you among your friends. Maybe you had more time this summer. FLORENCE (TORGESON) HAHN LETTERS TO HER SON, TOM

I am making notations or explanations here and there to add a little more meaning to the context of some portions. Also, I am beginning to highlight portions that dealt with her earlier life. At this time, Florence and Walter Hahn were living in their home in Topeka, Kansas. Tom Hahn

Fortunately, I found a few letters from them in 1950 while I was on duty in the Mediterranean on the staff of the Commander of the Sixth Fleet. Unfortunately, I did not keep any of their earlier letters.

Tues Eve May 23 [1950] Handwritten

Dear Tommy You letter today telling about your dinner with the family in Lisbon, you certainly get around. Hazel [Wilcox, neighbor in back] was over when the mail came and I read it to her.

Ed [Wilcox] cut his leg on the power mower, above his knee and has had quite a time with it xray showed a piece of bone broken off, but it is healing alright he walks with a cane, he isnt used to being tied down and is hard on him.

The Lake we went to Sun with Les [Beckman] you would have enjoyed, a good sized one for a private one, took quite a walk to get around it. Gladys caught the first good sized one, then dad caught all but 3 out of 11, so they cleaned a nice little mess. We cleaned them at Less['s] and left them there, think some night we will fix supper together. I sat around while they fished and spotted different kinds of birds, and several didnt know what they were and havent had time to look them up.t

Sun. morn when we were at breakfast, a scarlet tanager was looking right in at us from the maple tree.

We have just come home from Mt. Hope cemetary, our peonies were so pretty so instead of keeping them in refrigerator until next Tues Decoration Day we went out this eve around 6.30 and it is just beautiful out there has just been mowed, and the birds there were plentiful. So many red wing black birds meadow larks & quail. and a little brown bird that was too far to tell but had such a big voice.

Ive been taking down wall paper from breakfast room and it is just like looking through a memory book, was so interesting I didnt mind the work. Some of the writings went back to -31 - some 36 but most of them -41. [Our neighbors also came over and signed their names or whatever.]

There was a little boy and his name was Tom
He was the boy who slept with his Mom
He has a grey kitty which is nice and fat
Now Im telling you boys,
That is some cat.

Then in April 41 tells where you are doing a lot of tearing off paper and said I was just . . . [remainder of letter missing]

1 June 1950 Handwritten.
[First part of letter missing] . . . The Strawberry crop isnt going to be very good this year, had been rain when they were ripening so they are rotting and water soaked. Dad hadnt planned on picking anyway this year, too many other things to do. I would like to have one shortcake anyway this year. Remember the ones we had last year.

Yesterday seemed a busy Decoration [Day] in our neighborhood, men mowing yards and women washing. Dad and I rested a while in the afternoon then went out to Gage Park to see what was going on, very few in swimming, some picnickers, people milling around, made us so lo and longing for the old days when the Hahn families got together and had picnics and we had a lot of them when you kids were little, the grandmas and grandpas and all went, we talked about them so much we didnt want to stay longer so we went to town had a light supper and watched people then home to bed. . . . With Much Love Mother

Dear Tommy have been over to the big house for two nights and 1 day. [Florence babysat for the Clevenger's in Topeka for several years. Mr. Clevenger was a banker there. I later years the youngest [?], Bill Clevenger. would pick her up in his convertible. At that time she acted more like a housekeeper than a baby sitter.] So much activity going on, six young fellows working on the yard getting it all smoothed down for sod. This yard is a good half block long big and maybe more. these boys are around 20 years old working on it and they have so much fun. some work with their shirts off and have a deep tan as last few days the sun has been bearing down. Then a man was here all day scrubbing and waxing the large brick screened in porch and the laundress was here all day. The cook had her day off that was why I was here. I fixed the 3 boys a tray and they ate out on the porch, a dining table and chairs out there, but somehow they are as appreciative of things like that as you were, just take it for granted.

Had Grandma T[orgeson] over Wed all day, so asked Minnie and her mother for lunch.

The Corbys had a little trouble the other day she always calls me and tells me such things, this way, David and a little neighbor girl ran off in the evening and went in a back yard, had Davids dog with them, they opened a chicken pen and the dog killed four, the people werent home. Dave ran home and told his folks and they went to see what it was all about, left a note on the pen and told them their address would try to do what was right in way of payment. Corby told Becky he wouldnt be surprised if it didnt cost them $4 or $5, and imagine their surprise when the lady called up the next morning and said were prize (blue ribbon stock) and worth $55, havent heard how it came out as I came over here and she wont call until I get home, however Dave got a very hard spanking from his Dad which upset Becky terribly as she is so gentle, and had me all teary too,, but now it seems that if folks woudnt get so upset over things they would work out alright, makes a difference whether one is a looker or a culprits parent.

Friday Afternoon. Back to our little house and it looks good to me, and can see the neighbors around, the big house has a high brick wall around it. Was a year ago we all came home from our Texas trip.

Sat eve. Had to quit yesterday, on this letter I mean as a car honked in our drive way and it was the Marshalls. (Bill, his wife, Colleen, and daughter Mary Jo had lived in the house to the south of Florence and Walter before they moved to Frankfort, Kansas.] Bills sister told me last week they were coming so I wasnt surprised, they had just gotten in the night before so it was 4 oclock and I asked if they would stay for supper and they said would like that so Bill went down town and Colleen and Mary Jo went around to see the neighbors and gave me time to collect my senses about what to fix. Dad came home and he and I worked fast taking a bath, getting things out in yard for supper outdoors, asked Ed & Hazel over too. [The Wilcox's were their neighbors in back, on Wayne Street.]

Walt Hahn and Doll Susie and May Jo Marshall, daughter of next-door Neighbor's, Bill and Colleen Marshall in June 1950. This photo was probably taken at the time of the Marshall's visit. (Hahn Collection)

We had chicken on hand and I fried a platter of it, cooked potatoes & gravy. a big tossed salad. ice tea and pineapple & bananas cut up together. all ate so hearty, fried chicken was a treat to the Marshalls, also the bananas, said they got the small ones there and they had no flavor, they ate bread and jam heartily also. After supper we carried the dishes in and all went over to Smiths [former neighbors and friends] as they are leaving today for Minn. on vacation. We all sat on porch steps and Colleen laughs just as loud and hearty as ever in fact seemed lie it was last week they left as they hadnt changed one but except Mary Jo, she is 10 yrs and looks like a 12 yr old, has very nice manners and sometimes seems older but when she got with the Smith boys she romped like a little girl.

Bob [Smith] sent the kids aroud the corner where the church was having an icecream social and they brought back ice cream on paper plates for us all, it got a little soupy but we laughed and had so much fun we didn't mind it.

The Smiths borrowed Eds little trailer you remember the one that folds down and hey intend to sleep in it . . .[The remainder of the letter is missing.]

Tuesday Eve [About 28 August 1950] Handwritten. s

Dearest Tommy. You have been on our minds constantly the past few days and the thought of you such a comfort as Grandma Hahn has left , she has been unconscious since the [her] fall. I wrote you about and now they think it must have been a stroke before she fell out of bed as she never never her bed after she got home fro hospital. We found a good practical nurse for her for daytime and she was no care at night. Dad and I were over Sun. afternoon and we knew she wouldn't be here much longer, but didnt know the end was so close. We came home and about an hour later she was gone. No hard struggle at all.

So yesterday morn (Mon) Ed [Hahn] & Marie (Jenkins) Hahn] went over early. Sent Marie Ed & Marg[aret] [(Hahn) Walter) to the mortuary to take care of things there, then they came home we made calls to the K.C. folks and then we fixed some lunch and then tore into the work and there was plenty to do. The garage hadnt been cleaned out since Grandpa H left [1934]. We dug out there and whenever anyone didnt want anything they threw it in there. Then we had to burn practically everything in Grandmas room mattress, pillows, clothing as they were full of sickness so we carried baskets all afternoon out to burn. She had very little of anything of value but I think I have something for you which you will appreciate (you dont have to take it if you dont want to) but is an old bible a large one such a nice heavy cover, I believe its 1885 or 95, a Holman bible.

I picked out a tureen that is a large china vegetable dish with a lid on it, so pretty, Margaret had junked it out in the garage when she moved in, and they yesterday dumped it in with other stuff in a basket and when I saw it, was excited about it so I set it against the garage, and later on one of the fellows piled some lumber against the garage and a board fell against the dish and broke it in a hundred pieces, after all the rough care it had then when I was so tender with it something had to happen so.

We came home around six weary and blue and there was a box full of mail from you 3 letters Aug. 15-19-22 and a newspaper, were our spirits lifted. We didn't read them at once but took a bath as were so very dirty and dressed and went to town to eat to get away from phone etc., so we took your letters, sat in a booth at the Kansas [Hotel] and read them aloud, they were so very interesting. I could hardly sleep thinking about things you wrote. The Damascus trip so interesting have just finished reading aloud Acts 9, had forgotten the part about Paul being lowered in a basket. and we marveled at the way you remember so many things like the tapestry of Granma T's. So that is a typical scene now isnt it?

We took your letters over today for Uncle Paul [the brother of Christian Hahn, Walt Hahn's father] to read he is quite a reader and enjoys travel, he enjoyed them very much, he also thought it odd about about the head of John the Baptist encrypted in the Moslem Mosque. Uncle Paul, Uncle Gus Aunt Nellie [Christian Hahn's brother and wife] and Aunt Louise (she is Dad Hahn's sister has lived in Calif. and is now living with Edith in KC). They all came with Ray [Hahn, Gus Hahn's son. This Aunt Louise was here when you were a little by around 1 1/2 or 2 yrs. You still had your thumbs tied up, she felt so sorry for you. My mother tried to follow the "current" theories of raising a child. If you see me sucking my thumb, I am just playing catch-up. Tom] So it has been 22 yrs since she was here. She is a frail little old lady. She was born in 1866, so she would have been about 84.] We took your large frame picture over to show her, and we had it setting up on the colonnade all afternoon so you were there.

We fixed a light buffet meal of sliced cooked ham, cheese, potato chips, pickles, white grapes, coffee, ice tea. Hazel [Wilcox and her husband, Ed Wilcox, neighbor back of Florence and Walter] brot 2 luscious pies to take over, so the K.C. folks didnt come like we thought for noon meal, but all our family were there the Corbys [Harry, Becky, Dave, Rick], Dorothy [(McCollister) Miller]. all of Ed's [Ed Hahn, Marie, Patty] (Barbara & Sammy were in Jamestown [New York, Myrtle (Hahn) McCollister, Mattie Hahn's daughter, came back [from where?], Marty [(Beckman) Kilkenny) came up [from Ponca City, Oklahoma. They were panning to come this weekend so she came on train ahead of time, After the funeral they all came back to house (grandmas) and we had coffee, and the same from noon whoever was hungry, the DeFrieses from the farm where you went one time were here [but I don't remember having done that. They were from Mattie (DeFries) Hahn's family.], one of the Kirby sisters where we used to have the reunion [Grinter House in Kansas City, Kansas] was here and she told us about the time you were on the porch railing on upstairs porch and they were afraid you would fall (werent those reunions fun?)

The neighbors on High Street sent a gorgeous bouquet, very large, all white gladiolus and red roses, then the Bone Head Club sent a very lovely container of yellow mums, asters, and pink glads, Jo & Gladys [Florence's sister and husband, Joe White, of Topeka] a nice bouquet, the Wilcoxs, Palmers and Smiths [neighbors and former neighbors] a bouquet, there were other lovely flowers from friends of the other folks also. The service very simple and plain, a small crowd as grandma had been out of touch for so long with folks. Some of our neighbors, the boneheads and folks from Trinity [Methodist Episcopal Church] was the crowd. Dad & I feel so grateful to our good friends and neighbors. I brought some flowers home and took them to Mrs. Diehls [neighbor fourth house to the north]. . . . [Portion of letter missing.] Obituary enclosed:

[Probably Fall 1960s] Friday Morning. Typewritten.

My Dear [Sister] Bernice Tis a cloudy morn and chilly, guess will have to start wearing a winter coat, hear on radio on that you have a snow, we had a light drizzle last night and the walks a little wet this morn and the leaves are all over, trees almost bare.

Had my Book Club yesterday and eleven came, one couldn't come but one brot her mother, the most we have ever had out and my house is small and they all came but I like to have all come. The mother had broken her hip and was using a walker so we had to help her some, had never met her, she was so enthused that I had pie, most old folks like pie. My table was very attractive, had on a yellow table cloth and the center piece was a cornopia filled with vegetables and artificial fruit and setting on pressed leaves. the big sycamore kind and my big turkey by it and kaffir stalks around it and the vegetable boy and a little pheasant, then used paper napkins with fall leaves, and used turkey coasters between the coffee cup and the saucer, had to have a card table for three. We didnt have much of a Book review but just exchanged Christmas ideas etc. My pie turned out so well, made the shells the day before and set in the refrigerator, I think that makes them better and then used the Cherry instant pie filling with the crumb top, bake the pie and filing altogether in a 425 [oven] 30 minutes and then put a small dipper of vanilla ice cream on top, really doesnt need anything but I didnt have any candy or nuts so made the dessert extra good for that and coffee is all I had as is a dessert affair. I so enjoy getting ready for something like that and using my head and what have on hand and come up with something nice, all I bought was the coasters as had the paper napkins left over4 from last fall. Here is the topping recipe I used. I have never used this one before but Mrs Shuarts puts out such good things with it so here it is. [I have not included the recipe.]

Walt is or rather has fixed a loose wire in the well this morn and turned off the electricity on the stove and while at it cleaned out back there. We cant do that often as the stove is too heavy to move so he just now asked if I would like to pay him now or send a bill. [My father had a light, gentle sense of humor.]

Walt bought a dark winter hat and has anew shirt and new suit and he says he is going to impress them tonight he sure looks nice in his outfit. [May dad always had nice clothes even though he had a small income.]

Hazel Wilcox [neighbor in back on Wayne Avenue] is so busy getting ready for Florida. She will have all the family home for Thanksgiving and after that Sun will take off, she has her Christmas shopping all done and will leave the gives all wrapped for the families . . .[The remainder of the letter is missing.

Saturday Afternoon [20 September 1965] Handwritten at 67 years old. At this time, Tom lived in at San Miguel. Zambales Province, the Republic of the Philippines. s/mh

Two letters from you this morn which brightened up the day so much. This is our 45th wedding anniversary, and since this is the night of the neighborhood picnic will not do anything else. I was awake so early and heard the trains and planes and thought of last year today that was the day we arrived at your place. [Tom and his family at that time lived at Kawailoa Beach, Oahu, Hawaii when Tom was assigned to duty at the Naval Communications Station at Wahiawa.] Was all so exciting and and and our first anniversary are the two [wedding anniversaries] that stand out in my mind.

The day we were married Louise [Hahn] and Margaret [Hahn]. Both Walter's sister's] went with us to the preachers house in Topeka for the ceremony and when we came home to Grandma [Mattie] Hahn's house I don't remember how we went but do remember coming thru Central Park and I was so thrilled that was going to live in a city with Parks and plumbing. Was a beautiful Sept day but I can't see how I could wear a heavy suit this early. Grandma Hahn had a wedding dinner for us and then the next day we all went to Baldwin [Douglas County, Kansas] and Eds [Walter's brother] and Marie's [Jenkins] wedding. Whenever we mention their wedding all Dad can think of is the salty ham they had for dinner, while I think of the romantic side.

Think this article [not included] is such a good one and makes me wonder if I didn't goof many times in raising a child. We al think when he grows up then I can live and do things but that isn't so. When you have your family around you is the best time. Here was a 72 yr old negro on a TV program. He had raised 10 children and all went to college and have good positions, and he has just graduated from High school and now going to college this fall. He was given a check by the sponsor. He never had a good job, just anything he could find to do. but that couple had what it takes to do all that and makes me feel so little.

That was a nice birthday you had for the Chris [Hahn, Tom's son]. The boys will not forget that experience [whatever it was].

Will send you some other seed in another letter. The grocery stores were out and got these at the hardware [store]. They had put them away but got out their box. I suppose there are stores -- the seed stores or nurseries that have them all year long. Like to do things for you and now if you need something or want something that would be suitable for a Christmas box let me know. While Christmas is 3 1/2 mo away. You take 5 weeks for getting there and so it isn't so long but keep in mind. Does Chris need the summer variety of PJs and if so, long or short legs and Size 14 now? [Tom and his family lived at San Miguel, Zambales Province, Republic of the Philippines while Tom was stationed at the Naval Communications Station, in charge of Naval Security Group activities in Southeast Asia. He often went to Vietnam on duty. Little did he, or his parents, that his father would soon be diagnosed with cancer and that his mother would break a hip while he was in the Veterans Hospital at Topeka, to the hardship of all as Tom was the only child, far away in the middle of the Vietnam War.]

Sunday Afternoon [22 September 1965] Handwritten. Florence age 65, Walter age 69. Shortly after this, Walt became sick with cancer. His death record said that he had the disease starting 13 September. rr/s/mh

Went to church and dad suggested we go out and eat but there was so much food at the picnic last night that I didn't feel like looking at more food so scrambled some eggs and had asparagus and some cantaloupe and that fit the bill.

The picnic was more of a success than we had expected as last year was almost a flop, but there were 42 there. The trouble was there would have been more but since was Labor Day holiday several were out of town. They asked for volunteers for next year and the Diehls [neighbor's at 1104 High Avenue] and us volunteered so we hope to plan something different and maybe go to a different park. This is the 14th one we have had, the Diehls and us had the first one and have been hosts several times since. The shelter houses are charging a fee now in the summer $2.00 and winter $5.00 but that isn't bad for a crowd. The paper table cloths furnished and gas and all in the winter heat. Each family paid 25c last night for the place. I took 4o cinnamon rolls and the kids sure did gobble them down. Also made a casserole of escalloped potatoes.

This morn at church they sang "Take Time to be Holy" and I probably have told you before about the time or the first time I ever heard that song and whenever I hear it I still smell peaches. This particular time, was in the fall the first year we were in Topeka [1920] and often Grandma and Grandpa Hahn, Margaret and Louise [Walter Hahn's unmarried sisters] and us would go for a ride. Louise wasn't married until later in the year and was their first year in Topeka, so Sunday afternoons we would get into that Ford of Grandpas and go out on the country roads. Wasn't any traffic on any roads in those days. At one farm house we saw a sign "Peaches for Sale" on the gate down by the road, so we drove up a long lane and there was a peach orchard on one side. The smell was really something and as we got to the house we heard singing -- someone playing the piano and several singing this hymn. So we knocked and said we wanted to buy peaches and they said they didn't sell on Sundays. So I can still smell peaches whenever I hear that song. So this morning my nose got to twitching. We have bowl of peaches and pears on the table now but they don't have that orchard smell. You have never written about the tropical fruits there [the Republic of the Philippines]. Do you get hold of any like the ones in Hawaii?

My Dear Son I feel that the added note I sent off this afternoon wasnt very explicit but I was beside myself and couldnt think straight.

Dad asked me the first of the week if I wanted to talk to the Dr and I said well you have told me the details so guess that is it but I got to thinking about it and thought that would contact him today so did and he gave it to me straight, he drew a diagram and where the tumor was and that it was cancerous and that a section of the colon would have to be removed and all depended how much the disease had spread, it was as tho he had run a knife in my stomache but I kept composed and went back and chatted with Dad some more and had to keep calm then also. I asked the doctor if Dad knew and he said yes so that was Dads way of having me find out. I thought that I would never get home [from the Veterans Hospita] at Topeka] so I could break down and as soon as I got in the door the flood gates opened up and have kept up most of the evening and night.

Dad is so patient and kind and leans on me so much. He said he coudnt write to you as he couldnt put in a letter the things he wanted to write and then he doesnt feel up to it.

I take you letters out to Dad and he wants me to read them to him and then he will read them again.

While the thought ran through my mind many times that the ailment might be malignant I wouldnt dwell on it and we are all prone to think, that it couldnt happen to us, but I still have faith and hope that all will turn out alright. They will operate Fri they think, their schedule is full for the week. The waiting is hard and tome will drag. Dad doesnt have any appetite and hasnt for a month or so, things make him feel sickish and when Dad cant eat that is something. He has had enough tests etc to make him upset tho and doctor says now he must eat to get some strength.

It is a wonderful hospital and everything run so efficient, plenty of help in way of orderlies etc.

Every one is wonderful to me, offers to take me out to the hospital but some times I like to ride the bus, is a nice part of town and see things and then I can come home with Mrs. Diehl as she works out there and leaves at 4.40. [Mrs. Diehl lived at 1104 High Avenue and Florence live at 1120 High.

It has rained for days and days. so monotonous but cant tell you anything about rain. [We lived in the Republic of the Philippines.]

We love to hear about the kids. With Much Love, Mother

Mae [sister] called this morn and said she would come down if I needed her so may have her come later in the week.

Dear Tommy: I have news & it isn't pleasant so I'll be on with it. Thurs A.M. your mother fell in the back yard & broke her hip. I called Dr. Lawson & an ambulance to her to Stormont-Vail. After several x-rays she was admitted to #315. Dr. Lawson and & & they (your Mother, Dr. L) to call a bone specialist Dr. Krowl. Yesterday (Friday) at 1:00PM they did the surgery. I stayed till she was awake but missed Dr. K so this AM I called Dr. Lawson so I could report to you & Walt. Dr. L. says he doesn't know exactly what they did but here is what he told me. Her condition is excellent. The ball of the ball and socket joint of her left hip was broken off & crushed - this bal was removed & replaced with some kind of hardware (how do you like that expression?) I don't know what they used. Anyway they put in a new ball & fastened it. There is no cast which is good because she will be up much sooner & no crutches. One M.D. told me that she would be walking with a walker in 10 days to 2 weeks.

She planned to tell you today but asked me to write because she is shaky & nauseated today - these are not uncommon symptoms - she's uncomfortable & in pain some time I'm sure but is getting all the care anyone could give her. This won't last long. Today she looked very good for the first post op day.

When we found out her hip was broken she asked me to go out and tell Walt. Of course he was shocked & took it hard - he has gotten himself under control & is doing fine. I go out & report each day. Sunday Jess Brown said if Walt is strong enough he would take him to see your mother - this will be good for both of them.

Tommy your folks have so many friends they won' want for anything. Both you Mother and your Dad have asked me t take care of the few business things for them. I hope you won't think I rushed in & took over - as long as they want me to I'll do those things you would do. Of course we wish you were here but there really isn't any thing you could do but be that sweet son you are & no can can fill that place. f I can do any thing for you or if you want any questions answered I'll be glad to try. Sincerely, Zola Mrs. J. H. Snyder, 1130 High Avenue.

This has been a big day. got to sit in a wheel chair an hour this morn, an orderly lifted me in and out. [Walt was in the Veteran's Hospital; with cancer when Florence fell and broke her hip. I was living in the Philippines and going to and from Vietnam, being very involved in that war with the units that I had stationed there. Because I was their only child, it was difficult for all. When Florence left the hospital, her sister, Gladys (Torgeson) Murphy White I stayed my mother for a while.]

I have lots of company, Florence Taggart this afternoon and so many pretty things they bring me, all kinds of paper, stamps. I begged folks not to bring plants but have 3 gorgeous plants of mums, 2 yellows and a bronze one that has a large bunch of artificial grapes.

I miss Dad to tell him things, but not yet able to phone, when I get home we can use the phone a lot.

It all seems a dream yet, me here and he at another hospital and I keep dreaming that all will be like in the past. We have had a wonderful, well rounded life together, and then everything went boom. I do send messages back and forth and he writes notes also.

5 September 1977. Handwritten. mh

Dear T & N Fresher this morn and hazy. Was 57 yrs today Dad and I were married. and this year seems so fresh in my mind, some years the day goes by without thinking about it. The [wedding] day was a bright quite warm one as I had a new winter suit and a satin blouse so it couldnt be as warm as now, for no one could stand a suit this kind of weather. Louise and Margaret went with us to the ministers study First Meth at eleven oclock and then back to grandma & grandpa Hahns for a nice wedding dinner. Dont remember whether there were any relatives there that day. I came to Topeka a few days before and stayed at the Hahns and I shopped for my clothes.

The day after our wedding was Marie and Eds at Baldwin. The ones at the Hahn house went in the Ford [to Ed Hahn's wedding in Baldwin] and Dad and I went on an early train to Baldwin. We slept in our own home the first night as had my bedroom furniture from home [White City] shipped here, and there was a kitchen table and a stove. The wedding at Baldwin there were a few guests and Mrs Jenkins, Marie's mother, had dinner for us all, and then we left around 6 o'clock pm for KC for a brief honeymoon. Ed & Marie went too. We had a card fro our White City furniture man at a furniture store there and we were supposed to get a percent off. Whether we did or not, I doubt we did, we were so green, and only furniture we got was a buffet, table and chairs, we couldnt afford any more, so we got a few things at a yard sale in Topeka, a few days later--a wicker settee and chair. We did get a table with the dining room stuff, they called them library tables then, a long narrow table and it stuck out like a sore thumb in that almost bare room, but we were very happy and proud of what we had. I had bought things for my hope chest for two or three years so was well supplied with towels, sheets, etc and got a notice from the bank in W.C. a week after we were married I was overdrawn 67 cents. I never lived that down. Dad thought it was quite a joke and loved telling it, but I also came back that I had a cedar chest and many dollars worth of things for the house, also my suit and hat, and only wore the hat to my wedding and to Baldwin and KC and the next day in KC was raining and it was ruined. It costedding hat cost $18.50 and suit $75.00. Clothes were high then.

The night before we were married the Hahns were playing the Victrola and the record was, "When you come to the end of a perfect day." Maybe you have never heard it but it was so popular then and I got homesick and left the room and went to a bedroom and cried. Dad came in and I told him I was lonesome and wanted to go home to W. C. but in no time he had me in a different frame of mind, so fall has always been a beautiful time for me as that one was such a lovely one.

And now this Labor Day am also thinking about later years on that day. We always got Colo peaches, the last ones to be on the market and I made what you called Halloween jam, as had te color of Halloween things, used orange peel, and marashino cherries, and peaches, was a beautiful jam and company jam.

Havent set a any date yet for coming, waiting for cooler weather. The leaf from Shepherd House is out on easel. With love, Mother

During the next period covering these letters, 1978 - 1988, Florence Hahn lived in an apartment at 2101 High Avenue, Topeka, Kansas. She had moved there from her home at 1120 High Avenue several years after her husband, Walt Hahn, died in February 1967 at the age of 70, when Florence was 65 at the time. Her son, Tom, had left home in Topeka in 1944 after never returned to lived. He wrote to his parents and then to his mother at least once a week, no matter what the circumstances or where he was. Florence was a good letter writer and she wrote and spoke good English. The letters start when she was about 81. Some of them are typewritten. Florence was not a trained typist, but she could manage a letter on the typewriter. The content of most of the letters is not of great importance, but they reflect the life of a widow, with an only child, who maintained good health and a sound mind and body. At the time these letters were sent to him, Tom and his wife, Nathalie, lived in Shepherdstown, West Virginia at 6 South Church Street.

Because we lived in Shepherdstown, West Virginia and my mother live in Topeka, Kansas, we didn't get to see each other often, but she would visit us and when we could we visited he. Sometimes I went by myself on the bus. Usually, when I/we left, she would have a little lunch or goodies of some kind to take with us. This note was in one of those packages:

> Thank you for coming to see me, I shall miss you. Hope your journey is a pleasant one. And I love you Mother

February 1978 Handwritten. Age 80. s

Tom, I wish could remember more about certain things when I was young like you do. I was thinking about my mother [Margaret Owen] after listening to Dr. Shuler [television televangelist] talking about his mother and her apple pies and about mother doing baking for Grandma & Grandpa T [Taral Torgeson (Thomas Torgeson, Sr.) and Torborg Jonsdatter (Matilda Johnson)] of Norway and sending us] over with it. We sometimes went alone and sometimes one of the sisters went. as they weren't like other grandparents. [They spoke Norwegian and what little English they knew was taught to them by their children from the English they brought home from school. We were a little timid aroud them and so we waited around a short time a short time there. Grandma would go in the bedroom and get each of us a stick of candy, she kept in a drawer in a sack.

Then mother would send me to an old couples house, a very small house, don't think it is there any more, and the lady was a small person in a wheel chair, and had rheumatism and her hands were so crippled and the man did the housework. I think I called her grandma and she was easy to visit with. When mother went to see her she often gave mother money to buy me something with. Mother never told me until she got me a present. I don't know whether the money was in little change and mother saved it untie she found the present and one present was a beautiful gold locket and chain. I just loved it, and gave it to Betsy Hahn, her grand-daughter] 2 or 3 years ago. Bought a new chain for it. The locket has always been as bright as when new. Then another time a big doll. I never was much for dolls past the little age stage, but it was a nice one. It is in the tent picture.

Tues morn. Was such a surprise during a commercial to get your call and am glad as that gave me a chance to see the Wilson admn. I had seen about an hour at the start, then decided to watch "The Corn is Green," as she is a good actress. but was disappointed in it so was glad to switch over to "Back Stair" [at the White House], and didn't know it was 3 hr deal, so I want to see them [episodes] all. Now this Wilson admn. was when I started working in the [White City, Kansas] P.O. so was especially interesting to me. [Her father, Thomas Torgeson, was the postmaster, appointed by Wilson, and Florence was the Assistant Post Master. One time was in paper that Wilsons two daughters Margaret and Jessie would be coming through White City on the Rock Island train. so some of we young folks went to the station and they came out on the train platform and waved. They were grown up. Got out my "First Ladies" book and read about Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Wilson. [Florence enjoyed reading and belonged to a book club for many years in Topeka.] So I really had a big evening and was nice to know you were watching too and felt like I was close.

Had snowed all night a fine snow and supposed to get 4 in but will quit this afternoon. Morning paper full of accidents in night and they warn and ask folks not to get out in cars if not necessary as they get in way of snow plows.

I was up early and bread is raising. and have a casserole of chicken and rice in pepper halves to put in oven at same time. Also tucked a big potato in as it can be used tomorrow in something. I try to put more thing in oven to save gas. [Florence was a good cook, having learned to cook from her mother and having taken lesson taught by the gas company.] So I have been on the go and is only 8 oclock so I will wash my hair next. [Florence once to Tom that when she was a girl in the winter when it was extremely cold, they kept their hair clean by brushing cornmeal through it.]

Two calls in night in night on radio for beer bread recipe. They say letting it set for 20 min before baking helps, and I put a piece of foil or brown paper over top so won't get so hard. You probably know that. [Florence in later years was a poor sleeper, so she often listed to a talk radio show in bed at night.]

[Pasted in letter, headline] TIRED OF SHOVELING SNOW?

Am going to write Betsy today. Haven't done that since Christmas. My days seem so full and am content, and I know the snow creates problems but I can;' do a thing about it so why not enjoy it, and I spend much time watching folks walking by by snow up to their knees. I never read funnys but these [enclosure no longer with the letter] caught my eye and got a chuckle out of both.

So a lot of Love to all Mother and Grandma. Chris this letter ought to hold you a while, and lots of milk and cookies while you are doing hw [home work?? as you say you like to read letters while you have your snack. [Tom's son. Chris, lived with Tom and his wife, Nathalie, during this year and attended Shepherd College at Shepherdstown, West Virginia.]

[13 July, perhaps 1978] rr/m

Dear Nat [Tom's wife] Your letter came today and it made good time as was sent Wed pm, but dont bother if you cant get a letter mailed as you are too far from a Post office [in Maine] to run there every whip stitch. But was glad it came today as it seems to long to wait over the the weekend.

Sat is either a drag for me or full, somehow I just dont like Sats any more, women that have husbands or work like it the best of all the days.

Went to a wedding at 10 this morn, our asst preacher got married, he is a young fellow in his 30s and has an office in our church and is over at Washburn [College] so much counseling or something. He is a rugged lookin fellow and modern etc nothing sissy about him yet is sincere about his religion. The minister had the wedding in his yard, it is across from the campus and has a large house and the yard is emense lots of oak trees and shrubbery and lovely outside so cool and they had stereo or amp and the young fellows had guitars etc and sang songs not like the wedding songs am used to, the Mod love kind. We sat in chairs and a large crowd, so many young folks from our church and from the college also. I went with Jenay's mother, dress and everything simple, no on frets anymore what to wear at a wedding, just what they have, only had a best man and matron of honor and our preacher married them and then after the ceremony we went to the church for a reception, their cake was devil's food instead of the traditional white kind. Before the reception they showed slides of the bride and groom, that was taken the past year, them playing tennis, on picnics etc which I enjoyed. Came home and changed clothes and got a light lunch and started in on the 3rd chair to wash off and buff and Garnette came and wanted me to go to a shopping place so I quick changed into a and went and we were only gone a short while, I did look around for a summer dress went and was there half hour or so, and as we got in the door Jerry brot each of us two cucumbers and said, "Come in for a glass of ice tea, as she wanted a break from her vacuum cleaning.] I think Jerry was a neighbor in the apartment house.] She had worked down town all morning and part of the afternoon so we then he came in, he loves to have folks around and we said we were celebrating the "Happy Hour" and he said "With ice tea?" Just before I went over there my phone was ringing so answered it and it was an obscene call, very dirty.

I dont know whether you will get much information from Martha as I wrote two years ago when you were making out some papers and asked about her sisters age or something and she said she didnt know. And you asked about my grandmother Owens, about anything I could tell you and cant think of anything. While she lived to be an old lady, she never told us stories of her life and I cant remember my mother telling anything. When I was young and visited them had a good time. Martha Florence's mother's sister] and I are the same age. She let us do most anything in way of play. They lived 6 miles from us and I would go down to visit them on the train. We girls would play AUTHORS in the evening and we would fix up all kinds of concoctions and put in little patty pans and put in oven or on top of the stove and play house that way. Gladys told me last night that she remembered the day Grandpa [Owen] died, he was found in the barn dead. He had diabetes but I dont remember that, or that he had been sick. Grandma and Martha used to come see us on the train. I think that grandpa worked on the [railway] section. After Grandma became a widow one or two summers I went down to a carnival and we fell for a fellow that took up tickets. He didnt know it but we went home and talked about him. I was probably 13 years old but I do remember their yard there were glorious morning glories growing around the well, and apple trees,, one in particular that had such good eating apples they were called sweet apples and were just that and the inside was so white, they were called pound sweets as they were very large. [An Internet search brings up the statement, "Pound Sweet apple is an old variety that has been a favorite for years. Fruits are large, delightfully sweet. Amber to golden yellow when fully ripe and russeted. Very best baked or canned. Also know as Pumpkin Sweet it originated in 1800's in the apple orchards of S. Lyman of Manchester, Connecticut."] The house was small, and two rooms upstairs which was steep, but dont remember the furniture or anything about the house but them kitchen, had a cook stove and table, etc. Mother told me that a few days after grandma was married her mother came to see her and grandma was cutting out baby clothes from her wedding dress and her mother said, "Addie are you in the Family Way" and he reply was "Isnt every one after they get married" but Grandma wasnt so soon, as she didnt have a baby for a year or more.

Mae was the one that loved her grandma. She was 10 yrs older than I so could appreciate her and she used to talk about her a lot but cant remember what. I never hear Martha mention her uncles or aunts, they no doubt lived back east and in those days traveling was nil almost.

Have finished the third chair setting getting the gummy spots off, no one will notice the difference but me.

Have the phone on the maple chest on the north side toward kitchen and a kitchen chair beside it, so the office is a store room period right now. With an overflow of company I may go back to it for the typewriter table, etc.

And I feel for you about your treasures you lost from theft [from the cabin in Maine]. Those are things that cant be replaced. Here is a quotation from a little book you and To sent one time "Memories from days gone by"

New things are good things
And they fill our life with pleasure.
But the old things--those that touch the heart.
They're the ones we'll always treasure.

[Sunday Evening] Quite a day as I went to church with Ruth and Garnette, they always go to church together and then eat some place afterward and so Connie was out of town so I went with them and a call to Ruth this morning that a couple were coming to see her for which they do often so we all went to church together. We went to the cafeteria downtown. We went to First Presbyterian Church, So after dinner we went out in the Potwin area, it is a lovely old part of town and years ago was the best place in Topeka, the houses are very large and beautiful shrubbery. They were having some sort of a Bi Centennial deal in several yards. It was advertised so we wanted to see what they had but wasnt much, some ceramics, macrame, etc, but was fun looking. This couple were so friendly, he is in the real estate business and I dont know where she works. They have their office in their home and he does well. They were the kind of folks that fit in so well. They have no children. When they brot me home I asked them in to see my home. and they set awhile and couldnt get over how cool it was. We had another cool night and so when I left shut the cool air in and pulled the shades down.

My new permanent is a pleasure to work with, have only shampooed it once since had it done and when ones hair looks good you are always ready to go unexpectedly, so if keeps on looking nice I will have to go to this shop again and will be so convenient as is the shop right on the bus line and get off at 9th and there it is.

Ruth is having her nephew come and take her to Califor Santa Ana to her brothers golden wedding. She has to take her poodle dog and wont fly and put it in the kennels. She went out several years ago and this fellow came after her. He is always out of a job. not always but is a loafer and is in his 30s so she pays him well to make the trip.

When the folks left as they were going out the door the gal down the hall Jerry came tearing out and said, "Was that the Laws" I know them, they were both raised in Clay Center. Several people in the eat8ng place knew him also.

When over in the Potwin district the folks noticed the old chimneys on the houses and how odd, they said they looked like chimneys on English houses and he took pictures of three, some had two and three chimneys.

And TODAY is your BIRTHDAY and I dont know how old you are, fill me in. Hpe that your package arrived in time but the timing at your end [in Maine] when you pick up the mail I cant control.

Mon Morn Another lovely morn, is supposed to warm up a little but nights will be in the 60s and that will be alright, has been cooler, the mornings are so fresh.

Dont make your letter writing a task but remember I am having a vacation through your eyes so write all the tidbits that goes on, seen the Bartons yet? [The Bartons were friends in Maine. Much Love Mother

Sept 6 [1976]. Typewritten. mh

I have been thinking about 56 years ago today. What a good life we had together. We were married on the 5th [of Sep 1920]. Louise [Hahn] and Margaret [Hahn] [--Walter Hahn's sisters] went with Dad and I to the First Methodist Parsonage here [in Topeka, Kansas] at 11am and we went to Grandma Hahn's for our wedding dinner. The next day we went to Baldwin [KS] to Marie [Jenkins] and Ed's [Ed Hahn was Walter's younger brother's] wedding at Mrs. Jenkin's home. [Mrs. Jenkins had previously lived in White City, but she moved to Baldwin to give her daughter, Marie, a home while Marie attended Baker University. Mrs. Jenkins also took in students as boarders.] Avis [Marie's sister] and her new husband [Frank? Sharp] of four months were there. I think about six o'clock we two couples went to Kansas City and we stayed at the same hotel. We went to a furniture store. We had a letter for a discount from the furniture man in White City, so we bought a dining table, buffet, and chairs and we didn't have money for anything else. We were there two nights. I had a new wedding suit which was a fall model and was a warm day and then a rain the first day in KC that ruined my wedding hat.

It was so nice for us to have our relatives living here [in Topeka] and raising our families together. Les [Beckman] and Louise [Hahn] were married in December, then Myrtle [Walter's older sister] moved here the next year and Ed soon after that so that we were quite a family. The Hahns were wonderful people, good folks and loved their children and we were all very happy. Then my folks came two or three years after we did. Dad was still in the Post Office 2 or 3 yrs after I was married.

We had such fun on picnics and going to the Fair with our kids and we were all poor together. Dad [Hahn had a Model T car the year they came to Topeka and they came here only a few months after we were married. That first fall we were the only ones and them here in Topeka and we had such good times. We would go for a ride Sunday afternoons with Louise, Margaret and Grandma and Grandpa Hahn and we would get lost in the country and finally get back on the road to town. We would stop at their house for a little Sunday evening snack. It seemed that it was a wonderful fall, everything new to us--the big Fair and we even had a guest or two that fall that came to the Fair.

And Dad had a good time stocking up on apples, pears, etc and grapes. I didn't know much about what to do with them but did know some from home, but mostly my job at home was peeling the peaches and apples and grapes and mother did the rest. And so today all I've done is think about the good times and how beautiful that fall was. And to be in my own home with a furnace and running water and a toilet, I felt like a queen, but most of all I had a good man to look after me and we built our future together with work and dreams. And after 5 yrs we were on our feet getting a head start so planned for a little boy and that made our life complete, you have been so good to us and there are so many things I wish that I had done differently, more patience with you, etc.

Still no rain, hot in Kansas. Poor Mr [William O.] Douglas. What a life he has now just suffering.

Fall 1978 Typescript [M] [At the top, four fall quotations: "Air deliciously crisp. like the first bite of a McIntosh." "Hillsides looking like Persian carpets." Frost tarnishing the goldenrod." "Cornstalks standing like gaunt soldiers in faded khaki.]

My Dear Son: Have just come back from my daily walk. Sometimes have to kick start myself to get going but after I start it is rewarding as the air so fresh these days and I think of the humid summer days and being shut [in] as too humid to take a walk so I am going as long as I can before winter sets in. The grass very white with frost. The first big one so plants etc will feel it. T the trees are simply gorgeous and on all side of me is beauty, and I take it in.

The days last week were so full I didn't know whether I was coming or going but have quieted down more this week. Yesterday the little old lady next door brot me a hot piece of ginger bread. She had it on a napkin on a big sycamore leaf. She was the lady that was here Sun for tea and she is such a smart one and is always interested in things and what the trees look. As she doesn't see well and doesn't venture out side. Well, to go back to the cake, she has a black lady come in often to do her laundry and cleaning and get groceries and this lady had gathered up some leafs from our yard for her so I know this lady had baked the cake as Mrs. Landis can't see to read a recipe and I was so touched at the friendly gesture of her bringing that piece of cake, and she just comes to the door as says a few words and back to her rooms. The other [neighbor] never knows when to go home. She doesn't cook like she used to and she was a wonderful cook. This is Mrs. Samways.

I have spent of the afternoon trimming the butternut squash. I have done that the last few years. When your Dad was here he brot me a little pumpkin for the table and instead of cutting it and making a face I pasted eyes, nose and mouth so that I could have it for a decoration all the fall season up to Thanksgiving. This one doesn't have much bottom more tall than squash when they are that way. I made triangle eyes. For nose and mouth I took a little brown sack and crumpled it up for a hat and a red top of ball of fringe and I fringed a strip of brown burlap and have that sticking out from under the cap for the hair and he looks more like a scarecrow than a Jack O Lantern. He is standing on the brass table with a green piece of cloth around the neck. I have other fall things on the table, a ceramic hen pheasant, and artificial color leaves, little squirrels and a colored ear of corn. All these have had for several years and every year they come out of hiding. So I am managing my sad spells by doing something with beauty or creative in the home to pep me up.

Have stuffed peppers with cubed potatoes and cheese on top and two little custards, one for you. Try to have two or more things in the oven at the same time. [She was a good cook. Through the years she lived alone, from 1967, she manages to cook balanced meals. At this time, she lived next to a small shopping center with a grocery store. Almost every day she went to the store for something or other and to get out and do something. [Florence's step-granddaughter, Diane Torrey, gave Florence the blank Nothing Book as a gift. At Tom's request, she left it to him when she died.]

Yu mentioned storm windows being hard to find, if you need any for down stairs why dont you try plastic. Mrs. Samways fixed all her windows with plastic as she said her windows were too cold, and he [manager] came over and put it on my bathroom window and it helped a lot but dont attempt anything like that up high windows. He had a small piece of stripping and tacked it on the top and bottom with nails.

The article about greens reminded me of the time mother had a Bridal Brunch for me announcing my engagement. This was Aug. 1st and she wouldnt tell me what she was going to serve, and I cant remember what she had but for something to put the salad on (our garden lettuce all gone) but she used the tops of carrots for greenery, and she made a pretty deal to put, I think it was jello salad, on it. We kids never ate greens she cooked, like horse radish, lambs quarter etc, one of our wealthy women in

W. C. [White City, Kansas] when she had club in winter time she would call to Herrington, a larger town and have them send lettuce on morning train, for any luncheon etc. she had. Her daughter was one of my best friends and I loved staying all nite there. She had a bedroom all to herself, a fireplace, blue wall paper & white painted wood work. We didn't have room for a nite guest.

Thursday Evening [At Charlotte Johnson's home in Missouri. October 1978] mh

My Dear Son. Its raining hard and in a trailer sure is loud when it beats on the roof. [Her niece, Charlotte (Schump) Johnson and her husband, Gayferd Johnson, owned a trailer park in Missouri at this time.] The others are playing cards but I am too full of supper and not good at card games so sitting it out.

I made the sour cream slaw for dinner tonight, have good meals but once a day. We walked a mile around the court.

It was such a shock about Marie and last night was awake all night reviewing in my mind the past 52 years or more of our lives, how we started out our married life the same year. They (Marie & Ed) were married the day after we were and we two couple went to KC together and were there 2 days and bought some of our furniture. And from then on when you kids were little, our picnics, holidays etc. together. And then later the hardships . . . and am wondering what brought on this attack, if the fall had anything to do with it. And I battled with myself what was the thing to do about hurrying home, and it seemed so confusing to try and get there and spoiling [surviving sister] Bernices trip, and really with relatives there, I could do so little. It seems as though I have had my share in losing folks this summer, [sister] Gladys, then Ed and Marie, and that is quite a few in a short time. My friends and sister have sure gone.

The trees are thick not too far from here and are like a small mt or hill and blue haze and so many trees are red but very little yellow showing. Charlotte is such a fun person and is up early mornings.

Bernice is having a hard time finding new clothes. The Taggarts [probably her husband, Tom's brother, Bob, and his wife] took her shopping one day but no luck, so we will try some shops close by to Zita's [wife of nephew, Francis Schump]. Bernice turned her foot two weeks ago and then Sun. she banged it on edge of [bed] springs and a big lump came on leg, so that slows her down. [24 years later at age 101 1/2, that foot remains her only major health problem.]

With so much talking its hard to concentrate on a letter but am thinking of all of you. Probably be home Mon. and I hope Bernice stays on a few days but when she gets started she will probably not stay more than a day in Topeka. So with love, Mother

My Dear Son. Will soon be your birthday [5 November] and I shall always remember it as the happiest day of my life as I had a baby boy to complete my life.

Grandma and Grandma [Margaret (Owen) and Thomas Torgeson] came the next afternoon allowed in the room at hospitals and the nurse brought you in and Grandpa T held you and kissed you. He loved babies [He and Margaret had had nine of their own.] was so proud you were named after him.

It was a beautiful fall and then the first light snow came softly down. A yellow chrysanthemum was sent me. In those days greenhouse flowers were rare. It was such a happy time and your dad was there every evening and we were somewhat reluctant in sharing our evening with any visitors.

As I think back all the years following, they were easy compared to now days. I may not have been the best mother in raising you, and cross at times, when should have been more patient and understanding. You grew up and have made me very proud of you. And your Dad loved you very much too. He was the patient one. And so have a happy day. Will be thinking of you. With love, Mother

Such a nice letter from you and makes me realize what a thoughtful son you are and such a comfort to me and has made the loss of your father much easier to get through the years because you were always doing something to help. I get bored when folks say to me that their children are too busy they don't have time to write, or say they don't like to write letters. You write such nice things to me and it makes me feel like life is a challenge so I work on it

This morning as I was fixing the corn and broc casserole for my lunch I thought why not ask my new friend] Hilary for lunch, as she had left me a note on the door Wed and I was gone, that she would stop Fri morn, and so she came at eleven and came in. I said do you have deliveries to make around here and she said she did so I told her to get going and come back here for lunch at noon. Well her eyes sure did light up and she was so pleased and was back here at noon. I made no fuss over lunch, just heated up two slices of my homemade bread. took two cupcakes from the freezer that were three months old but freshen up so well and peaches were pen, made tea, and that was it. Most folks have just a snack at noon, and she ate it with a relish and we had about an hours chat. She has a daughter that lives in K.C. She works at Hallmarks in KC and does designing on cards and goes on business trips for them , so they see each other often.

I told her the first time she came I wouldn't be a customer as I receive some of her products as gifts and so she doesn't push her wares. She is doing this to get over a frustration of being alone and has worked at different stores until the past few years. Her husband went out in the yard one morning and fell died a year ago from a heart attack, so she decided to try the Avon deal for awhile and can quit anytime.

I feel the same way you do about Christmas. It should not be such a mad rush but the papers etc are getting one all in a hurrah and it should not be so hectic. A we are doing things all year as you say with trips and things so that is what I like best and the things I can remember and think about all year. I made three trips this year, the two to see you and the one with the girls and feel sort of selfish that I did it yet it was too make others happy too. And so I used the legacy [Gladys, her sister] left me for those trips and so have much to think about this winter. And you helped make the trips enjoyable and Nathalie too, so am busy or have been al fall getting boxes and doing a little shopping for the family and then next year it will be something I can send in a brown envelope. Something soft, as this deal of buying tape etc to please the PO is something. Of course you wrap Books etc every day and tote them over to the PO. I don't mean to complain as I enjoy doing things but it gets to be a chore unless I start early on shopping and I have all along so that hasn't been any big deal. One can't count on the weather this time of the year. So I have a box for the family and have enjoyed doing it but it is not a big affair and I don't want you to do much either. I only send cards to 3 or 4 friends as I write others all year.

Did you watch New England Christmas last night, I was a little disappointed but parts I liked was with Rod McKuen, and the pictures that were scenes look like Nathalie's crewel embroidery. His voice is so low was hard to get some of it. . . His last poem was about home that wherever you are or what you do is going home.

I was coming home from the store yesterday and there was a nice little branch of greenery that was on stuff they were using to decorate the store no doubt and was kicked around but a nice little branch on the side walk off of greenery that was off stuff they were using for decorating the store no doubt and was kicked around but a nice little branch. So I brought it home and washed it off and have it in a bottle on the table. Had to put a little stick in it to hold up the top branch. Little things like that little piece of cedar make me feel Chrismasy, and the smell of it and I thought about the Christmas when you were in Maine and the first Christmas without Dad and you surprised me and came home the first part of Dec and were only here two days. You came in with two little pine trees for the buffet and a larger one for the table, and several packages of deer meat on dry ice. Those are the Christmases that one never forgets. While gifts wear out but Memories never do.

And to make the trip last year and bring Betsy. I have regretted that Betsy didn't get to be with more of the family, but in later years we have been scattered at holidays and not like it used to be when you were growing up. and I wondered if she didn't think it would be that way when she came' However, she got to see the clan or a part of it Christmas day

Tis a dark morning and is misting and the forecast is for freezing drizzle or snow by night. Haven't had any snow yet, just one time saw it on a roof.

Charlotte [her sister Kate Schump's daughter] and Gayferd [her husband] went to Calif [from Missouri] to visit and for Thanksgiving. [They later moved to Orange, California] Their clan put there in a town not far from where they lived had it this year [?] so they went a few days before Thanksgiving and left their car at the Schumps [her Kate's son Francis and his wife, Zita] and will be back Mon, and they will not like this storm, after being there.

Georgine, Jenay's mother and Jenay and Dorothy' Gary's mother [Church friends] and I were going out this morn to Sorority houses, five of them. They have a show every Dec and it is so interesting. They sell things and the decorations are so pretty etc. I have gone for four years and almost backed out on this but decided to go , but a storm is moving in and I went to the phone to call and say I wasn't going and Georgine was calling me and said it was getting slippery and I am not taking chances and she wasn't either on driving so will be a nice day to stay in.

The Dickens Readings [at Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, West Virginia] must have been nice. You do have lots of things going on there which makes it interesting and I have enjoyed the activities that have gone to when there.

The little skinny turkey picture is funny and I will put it in the Nov. month Know Nothing Book. [Diane Torrey's Tom's step-daughter, that is, his wife Nathalie's daughter, gave this blank book to Florence and she left it to her son, Tom]

About 28 March 1979. Handwritten. s

My Dear Son. Just received your letter written in my Birthday [23 March 1897 at White City, Morris County, Kansas] and is such a good letter. As the years come and go it seems that you feel and write more about your feelings and thoughts and I also feel that I can open up also. Is hard for me to put my thoughts on paper. But while I don't expect you to write all the time about your Dad, am glad you do once in a while. He was a good father and loved us both very much. But since he has gone. I concentrate so much o you to fill that void, he has left, and you have done it so well in beautiful; and sending letters so often, and have made me happy. Our visits keep us in close touch also. I have wanted to tell you many times that if and when something happens to me to not have any guilt feelings, that you have neglected me or have been unkind. You have done so much to make my life a happy one and worth living. So be happy for others.

And another thing and so happy and relived is about what you have done for Chris . . . And I know that Nathalie has had a part in all this also. Here is Margaret's address you asked for. [Margaret (Hahn) Walter Hottle, Walt Hahn's sister, who lived in Mt. Vernon, Posey County, Indiana.] Am sure she would like a note from you. Gladys wrote to her as they were the same age and their birthdays a day apart and would write on their birthdays, a day apart, and Christmas. [Gladys (Torgeson) Murphy White was Florence's sister.] Also she sent me a letter after Gladys death and I answered it and I wrote at Christmas and received a nice letter from her and she said her three faithful letters writers had passed away. Gladys, Irma [the adopted daughter of her sister-in-law, Myrtle (Hahn) McCollister], and Maries (Marie (Jenkins) Hahn, who wrote for Ed [Walter Hahn's brother].

One of my Birthday Cards was a long poem about "Birthdays are a gift of God" [Not included here] And I was touched by Chris [Tom Hahn's son] card. What he wrote, "Since one of my most happiest people I know is my grandma. Please feel good about your one day this Spring that is really yours."
With much Love, Mother

Sunday Afternoon [April 1979) Handwritten. s

Dear T & N. This is one of those wet soupy days and chilly. Was going to church, with the Weeklys, as its Fellowship dinner and they have such good food and was going to fix a bean casserole and got dark and wet so decided to stay home. I get so chilled out a day like this.

So have put in time on letters, changing addresses. etc to the new phone book, and just puttering, not a planned meal this noon since thought I would be going out, but I fixed a quick one in little steamer and am out of bread s have bran muffin mixture soaking and will have muffins and apple sauce for supper. Muffins heat up so well, and like to have them on hand once in a while.

The programs should be better tonight than last. I watched Love Boat, but it was a repeat, then turned to movie that was half over, but it wasn't my kind. Watched the Welk Show and it made me teary as they sang Red Sails in the Sunset, "Its a Small World." The latter was one that we hummed a lot at Charlottes [her niece, at Orange, California after we had been to Disney Land. and went on a boat and little dolls from all countries [that mattered to Disney, at least] revolved around and sang it. And so I thought of [her sister] Gladys [] who lived also in Topeka] and how she enjoyed the trip, her first plane ride and all. [Part about niece Charlotte's family life in California not included here.]

Tomorrow election day for city. Ken Morrow running against Bill McCormick, who had his four terms, 8 years, and he has been good. Ken has talked and sent cards against Bill. He sure looks old. He [Ken] is 60 years and is going 6o make over the city he says. [Ken Morrow was a son of John and Hallie Morrow, good friends of the Hahns and members of their church group, "The Bonehead Club."

Well so much for that, will see. I didn't register so have no choice. Love, Mother

From a May letter year unknown

The sun was warm but the wind was chill
When the sun is out and the wind is still
You are one month on in the middle of May
But if you come so much as dare to speak
A cloud comes over the sunlit arch
And the wind comes off a frozen peak
And you're back two months in the middle of March (Robert Frost)
You know how it is with an April day

[June 1979] Sunday Evening. Typewritten. s

Dear T & N. Have just come back from a walk. Little late in starting but wanted the house to cool off ands had the oven on. Baked three poppy seed loaves. They are a sweet variety and have [had] stuff on hand for some time, as I don't want too much of that stuff on hand to eat up by myself, so since found out Avis was coming thought it would be nice to have something along that line, and also made a meat loaf, and put escalloped potatoes in the oven. The caked baked first as they have a low temp, and the meat loaf in at the same time and then added the potatoes after the loaves were out and the meat loaf needed more heat so was eleven when started out. [Avis Shuart, old-time Sunday School teacher, fellow church member, and along with her husband, Clarence, a member of the church-oriented Bonehead Club that was my folks social group for years]

Is a gorgeous morn, cool and wore a sweater. Went to see the garden as has been several days since saw it, and it has been so wet so should grow good and is so sturdy looking. No beets, but beans, cabbage no greens for salads. May have had that earlier but is the end of garden. I never see anyone around. [I think she is talking about her friend Hilary's garden. When she was away, she told mother to help herself to it.] I can see why dad liked his walks. He would come home and tell me many things he saw. I didn't have time then. I tried it and he stopped at every grocery store if they were on our walk. He took so much time and started out around 8 30 or 9 and that was my time to work and get the noon meal ready or go Mon Mornings to the Hospital to do volunteer work.

Had a queer experience the other morn. I woke up at 5 and told myself that I had to stay in bed until 6, so finally dropped off to sleep, and must have been asleep for I saw a person, a woman, hurry down the hall and I got up to see if she went out and the latch was on and the door locked.

I'm like you, Tom. Am sorting out odds and ends of letter material. Leota, Lewis wife [the step son of her sister Gladys White] brought a box of stuff last fall. She works at Hall marks, in the machinery dept, so am using some small env. . . .

[In speaking of an enclosed about sharing food] When Dad [Tom Torgeson, in White City, Kansas] had a garden, he would plant so much and work so hard keeping it up after work and then we girls had to take stuff to folks that didn't have any gardens. In those days there was no way of canning peas and beans.

Did not especially like the Movie last night, but stayed with it, and I thought my mother must have worried about her five girls, no four as I think Mae was a model daughter. I had some concerns about the youngest ones once in a while, coming in late and being so quiet so no one would hear. I was late, 18 years old in getting involved as did not become a woman as early as the others, so I was late in getting started but had no problems when I did. Hope you have a nice picnic tonight.

Later in afternoon. A call from Florence Taggart that she was coming over if I would be home. So, in a few minutes she was here. I had dressed for the day in decent clothes and so didn't have to rush around and get dressed for her. [She and her husband, Dr. Floyd Taggart, were former neighbors two houses south when we lived at 1120 High Avenue]. They remained friends until Florence's death and she is still living at this time. She brot a news clipping of Amy's [granddaughter] wedding. The little steamer [one of mothers standard wedding gifts] went over big as she did not received any and not much in the way of kitchen stuff. She was here an hour or so and what a nice visit we sure had. Made the afternoon a cheerful one and now can settle down to evening. She brought six hot cinnamon rolls, small ones, so will have two for my supper.

The day is a beautiful one and so cool in the house and outside also. The robins are going mad with a song. [Remainder of paragraph about a friend's grand-daughter]

Had a long conversation with a friend and Leota [White, wife of sister Glady's step-daughter] called. I have been thinking about them for two days and had planned on calling them today but didn't and so she called tonight. and said they have thought about me and should have called so we had a nice chat. Lewis [White, Leota's husband] is feeling fine now and back to work and they have a garden and a strawberry patch and have picked 40 qts of strawberries already. They have frozen some for jam, etc, and so with their jobs they keep busy. Was nice to hear from them tho. They were very good to Gladys. She died 23 May 1976. At the time of this letter they lived in Arkansas. Mother particularly missed her sister, Gladys, because they were both widows in the same town of Topeka. Although they lived on opposite sides of town and did not visit each other often, they kept in daily contact by phone.]

So my day was little surprises after all, and now is bedtime as nothing [of interest] on TV. One little blanket was not enough last night and tonight will dip into 50s and last night 45, so you see how nice it has been today after the rainy day yesterday.

Monday morn [June 1979]. s

Such a cool beautiful day and two little blankets on last night, but will warm up today. Have been over to the store as wanted an gel food cake mix as am having three and maybe a fourth for lunch tomorrow. One has a birthday so am just having ice cream and cake. So today will slick yup the house a bit and make the cake and look forward to another nice time tomorrow. So doesn't it look like I am getting back the old zip. Wish I could have been more on the ball when you were here. Am trying to eat things that put back the good germs that the bad destroyed. So my walk was short. Only went around the block to the store as my housework will wear me down for too long a walk, With much Love Mother Recd the Canal bulletin . [Tom was the editor of American Canals for seven years.]

Thursday Afternoon (Late) June 1979. Typewritten. s

Dear Tom. Am dashing off a line before the evening program comes on. Not too much this week in the way of a movie, There is one The last of the giraffe that may be interesting. I watched a program this morn as I had heard what the talk was going to be, about Sisters. A lady and her sister were the speakers and one had written a book about Sisters. They had folks on that were sisters. some had three or four or one and they told of their times growing up, Only one sister said that she and hers never got along and now they are grown they still don't visit or have any contact and I thought of my sisters, our reunions, etc. And also we lied to each other when growing up. Of course there was bickering, etc about whose turn to do the dishes etc and one group said that the oldest ones didn't have the easier breaks as the young ones did and I know that by the time Gladys and Bernice came along everything was easier for them, and they got a few more clothes. But as one lady said, once a sister always a sister. And it seems now that after [older sister] Mae left home [she] was the one I turned to and in later years after mother was gone she was like a mother, only I felt freer to talk things over with. Its too bad you don't have a sister, and some cousins for your kids.

You write such nice letter. One came today and you had Betsy over the weekend and that was nice.

Am glad you got a power mower but like you I do not like directions [in putting it together]. About the mower. Your yard is large and hard to mow so I am glad that you got one. When Nathalie was here I got a plate hanger and it was different than the one I am used to and had to have some studying to get it to work and she got the thing fixed. Grandma Owens [Florence's maternal grandmother] would come to our house and Mother would have to cut on a bought pattern on a newspaper as she [Grandma] didn't like to read directions on a bought pattern.

I intended to send you a check for a fan for Chris or to help of a refrig for him and My mind wasn't working then, but here is something for what is needed. This money left from my trip home?????? so use it. You probably already have things lined up before you leave [for the cabin in Maine and I see where you are going to start later than you planned, or maybe something for the cabin.

I have so enjoyed the boo you sent not long ago "Essays on Nature: and all kinds of interesting things. One just read about is about an apple. There is a star in many flowers and the one in the apple is [when] you cut cross wise had way between the stem end and the blossom end and there is a perfect start. I had to get an apple and see.

The light is good now in the bedroom as the sun has gotten farther west, so that is why I am using the typewriter more. It is too heavy to carry from the bedroom to the living room and the stand too. Sometimes in winter when I am shut in I have it set up on a card table in living room

All the lilacs were the first flowers to be planted around the newly built cabins and farm houses all over new America. They were planted in a garden at Portsmouth New Hamp in 1750 and they still grow there. When folks moved west they would wrap a root of lilacs in their belongings to plant in their new country.

Fri morn. Raining this morning so the walk is off. Watched movie last night "The last of the Giraffe" a two hour one and it was interesting. A giraffe is my favorite of the big animals. Today seems like Sat but looked at the calendar and it is not. All the news now days in on the planes. Will they or not be allowed to fly.

With much love, Mother

July 1979 After Dinner Noon One. Typewritten. s/mwh

And it was a good one too. Everything so tasty and I put it on a glass plate and with a large drumstick. A helping of escalloped potatoes and 4 large pieces of zuchini. That was a good meal and now the baking dishes are soaking and will do the dishes later. I looked up in my nutrition book for the vit. It is an old one and doesn't list this squash, but will ask Norma as she knows things from Z to z as she has to fix him special meals. Well, anyway it was the prettiest 4 slices with the green edges around it. Only take 5 min. to cook.

I used to like the warm summer Sunday dinners as did not have the oven meals so much on the day when weather hot and would have a can of salmon in fridge and cooked peas after got home from church and had a salad and fruit, coffee. Dad would make me iced coffee as had hot . but he would drink it also but later would have a cup of hot.. He did it because of me, fixing the iced coffee. I would sip on it so nice and cool in the breakfast room with shoes off and we would sit and talk longer than on other days.

The other morning over to Barb [niece Barbara (Hahn) Lamantia, daughter of Walt's brother, Ed] at the coffee Georgia [church friend] talked about their family reunions. They have been to one recently in Nebr and said they had officers to get things organized. And when she got through, she seldom has a stopping place, I told Barbara to get out the Grinter picture. She had said that they had 46 relatives at the reunion. Well, when told her about our reunion and she looked at the picture she didn't have much more to say. We would have 3 and 400 and had officers to manage to see about the chairs. They got them from the funeral home, and they took charge of the silverware, coffee urns, etc and each family paid a small fee for this deal. [200 may have been a close number of people at the Grinter Reunions.]

Recd the first letter from the cabin [near Amherst, Hancock County, Maine] and can see how busy you must be. However, it is easier to work if weather is cooler which it probably is there. You do have a lot of company the two weeks I was there and I hope you have time this year for rest, fishing, etc. There will be folks dropping in tho.

I do remember the hassle about the outhouse at home [in White City, Kansas]. So few things I remember about when my brothers were there but mother would get mad [about the state of the outdoor toilet] and they got busy. She never let that job wait until the droppings hit our bottoms like some folks did. There was always a box of lime to put down, and we had to sweep [the outhouse] out and keep it clean. They moved the building to another location close to the old spot. I never knew about winter up there taking care of that. As I remember Mother was particular about things. We had to pick up the rotten apples under the trees. I guess she wanted to keep us busy some of the time, and we had plenty of chores.

Now seeing turtle eggs must have been an interesting thing to see. Some many nature things in the woods.

[Younger sister] Kate [Torgeson) Schump and I had to clean out the chicken shed, but that wasn't too bad. I think abut when I was a kid at hoe more in summertime. We went by my home with the nieces again and it isn't the same place as one in my mind. No trees run down house, etc and the one I remember had apple trees, plum trees, and a swing in a tree. Jean [(Hahn) Johnson] and Patty (Hahn) Blair] so enjoyed our day in White City, looking up places the folks use to tell them about. Jean was born in W. C. Moved to Topeka when she was small.

A letter from Charlotte [(Schump) Johnson, daughter of Kate (Torgeson) Schump, Florence's sister]. Gayferd [her husband] brot her maple seeds to plant in pots and she has named them the girls. They are now 6 in. high and also has 5 walnut trees in pots. They can have them. I don't like walnut trees. She is so interested in garden now. Her youngest Brian is married, has been going with her a year. She has a 4 yr old boy and can't have any more, because of an operation. so Brian won't ever be a real father.

Have come from store. Mrs. S. [neighbor, Mrs. Samways] called this morn, rather early for her and wanted to know if I was going to store. Was raining and I had just washed hair. I told her I couldn't until afternoon. She said that would be . . . . [page missing]

July 1979, Typewritten. Thursday Morn. s/mt

And a beautiful one, sort of hazy and 67 at 5 o'clock and the day is not supposed to be too hot. Am telling you Kansas has had a good spring and several hot days and nights then comes along a break. Went for a walk and everyone I passes was feeling the cool morn. The vacant lots all around and our yards have been mowed so everything looks nice.

I am so glad that I moved when I did as have met so many interesting people and probably over on 1120 [High Avenue], I still would have enjoyed the neighbors as always by Wilcock [the neighbors. Hazel and Ed, who lived immediately behind Florence on Wayne Avenue] would have put a damper on that and also the neighbors are old too and ailing and here I have a choice and feel that my horizon has broadened. Saw Mrs. Hawk [another neighbor just behind and to the south of the Wilcox's] the other day when shopping and we had a little chat. An then yesterday Zola [Snyder, second neighbor to the south] called and wanted some info about someone. She said that she was walking over to Falley's now to get groceries. I can't imagine her doing that as she never walked any farther than across the street, but she has always wanted to be patriotic and for a while get a move on for short generation. She said that she was saving gas. They are going on a tour to New Eng first Sept on plane to Boston and then on bus from there

I got up at 5 and cut some stuff for Hobby sta. [Whatever that is.] Got an idea from a design on back on Calendar book. Am like Grandma Moses. I try not to make the same design twice but catch myself doing it but she never made the same painting twice.

I am like a one man band, I first write a few lines and then paste something and the cut out a design and then write a little and all this in the bedroom, with cedar chest handy. I can load it up with boxes, etc. [Her Granddaughter, Betsy Hahn, now has that cedar chest in New Hampshire. Now Mother when making a quilt would cut out the blocks all boxed, etc. Not the hit and miss kind [like me] but that way.

The others have their heat turned down lower than I as I can't stand the cold. But summer isn't gone yet, so had best not brag about the heat not bothering me. Today has been great, 84, this afternoon and humidity 59. That is about the lowest it has been all summer

On walk this morning the hollyhocks were so pretty in back of a place over by the store and many wild flowers in the vacant lots. The TV gardener that talks here of Saturday afternoon had a lady on that has written a book about the wild flowers in Kansas. She is a smart lady with all kinds of degrees. He says is the best book and we have the most interesting flowers as any state. Avis [her old friend from White City who lived at this time in Council Grove, Kansas]] and we girls noticed so many on trip to Council Grove. I have been reading about birds and flowers and animals in the Nature book you sent and read them on the month that they happen. And have been reading about cattails. The Indians used their fluff for lining mittens and moccasins in the winter. Their name for cattails was FRUIT for Papooses bed as they also lined their baby baskets with the fluff.

Read an article the other day. To conserve on fuel at the peak time. Iron in the morning and other chores before the heat of the day came and it reminded me of Mother. She would cook a kettle of the new little potatoes from the garden and then we would brown for supper as that did not take long to brown them and cook the kettle of beets as that takes time, so long to cook. Well you are doing the same thing on young cook stove [at the cabin in Maine, where the cook stove took the chill off in the morning as well. *C*ooking pea soup, etc. and heat dish water and on hot summer afternoons, she would pull down the shades on the sunny side and close the back doors on the west, and we kids had to either stay in our out and no running back and forth letting in flies. An she had a pitcher of lemonade from real lemons for us to take out with us.. And our house seemed to comfortable, except was hot in bedrooms at night many times. But going back to the shady afternoons, I can remember when at other homes how hot it seemed as the kids were allowed to run in and out all afternoon. We seldom went anywhere in the afternoons as there were four of us to play together [Mae had been married and gone from home years before] and mother though that enough. And she wanted to rest some. [Her mother, Maggie Torgeson, was a good mother. She did nice interesting things for her girls. It kind of reminds me of Little Women. The Torgeson's didn't have much money, but they made the most of it.]

So cooked early this morning two chicken legs and when they were about done ,I out in carrots and potato and barley, and the kitchen wasn't so hot at noon. I took out enough for noon in a small kettle and then cooled the rest and put in the refrig for tomorrow. They are some things that lose their vit. by cooking and reheating. but they are fragile kind of veg like. frozen broccoli and zuchini which only take a few minutes in the little steamer at meal time. [My mother was a good cook. She went to cooking classes offered by the Gas Company and to nutrition classes and did the most she could from the resources available to her. Being as only child, I had unlimited access to fruits which she supplied for "snacks" and also saw that I had a bowl of raisins on my desk. Although my desk had a sign with the three "See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil monkeys that said "DON'T MESS WITH ANYTHING ON THIS DESK" -- a rule I still impose on others, including my wife, my children, and especially CLEANING LADIES -- I tolerated the bowl of raisins.]

Saturday Morning. Handwritten on back of above.

Going back to refrigerators . [?] Our first one we got in 1933, replacing the wooden ice box. You sure liked to climb up on the ice wagon and get a piece of ice. [In my memory, the driver would not have permitted us on the wagon. We would pester him for a piece; sometimes he obliges us, sometimes not. I am sure that if every kid on the route got a piece of ice he would have had to return to the plant to reload. Son Tom] You could have had a piece of ice anytime at home but that was the same. [I don't think so! The ice was needed for refrigeration and that didn't like to let warm air into the compartment in which the ice was kept.] The ice man got mad sometimes when several kids were there at the same time and he told you that if you kept off his wagon he would give you a piece. He was afraid someone might get hurt.

Well, the Beckman's [Walter Hahn's, sister Louise Hahn, and her husband, Les Beckman] and we girls sure had a good time making ice cream in the freezer part and we would get whipping cream and make it. It was cheap in those days, but finally that got too rich for us and we went back to milk. The milk got harder and hard to get out of the pan, so I would make a custard sometimes and stir up a little cream in it and freeze. We would also make sherbets and ices, and you kids would freeze cool aid and make Popsicles. We had that freezer [refrigerator] from 33 to 47. I don't think there was anything wrong with it but Dad got a bargain and a better one in a deal.

I have a little book that kept so may dates in my head and I sometimes wonder why I keep it but is such a little book and interesting to compare prices. But there are some things haven't put in the price.

August 1979. Monday Afternoon. Typewritten. s/pft

Dear Son: What a nice way to start the week, with a picture of Peter [Rabbit] in a letter. He looks so much like the Rabbit on the Easter card and so he has a place on the little shelf in the dining room. Sometimes a little creature takes the place of a friend and I love to hear about him as much as the grandchildren. You are going to miss him when you get ready to leave but think of him as your Cabin Friend.

There are things that you have written about this time that reminds me of the first time that I went to Winter Harbor [Maine]. I remember John H[hayes, Screenwriter for Hitchcock]. We had a picnic on the rocks and afterwards went to some folks place and stayed there a while and Betsy went over to Hay's and I can't remember the name of the folks where I went. It was in a very swanky neighborhood . Some one brought out lamb chops and cooked,. I had never cared for lamb and took the smallest one trying to like it and it was so good I wish that had taken a larger one. The kids had hamburgers. Can you remember the folks. You used to mention Hays in your letters, his literary career. [Butterfield 8, Peyton Place, Rear Window, The Birds, Butterfield 8, etc.] You and Nathalie have been visiting more than usual haven't you among your friends. Maybe you had more time this summer.

I too am so glad that you had a nice talk with Ed when he was here. [Ed Hahn, younger brother of Walter Hahn]. I thought the day at Barbara's that he looked like a sweet old man. ... His girls [Jean, Barbara, Pat) were very good to him and now they don't have to worry about him being lonely. He did miss Marie [Jenkins Hahn, his spouse] very much since she left.

We all have made mistakes and bungled in lots of ways. Maybe we thought we did more that we really did, but I think of the past and wish I had been more thoughtful and kind to others, but I will say that we sisters were very close and did much for each other after our families were grown. For years [sister] Kate was busy with family and we didn't see as much of her as we others did, yet Dad [Walter Hahn] was much on keeping up with family and I think we went more and visited more than the others.

As I grow older, I have more time to sort out feelings and more on the positive side than the negative, if you can read my mind. I may not word it the way I want tit to be. but when one loses one after another they begin to cling to their memories and think of the happy times [rather] than the mistakes, and all are different and each one has a different side. Like with Zita [Schump, her sister Kate's son's wife] and Charlotte Jonson [Kate's daughter], they are both so good to me and in different ways. I feel like Charlotte is my little girl at times as she is so loving and such a Mama girl with all those brothers. Her brothers are too thoughtful; to her. They are just that kind except Fran [Schump, Kate's son].

I feel very fortunate that I have nieces and want to keep in touch with them. but I doubt if we will have the family gatherings as much any more since Ed and Marie are gone as the girls Barbara and Patty [Jean lived in Illinois] can hop in their car and can see each other at any time. They are all busy with their families. Ken and Patty have a very good family relationship with their kids, problems and all. They are the loving kind. When we were those little kids, they were always taking hold of our hand and hang around more than the other children.

Well, just got to thinking about everybody since have been with them all so recently, and am sorry that I didn't get to talk to Jim [Jim Kilkenny was the husband of Marty Becky, the daughter of Louise Hahn, Walt Hahn's sister]. He is almost an stranger as Marty comes up to see her dad [Les Beckman. His wife, Louise, died in 1944.] without him [Jin] and their kids are away from from. [Marty and Jim lived in Ponca City, Oklahoma.] Did you find Marty's note?

Rick [Corby, her grand-nephew, son of Harry Corby and Becky (Beckman) Corby] has sold his place or has it up for sale and has been over to Becky's some. I did not ask what he was going to do, get an appt or a smaller place. He was at Christmas time interested in a widow but that has fallen through.

I have written Margaret [her sister-in-law Margaret Hahn Walter Hottle] a letter and telling about all the relatives from last week as I doubt none of the rest will write to her and Ed was very good about writing to her or dictating letters to Maries [his wife] to write and he would call her and there were two or Hottle lived in Mount Vernon, Indiana.] And I have also written to Dorothy Taggart as Bob Taggart [Florence sister Bernice's husband's brother] He died the same time that Ed [Hahn] did. I feel badly about that as I had hopes of us being together once in a while.

I went for a long walk Sat morn and I did like you said. Someone had told you to say a word over and over and I did, and mine was Thank you Legs and was swinging my arms around when no one was looking and so enjoying the walk and met up with a lady and walked two blocks with her and on the way home I began to lag and so yesterday was a short walk as was somewhat lame and I just took a short one this morning.

The cantaloupes are good now and I cut one up and put chunks in a covered bowl as they have been so good. I figure how many meals I can get out of one as they are not cheap[and I read where food doesn't have to be ignored if it is higher than some things if one can figure out how many servings in a head of this or that.

Called Mr. Finly [apartment house manager] to fix the faucets and the trouble was only in the little screen filter so hope that is the end of having him here for a while. He is very nice to me. Is a very pessimistic person and always starts in with the country is run by a bunch of dumb clucks and price of things.

Going back to the time that we went on that picnic, and you mentioned this Haye's writing Peyton Place, etc. It so happened that Movie was on tonight "Murder in Peyton Place" and I watched it but somehow it didn't keep me very interested when they were a weekly series years ago. I used to watch that program and tonight remembered all the characters, but felt like Dad as I couldn't keep up wit so many characters so he wouldn't watch it. I had no trouble that way but just didn't hold my attention too well.

You mentioned that Nathalie made lobster stew and that is my favorite way of eating lobster. It is really super and the stew so colorful too. A also remember when you were at Winter Harbor, the base, about us going into the woods a short ways and you picked some [highland] cranberries and made sauce and it was delicious. They were a small berry but very red. And also remember that Jimmy, he was an Italian was he not, he would bring vegetables and stop and chat. [Jimmy worked in the Supply Department at the navy base.] That was such an interesting trip that time and I got to see and do things that had never done before, Navy things.

The robins are getting more drab now as their breast isn't as bright as in the spring and yet I marvel at the brightness of flowers this late. In a summer would would think that they would be faded but their colors are more brilliant than spring flowers.

Wed Morn. On my walk this morn met a young lady very heavy set and she said that she had cared for her parents for so long and did not get out for walks and she is a diabetic and the Dr told her to walk one miles each day, so she is doing that and then a little ways on my way an elderly couple and they said they took a walk night and morning. They would have a cup of coffee and then have breakfast when they got home. They had come quite a ways as lived on Plass. The other day was at the end of the walk here on High St, that was in the afternoon and across 21[st Avenue] was a lady with six kids trying to cross the busy st and finally hey got across. A boy about 7 was pushing a stroller with a baby in it and on a rope were 4 little kids and she had hold of he rope. , like folks do in a blizzard to find the way and she told me she kept them on the rope in the store, that was where she was going, and I wonder4ed how she was going to carry groceries with both hands full. Maybe have each child carry a sack. That must have been a sight in the store to see that.

This letter has gotten way long but am sending it anyway. With Love

Sunday Morn [August 1979]

Dear T & N Up early and made a meat loaf and casserole of escalloped potatoes and bran muffins, all in the over while it was going. And yesterday opened a can or peach halves and pickled them for eating with meat or with cottage cheese gives them a perked up taste. And have washed hair, had a short walk and listened to a sermon and is now eleven o'clock.

It's hot but a breeze so summer is still with us but such a nice break of almost all last week.

Was interested about Peter [Rabbit] being caught in a net and remember last summer how mad he was and how some of the clan thought I was cruel to push him in the cage where he spent the winter with the Pete Estes Family. I think it was Diane who was the tender hearted one, but he wasn't hurt, just his feeling, and as you say an animal like that has more of a personality free from a cage and can show off more than being shut up. We he was fun, and I was thinking about my ducks. They are a fun pet. One is more fun than two as they depend on each other and don't pay as much attention to you. I had Joey first and he was so much fun. He would follow me around when I hung up clothes and would pick and pull on my shoe laces and nibble my arm and that made marks so had to make him stop that. He stayed in the yard, but one day I sneaked off and went to Mrs. Elliot's [neighbor two doors to the north] and we were sitting in the porch swing and she said look who s coming and there was Joey quacking and I called and he came running to me.

Then came fall and Dad said we can't keep him all winter penned up, so he said he would take him to the park and put him in the lake or something and so when it was about time to take him I was out on the steps with Joey and Pop came out and sat with us and he said, "You didn't..." and I said, "I did." He was pointing to Joey's head and there was lip stick where I kissed him. Well I missed him ore than Dad as he was with me all day. And then the next spring he got two and when they got older we noticed one couldn't quack, but would open his mouth and nothing came out. They were good at catching bugs and insects and suirt98ing on the sidewalk which I had to hose off often, and I didn't name them separately but called them The Boys. When I wanted them I would call, Here boys" and both came but they didn't play with me like Joey, and then fall came and the same parting and I rather think that Dad gave them to one of the carriers and they ate them. I wouldn't let him kill them to eat. It was off they seldom went off the place, maybe roam around in Goldie's yard [Goldie Pepple] next door to the north], but I cried when they left and that was a bright spot in my life with an easy time with a pet that didn't need much care of bother.

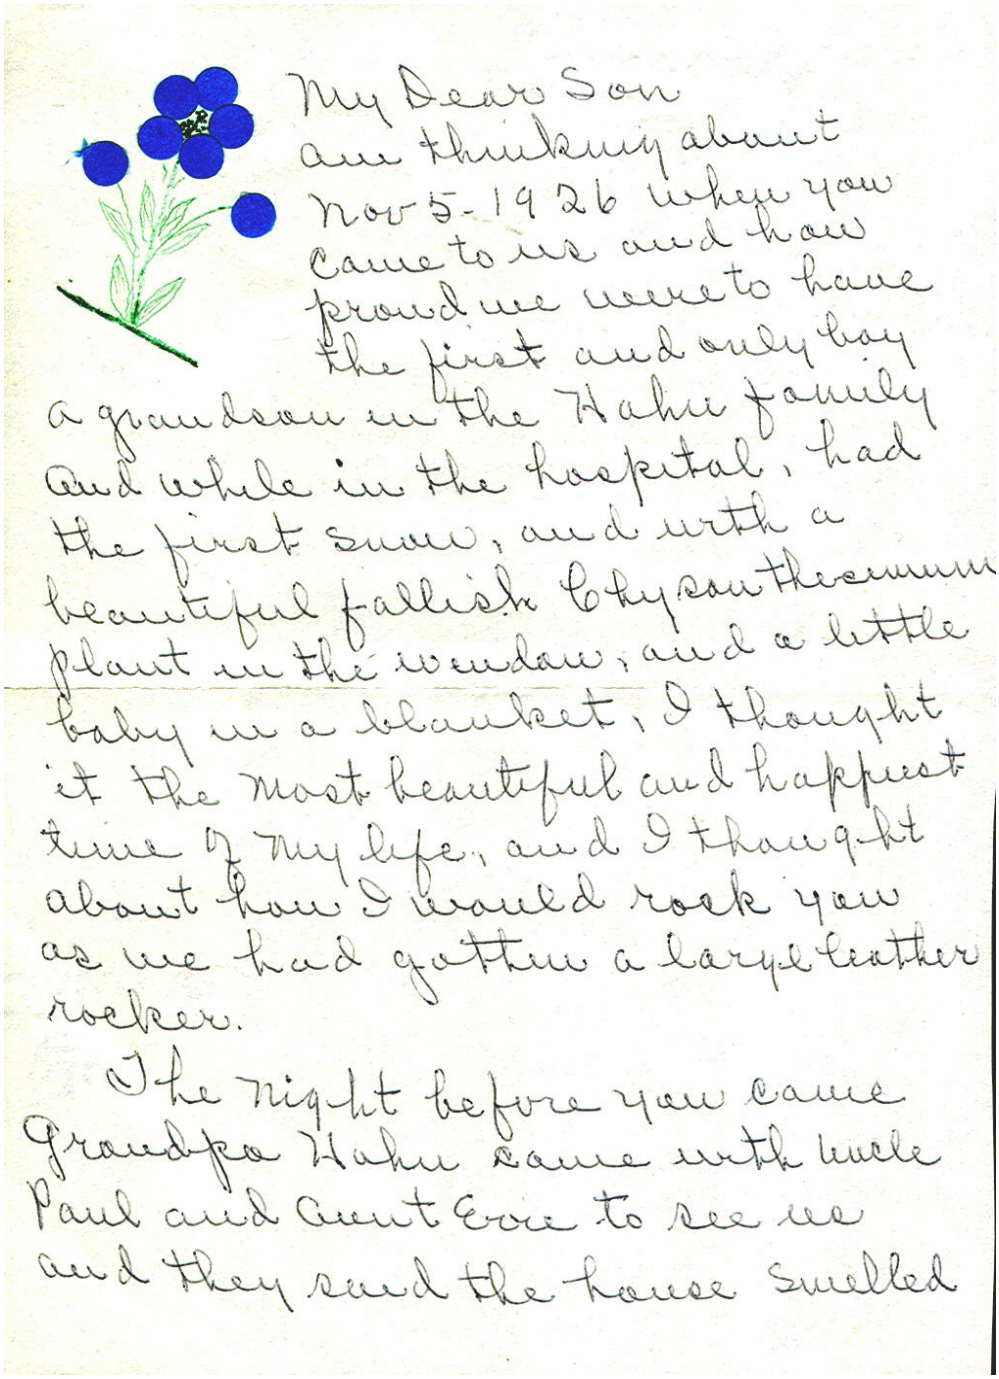
Did you have any loons this year? I am sure glad that I went last summer to Maine as it was a hard time for me to get over the loss [of her sister, Gladys] and now this summer have been quite content. I miss Gladys very much but with a different kind of feeling. [Gladys was the inky sister who lived in Topeka.]



Nathalie, the place mat is so colorful and I have it pasted up under the cabinet. And, speaking of pictures. a note from Gene (Hahn) Johnson, her niece] since she got home [to Glenview, Illinois] and thanking me again for the jewel picture and she said she had it up in the kitchen as that is where she is most of the time when home and she can look at it., but I think that that is queer place for that kind of picture but if that is what one wants, that's all right.

5 November 1979. Birthday card to son Tom on his 53rd birthday with a nice little drawing by Florence at the top. mwh

My Dear Son. Am thinking about Nov 6-1926 when you came to us and how proud we were to have the first and only boy. a grandson, in the Hahn family. And while in the hospital, had the first snow, and with a beautiful fallish chrysanthemum plant in the window, and a little baby in a blanket. I thought it the most beautiful and happiest time of my life, and I thought about how I would rock you as we had gotten large leather rocker.

The night before you came Grandpa [Chris] Hahn came with Uncle Paul [Chris Hahn's brother, Walt Hahn's uncle] and Aunt Eve to see us and they said the house smelled so good. That day I had made several fruit cakes for the coming holidays

You were much wanted and how that little boy has grown up to be a thoughtful good and kind son to his mother, and I am proud of all your achievements and love you. Mother

Dear Tom and Nathalie. Am so glad you are back [having visited Florence in Topeka]. It was so lonesome after you left here but I got busy and put everything back in place and later on all the Christmas decorations all boxed up and put away.

As I told you on the phone I was out Sat afternoon, it just seemed as though I couldn't stand being in, and so Fairlawn Mall is easier than downtown. all in one spot. So got quite a few bargains at a Drug Store, a chain of them here Walgreens and they also have a counter of canned goods, etc and had advertised prunes for 79 c per pkg, so go 2 boxes as was out, and I sat awhile in the lobby and watched folks. As I was waiting for bus to come home, a young fellow was standing in the exit door to St. He was waiting for the bus also. He was a clean looking young fellow quiet and from VA [Veteran's Administration Hosp [ital], He said he was looking for long underwear. They have a store of all sot-rts of things and that was where we were waiting Store is Woolco, [and] none there, and I said have you been across the St down to Litwins to look and he said "They are probably too expensive there, and I can't buy anything unless cheap, but will wait, they might get them at PC at hospital. He said his first name was Camaron (Scotch name) and we were talking and bus came along. and he ran out to stop it. We knew it was due in our 5 min chat but it sneaked up on us. An on the bus, a big burly fellow maybe from VA was across from this boy and he asked him something and the boy said "I don't want to talk" and the fellow kept making remarks and finally gave up and smarted off to a girl (this was the tough guy). I felt so sorry for the quiet fellow. He looked about 23 yrs and before he got off us he turned around and said to me, "I liked the little talk with you."

31 December 1979. Typewritten.

Dear Nathalie and Tom: This is a sort of diary as I probably will not write as your time is so short there. [I am not sure why. Tom] I have written to you after you left [from a visit to Topeka] but it probably did not get there before you left.

Am thinking about the days you were here and am so glad to have this Christmas with you. It it so quiet around here, probably everyone is tired of taking the tree and decorations down. I have most of mine put away.

Norma [next door neighbor] came to the door this morn with an angel, that was broken and she thought I might like to have the jewels on it as she was going to throw it away. [Florence made jewel pictures out of old costume jewelry custom-made for the intended recipient.] The head was broken off and it was a music box deal,. Play Silent Night, so I have glued the head on and out a ribbon around the neck where it had broken off and have been playing it while doing the dishes. She said that she had had it for many years. Some people can fix things and others not, and I am one of them and she is too about some things, but this deal was no problem. [I did not inherit this trait from her or from my father who was an excellent mechanic. Tom]

So I keep busy and it is so quiet and am lonesome when I sit around. I want you to know that tinsel and ribbons don't make a Christmas and only show one day, but the plain unwrapped ones last a long time, such as box of raisins, a ham for a Christmas dinner and is still some left, and I came across two little baskets that I will have fun with fixing them up, and a bag of coffee candy, and other things that you have given me, and then the wonderful help in helping with the banking business. Al those things are service and love. I do appreciate the other things that I have received from friends, but there are two ways of giving.

Went to Book Club Fri and the Christmas glow was with everyone and none had a book so we talked about Family Christmas in the past. And then [friend] Ruth invited five of us for dessert on Sat and I was glad to get out again, as Sat is not my day.

As I had gotten a towel calendar for the kitchen and the Shepherdstown one which I like better as I like to look at the pictures on it and have it in the big closet where I can see it, and so took the other one that Georgine gave me to the luncheon and asked one or all the girls if they could use a Calendar and one said she sure would like it. The giver will never know it has a place somewhere else.

Bernice [her sister] called yesterday (Sun) and said there was 12 in snow on ground and that it was beautiful. They are saying that we need moisture badly, especially the cedars. The garden man on TV said to get out the hose and water well before the ground freezes. Bernice said was the worst [head] cold she ever had, and from her account it was like the one I had when you were here in May, a head cold and a virus along with it, so called the doctor to send out something and with the antibiotics and cough medicine I was helped and pulled out if it.

Ruth has two cats and a small dog and when company comes she shuts them up in another room, but she had something she sowed us. It is a thing that looks like a round footstool and a hole for a door and it is lined on the inside and the outside is covered with sort of plush material and the cat will go in there and sticks its head out and loves to run in and out of it. I told her how you could get a cat to do tricks and she says she has never been able to do that. They play with all sorts of toys.

This morn Hillary called to wish me a Happy New Year and that she was going to take it easy for while. And in a short while she asked me what I was going to do, that she was having her neighbors in for watching Rose parade and for lunch and wanted me to come any time from 10 to 1 and I said that Jenay was coming for me to see the tree before they took it down later on in the day and would be after me in the morning, so after I came home from there she would come. I was so glad to have some place to go. She said she had some special neighbors and wanted them to meet me. [Florence was already to go to someplace on a few minute's notice and had what she called, "Me fireman's boots handy."

Florence Taggart called this morning and she was so pleased to have you and to meet Nathalie. [an old neighbor from earlier days at 1120 High who remained a friend. She is still living in Great Bend, Kansas, in 2005.]

The weather is wonderful, and really mild and it is sure good for getting around. I will be by myself tonight and I usually am and New Years Eve is like any other night. There were many New ear's Eve that I stayed with Jack Clevenger and how bored I got playing Monopoly, but he was such a good boy that I went along with him, and then when he got older we would watch TV. One year he was older , around 12 and he wanted to have a turkey for New Years to eat late so his his mother had the cook roast a turkey and make cranberry jelly for sandwiches late at night. He also had bans that he would bang also at 12 o'clock. There were always boxes of candy and fruit that had been given them for Christmas from firms [his father was a banker] for Christmas and so was fun to be there. I sure did love that boy. Dad was so bushed after the Christmas rush that he did not mind being alone on New Years eve, so he went to bed early.

One New Years night, not Eve, we had the Boneheads [Church Club] over for a hamburger super as everyone was fed up with big feeds at Christmas. so we had it in the basement and I cooked the burgers etc down in the basement and that morning Dad went out scavenger hunting to see what he could find behind a drug store out in Westboro and he came home with fresh holly wreaths that were thrown and in plastic bags and fresh and moist as though they had just been picked at a place in Oregon, so we put the wreaths on the doors upstairs and down and they thought we were outdoing ourselves to buy so many wreaths. I guess Pop told them how he got them. We had such und with that bunch and most always all came and to get a meal for 24 people was no small thing. but it was fund, then later years we had dessert supers.

(Continued) 1 January 1980 Typewritten. Well New Years is over and I did not go over to see Jenay's tree. She sounded so groggy over the phone that I didn't want to see her. They had been out to a party and she was sleepy, so we called it off to today, and I went over to Hilary's at noon and expected to see lots of folks but they had turned her down as they were going other places, so just one widow came from across the street. But we had a nice time and I got in on the last hour of the Rosebowl parade, and then we had diner. Was a good dinner as the ham and veg were so good all from the freezer that was from her own garden, the salad a rich one and then the dessert was so very sweet. She says she likes her sweets. It was a peach cobbler and the bottom was so very rich, chunks of butter and sugar. I am glad hat I asked her for a small portion. The other lady told her it was too rich. Hilary likes to try new recipes, and twice this week she has made a new one. One was a topping on a salad or dessert of cream cheese and something else and cream in the other and she couldn't get it to thicken, and I said what did you do with it. She dumped it down the sink.

Worked all day until noon getting some things done and washed the gold round [table [cloth and took off the red one. Looks so nice with the gold chair. Whenever am out and come in the room the new chair looks so pretty.

The Weekly Family, often mentioned in Florence's letter, in 2006 Chelsey with baby Maura, sitting, in back her sister, Ashley. Gary Weekly and Genay (Provided by Genay Weekly]

This afternoon went over to see Mrs. Landis [neighbor] and took a pot of tea and some cookies. Used some of the gift tea and she liked it so much. It was peppermint spice. An then I read her cards [to her] and talked. She showed me some more books she had written. They are small booklets. She gave them away for Christmas presents in those days and they look interesting. I just glanced through them.

Made Sour Dough bread. Haven't made an since you were here and I let it get very light and it is super. That way way can also make sandwiches out of it like light bread and a made a ham sandwich for supper. Also took two of the gals upstairs each 1/2 loaf. Cut it while it was still hot and was 5:50 in time for their supper.

The days are dark and cold, 30 in day time, 20 at night. no snow but looks like it. And so am doing little fun jobs. Have worked under the cabinet in the kitchen where I keep what nots and have gotten out things to replace the Christmas things so the room had a new look. Oiled the wooden fruit and shined it up and it is on the brass table [that Tom brought to her and Walt from Hong Kong] and then got out the brass foreign bell that rings by a pull chain and worked on it and put it in detergent water and hot brought out the red engraving and polished it up and on the brass table. I like to get out things, seasonal things and I have some things that will never be out of my hands as long as I have shelf of them and one is the black wooden bowl [that Tom bought in Japan] , big brass tray and other things as my friends don't seem to have those kinds of things and they remark about them when here.

Continued Sunday Morning)

Yesterday around noon went to town, was beautiful balmy quiet weather and I wanted to be out. {At this time, the public bus ran in front of her apartment and that is the transportation she commonly used to go to town.] I wanted to be out. Went to pick up watch as I had called 3 days before telling them that weather had kept me from coming after it. And so when I got there one of the salesman I didn't know looked for it and came back and said it was not in the ready files, so the manager came out and said that he had not worked on it, and I kept my cool and said I couldn't make the trip o cold or stormy days and he said he would bring it to me. So then milled around in 2 or 3 stores. Town isn't like it used to be so I bought a new lipstick and I hope it stays on better than last 2 I have had. This is kind I used to get, and the girl who was young used 2 of test ones on my hands. I always try on wrist but my brown veiny side up and hardly a spot white enough to try. I have a good time figuring out people.

So the day was so nice. I got on the bus to come home and just stayed on [passed her apartment] and went out to Fairlawn and browsed around and found two things to work with, hobby stuff when shut in.

Had intended to have you get a typewriter ribbon and put it on-hah hah [I think that she was making fun of my mechanical skill], but forgot it and yesterday before I went to town looked for te box where I keep the old one and it has disappeared., so this morning got to the machine and ribbon conked out, so looked in instruction book, and found no typewriter in Dads writing and there it was, hard to find on machine, so until I get to town again will push the pencil.

Had a wild dream last night. You two were in a room painting the walls for me wasn't this apartment. You didn't ask me about doing it and a couple, came i and they started doing things. I didn't know them but you did. The 2 of my women friends came. I had started just for just we three and I had a time getting that meal ready. You, Tm, left the curtains up and nothing over the furniture and cans of paint sitting on the rug, dripping paint, but walls were so pretty. I so seldom dream any more.

I am thinking of two weeks ago today and wished we had taken time out to go to my church. There are still friends from Trinity [Methodist Episcopal Church) you would know, or had the TV on to the service I listen to every Sun. The music is outstanding and so in the minister [Rev. Schuler]. He often has a celebrity on and this morn had Arch Bishop Fulton Sheen (he died two years ago and this was a tape when he visited this church). He use to have a column in one of our newspapers and he spoke common language.

I would have gone to church today as is Fellowship Sun and their doinners are so good, but it is damp, a heavy mist so I stay inside.

Norma [neighbor] came over last evening to tell me her sister had been operated on for a carcinoma of intestine, and had gotten through it all right. Leroy [Norma's husband] has not been himself for several days, so she has her hands full. So little I can do to help, only to check if she is out on errands or hospital.

[Sister Bernice in Goodland, Kansas] is still shut in. A mil or neighbor brings mil or fruit from store but she [Bernice] takes car of getting groceries ahead of a storm, but he is still not over the vicious cold and is staying in anyway.

Am glad that you were with the relatives more this time so you could get better acquainted with them and when I am not here they will be a comfort to you. {Alas, most of them are gone now, twenty-five years later. Tom]

I have to write 2 sympathy notes so will take time to not make mistakes, so those kind of notes I write with tongue in cheek. [am not quite sure what she means by that.]

A tremendous three hour movie last night, from 7 to 10, "Skag," about a family. The father loved his wife but 4 children from 14 to 21, he couldn't understand them. A steel worker and he had had a bad stroke and he worked hard to recover and tried to get to know his family. Jan 17 will be the end. You may be able to pick up them. With love, Mother

Valentines Day 1980 Handwritten. s/pwh

Dear Tommy Boy: Am thinking about the Valentine Days when you were a little boy. As I sit and think about it I wish I could have one day to live over again and it would be Valentine Day and making heart cookies with red sugar, red Jell-O and Dad bringing home the biggest red apples he could find and there would be one at each plate. Good Jonathan, winesap and others, but these apples were the ones from Was. State, and a crippled fellow on 8th and Kans sold them by the apple, and they were polished and shiny. I don' remember the price of them.

I wanted to do something for all of you to share this week, but was so shut in to try and mail something but you and Nathalie can do the things I used to do, and my mother did for we kids. Jenay is having the family tonight for a dessert evening, but I am not going over as a fine mist and will be freezing by night band I don't mind that at all . . .[She] celebrates all of them [the holidays] as she was alone growing up and so now she wants the little girls to have family celebrations.

Norma brought over a plate of heart cookies, large ones and brown, probably made with brown sugar and this afternoon had one with a cup of tea and watched TV. Saw something funny on TV last night, a Washburn [College] student in grocery store putting in cart groceries in 60 seconds, for a cause, Muscular Dystrophy or something, and she ore from one place to another. I wondered what I would get of turned loose for a certain time and groceries would be mine. What would you pick up? With love, Mother.

Saturday Afternoon. February 17 1980. Typewritten m/tsr

Have just finished reading "Snow Bound" and while reading it the snow is softly falling down and is pretty and an inch has fallen. I so appreciate the time and thought writing [copying] this article up and am sure it meant more to you by writing it.

In your letter was an article about the death of Christ written by a Dr priest about a heart condition was the cause and it reminded me about grandpa Torgeson [Thomas Torgeson, Sr./Taral Torjeison],. (my dad's parents) Grandma had a short illness, some kind of flu and was in bed for only a short time maybe three days and when Grandpa saw she wasn't going to get well he took to bed also and when Grandma died the doctor told Dad to hold off the funeral as Grandpa was not going to survive. The doctor said he could find no health problem with Grandpa, but he had no will to survive Grandma, in other words, a broken heart. but can see where [it] was for the best.

Grandpa was on the stern side and did not have anything to say to we kids but Grandma talked a little but they were not like the grandparents on mothers side. I had fun at Grandma Owens.

Mother would send us over to take food and we usually went in two's like the Latter Day Saints that go from door to door in airs, and we would stay a very short time and then grandma would go in the bedroom and bring us out a stick of candy. We could hear her open the dresser drawer and we would wait for the candy.

My minds picture of that old couple was like a commercial several years ago, a tall stern couple standing straight one with a hoe in one hand a one with a pitchfork [Grant Wood's "Gothic"]

My Dad belonged to the Pres[byterian] church and the minister would call on the old folks and one day I was there when he came and was embarrassed because Grand Ma was smoking a little clay pipe. [s]

Going back to Snow Bound. There are teary places "How strange it seems with so much gone of love and life to still live on, Ah sister and I, thou are left of all that circle now, those lighted faces smile no more, we tread and the path their feet have worn, yet love will dream and faith will trust. That somehow somewhere meet we meet we must" and at that point was when the tears fell in abundance.

The mail was great today, letters from you and Betsy. I sometimes send a self-addressed env so she will have no excuse for not writing it on hand and she wrote such a good letter, and I can see she is growing up and is an ambitious person. Quote from letter, "Be careful on the ice Fearless," and signed it Love you, you Aries." Also a note from Patty Wilcox [daughter of Ed and Hazel Wilcox who lived in the house behind Florence and Walter when they lived at 1120 High.] I know she misses her parents. She said she had taken some old books from their attic and was reading the Life of Longfellow. Also a letter from Bernice so since Monday is a holiday [President's Day] I am fix up for mail until Tuesday.

Sat Morn. Sun out. March 1980. Handwritten.

Dear T & N. Up early and fortified with a bowl of oatmeal with raisins, and have just read this article about "Hot Cereal Mornings." I don't think the writer is as old as I, as some things we didn't have then, but I do remember we all ate oatmeal. Mother had a large double boiler to cook it. Dad said his mothers oats was scorched some of the times, and we always had a hot breakfast, sometimes pancakes with pork tenderloin, or bacon and eggs, and no one seemed to be picky about what was on for any morning, like kids do now. Of course always good homemade bread, oven toasted so crisp. But mush made with cornmeal is best.

I have something today to look forward to as I don't care about Sat, this is Ashley's birthday (Jenay's youngest). She will be 4. [The remainder of the letter is missing.]

Sunday Morning. March 1980. Handwritten.

My Dear Son. Tis a bright cold morning 2 degrees but still.

Glad to hear your voice yesterday, but not good reception. Your sounded hoarse or weak (voice) but a nice visit and with Chris also.

Have meant to mention since the canal bulletin came about your very beautiful tribute to Wm Douglas memory, and his writing of 1954 was really something to remember, and I knew you were good friends, but not how far his influence went until I read your tribute, and so you also leave a good heritage by your life style. [At this time, Tom was the Founding Editor of American Canals and Founding President of the American Canal Society. Justice Douglas was a Director of that society.] We all have out own ways of doing things, and I think of my friend Avis Shuart. she has always been an inspiration to me, and has never let me down, and her standards have still held up all during our 60 years friendship, and she has touched many lives, giving courage. She has worked hard all her life. They would come to her with all sorts of problems yet she isn't a saint, just good.

Re the doors or door on [your] kitchen and dining room, I know you will benefit from storm doors, and also nice to have an open outside door in Spring from dining room or kitchen and am glad you are having the work done, as is a tricky deal getting them to fit. [The first part of Tom's house was built about 1775, and the second part about 1790, so there were always things to be done to it.] Dad knew how as he was part carpenter, but it was quite an ordeal for him at that, also the shutters at windows had to be fitted and that was hard also. We have loved our home and had to do without some luxuries keeping it in shape.

The movie Kramer vs. Kramer is still running. That's a long time, must be well attended.

The Feed Bags

In reading the enclosed article [not kept and not used here] reminded me of an experience with feed bags. This was after you were away from home. [Tom left home and Topeka in 1944 when he joined the U.S. Navy.]

Dad sometimes went overboard in buying bargains at the Santa Fe unclaimed freight, and he got some 40 bags for 15 cents each. They had to be raveled out, washed and bleached some and ironed, so was a job. and I said I will do what I can with that many. They were too large and heavy for dish towels that I could use and give as gifts, etc. Well, I advertised in a weekly paper which did cheap advertising and brought some good results as had sold things before by advertising. The bags were about 36x45 [inches]. The first day the paper was out had sold most of them and the second day had to turn people away. They thought they were flour sacks. and when some saw how heavy and large they were they wondered what they could use them for and I suggested they make ironing board covers, butcher's aprons, lunch cloths fringed, etc. I sold them for 35 cents each and kept a few. But was an experience and some work.

One time on our way to KC, Dad and I stopped at Jon Stephens, Annie's brother and he had a feed store and I bought a few sacks there and they were small like flour sacks and were flowered and figured and made interesting dish cloths and little table covers, the 36 in size. He only had a few or Dad would probably have bought more, but that was my buy, not his.

Monday Morning 24 March 1980. Handwritten

Dear T & N. Woke up to a fluffy snow and all over trees and Bambi has a little fur cap on this morning.

Well, yesterday my Birthday was a Blast, busy all day doing fun things. Bernice called in the morning before I left for church, and then after I got home Zita [wife of nephew, Fran Schump] called, then Charlotte [niece] and she, Charlotte, was full of gab. She said she could hardly wait for evening to see how I all day. We talked about our visit at

Bernice's and she said that Gayferd [Johns, Charlotte's husband] said they could all leave the unpacking after she got home from Bernice's but she would like to get that done first and then feel free to play, so she was going to see about the time. [?]

Zita and Frank celebrating their 40th anniv. yesterday., so they are getting up there and then won't be long until his retirement, a few years yet.

After the calls I took off my dress up clothes and put on a long skirt and blouse you gave me many years ago, haven't had in on for 3 yrs. So settled down to a quiet evening with TV

Then Norma came [next door neighbor in the apartment house], she comes so little lately as he is so poorly and she doesn't like to leave him much as she has to go on errands etc, so the social end she gives up, altho we spent the afternoon over to Harriet's [another neighbor] last Thurs with Mrs. Samways [another neighbor] and she enjoyed that. She doesn't neglect others when she stays home. She is busy doing for others. She came with a small 2 layer cake all frosted and candle in the top and sat a few minutes to chat. I enjoyed that. She is always a fun person. So I then started on TV and somehow I couldn't get in the mood for "Dr. Zhivago, but watched clear thru. I went in '68 when it was on movies for the first time and I got to thinking about that time. It was only a few weeks after dad was gone and Pearl [Zahorek, a church friend] called up one Sunday and said, Am taking you to a movie. You need to get out." It was a cold afternoon and snow on ground, about the first week or 2 in March, and I was like a tender house plant, and I got so cold going from car to the theater. altho we parked close. I think it was at the "Grand" and I enjoyed it but was uncomfortable sitting so long [she had broken a hip the previous year]. and I think I saw it on TV several years ago, but some argue and say that this is the first time on TV. Well, anyway, this first part has lost its interest to me as doesn't seem the same. The 2nd part may be better, but went to bed after over, and slept through until 6 a.m. [Florence was a poor sleeper, so sleeping through the night was unusual for her.]

Jenay's little one are getting more interesting that the older one. Little Ashley didn't have her pacifier and I whispered once to her, "Do we still have our secret" and she said "Yes." So I haven't mentioned it any more to Jenay.

We all set together in Church, then she got restless and Gary took her up to Nursery. And the minister always asks if any "Concerns" meaning illness. etc. and then he asks if any special joy or good fortune and the lady next to me (I told her before church started when visiting it was my birthday.) not thinking she would blab abut it and she got up and said it was a joyous day as Florence Hahn's birthday and made me stand up, then beside her, but I wasn't fussed. And so after church some of my good friends came and talked to me. So this probably will be the busiest birthday I will have, and now Bernice will be 76 yrs Fri 28. [In 2005 she is 101.] The dining table full of beautiful cards, standing up, 20 of them, and did the book of stamps fall out of your card? I opened Bernice's and the yours and stamp book was on table. I think it was you so let me know.

Nice to talk to Chris, and that you were making cocoa. after yard work and mama out gadding. But hope the weather isn't winter there like here. Had washed up the red cap and scarf Sat and put them and heavy gloves away, but will use a scarf, lighter one, if I go, out and that won't be today, so will have a quiet day at home, after a full busy yesterday. With love, Mother

Tuesday Afternoon. June 1980. Handwritten.

Dear T & N. This has been such a wonderful reunion, and Bernice is so relaxed and I think I wrote she insisted we stay until Fri, and we could see she really meant it. [The "Torgeson Girls" began their reunions in 1953, a year after their mother, Margaret (Owen) Torgeson, of Topeka, Kansas, died in October 1953. They had the reunion at a different sister's house each year, in the fall, and kept in touch through the year by their "Round Robin" letters. Someplace along the line, Margaret Torgeson's sister, Martha (Owen) Brown, in later years of Hendersonville, North Carolina, joined "The Robins." She died in 1994. Mae, of Junction City, Kansas, died in 1972 and Kate, of Kansas City, Missouri, died in 1976. Eventually Kate's place in the Round Robin letters was filed by her daughter, Charlotte Johnson of Orange California, and her daughter-in-law, Zita Schump, of Kansas City Missouri. Florence's son, Tom Hahn, of Shepherdstown, West Virginia, now Fort Myers, Florida, took her place in the Round Robin on her death in 1998. About three years ago, Mae's daughter, Dorothy (Christensen) Waters, of Port Angeles, Washington joined the Robins. Two or three years ago. The reunion this year was at Bernice (Torgeson) Taggart, of Goodland, Kansas. At one time, the other sisters were able to take the train to Sharon Springs, some 30 miles south of Goodland, and then later, I believe, they took a bus to Goodland.] Yesterday we spent most of the day outside as was so pleasant and when the big spruce tree didn't shade on this side we sat on patio up by the house. I fixed a skirt band that was new last spring and only wore twice. It had a ruffle at top of waist band which I never liked but with Zita's and Charlotte's sewing experience I got the job done and backed stitched the band so was no problem that we didn't have a machine. So Bernice got out her skirt which was like mine and Charlotte fixed it for her. So it was good to accomplish something while sitting, and Charlotte worked in flower bed also. We have eaten supper outside 2 evenings but it is up to 90 today so are staying inside. All of us have red arms and me a red nose from sitting where sun hit us but was so pleasant we didn't realize what was happening.

The neighbor next door in early evening invited us over for 7up or whatever we wanted so went in her house. Her husband passed away in spring. She is 80 and a well preserved

80. She works in yard a lot.

Wed. another friend of Bernice asked us over for coffee. We went at 10 and stayed until 12. Had an early breakfast at home. She has a husband, her second marriage and a large patio, so was out there. Her husband has a garage or building as large as a house where he does carpenter work when he isn't out on the farm.

So had coffee & cookies there, sqs of raisin cookies which were good.

Zita and Charlotte are so excited over everything we do, and they seem content to sit around, especially Zita, she is so glad to be free of laundry for 4 grownups, and folding that many socks etc. I envy their sleeping thru the night and often Zita takes and hour or two nap in the afternoon

Right now Charlotte is napping and Bernice & Zita playing scrabble on kitchen table and I have a batch of cinnamon rolls mixed up (request). [Hr cinnamon rolls remain unequalled today.]

We didn't want any lunch after the coffee. but did stop at an ice cream parlor for ice cream. It was fixed up like old fashion kind. We like food at home as the eating places are not so desirable here and get some good ideas and nourishing food.

Bernice's sister in law was up one night and I didn't see her last year and could see she had failed mentally and I had a little cry by myself seeing her that way. But she smokes all the time and that is her idol and pleasure, and when she was here we sat outside as she puffed away like a chimney all the time. [Tom Taggart's sister lived in Chicago and had a tiny house in Goodland where she spent her summers.]

We have talked about our past as the girls wanted to hear it all altho Kate had told them about our past reunions and I think it was so nice that they and their husbands were willing for them to stay longer.

Thursday Afternoon. June 1980. From Goodland, Kansas.

We are getting ready for a 9:30 coffee here [at her sister, Bernice Taggart's], 7 of us and while the dust rag is being used I am idle.

Yesterday afternoon late I made cinnamon rolls for the coffee this morn and will heat them up

Then this afternoon we are alone. We will pack for an early start tomorrow.

Has been beautiful weather so far. Stormy in parts of state and a little town in Nebr not far from here 7 tornadoes, one after the other hit, and 35 killed. hat is quite a loss in a community, and we saw on TV the disaster and folks cleaning up, and I know how it is from the big one we had in Topeka 15 or more years ago.

Thurs. Eve.

The morning coffee so nice. Besides cinnamon rolls, Bernice dug out her refrig top, gumdrop cake (cut in slices) and 3 kinds of cookies all made at Christmas time, so the tray looked so pretty. And we had a fun time/ We all feel acquainted after seeing them the last 3 reunions. Maybe only 32 for Zita and Charlotte and they think old ladies can do interesting things along with cooking and now will have to pack for our early morning trip home. Will be nice to have the girls stay with me all night with me. [Perhaps, one of them - Zita or Charlotte -- drove their car to and from the reunion from Kansas City, Missouri.

Red salmon salad and a veg for supper as we skipped lunch as we sat at the table until 1130. So this is the end of a beautiful reunion. No hard feelings, just for fun and happy memories. With love, Mother

Tuesday Afternoon 3:30. June 1980

Our Trudie Harsh, one of the members of [the] Bonehead Club passed away -- she was 92, and for a year she had been very poorly and confined in the Meth[odist] Home. [The Bone head Club was composed of Church friends of Florence and Walt's.] He funeral today and I went with Jenay. They have a very nice chapel in the home and is a large room, so saw many of our church folks there. It was not sad as she has wanted to die now for a year since she became inactive, si I'm remembering the fun times we used to have. The last few years Dad was here of Sun afternoon aroud 4:30 or 5 he would say let's go out to Harshes. So I would pick up something to take along to eat and we would have a light pick up supper at kitchen table and sit and visit. And she and Earl were a Bonehead couple and when they threw a party it was more fun. One time sent out invitations to come out to the hen house for supper, and she had games about chickens and of course lots of fried chicken. There were 10 couple in our club, and she had prizes, etc. Well the next time they had a arty it was a strawberry party. They had a big strawberry patch, so had all the berries we could eat, short cake or berries and cream and Dad said she knew she was going to ask us questions about strawberries, so he boned up on where they were raised, how many bu[shels], etc, and she passed around papers for us to make out and dad answered every one correct according to her figures. Some argued hat Delaware or some state did not produce that many., that it was some other state. so she got the World Book out and it was the same edition as ours which was very old, and then she caught on that he must have looked up [the subject]. He got the prize anyway as answers same as hers.

And she was the one that had the old quilt I have written about. We gals in her SS class, Avis Shuart's (class) out there and we all made a quilt block, of a farm animal which we had to draw on white muslin 2q. That was in 1934. [The Harshes lived on a farm in Topeka.] And after Earl died she broke up her home to move to ME [Methodist Episcopal] Home. and they had a large room [in their house] when all relatives came, and when the Boneheads went there, so she kept all her vases, large dishes, etc. on shelves ou there, and she had all of we Bonehead women there for lunch [one day] and after lunch she told us to go in that room and pick out a dish or a vase for ourself as her girls had picked out what they wanted, so we had fun deciding what to take, and my choice was a little brown tea pot with designs on it like little colored beads, and I still have it. The other girls were lugging big glass fruit bowls. etc. home. So I have had a remembrance time writing you. Nathalie may not be interested but Tom you know about that bunch.

The weather turned cooler and am sitting here at 4 o'clock pm, without a fan on. LeRoy [neighbor] opens up the two outside doors early morn and cools halls and then about 10 o'clock shuts the doors and I don't run in and out like in a house [opposed to an apartment] so can keep the coolness in.

Wednesday Morning

A heavy fog, like one on coast and has taken it sometime to lift as is 9 o'clock. Yesterday when Jenay brought me home from funeral. the girls [Jenay's] were with us. They stayed at their grandma's and we picked them up, and Chelsey the oldest one likes to walk me to the door and last time came in to look the place over,. This time she said, "Do you have anything new in the house?" and I said, "No." and she turned around and left.

She is going to a summer school for a few weeks for gifted children. I figure that is smart ones with a talent. Anyway, she was griping about it with her mother. She didn't get her lesson, kids are pushed these days also Mothers with their ballet lessons, etc. I found something this morning about it next letter, if you can do something with it. Not any big deal.

The potty chair will be more comfortable than the pot. I must have told her that we bought a potty chair for her to use at the cabin in Maine [or the house in Cherryfield, I am not sure which, rather than a chamber pot at night. The guest room in the Shepherdstown house took steps up and down to get tp the toilet. Something difficult to do for an older person. The toilet in Maine was an outside toilet and to get to and from the guest room at the cabin in Maine one had to go out on the porch to take a few steps on the porch to the main part of the cabin.]

I feel so badly about the wheat fields that were so beautiful when we drove back [from Goodland, Kansas]. In very dry here. Seems like there are times when the weather doesn't cooperate with situations in the right time.

I took Avis Shuart [old church friend] over a Care pkg. when I went there [the Methodist home] and she called last night. Talked an hour. Gave up a good [TV] program for her. She was so pleased with the pkg. Filled a small jar with leftover garlic pickles from Christmas, baked 6 bran muffins and took her 4 small ones, and a jar of instant [coffee], small jar, and she had supper in her room. She often does that, just fixes a sandwich. She will miss Trudy. With love Mother

Dear Tom. You are getting an extra bonus in way of s letter as sent one to you yesterday, but thought you might get a little lonely without Nathalie, but she may be back before this letter gets to you. [I don't remember where she was. Tom]

This is more to my yesterday, as I had quite a busy day. After the bread making, etc., took a bath and was only 9 o'clock, so decided would attempt the walk down to see Hillary and it was hot but a breeze and humidity down , so took her a loaf of bread and came back with two tomatoes and 3 nice size zuchini squash. As long as there is something in the garden I don't come home empty hands. O yes also some parsley. She works so very hard, but does her garden early morning. Then sat a short while for a chat. Took you clipping abut "Retired Farmer." and came home and cooled off a while before going to store as it is so cold there. Had nice cant elopes and got one as the one last week turned out so well. Let it ripen in a warm spot and think it will be ready to cut up today. I cut all of it in pieces and put in a plastic container and it keeps well that way. Also got a package of chicken wings and will bake them in the little oven with cutup potatoes. When I was growing up my favorite piece of fried chicken was the wings. Dad liked back and neck. Gladys thigh. Kate legs and mother and Bernice the white meat. Always fried 2 chickens as we raised them. and my job was to cu up chickens and also pick off feathers after I was half way grown up.

Some years ago chicken wings were cheaper and we would get a package of wings to fill out a roaster of them. That was after married and they were much cheaper and now sell for same price as whole chickens.

So yesterday afternoon I rested and around 4 o'clock called up Norma [apartment neighbor] to see if she was home. Wanted to give her several slices of bread. She had guests so waited until after 6 and they were still there, so I told her to come over for a light supper after they left. And at 6:30 she came. I had sliced egg on lettuce a with slice of tomato with dressing, and had two slices of cheese on plate with the salad, and fresh bread for dessert had tapioca pudding over sliced peaches (canned kind) and had the table looking pretty, first time she has eaten here, besides the neighborhood coffees, so we had a little visit and she went to see her sister who isn't too well but has a husband, and I know her, so sent her a little loaf of bread, so I only have one loaf left and have used some of it.

A church friend who has been laid up all winter and fall with a broken hip called me later and we had a nice talk. I have been in her home to church group meetings, but she lives to far for me to visit her, so since her shut in days with her hip, as she has to be in wheel chair longer than most, so have sent her a note now and then and called on phone once in a while and have gotten acquainted with her that way. She called last night and we had a nice visit and I mentioned bread making and she wanted the recipe as she used to make it but wanted to start out again sp gave her a lesson on how to make this [kind] and takes such a short time. for it to be ready. She was married late. She taught school and the man she married was a widower. He had raised 3 boys, so he knows how to cook also. So my day was full and different. I am learning that one has to reach out and get new friends when the old ones leave, and I have certainly lost quite a number the last few years.

Recd checks from Medicare & Blue Cross the other day from the Dr check up. They send in the form at office. I pay the bill to Dr and they send papers to the co. and that makes it much easier, so bill was $61.00 and Blue Cross pd 42.70, Medicare 4.80, and so I only had to pay 13.50 for my checkup. Of course that doesn't include the medicine I had ti take for 2 weeks, but of course I have to pay in long run to the Blue Cross and Med. insurance but that is what makes one feel more secure.

The picture in Engagement Book this week is Sunset, Madaket Beach, Nantucket, Mass.

The yard man came yesterday and cleaned up my yard. The sycamore tree by both room windows had several large limbs dangling from the storm and dead wood under the tree but now all cleared up. A large space where limbs were broken and the sun shines thru, but Bambi is safe among the leaves. [A figurine]

This picture reminds me of a swing in our front yard in my childhood days, only ours didn't have a top of it, and how we loved that swing, and in back yard under a large tree were two rope swings with a swing board seat in it.

Later in Morn. Watched TV sermon which was very good. The music and all the gorgeous Calif flowers. And then dinner in the little oven, stretched out on bed for awhile yesterdays full day and a dress to keep on until night, and a good night's sleep left me wanting just to relax and that is an old age process as there are days like that, then the next day sore muscles and relaxation is the mood for the day or I contend it is because I am an Aries and have spells when I keep going and happy doing it, then times when force myself, but I found one has to keep up.

Some of my friends living alone are so bored and expect some thing to happen without doing anything about it. They are not getting [making] hot meals and just existing, and are in cool homes. While I was stretched out on bed waiting for lunch to cook, and smelling those good smells I can hardly wait. I dont get bored as I try new ways to cook, and with lots of time staying in, I try all sorts of things. and I think of food people waste because they dont take the time to utilize what they have. I never knew years ago that how onion tops can make food taste as good as the onion, of course I am thinking of top before they get too so tough. I dont use regular onions as much as if had some one to cook for as they spoil if get more than one at a time so I buy a bunch of young green ones and I can use the whole part of it from top to bottom. Vegetables are very high now with this hot weather, green peppers arent doing anything from gardens here and they can be so tasty, eggs down 59c this week so that is good and I like an omelet at supper with parsley. Cut up a cant elope got yesterday and it is delicious.

Anything new with the Bartons? [The Bartons are our friends in Maine, so this letter must have been sent to us at the cabin in Maine.] With Love Mother July 1980. Handwritten.

[Portion missing] Yesterday baked 4 pieces of chicken and a potato cut in 3 slices and used a small casserole in the little oven, so have enough left for today. The TV reception isn't too good, pictures distorted, etc others having same problem so we watch it that way knowing it will right itself when heat and weather gets normal.

You mentioned the heat wave we had in 1936, it was bad but dry air and we used the basement a lot and kept the inside basement door open and cool air would come up. And we slept out on cots on porch some nights and some evenings would drive up to Security Benefit hill to cool off and spend the evening blankets on ground. I don't think we had an electric fan then. Taggarts [second house tot he south] had a tin tub in living room, folks did all sorts of make shifts to cool off. You kids played with the hose a lot.

Grandpa Hahns funeral was day after 4th of July or may[be] a day later and temp was 111 and men in those days didn't have summer suits and had to wear their winter suits and was no central air cond. in bldgs then either, it was awful hot going to cemetary [in Topeka, Kansas]. But we were young and could take it and didn't know the difference like now. So Ive been thru 2 terrible summers, and bad flood and bad tornado and a hard winter so know what is all about. Last summer was a pleasant one as I only used air cond a few times, the fans were adequate and so am thankful now am getting old I can have it comfortable. Have been to store, usually go in afternoon to mill around in the store but figured it was not the thing to do today. I had a card filled with coupons so got 1.04 can of tuna with it and that was a small can too.

Each time I go over they have a new girl at counter, so I watch the tickets and some they get have to learn the machine, Today they had a young boy and that is the first one since the original fellow Joe White sold out. The boys used to stock the shelves etc and I like them.

I think of Chris all the time . . . Must get in mail. Love, Mother

And I am thinking about my Mother on 4th when were all kids. She always had fried chicken (she raised chickens) and new potatoes & peas, beets and the gallon freezer of ice cream. We kids helped some by shelling peas and picking over beans, but she was the one working over a hot stove.

My Dear Son. Such an interesting letter and clippings from you. Today is another humdrum day same old weather line, but a little cooler as was 98 this noon and humidity down and getting cloudy so maybe it will work up to something. [Rain]

The Native article [I don't know what magazine or article she is referring to] was interesting and I had recently read that Harpers Bazaar as it was called years ago had folded up as so may of our magazines from the past have. Sat Evening Post, Life, etc. And I remember about how Mother wanted us to have good things to read but could not afford many magazines then. She got us "Youths Companion" and there was a small magazine something like Readers Digest called Path Finder" and later there was "Delineator and Ladies Home Journal, maybe someone would hand down to us and I was so eager to read.

I shall always remember a good friend that ran the Hotel there in WC. She was good to so many folks. She called me in one day when I passed by and asked me if I would like some magazines to read and keep but I would have to bring our little wagon (We had one for groceries) as too heavy to carry so many magazines, so I was sure glad to have a chance to get them. There was two years of them and I was so excited as there was two numbers of DEC and Christmas stories and ideas how to make little gifts out of those Dec numbers. What a wealth of reading and advertising was interesting also.

I don't feel the same way as the author does as they have their place as are a nice pick up pastime to thumb through when sitting a spell and I used to take magazines but haven't for several years as I bring some of Jenays home with me when I am over there. I doubt if she reads many of them. And at home we always had an almanac and Sears catalog and Montgomery Wards also. I shall send the article to Martha the next time I write as she will think it interesting. [Martha Brown, her mother's sister but only a year older than Florence.]

I read the Country of the pointed fir. I think the first I was ever at the cabin [in Maine where we were when she wrote this letter] and cant recall the author now but was a Maine writer. And I can't remember what it was about but it was one of my favorite stories about that part of the country. And your fishing trip with your friend and the women folks being together was nice and the bird life you saw and I am glad that I saw the loons and heard them also when I was there. Is the little squirrel smaller than the tree squirrels we saw at the camp in Maryland one time they were so cute.

I hadn't thought much about coming [to Shepherdstown] this fall as you both said that the [Nathalie's] brothers were coming for a reunion and I didn't want to be there when you needed the room. But will think about it as time gets closer and you hear definitely when they will be there and how long.

Every day it has been so hot. There is a report on TV or radio to use electricity and water during the quiet time as morning, etc. I have always tried to do just that not for any convenience but it makes sense to do so to avoid the heat. When I was growing up a kettle of water was boiled in the mornings to fry for supper, etc and bread made in the morning and the ironing done etc, so I have learned from my early training.

Tuesday Morn. August 1980. mt

Dear Nathalie. Instead of a red letter day, it's a Pink one. I still have one more bilious green envelope and addressed it Sheptown so put it away.

Have had a bath and dressed for the Convention this morn. Watched last night and they called in West Va votes, but didn't get to hear Kans. Our Gov. is there and has made a talk and I think as far as I know that he is doing well, but hear negative reports also. It's been hard for Kansas to have a Democrat Gov. but in later years we have had several. When I was in the grades [grade school] we would have elections at school, and only Democrats was a boy in my class and I, and I used to wish just once I could brag, and so after I was in H. S. or rather the year I graduated Wilson became pres. and my Dad got the Po. [Post Office at White City, Kansas] because of that and he had it for 8 yrs and was a good paying job for him and a challenge for a man like him that had no schooling only grades and I don't know how far he got, but he made a good living with this job, and that was exciting. The only way we could hear reports was over phones and newspapers.

So I had to go from H School into training in P.O. and there was so much to learn. Was more to it than putting mail in boxes. There were 4 rural carriers and then first W War started and thaw was a busy time for everyone. Made mail very heavy with overseas mail etc. and women got busy with knitting and canning classes etc, and we had to finger print all Germans in town and farms and a lot of red tape going on and there were Red Cross classes, but a good thing for women in small towns to have an outlet from their home life, mingle with people.

Well I didn't mean to ramble on but to me, this election doesn't seem to have a right man for either side and as I read and listen, I never gave Humphrey any thought until his last two years and wish he were here her this fight. So I am still not ready to vote.

Now lets talk about hair. The only thing that has come from the humidity this summer that I know about is that my hair has stayed nice. I let it get too long after a perm, but had it cut short and it still is soft and fluffy, and some have said, "How do you keep your hair from being stringy this weather?" So when your hair looks nice makes you feel better. But my clothes get sticky.

Have just finished reading a book, "Be not Afraid." A father's inspiring story of an epileptic boy, from his life at 8 he was struck on head in a fall and the father [the remainder of the letter is missing].

Sunday August 1980. Handwritten.

Dear Tom: You may not be interested in this article, but since I am a Kansas girl and have seen the beautiful wheat fields, and this trip to Goodland they were so promising. Wheat was not ripe yet but so green and tall.

And it seems lately that certain things I read remind me of that subject in my younger years in W. C. [White City] and reading about wheat. Occasionally Mother's bread wasn't up to standard and Dad was never the kind of person to criticize food, but he would say, "What happened to the bread this time." and she would say, It must be the flour, as flour was better with some age to it.

The first year Day and I were married we lived next door to a middle age couple and their married daughter & little girl lived with them. The father was killed in some kind of accident, so the daughter worked at the flour mill where she tested and weighed flour and baked a loaf every day, and they would bring us a loaf. The flour was called "White Loaf" and it was the top brand. I remember using it.

When my Dad worked at grain store, we kids liked to jump in the wheat bins, only 2 at a time but not often if Dad caught us, and we would chew on it.

And then while on Nature subjects. in Aug, we called them dog days when winds would be so hot, and Dad would worry so about the corn crops. And he would be so tired and face dirty from helping shovel grain in bins in their store house. Lots of times he would come home late to supper but we would eat without him and I am sure that was more restful for him also. So ever generation has their hang-ups. Storms, etc to battle, and the the good times too.

Poor Hillary [friend] has had it this summer and if she isn't careful she will get down. She is still taking care of the 11 cats and 3 or 4 dogs. Think of the litter pans these hot days. I think she said the lady has air conditioning. And her daughter came home last Sat (Hillary's). She lives in KC. [Kansas City] and comes on bus, and bus was almost an hour late. Got in at 7 pm and she got so hot in car going to bus sta to meet her daughter and the bus was full except one seat beside her daughter and no air conditioning on bus and folks were sure having a bad time. Opened windows part way. She got so hot she took off her blouse. I wonder what folks thought of that.

Yesterday Sept 5th Dad & I were married 60 yrs ago, and I thought about that day a lot, seems more this year, and it was a nice fall day and not too hot as I wore a navy satin blouse. Louise [Walter's sister] made it for me, as I couldn't find one to go with suit. I came to Topeka [from White City, Kansas] a few days before we were married and stayed at Hahns. They had only been in Topeka a few months. And now since Ed and Marie [Ed Hahn and his wife, Marie (Jenkins) Hahn] are gone I feel very lonely when I think of that day.. We (Dad & I went on train) and Louise [Hahn, Margaret [Hahn, Walter's sister], grandma and grandpa Hahn drove to Baldwin [Kansas] to Ed's wedding. Mrs. Jenkins [Marie's mother] lived there and she had a dinner at noon for relatives and then Marie & Ed, Dad I went to KC for two days. So grandma & pa gave away two sons in two days.

Sunday Morning

Up early and plan to go to Church as this is Fellowship Sun, 1st of the month, and covered dish dinner so I made mine yesterday, which is a new recipe for a good cook book. Rasp. jello, chopped can beets, can medium crushed pineapple, and 2 T vinegar, and it is pretty and good.

Georgine [church friend] is coming after me and I told her not to take any food as the salad am taking makes a large dish. She seldom goes to these dinners. One thing, she doesn't like to cook, and another she is church secy and she contacts the members a lot, and doesn't care about mingling with them at these dinners, but she always goes to church, and today she is staying as is Jenay's [he daughter's] birthday and they stay to the dinner as they say, the dinners are free except what you take and are better than the eating places.

The whole [Weekly] family and I went out to eat last night tho, as she, Jenay, wanted us over for a little celebration at their house afterward, and her presents. So went to an Italian place out north a long ways out and went over the cloverleaf and was nice to see the country and sunflowers. This place doesn't look like anything from outside but is nice inside. I think is so dark. I could hardly see the menu. They when you eat they have soft lights on. I am not crazy about Italian food, but got meat balls which were good, and spaghetti.

[Portion of letter missing] and also will get a pan to go with it when I come, so Marty {grandson. Chris Hahn's wife] can cook veg. the quick easy way. Also have a timer for them. I don't know if you have silverware for them or not, as you have had lots around. If not, and if they aren't too particular, I have a whole set, 8 place settings, knives forks, spoons that I seldom use. I use the 4 stainless most of the time and have my good set for company. This silver we bought at bank when deposited etc. and I have it in silver wraps. I have used it a lot, but is still shiny, if they don't have any I can fix it up and bring or send it so let me know.

About 5 November 1980

My Dear Son: Am thinking about a birthday 54 years ago, and many happy birthdays. [Tom Hahn born 5 November 1926] And I do want you to know that you have never been unkind to me and as the years go by have been so very thoughtful in many ways. So hope that you do not feel the years much as 54 is such a nice age, the '60s were a nice age for me and Dads retirement was such a care free time for us both.

Weatherwise we have had cold winds and now after a cold rain is getting balmy again so Indian summer will come, there are many trees to color up yet. I thought the leaf on this card was pretty with the burr and bee on it.

I have a leaf you sent me four years ago framed and up every year and the leaf from Vermont is under glass also on a frame on the buffet, the other is in the kitchen right where I work and they are such a joy to me to look at them. Its the little things that sometime [are] more touching. [The leaves went bye-bye someplace along the line.

Has been a little lonesome and so quiet since the girls [sister Bernice and niece Zita and Charlotte] left, but have many things to think about and they are so kind and thoughtful to me. I sure have been around for a whole month and have held up pretty well, in spite of it all, takes a lot of doing but I made it. With much love, Mother

Thurs Morn. November 1980. Handwritten

Have been for a block around the block and so still and trees as far as I can see on 21st are simply gorgeous, the stately pin oaks in gold and red. Folks say has been years since they have been so pretty this late into fall, and the two across from me are a picture, one bright red, one gold and when the morning sun shines on them the colors are more vivid. Last night when sun was setting and shone on both trees they both looked red the same shade, and I wondered so I could hardly wait for sun this morn to ee if the gold tree turned red also but it hadn't.

Had a nice afternoon yesterday. Went to Methodist Home, our church group had a tea for them. I baked sugar cookies for them. and while I was down the hall helping a little old lady to the lounge or parlor where we me6t, they had started to help themselves to cookies, my ladies and all, and when I came in someone said who made the sugar cookies. No one answered and they asked me, and wanted the recipe and I said, Just plain sugar cookie recipe, the secret is to roll them very thin.". and they backed down and said, "That's too much work." There was a young man who played the guitar and a young woman and he sang, several numbers and they were good

Fran [her brother's son] is home, came home Sat and will go to hospital Nov 14 for operation. He feels good, and working in yard and doing puttery things. Charlotte [Fran's sister] will be there this week end. He will see about the Trailer Park, don't think the deal has gone through yet. [I forget where in Missouri the trailer park was.]

Back to Ladies at the Home, Pearl Zahourack isn't like the Pearl I had such a good time with when she lived down st. next block from me at 1120 High. Her mind is slipping and she doesn't have much to say. Avis (Shuart) looks frail; and has to use the walker all the time, but her speech also low and slow, but she has a small book of poems of hers at the printers now. [Pearl and Avis were also members of the church-oriented Bonehead Club. Avis, being older, was also a good adviser to my mother.]

I wish you could see the living room now, the sun and trees seem to becoming inside. also in the kitchen. How I love the fall weather when it is pleasant and I heard 2 geese that have gone stray from their formation honking. Much love, Mother

How does election strike you was it a surprise. It must be hard for a pres. to be defeated but if they weren't we would never have a change.

Wed Morn. December 1980. mwh

Dear T&N. Am having such interesting mail this holiday season and I don't intend to keep up with some and feel I have to send them a card.

Was interested in the turkey literature and remember going by that turkey farm, but still like the bronze or black kind the best for looks. Every fall in Nov. 0r rather several times Dad [Walt] would take me to a turkey farm and one time many of the turkeys wore saddles so the gobbler wouldn't get to them as would injure back or some such and this article about the mating etc, inseminating, new to me. Years ago Ed Wilcox [the neighbor in back of Walt and Florence, on Wayne Street] wouldn't buy a frozen turkey. He would get one at Wilson farm up at Rossville.

Do you remember Tom when a little boy you wanted a live turkey for a pet and so in fall when up to Junction City, he bought you one at a produce pace. It was a cull and we brought it home in a box and you would pet in all way home [and] put it in a big cage back of garage, and fattened it up and cooked it. As I remember you did object to us doing that but maybe you did. I know I would [not] let Dad kill my duck, but ducks are smarter than turkeys.

This has been and interesting fun week, as Mon went to AARP meeting and our regular Christmas party. Had it in a very large new church south of town, in their dining room. There were 127 there, lots of food, a covered dish affair, and after the dinner (noon) a group came and put on a program. They played banjos, horns etc and first sang and played and then into the Christmas carols. The 5ables were beautifully decorated by a comm. of our group. Three of us gals go together at the meetings. Then last night was invited upstairs to apt. This gal is a young math teacher in H.S. and has been here in bldg. 2 years. She was here to a coffee of all of us a yr ago. I have never been in her apt. She has a piano and we asked her to play and she is a shy, quiet person but when she got started playing she did a fine job. She served a dessert shortly after we arrived, spice tea and a sq. of cake that had a cooked yummy filling. Mrs. Landis [neighbor] went. There was an invitation on door several nights ago and I took hers in to read to her and she said, "I would like to go to that." She turned us down for 2 years so she asked what she should wear and if she was to take a gift etc, and I told her no gifts and just wear any kind of dress. She has been out of circulation for so long she doesn't know what is going on, but her daughter [remainder of letter missing].

Sat Afternoon. February 1981. Handwritten. mt

Dear Nathalie. I am enjoying this Sat, as it is so beautiful, the second snow this year. All Jan none, and it seems so quiet, no wind and at times for awhile the flakes so very large and fluffy. They used to say, "The old woman the Sky was picking her geese," then the flakes get normal size like she was down to the small feather picking.

The forecast was it would reach here Fri afternoon (the storm) so I went over to store and got things to have on hand.

Thurs had 2 gals for lunch. The one takes 2 or 3 of us to AARP meeting but this time just she and I. He sister lives with her so she came, both of them in late 70s. Francis I have known for years but have only been in her home once, but she will go out to eat and I like to have company here. small group, to keep up on cooking. I had bran muffins, cheese & rice casserole, lemon jello with shredded carrots & cabbage, no dessert.. Francis told her sister she wish I would have bran muffins and they were extra good. It seemed to me we had a nice afternoon and they left at 3:00.

Wed Hiliary [Hillary. She often chided Florence for misspelling her name.] called and wanted me to come down and play Scrabble. She has been ailing, has an infected ear. She is going to write her memories just for her daughter.

Back to Wed. gals. I used my new place mats recd Christmas. They are a woven dull grey brown color very pretty. but had no napkins that went with them, in drawers and came across a 2q card table cover that size. It is so old and flimsy but so pretty. I made 4 napkins 14x15. Cut out the small amt of white in center of it and napkins are all over with large brown & yellow flowers like mums so I only had to hem 2 sides., other side [already] hemmed, and when I use them will fold them in a triangle. Used the brown and yellow kitchen dishes.

Wed Morning [March 1981] Handwritten

Dear T & N. The tying paper gets cheaper and thinner, as got a new packet but the writing tablets are same also.

The article about snakes in orchard reminds me of twice I had experience of picking cherries and a big old bull [black?] snake laying across the limb. Poor mother had a horror of snakes also but she was brave and would get the hoe and kill it, and I went in fear every summer, as she would make me pick the cherries and sisters would help also, but going to privy and looking down and laying across a wooden beam was a snake, and I still feel the same fright in any outdoor one, but I can't help it. Jenays little girls touched a snake out to zoo, but I never told them how scared I am of one and the next phobia was tomato worms, the big kind that climb to the limbs, dont think they are on them much anymore.

Is a beautiful morn. Goodland had 17 in [of snow] last week. We don't have any, but grass is getting green.

Hale just finished polishing up a rack of silver spoons the gas so hard on them, and while I have done it once since Christmas, they were really black and I tried the soda deal, it worked when not so black, but didn't this time, so had to use silver polish. So wrapped them up and will not get them up until next mon[th] as am having 4 gals in for lunch and when spoons are so black, right where folks are sitting, want them to show up. The cheap metal spoons, that have come up in later years keep their luster. but sterling is hard to keep shiny

Have beef stew on, and some apples boil baked [and made], so have lunch on the way. Was over to Jenays mothers in law Mon. night. all there for supper. She is a good cook, and had ordinary food but so good, cor escalloped, and escalloped potatoes same like corn other potatoes. I like both, and a fruit jello, and angel food cake. Her table is formica top, so seldom uses a cloth, oh yes, have to [?] it was daughter in laws birthday.

Have you seen the Gary Weakleys [what?]. I took label to show them their ancestors come from east, and so they were interested. Some relatives as you know spell their names different as theirs is Weekley.

Talked to Beck [Corby, her niece to marriage] last night, they are in a business deal mess getting stuff ready for income tax, and nice they boys [sons] still have their jobs. Both parents have been in their medical bldg [where the Corby's lived], for several weeks and now he is back in apt. [Remainder of letter is missing]

[In writing of her friend, Avis Sharp]. . . [portion missing] She writes of her married life living on a farm. She was a city girl, that was used to having a hired girl do the heavy part of house work. They had oil lamps and heating stoves for many years. They inherited the fruit business from father-in-law, he had an apple orchard. Homer (her husband) graduated from K. State majoring in horticulture and carrying on with his fathers work. The Sharps came from Eng. My best friend in my girlhood days was Jessie. She was Homer's cousin and Avis was several years older. sop when I was in teens, I began to pal around with Avis. Well so much for for this family. I only wish Avis and I could get together. There is no way to get to Council Grove for me.

I thought of an old scrub plum tree by our wind mill, that when in bloom the bees were thick on it. There was an old was tub, had been washing machine and had a wooden stopper in it and one day, some kids and I were around close and the stopper was full of bees and the only brave thing I did when young. I took hold of that stopper on one end where no bees and pulled it out, bees just held on and the kids were amazed. I knew they wouldn't bother me as have had them crawl on me.

Am getting adjusted to being alone again. Fri. baked rolls and cinnamon rolls, the reason for the cinnamon rolls was to take France upstairs a small pan of them. She is in a bad way with cancer, is up and around. She had surgery in Dec. but now has spread. I sent her a card from your place and she called me how much she appreciated getting it. I asked what she would like for me to cook for her and she said, "I like your rolls." She has eaten them here at coffees, so took them up Fri.

And now am sitting in rocker thinking of last Sun. [in Tom's at Shepherdstown, West Virginia] Mothers Day, church and what a full day we had, so interesting, the scenery dinner etc, gospel singers until bedtime, the best Mothers Day have ever had and I shall cherish that memory of May 10-81 forever.

May. Memorial Day 1981. Afternoon. Handwritten, mt

Yesterday was talking to a friend over phone and she said she was going to cemetary this morn, did I have a way? And so far didn't as too much family deals going on. This friend said that a neighbor broke a bone in foot Sat and had her peonies picked and in refrig. so she wouldn't be able to take them to 3 cemetaries in small towns close, so told this Francis to come get them and do what she wanted to with them , so Frances had a bucket full for me, and I gathered up several coffee cans for them. She went in cemetary a different way and I got mixed up trying to find our corner. so went to office to ask and he had small maps to show where located, ours in East Lawn, and a bucket of flags (small) outside and I asked if I could have one. I used to go out with Less and Gladys [Walt's sister's husband and his second wife]. The man asked if I had a Navy career man, and I said a son, and I wondered if he knew you. I told him the name was Hahn, so he could look up the location of graves.

And I went over to [sister] Gladys and Joes. Some one had been there with garden flowers. Bob [Joe's son] took me 2 yrs ago, but that friendship has gradually dwindled out.

Decoration Day was a Special Day for us. as we always went to W. C. [White City] after Grandpa T died, and would take Mother and [sister] Mae and Bob came also but that didn't last long as then Bob died. so we would get up early and get Mae and go to W. C. and to their services in morn and meet old friends and then go to Aunt Celia's [and husband John, her father Tom Torgeson's brother] for noon meal. We took things for the dinner. She sure loved having us. her house had lots of shade around it and always cool. Uncle John was still living a year or two when Bob was. We would go back to Maes late afternoon in later years and stay all night and talk about friends we had seen that day. Am sure Tom you were with us in early years. And we went every year until Dad [Walt] left in 66.

There were 2 or 3 times we took fish. Dad's catch. Kept them frozen toward that day and was my job to fry them at Aunt Celia's. She thought they were such a treat.

A shower this morning.

Tues morn. A hard shower last night. didn't last long. This morn is sunny and fresh, and have been for a walk. The tramp in the cemetary sure made my legs and hips sore so walked to get them limbered up.

[She enclosed obituaries for Marty Beckman, her niece, and her, father, Les Beckman, who died a day later.]

Friday Morn June 1981. Handwritten

Dear T & N. A beautiful cool morn, a light shower in night. The storm Mon. morn broke a large limb off the sycamore by my bathroom window and by Bambi's limb, so he may go next, maybe not as is so close to bldg. I didn't get to look at him this winter when plastic won on window and now he is surrounded by leaves but his head sticking out.

Not much going on here, but a little funny thing happened to make a story. One afternoon Norma [neighbor] and I went to a larger grocery store to get green stuff (veg) and I looked at the green beans and they were such a large pkg. so got zuchini and little onions stead. The potatoes (new) were not good either. Norma got a bundle of beans and next day came over with a container od cooked beans, and that morn on my early walk there was a good size new potato with dew on it and was cold, only a few feet from our door and washed it and had for lunch with green beans, so yesterday Norma, girl upstairs and my neighbor next door was all in hall and I said, "Did anyone have a hole in grocery sack night before last, and spilled them in front of our door. So we had a big laugh over that, and the girl next door had been making the rounds of all in this bldg and was handing out a pkg of little unbaked rolls to each of us, 5 in pkg, something new she was trying, keep in Frig. and will keep for several days, so we had a laugh about my experience with green beans, potatoes, and rolls. I said it was pennies from Heaven.

The new neighbor hasn't any personality as so far haven't noticed any. is quiet, and it may be shyness. Anyway, she s quiet. She works in an office at Washburn [College] and walks to work nice weather, her age haven't figured out maybe 40. Susan the upstairs gal is 31, and she is teaching one evening class at Washburn and is an athelete, plays tennis, softball etc., live in Hays Kans. so is a husky farm like girl. Mildred Hawn [neighbor] keeps to herself most of the time, is now in Boston attending some convention. She has been a school teacher and is busy with some sort of work.

So little experiences happen to keep us going around here during hot weather. Of course Norma is the is the outgoing forward type and is always good for a laugh, although has been quite on shelf lately with health problems and busy with family also.
Later. For a walk and went farther this time. So fresh and cool and all lawns have just been mowed and flowers are bloom, and noticed an apple tree with little apples on it. We should have nice lawns, trees etc going into hot weather with all the rains have had recently.

Read the place mat letter. [Often when we went out to eat, I kept the place on which to write letters to my mother. Tom] Showed it to Norma. She had never heard of anyone writing on one and that is so interesting and I have it on the cupboard door.

Am thinking of the Day we went to Camden [Maine]. That was a nice trip and all the time that you are there [in Maine] I will think of other trips and I know what your cabin is like and am sitting there right now and waiting for you to get the pancakes ready for breakfast, too early for blueberry ones and have the cabin pictures out and the one with the pie on the stove and two of Lake. You sent a small snap shot book a yr ago on my birthday of cabin pictures, new picket fence around yard in She[herds]town. mu house in W. C., Peter Rabbit and I, etc. That was such a nice idea fixing up that book, so handy to get out, etc, takes up little room in drawer.

So your letters from Maine will be looking forward to and I hope the summer will be a pleasant one for you. With love, Mother [Enclosed a poem from AARP Bulletin:
Time speeds on its way too quickly
Every day slips soon away.
And before the heart can grasp it
Night has blossomed into day.
Grasp each moment - live it fully.
For the day so briefly lingers.
There is gold in all the moments
That we let slip through our fingers.

MY DAY (Tuesday) July 1981. Typewritten. mt

Dear T & N Up early started making bread and on warm days humid days it sure raises fast so was out of the over by 1:00 and I waited a bit for it to cool a little and then took a loaf down to Hillary, a small loaf, poor dear, she was out in the back all bent over putting some clippings in the trash, she has had back problems so bad lately but persists in getting in the garden.

Her garden is getting a little out of hand as so much rain and grass and weeds are taking hold. She has cut down some on the ground and has a grassy plot between house and garden. Zuchini squash are setting on, and she has planted butternut [squash] but it will be some time before it shows anything as is a fall squash. So after looking the garden over we went inside to cool off and chat a short while and she had stuff in the refrig which she put in there a day before and was cold so she had a long plastic bag and out in five fair size potatoes all washed and 2 large carrots, a beautiful purple onion, she says they are sweet but (I haven't tried it yet. She peeled the outside layer off and it was pretty and shiny was a picture. I think that vegetables are as pretty as flowers both have their place. She also has a lovely rose garden on other side of the house away from he vegetable garden. When she handed me the plastic sack she said This is a Christmas stocking for you. I think I had written you last week when she brought up beans and potatoes it was like Christmas and she was a Summer Santa.

So today I cooked one of the carrots in the steamer and when they were almost done put in four thick slices of zuchini squash (store bot) and the carrots have such a good flavor.

Hiliary [she often misspelled her name] likes my bread as she says she doesn't take time to make bread and hasn't done much in that line. She likes to make coblers, etc the best, so I can do something she cant and so know now what she likes that I can make for her. She also said that she likes the garlic pickles I make so we all have to do things that others don't try. I havent been to any other store to get the butter buds, so I enjoyed the package you gave me but will get some when I go to the store as saw an add in paper about them and they were on the diet shelves. And in this enclosed article the mention of Postum. I used to like it with lots of milk in it but haven't seen it in stores.

And then this afternoon late Harriet, Mrs. Samways that used to live down te hall came to see me, then wanted me to go for ice cream but was looking stormy and I didnt want any so they came in and visited instead, so when they left I gave them the other little loaf of bread. I have done that before and they like it so I am left with the larger loaf, it isn't too large. Harriet asked what I was going to do 4TH OF JULY, and I said that Jenay had asked me there. She said that if it fell through to come and eat with them and a couple, so I would liked to have done that but my family first.

I made up a batch of Snow pudding, with gelatin and a custard sauce to pour over it and is so refreshing on these hot days. I try to do some of the hot cooking in early morn that requires heat and I think of the summers when I was young and mother would cook up a kettle of the little new potatoes early in the morning and would be ready for supper and the kitchen wouldn't be so hot as a kettle of boiling potatoes can make a lot f heat so I did just that this morn only not a kettleful but enough for two meals. And warming them up doesn't take so much heat.

I think of what you are doing and at times wish that I were there []at the cabin in Maine], but your letters are so interesting and I know what you are doing and can sit back and see all the activity, and you telling about lobsters and remember you having them then there but I liked the stew the next day the best. That red stew sure was tasty. Wouldnt it have been fun when you were younger Tom is some of the relatives lived somewhere and had a cabin and we could go visit but we were lucky to have so many relatives here and have picnics etc/ So I can imagine that Wayne and Clara [Bjorlie of Shepherdstown] will have a great time with you. They were there last year, were they not?

Just came back from walk, an early one and the grass so heavy with dew and is hazy and seems cool but air is heavy. Saw a brown thrasher, hey are such a pretty bird. We used to have them every summer back in the bushes. And I missed the two doves that have been walking ahead of me on my way to store so they have probably flown away.

Later afternoon, had a little bed rest but not a nap but I just lay there and thought about the hot summer afternoons when I was a little girl and mother would make us a pitcher of lemonade for a treat every afternoon and we would play out under the apple tree or when we got the tent played in it but it was not as cool as under the trees, and if we would get out in the sun she would call out to tell us to put on our sunbonnets so we wouldn't get sun burned. She would pull down the shades on the west part of the kitchen and dining room, the sunny part of the house in the afternoons and the house was very comfortable. She had so many ideas like that [that] other mothers didnt do and she would take a rest of hot afternoons.
Thursday morn. Dont suppose you watched the movie last night [clippings enclosed] it was very good, also the African picture so that was a full evening for TV and so glad it was not stormy as I don't have the TV on when it storms. With Love Mother

Sun September 1981 Handwritten. mt

How nice to talk with you on a rainy afternoon, but I got in on a nice walk this morn.

I may have written hat took the radio to be fixed. Doris Martin [old neighbor from 1120 High Avenue days] took me and I supposed would be taking it to a service shop and she said she knew a man that did radios and fixed 2 for her some time ago, so went to see him and left it. I found out afterward he must have had a shop as my bill was on an old sales slip. This man is retired and is such a clean fellow, neat sort. I guess the rest of us old retired guys are not?] I called him we would be after it and he even brought it out to car. He said he got a large percent off the tubes and took some off my bill, only two tubes were burnt out. He said the tubes had gone up to 21.00 etc, and so I felt luck to get hold of an honest ,am and a small charge. So had radio on last night and works fine. [She was a very poor sleeper and often listened to the radio several hours a night in bed.] Doris is such a kind person. He husband died this summer and she has put the retarded boy age 35 or so in a home for such. She says very little about her problems and I know why she has done this. She has a cancer of lymph gland, has had t for years and takes treatment for it, one hand and arm swollen. So she wants him to get adjusted and cared for and she is so pleasant always and until her husband was home sick, she took patients to hospital for treatments.

Am thinking about Labor Days in past, the colo]rado] peaches came in around that times and I made a jam that was pretty and colorful. Was peaches and ground up oranges and marchino cherries (now taboo on account of coloring) you called it Halloween jam as so orange color. And the white clematis and trellis was always in full bloom that day. Maybe I have written this in my letter to you Sat. so may be a repeat. I have written to Zita [Nephew Franc Schump's wife] so may be it was her. She [Zita] also misses family since they have moved out as they scatter and do or go other places, yet she is fortunate to have them in same town [Kansas City, Missouri]. So is [niece] Charlotte. They write to those 2 girls, as we all miss Kate [Florence's sister, Kate Schump] and her sister] Gladys. They did not know [other sister] very well as were young when she was her [that is, living].

July wasn't a very good month for me, so humid so stayed in so much of time. Air conditioners are fine, but too much of it in stores and some homes. I would get so chilled with fans going, and conditioner on low at times. My sinus was uncomfortable also with humidity plus, the pa9nting they did [in apartments] in the halls in May and my bathroom in June. It was horrible and I still smell paint others dont seem to, but with drier weather and open windows it is better. August has been a good month temperature down cool nights and no dust as August usually has. Love, mother

Fri Morn [Sept 1981] mt

Dear T & N. Sure having some early fall mornings 38, has hit a record since '73, and the daytimes 60. So after drawing up in a knot night before last piling on blankets I broke down yesterday and put on electric blanket, so had a cozy nights sleep last night. But we will have warmer days as we usually do in fall.

In my last letter about dates I left out our reunions [with her sisters] started. The night before Mothers funeral all we girls [five] were up to Maes and were sitting at table talking and Bernice said, 'Now lets dont drift apart. Lets get together every Oct for a Reunion." And we drew names, and poor Gladys drew for the first one. She was always a little uptight about company for any length of time, was the cooking that bothered her, but that first Reunion 28 years ago [1953]was wonderful. She had games for us to play and just all to be together for a whole week was really something, and so no we have added Zita [sister Kate's son, Frances Schump's wife] and Charlotte [sister Kate's daughter] and still had ones after [sister] Gladys] left, only they have been in the summer when Charlotte was closer.

I went to my church group meeting Wed. and we had a good speaker who called herself Princess (somebody) from a foreign country Russia or some place. I was in a tight corner so didn't get much out of the talk. There were 2 ladies that always come with walkers and have to be helped, so I was the one to do it. Someone came in while folks were arriving and asked if I could come to he car and help her with a lady. I went but I didn't do any lifting, so another lady came out for that and I carried the purse, [and] walker and they wheeled her in a wheel chair. It was a tug over a brick sidewalk so I have to watch myself also. So many in my group are in their 80's [Florence was 84]. I shouldn't say many as attendance is usually 15 or 20. We meet at different homes but there are times when they dont have enough room for that many and one of the members has it ather home, and the ladies like to go there. They have been there so many times they have certain chairs that they want to sit in. This is a 2 story house and has a large living room. and Nathalie you would be beside yourself when you first see it. I never get over the hodge podge, even Christmas stuff is still mantle along with jar of BVengay hand lotion, etc, and the photographs hung or sitting all over, the coffee table full of clipboards, store sale papers, etc, it is really wild. They dont have to live like that, but thats her style. Some times she picks me up for things going on at church. Her husband did this time and I had a little fresh loaf of bread for him . .[Remainder of letter missing]

Wed Morn [Sep.1981]

My Dear Son Yesterdays letter was such a good one and I spent part of the afternoon looking over old pictures, etc and have everything in neat bundles. Put back. And came across the enclosed items which are very old as you can see, the letter from the White City Register Marie [Hahn] sent me in 1976 when she was looking over her old scrap books, and the letter to his mom [Mattie Defries Hahn, I guess] from your Dad are like your letters to me. So dont send them back. You keep them. [I think these are a couple of letters from Walter Hahn to his mother from France during World War II.] Grandpa Hahn died died before Grandpa T., Grandma T a widow from Mar 30 1939 until her death 1952 Oct 29. I miss Myrtle Walter Hahn's sister] when it comes to remembering dates. And I am glad that you are not bored about me talking about the past as both you and Nathalie are interested in past history.

Yesterday at store, a lady and I were by the meat counter and heard an explosion and it was close by at cheese, canned biscuits and a can of biscuits had popped open and across the isle where bottled drinks are and had bits of dough hanging from them.

Beautiful weather, yesterday morning jackets were being worn and then sun warms up later in day and is very pleasant. A bunch of crows across the st. kept up a racket. They sound so much like wild geese in the fall.
